To the old place Judge Gaynor paid a visit every summer, spending three or four hours talking over his boyhood days and invariably doing a certain little stunt as gleefully as a child. There stands in the farmyard a huge bowlder upon which the Gaynor children used to crack nuts and play "Indian scout," hands shading eyes which peered into the far distant Mohawk valley, or doing a "circus act" on one leg and with outstretched arms.

"The judge never came here but what he climbed on that bowlder and did some of the old stunts for the amusement of my kids," said Mr. Herthum. "He never came to the old place without something in his pockets for the kids, and he roamed over the farm where he declared the happiest of his days were spent.

"None of my present neighbors remembers the time when the Gaynors lived here, but one of the judge's old schoolmates, James Mahar, moved to Whitesboro some time ago, so that it is the farm and not the neighbors the judge came to see.

"I never saw a man so stuck on his old home as Judge Gaynor was, and to see him cracking nuts and pirouetting on that old bowlder was as good as a circus. There is no church within miles of here even now, and there wasn't in the Gaynor days, so, although the Gaynor children got their schooling near here, they had not the advantage of church or clergy unless they drove to Oriskany."

Made His Debut in Boston.

Mr. Gaynor made his debut as a lawyer in Boston. At that time he was just twenty-one years of age and had gone to Boston from his father's farm in New York. There he had educated himself and had started teaching school when he was only nineteen years old.

Meanwhile he was studying law, and smoke a pipe and talk things over with him.

"Although he struck me as a young man of strong personality and more than average ability, I never imagined, of course, that some day he would be mayor of the greatest city on this hemisphere. But as I look back on it now, it seems that I might have guessed something of the sort if I had been anything of a prophet. For example, one thing that remains in my memory is the way in which young Gaynor always talked of big things, of great achievements. He was then practicing law, and it seemed to me that he had a better clientele, a more profitable business, than the average young lawyer fresh from the country. Still he wasn't satisfied, and he seemed to think that his energies were cramped and confined in Boston. He was always talking of New York and of the opportunities he believed were there for a young man of energy and ability.

"As well as I can remember it was the latter part of 1873 that he called me into his room one night and pointed to his trunk that was already half packed. 'Well, Ed,' he remarked, with a smile, 'I'm getting ready to leave Boston. I'm going to try my luck in New York or Brooklyn.' At first I could hardly believe it. I wanted to know why he was going away when his affairs were beginning to prosper. He waved it all aside airily and said, with a certain tone of resolution, that he felt sure he could make a greater

PUBLIC FUNERAL FOR W. J. GAYNOR

ENGLAND PAYS TRIBUTE

Liverpool Pays Unusual Honors to the Dead—Remains on Lusitania Homeward Bound — Plans for Obsequies.

Liverpool, Eng., Sept. 13.—The Cunard Line S. S. Lusitania, bearing the body of William J. Gaynor, steamed for New York this afternoon.

New York, Sept. 13.—Tentative arrangements were made here by a committee of the heads of various departments of the city government to hold the funeral of Mayor Gaynor on Monday, Sept. 22. A committee headed by Mayor Adolph Kline will go to St. James, N. Y., to represent the suggestions to Mrs. Gaynor and her family and urge their approval.

The tentative program agreed upon at the city hall provides that the body of Mayor Gaynor shall be taken from the Lusitania immediately upon its arrival here next Friday morning and carried with an escort of honor to the Gaynor family residence at 20 Eighth avenue, Brooklyn. It shall remain there until late Saturday afternoon and then be removed with another special escort to the city hall, to lie in state with a special guard until Monday.

From the city hall the body is to be taken to Trinity church with another special escort of honor on Monday morning, the funeral services to begin at the church at 11 o'clock. Bishop David H. Greer will be invited to conduct the services, and invitations to assist will probably be extended to the Rev. L. E. Holden, pastor of the church at St. James which has been attended by the Gaynor family, and to Dr. Frank Page, once pastor of St. John's Episcopal church in Brooklyn, which was also attended by Mayor Gaynor. Interment is to be in Greenwood cemetery, at Thirty-sixth street and Third avenue, Brooklyn.

Police and Firemen Pallbearers.

There will be four pallbearers, two from the police and two from the fire department. The matter of the honorary pallbearers is left open for the present.

The committee which agreed on these arrangements is made up of R. A. C. Smith, commissioner of docks and ferries; Dr. Ernst J. Lederle, commissioner of health; Robert Adamson, the mayor's secretary; Robert W. De Forrest, commissioner of the department of municipal art; Archibald W. Watson, corporation counsel; Henry S. Thompson, commissioner of water supply, gas and electricity, and Arthur J. O'Keefe, commissioner of bridges.

The committee which will submit this program to the family of Mayor Gaynor comprises Mayor Ardolph Kline, Robert Adamson and R. A. C. Smith. A committee of the board of estimate will act in an advisory capacity concerning the details.

Liverpool Honors Gaynor.

Liverpool, Sept. 13.—The body of Mayor William J. Gaynor lay in state last night in the town hall of Liverpool. The coffin, draped in the stars and stripes and the union jack, rests upon a catafalque brought from Westminster abbey, which has been used at the public funerals of England's greatest dead, the last being Field Marshal Lord Wolseley. Surrounding it are huge candelabra, also from the abbey, while through the night entire details of British police in dress uniform are on guard. All the flags on public buildings are at half mast.

These tributes, unprecedented in the case of a foreigner, are due to the lord mayor of Liverpool, Sir Harwood Banner, M. P., acting on his own initiative before receiving a cable from Ardolph Kline, mayor of New York, asking him to facilitate the shipment of the body on the Lusitania.

YORKE & ADAMS COMING.

The famous Jewish comedians, known as "the best in the world," Yorke and Adams, will appear at Proctor's theatre on Monday. They will be remembered by their success in the play "Bankers and Brokers," and "Playing the Ponies." They have a brand new duologue of Hebrew jokes and songs that are said to be a scream. On the same bill will be Hickman Brothers & Co., in a comedy "A Detective Detected," with three in the cast. Johnson, Horton & Johnson, "The Three Burlesquers," will appear in a unique entertainment; Clifford and Douglas, in a singing and dancing act; O. K. Sato, the clever juggler, and Proctor's photo plays complete the bill.

Thomas A. Edison, who has been confined to his home in Llewellyn Park with a cold and indigestion, was reported improved by Dr. John Hammond Bradshaw, his attending physician. "Mr. Edison is somewhat worn out," said Dr. Bradshaw, "but he is resting well. With plenty of rest and good care he will be able to be about within a few days."

Orange, Sept. 13.—Reports that Edison's condition is at all serious are unfounded. He is getting along nicely and feels annoyed that he can't be at his work.

COUNTY COURT QUASHES GRAND LARCENY CHARGES

Elizabeth, Sept. 13.—Judge Connolly, in the Circuit Court, yesterday afternoon vacated a previous order of the court for the trial of Paul Oriszek and Alexander Gibowsky. The men are accused of grand larceny. Both are being held in $500 bail each for the Grand Jury. It is alleged that the men stole $120 from Mrs. Catherine Weroizack, with whom they boarded at 2 First street, August 16 last. They made a complete denial of the charge.

The trial of Tony Moscan and Tony Grablinsky, of Bayway, charged with breaking, entering and larceny, was adjourned until next Friday. Two boys, Charles Kreig and Winthrop Croons, were sent to the State Home at Jamesburg. Kreig was charged with larceny and Croons with vagrancy.

LAKE HOPATCONG WATER LOWEST IN 23 YEARS

Lake Hopatcong, Sept. 13.—Chief Boat Inspector J. Fred Runyon is authority for the statement that the water in the lake is lower than it has been for a period of twenty-three years. In the last two months the water has fallen about seven feet.

Theodore F. King has plans on foot for the enlargement of the dock at Landing. Mr. King also contemplates dredging the lake in the vicinity of the dock so that the boat captains may be enabled to turn their boats under more favorable conditions. Mr. King proposes to extend the dock 100 feet. This is made necessary by the widening of the public thoroughfare some fifty or sixty feet at the entrance to the dock.

YOUTHFUL THIEF.

William Nesbit, 13 years old, of 432 East Fourth street, who has been employed by Philip Mechanik, of Park avenue, for three days, was arrested this morning on a charge of theft, preferred against him by his employer. Nesbit was "caught with the goods." He stole tools, bicycle pumps, etc., amounting in all to about $10 in value. He will be placed in charge of the probation officer.

GEO. KESSELRING DIED AS HE SLEPT

Well Known Local Man Suddenly Succumbs to Acute Indigestion.

DISCOVERED BY WIFE

Native of Germany—Aged Sixty-five Years—Member Trinity Reformed Church—Funeral to Be Held on Monday.

George Kesselring, of Chatham street, one of Plainfield's oldest barbers, was found dead in bed this morning by his wife, who sought to awaken him for his day's labors. He was a victim of acute indigestion. So quickly and quietly was his demise that his wife was undisturbed from her sleep as her life partner passed away. Before retiring for the night he was apparently in the best of health and talked happily with all he came in contact.

Mr. Kesselring, in his earlier years, learned his trade with Theodore Kurzhals, who had a shop for several years on West Second street next to what is now the Plainfield theatre. He was in his sixty-fifth year, a native of Germany and was a resident of this city for the past forty-five years. Mr. Kesselring was an attendant of Trinity Reformed church and was a member of Jerusalem Lodge, F. and A. M. He was a member of the Exempt Firemen's Association and was assistant chief of the local fire department in the days of volunteer service.

Besides his wife, Mr. Kesselring is survived by two sons, Frank Kesselring, also of Chatham street, and Harry Kesselring, of Duer street.

The funeral will be held from his home Monday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. Interment will be made at Evergreen Cemetery.

FINED FOR VIOLATING A HEALTH ORDINANCE

Charged with violating a health ordinance by performing work without the supervision of a master plumber, Isadore Levine, Ralph Croat and Thomas Moore, journeymen plumbers, were arraigned before City Judge De Meza this morning for sentence. Levine pleaded not guilty at his hearing several days ago, but sentence was suspended. Croat and Moore, who confessed to the charge and placed themselves on the mercy of the court, also received suspended sentences.

The three plumbers tapped a sewer pipe in a house in West Third street. The work was done improperly and the cellar of the structure was flooded with water. This condition brought the violations of the law to the attention of the Board of Health.

BOROUGH PARISH WILL OBSERVE HOLY CROSS

Tomorrow will signalize the resumption of all services at the Church of the Holy Cross. The holy communion will be celebrated at 7.30 a. m.; the Sunday-school will begin the season's work at 9.45 a. m., and at the 11 o'clock service the rector, Rev. William S. McCoy will preach. The rector will also preach at the service at 7.45 o'clock in the evening. There will be special music at the morning and evening services.

Tomorrow is designated in some of the church calendars as "Holy Cross Day," and is for that reason of special significance to Holy Cross parish. The rector hopes that there will be large attendances at all services to signalize the beginning of the new church year's activities.

OUTING AND CLAMBAKE.

The second annual outing and clambake of the Plainfield Dental Society will be held at Gillett, Thursday, September 18. The members will leave 525 Park avenue at 11 o'clock in the morning and at 12 o'clock chowder and a light lunch will be served. Games will be played until the bake is opened at 3 o'clock. Dinner will be ordered for those accepting by Tuesday noon. The committee in charge comprises Dr. Frank T. Clawson, Dr. Frank W. French and Dr. C. L. Crist.

BROKAW DISCHARGED FROM BANKRUPTCY

Judge J. C. Connolly Signs Order Releasing Plainfield Man.

Elizabeth, Sept. 13.—Clarence B. Brokaw, of North Plainfield, was discharged from voluntary bankruptcy in the Court of Common Pleas yesterday afternoon by Judge James C. Connolly. The court's decision is the outcome of a fight waged by Prosecutor Alfred A. Stein, counsel for Mrs. Blanche Beatty, of this city, who contended at several hearings before Judge Connolly that Brokaw was not really bankrupt.

Brokaw took legal steps to substantiate the claim that he could not pay his debts when a judgment was found against him as the result of a damage suit brought in the Circuit Court by Mrs. Beatty some months after his automobile ran her down in this city.

At one of the recent hearings to determine his financial status Brokaw was arrested on a charge of assault and battery, preferred by Mrs. Beatty as a result of the collision. He is now under bail for the October grand jury on that charge.

ENGLISH GOLFERS LEAD AMERICANS

Visitors Ahead at Completion of Eighteen Holes of Match Play.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Baltusrol, Sept. 13.—Playing before a crowd of 2,000 golf enthusiasts, many of whom were from Plainfield, the American representatives, Alex Smith and George Lowe, returned a score of 5 down at the completion of eighteen holes of four-ball match play over the Baltusrol Club course this morning, having as their opponents the English team composed of Harry Vardon and Edward Ray. The four players played the holes nip and tuck throughout the morning's competition and first one team took the lead and then relinquished it to the opposition.

Over 1,000 automobiles lined the course and 5,000 spectators are expected to witness the playing during the afternoon. Adverse weather conditions, including a stiff wind, greeting the brassie wielders this morning and conditions do not give promise of becoming any better for the final eighteen holes of play. The English cracks displayed rare judgment in their shots over the difficult New Jersey green and the American color bearers had to bring into play all of their cunning to even keep in the running with their English opponents.

Among those who attended the match from Plainfield were Peter Sweeney, D. H. Rowland, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Reed and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Rogers, C. W. Holland, S. A. Cruikshank, Mrs. H. R. Stockton, J. F. Parker, Dr. DuBois, Dudley H. Barrows, J. H. Green, Jr., S. W. Merrihew, H. V. Hubbard, Miss Ethel Most and Leighton Calkins.

"AN ALARM"

OPENING OF ELKS' HOME IS DELAYED

Handsome Structure Will Not Be Completed by October 1 as Anticipated.

ORNAMENT TO TOWN

Plainfield Antlered Host Will Have a Building Equipped With Bowling Alleys, Roof Garden, Dormitories and Auditorium.

Members of the Plainfield Lodge of Elks are watching with interest the progress being made on their handsome new building which is now in the course of erection on Watchung avenue between East Front and East Second streets, and which, when completed will be one of the finest structures of its kind in the State. Although it was originally planned to take possession of the home on October 1, present appearances indicate that the housewarming will be delayed at least one month. The structure is a four-story of brick construction and the plans have provided for spacious living rooms, offices, bowling alleys and other departments conceded to be necessities in the twentieth century lodge.

The main entrance of the building is a large hall of white marble opening on Watchung avenue. The four bowling alleys in the cellar afford a place to play the popular indoor game that has recently become so popular with the antler tribe. In laying out these alleys, those who have suprevised the construction, have aimed to provide ample space for a take off, a thing so often neglected in other buildings, and in this respect the Plainfield alleys will probably be the best on the Elks' League circuit. Next to the bowling rooms, dressing apartments, equipped kitchen is also provided for in the basement. In a sub-cellar, entirely separate from the part in which the kitchen and alleys are located, is the engine room and heating apparatus.

Two stair-cases have been provided which lead from the cellar to the roof in both instances, the main stairway for lodge members and their friends and the smaller one for employes of the lodge. Both are of iron construction and have slate steps making them both fireproof and strong.

Throughout the building there are four living rooms, or dormitories, one of which is equipped with private toilet facilities, and on every floor there has been provided laboratories of the most approved type. On each floor there is located an open fire-place, elaborately finished in black cherry, with which the entire building is trimmed. Those who have inspected the structure in its unfinished condition have been attracted by the original and unique trimming in the woodwork of the card room on the second floor. This room is perhaps the most attractive in the building, the woodwork on all four sides being carved to represent hearts, clubs, spades and diamonds.

A roof garden has been laid out on the spacious roof of the structure and when completed will have a floor of red tile and will afford a wide-spreading view of the city and its adjoining suburbs. A dumb-waiter will be put in operation from the cellar to the roof and this labor saving device is only one of the modern contrivances with which the building has been supplied.

Although the furniture has not as yet made its appearance, the members of the lodge say that the rooms will be provided with chattels that will be in keeping with elaborate building specifications and the rooms will be equipped both substantially and artistically.

CONTRASTED HER TO LOCAL GIRLS

Hood Says Co-respondent's Ideas of Conventionalities Were Quite Different.

EPISTLE TO 'COLLETTE'

That's Dorothy's "Other-self" Name—Hood Couple's Rules Put Family Religious Duties on Wife—Husband's Queer Explanations.

Newark, Sept. 13.—After considerable testimony of a sensational nature was given by Richard Haden Hood, defendant in the divorce proceedings instituted by his wift, Mrs. Frances Sparks Hood, the hearing was adjourned last night, it being arranged to have the cross-examination go over until Monday. Hood's testimony yesterday in the Court of Chancery, had much to do with Miss Dorothy Hoyt.

It was learned that a cryptic telegram addressed to Hood was received and read by his wife. It read: "Canada fear selling badly, senior firm strongly opposed. Write 57 Darcy." Hood admitted getting the message, explaining that it meant he couldn't sell bonds in New York. It was admitted that "Collette Darcy" was Miss Hoyt's "other self," and Mrs. Field testified that she sometimes used the name "Collette."

Hood admitted that it was to notify him that the Montreal trip was off. He said that he intended taking both Mrs. Field and Miss Hoyt on the trip, but the Vice-Chancellor remarked, "You don't expect me to believe that after Mrs. Field had upbraided Miss Hoyt."

The following letter, written by Hood, was then introduced. It read as follows:

"We play chess tonight. Mrs. Mulford is dead. I am not guilty of anything Pampe says. Pampe is for her bread and butter; Collette is better for having known me, I think. One drop of ink makes a whole bottle of water black, but one drop of water makes no change. You are building on the sand. You can never build a safe shelter. Far better that Pampe knew all of Collette's past. Take my case. I wanted to take all the public blame, of course, between ourselves you know. I have been sinned against and you the sinner. You know and I know Pampe can never make anything out of you except to add lying to Collette's other faults and I think that Collette doesn't like to lie. D. Does. I am holder of the Queen.

"Until I am dismissed and the colors fly I have told you only the truth and nothing but the truth. I wish to God you could say as much. I too must suffer for your false position for to reform and stay reformed is in my opinion impossible under the conditions. Pampe would surround you. I thought it very improbable I could succeed but I was passing from a firm basis. I knew your weaknesses and I was trying to bring some compensation for what fault I was trying to take away from you. Let us be friends together. I am going to make the trip. It looks as though alone, but who can tell. Now that she knows all you have very little to lose. I am the only one to suffer now. Watkins is at the bottom of most of this. Whom the gods will destroy they first make mad. I am absolutely clean of everything except what I freely told you of. This is where I was wiser than you. I hid nothing from you. Pampe has acted very badly with me. She knows that all she told you about me were lies. You knew in April as much about me as she did. In my mind there are only two things in the world worth while; a man's business honor, the support of the home and nation and a woman's virtue. The home with peace. I am straight. Was woman ever so wooed; was woman ever so won."

The lying, smoking and talk about automobile rides referred to was explained by Hood, who said that Watkins, referred to in the letter, had spread the stories to Miss Hoyt's detriment. Vice Chancellor Stevens said that he disbelieved such an explanation. "How is it possible that you took the night rides against the wish of Miss Hoyt's aunt?" asked the Vice Chancellor. Hood replied that it did look compromising now, but he did not think so.

Referring to a pair of mocassins belonging to Mrs. Hood, which Hood gave to Miss Hoyt, Hood explained that she used them to work the clutch on the automobile, whereas it was inferred that they were used to "sneak" out of the house at midnight.

In reply to a query by Mr. Parker on direct examination, Mr. Hood said that his wife's temper was "very much like my own, peppery and irritable. I have known her to lie on her back on the floor and kick her heels in the air for ten minutes at a time just like a child in a temper."

Hood denied that he ever struck his wife, but was forced to admit he

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

The nation's funniest and most tuneful light opera, "Robin Hood," will be presented at the Plainfield theatre Tuesday evening, Sept. 16, by the de Koven Opera Company, under the direction of Daniel V. Arthur. This is the organization formed to revive the glories of standard English opera, and which met with immediate success at the New Amsterdam theatre last season. This year it is making a tour of the larger cities and carries an orchestra, a large and tuneful chorus and several grand opera singers among the principals. Foremost of these is Adele Dilly, prima donna soprano, Royal Opera, Genoa, and she is assisted by Misha Ferenzo of the Imperial Opera, St. Petersburg; George Frothingham of the original Bostonians, Sara Maxson, Helena Morrill, Phil Branson, Tillie Salinger, Jerome Daley, Josephs Parsons, Sid Braham and others. The chorus is a large and tuneful one, and a special orchestra, under the direction of Joseph Sainton, is a feature of the organization. The production, which requires two cars, is the one used at the New Amsterdam theatre last season.

Happenings Due Next Week

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13.—The high court of impeachment, composed of the judges of the Court of Appeals and the members of the State Senate, will meet Thursday for the trial of Governor William Sulzer of New York. The actual beginning of the trial is not expected to come until the Monday following, but the Sulzer demurrer to the impeachment based on the alleged illegality of the Assembly taking such action in extra session, will have to be fought out before the trial itself proceeds. It is already certain that the entire proceeding will be one of the most bitterly contested in the history of the United States. Both sides promise sensational disclosures.

Confederate veterans will entertain their former foes, and altogether the reunion is expected to furnish a remarkable demonstration of patriotism.

Delegates from forty-two countries will assemble in Chicago for the Third International Congress of Refrigeration, which is to begin its sessions Wednesday. Leading scientists of the world will be on hand to address the delegates on the problems of cold storage.

The national headquarters of the United Shoe Workers of America are to be moved from Lynn to Boston.

The Glove Workers' Union of America has decided to make a vigorous campaign to increase its membership.

The mine workers of Illinois have voted to appropriate $100,000 to aid the striking copper miners of northern Michigan.

The United Mine Workers of America and the Western Federation of Miners together have a membership of nearly half a million men.

The label of the Cigarmakers' International Union, the oldest of all union labels, has been legalized in thirty-one States.

Thousands of children employed in the mills in Massachusetts have been thrown out of employment by the operation of a new law, which prohibits the employment of any child under 14 in a workshop.

The 22,000 members of the United National Association of Postoffice Clerks will take a referendum vote to decide whether the association shall affiliate with the American Federation of Labor.

Frank Duffy, general secretary of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, has been named to represent that organization at the convention of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress to be held this month in Montreal.

Complaining they have received no increase within the last twelve years, engineers and assistants employed on lumber carriers on the Great Lakes have asked for a wage increase of $15 per month, while chief engineers of bulk freighters have asked for an increase from $125 to $140 a month.

A conference of twenty-four delegates of the building workers' organizations from eleven countries on the occasion of the general meeting of the German building workers' conference, in Jena, decided that the next ordinary international conference should take place in Vienna.

Massachusetts' new child labor law provides that no one under 14 years of age shall be employed to work at the various trades. Regarding children under 16 years the act provides that the State Board of Labor and Industries may determine whether any trade is sufficiently dangerous to the health or morals of a child to justify exclusion.

Each member of the United Mine Workers of America is to be assessed fifty cents a month for September and October. The proceeds will be added to the international fund in aid of the striking miners in Vancouver, West Virginia, Southern Colorado and elsewhere.

EVERY STREET IN PLAINFIELD

Has Its Share of the Proof That Kidney Sufferers Seek.

Backache? Kidneys weak?

Distressed with urinary ills?

Want a reliable kidney remedy?

Don't have to look far. Use what Plainfield people recommend. Every street in Plainfield has its cases.

Here's one Plainfield man's experience.

Says Mr. Treat: "I suffered for a long time from kidney trouble and for years could not get relief. My back ached constantly and there was pain across my kidneys. My kidneys were in bad shape and I became all run down, in fact, was almost a physical wreck. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a supply and they made me feel like a different man. I got this remedy at Randolph's drug store and my experience was so satisfactory that I cannot make my endorsement of it too strong. I simply would not be without a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills on hand."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.—Adv.

STYLISH—RELIABLE

A Pin Like a Man Is Useless Without Its Head

A useless man is the greatest hindrance in Society—He's even worse than a dead man—He takes up more room.

The well dressed, clean looking men you meet are not the useless kind. The men who dress well are the ones who work well. The dowdy dressed, slipshod kind usually fall in the ditch of failure.

If Rothberg's has done nothing else for Plainfield, it has dressed its men better for less money than ever before.

We put a Broadway suit on a man—and give him $5 change out of a $20 note, which the suit is really worth—for we raised the Clothing Standard of this town.

Remember this for all time—men who get their Fall clothes at Rothberg's are dressed as well as any in this country, including New York, Chicago or any other big city.

You should get YOUR next suit here.

CIVIL WAR VETERANS TO HOLD A REUNION

Catttanooga, Tenn., Sept. 13.—Headquarters for the 47th annual national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic were opened here today. When Commander-in-Chief Beers and the advance guard of veterans arrived here they found Chattanooga smothered in bunting and as much enthusiasm over the old flag as they ever saw in any Northern city. The G. A. R. has never had more complete arrangements made for its entertainment than this year by the State of Tennessee. All the citizens of Chattanooga, which is to be the first camping place of the Union veterans in the old South, seem to have entered into generous rivalry to see who can spread the most bunting and contribute most to the entertainment of the visitors.

Though the big events of the encampment week do not begin until next Tuesday it is expected that the most of the veterans and other visitors will reach Chattanooga by Monday morning. A number of society and brigade reunions are scheduled for the first of the week. Then the most of the veterans will desire a day or two to visit the old battlefields and inspect the memorials before the encampment opens and the parade, the business sessions and other features will necessitate their presence in the city during the greater part of each day.

IN SESSION AT WINNIPEG.

AN ALARM.

There's a saying about not waiting until the horse is stolen before locking the stable door. It fits right in with what I have got to say.

Anybody knowing me, knows I am a radical—except in politics. I believe in hitting hard and in calling a spade a spade. I am what they call an alarmist. So was Paul Revere and a whole lot of others and I have no objection to being rated in their company.

When there is danger of a small-pox epidemic, I believe in saying so and I believe in shouting it out and in doing something to avoid it. When the burglars are about, I believe in spreading the alarm so the people will lock up their houses and be on guard. Some finicky old conservatives may say these alarms hurt the town, but it is better to suffer that, than to suffer a heavy loss whether it be in life or property.

You will therefore, not misjudge my intention, when I say that we should be up and doing to prevent a conflagration in our city. As conditions are, a little blaze assisted by a strong wind, is apt to devastate our business section at any time. Anybody at all familiar with the situation will agree with me on that proposition but I suppose most of them will disagree with me as to the advisability of sounding the alarm. Their objection is a selfish one—they don't want to see fire insurance rates soar because that would hit their pocketbooks. When you strike at the pocketbooks of some patriots you hit a vital spot. They squeal like a stuck pig.

Building code or no building code, there are mighty few fireproof buildings in our city. The fact is that you can count them all on the fingers of one one hand and have some digits left untouched.

It was only good luck that prevented our business section being swept by flames some years ago when the Babcock fire took place. Next time, maybe, the fates will be against us and we will wake up to find smouldering ruins where we now have a business centre.

What we want to do right now is to get on the job. Weed out as many fire-traps as we can and make every man who wants to erect a building have it guaranteed as fireproof. Clean out all the yards in back of business houses. They are now filled with inflammable material, or many of them are. The condition is a positive disgrace and I can't understand why the fire chief or building inspector—he's the same man—doesn't spend some of his valuable time in a clean-up. The building inspector should be a man right up-to-date on modern methods of building construction.

All the fire departments in the world wouldn't save a city of non-fireproof buildings if once a fire got underway with a fierce wind blowing. The Common Council is elected to manage the people's business and it is not doing its duty if it does not see to these things.

What we want is a building inspector to devote his whole time to his job. Alter the new building code so that all buildings must be fireproof. I say, better sound the alarm of public opinion than sound the fire alarm. That's my way of thinking.

NEWTON B. SMALLEY.

CONTRASTED TO LOCAL GIRLS

was under $500 bond to keep the peace. He explained the reference to "No fins" in the written agreement. "She wanted me to put in the memorandum 'no beating,' but I refused. I told her that I would put anything else in she desired. Mrs. Hood had had a beau early in life by the name of Bissell, who used to call her hands 'fins.' 'Don't be so free with your fins,' he would say and so we accepted that term.'

"One agreement comprised the following: First, to scold in private; second, wait in general five minutes for fulfillment of request; third, no swearing; fourth, no fins."

Until he returned from India in February, 1912, Hood says he saw very little of Miss Hoyt. Later he became interested in her. She had been educated in Europe and had a very different idea of life and conventionalities from what the average Plainfield girl has."

A query by the Vice Chancellor brought the explanation that what Hood meant was that she was interested in larger affairs than the girls of Plainfield, for instance, Hood said there occurred the Jaen Jacques Rosso centenary and Miss Hoyt evidenced intense interest in it. The feeling for Miss Hoyt, Hood declared, was that of an elderly man for a young girl and a perfectly proper and considerate interest, such as a father would have for his daughter.

Asked about his automobile rides with Miss Hoyt, he admitted taking her out late at night, after being remonstrated with, but he explained that he did not smoke or drink and he didn't like to see a woman smoke or drink so asked Miss Hoyt to give them up and took her out auto riding as a sort of compensation.

"Miss Hoyt was anxious to drive my car," said Hood, "it was a nice Packard runabout, very conspicuous and she made a very conspicuous figure with her mastery over it."

The rules and regulations of the Hood family were introduced into evidence, and elicited much interest. They were as follows:

"Rules and regulations of the R. H. Hood family, 1901. Names, R. H. Hood, my husband or Mr. Hood in public, Haden in private. Mrs. R. H. Hood, my wife or Mrs. Hood in public; Frances in private. Objects and duties—the mutual protection, love and care of each other. Husband's duties—providing the means for support of the family and the preservation of its good name and standing; point plainly and sweetly to any faults he sees in his wife. Wife's duties, the care and maintenance of the home, the preservation of its moral and social standing, the education and religious training of the children, the church duties of the family; point out plainly and sweetly any faults she may see in her husband. Husband's rights—final determination of all decisions affecting his prescribed duties; his wife's vows. Wife's rights—the final determination of decisions affecting her prescribed duties; her husband's vows."

Other agreements were as follows: "First, absolute equality in actions, wishes and decisions; second, party holding the 'ring' can decide disputed matters by forfeiting the 'ring' to the other party; third, no correction or disrespect in public and as little as possible in private; fourth, absolute truth, honesty and integrity in all relations of life; no conversation with friends or relatives about any phases of our private family life."

PLAINFIELD THEATRE.

Helen Gardner in "Cleopatra," one of the most superb photo plays yet produced, will be presented at The Plainfield Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday, September 17-18. This magnificent picture is in a class by itself, consuming over 6,000 feet of film, beautifully tinted throughout. The actual cost of the entire production was close to $100,000. It is crowded with effective incidents from beginning to end. The scenic effects are beautiful, costumes gorgeous, all blending into what is undoubtedly one of the most beautiful pictures ever produced. The picture is remarkable for its refined sumptuousness, its tremendous dramatic power and gripping interest and its entire freedom from those elements common to Oriental dramas. In short the picture was produced for American men and women of culture and taste. As "Cleopatra" Miss Gardner is a glorious poem. The part would tax the art of Bernhardt. Miss Gardner's rhythmic beauty and instincts, her intellectuality, culture and delicacy have combined in her work to vivify and enoble the character of Cleopatra even as Bernhardt might have done at the age of twenty-six. Her costumes are truly gorgeous, representing not merely money, but exquisite taste, thought and culture. The time required to project the picture is one hour and a half. This will be the last appearance of this classic film at this pretty playhouse.

SEDGWICK'S MEMORY IS HONORED TODAY

Wreaths Placed on His Gettysburg Monument on Birthday Centennial.

Gettysburg, Pa., Sept. 13.—Several handsome floral wreaths were placed today about the base of the memorial erected on the Gettysburg battlefield by the State of Connecticut in memory of Maj. Gen. John Sedgwick. The offerings were sent by G. A. R. posts in various parts of the country in recognition of the fact that today was the centennial anniversary of Gen. Sedgwick's birth.

Gen. Sedgwick is remembered as one of the ablest and bravest officers of the Army of the Potomac. Born in Cornwall, Conn., Sept. 13, 1813, he graduated from West Point in time to see active service in the Florida war against the Seminole Indians and in the Mexican war of some years later. Soon after the beginning of the Civil War he was given command of a brigade of the Army of the Potomac. He was wounded twice at Antietam and distinguished himself in the Chancellorsville campaign. At Gettysburg he made one of the most extraordinary forced marches on record to arrive in the field on the second day of the fighting. In 1864 Gen. Sedgwick, in command of the 6th Army Corps, took part in Grant's campaign in the Wilderness. He was directing the placing of some artillery in position in front of Spottsylvania Court House, May 9, 1864, when he was instantly killed by a bullet from the rifle of a sharpshooter.

PENNA'S GREATEST POLITICAL STRUGGLE

Complete Alignment of Forces Expected at First Primary Test Tuesday.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 13.—What is considered to be in many respects the most important political campaign ever waged in Pennsylvania virtually ended today. Next Tuesday a State-wide primary will be held for the nomination of candidates for two superior court judges; for municipal officials of all the leading cities and officials of the 67 counties of the State.

Neither the governorship nor any other of the high offices of the State are involved in the contest. Nevertheless, the primary of next Tuesday and the regular election to follow in November threaten revolutionary results and may lead to a complete realignment of the political forces and the changing of the political map of Pennsylvania.

The primary will be operated under radical new laws designed to make it possible for the electorate to select efficient, progressive and unbossed candidates for public office. The new election laws, coupled with advanced ideas in municipal government which are to come into effect at the same time, are believed to sound the death knell of machine government.

The last legislature provided for radical changes in the system of government in third-class cities, abolishing the mayor and councils and establishment of a pure commission form of government. In the primaries next Tuesday a mayor and four commissioners will be nominated to govern the 23 third class cities of the State. Non-partisan elections will be held in all the cities of Pennsylvania, except Philadelphia.

The fight in Philadelphia centers about the election of councilmen, county officials and nine municipal court judges. The municipal court is a new tribunal to try minor civil and criminal cases. The nine judges are to be chosen without regard to party affiliations.

The idea that machine government must be destroyed and that the new primary and election laws give opportunity to bring about such destruction is paramount in the campaign. In Philadelphia and in nearly all the other important communities, the Washington party forces and the Democratic party are united to overthrow the so-called Republican machine.

Added importance is given to the primaries and election this year, as they are regarded as merely preparatory to the election of United States Senator and Governor next year. The reform element believes that a victory of the fusion forces this year, especially in the Republican strongholds of Philadelphia and Pitsburgh, would make almost hopeless any successful fight next year by Senator Penrose for re-election, and would go far toward breaking down the control by the Republican Organization of the State government.

In Pittsburgh there is no fusion and a triangular contest is being waged. Mayor Magee and William Flinn, the Washington party State leader, have joined in the support of Congressman Stephen G. Porter for mayor, while the Republican faction that follows the leadership of Senator Oliver is behind the candidacy of Joseph Armstrong, former director of public works. The Democrats have a candidate in the field and the outcome of the primary, the hottest that Pitsburgh has known in years, is filled with uncertainty.

Among the cities which will nominate candidates for commission officers next Tuesday and elect them in November are Erie, Reading, Wilkesbarre, Harrisburg, Johnstown, Altoona, McKeesport, York, New Castle, Williamsport, Easton, Hazleton, Oil City, Bradford, Franklin, Lebanon, Pittston, Monongahela and Titusville.

All of these cities are to adopt the commission form of government in December. This new system carries with the direct legislation principles of the initiative and referendum. The councilmanic system will be abolished and in its place will be a commission composed of the mayor and four commissioners.

The new law provides for non-partisan elections in all the cities of the State, except Philadelphia. Such elections, taking out of partisan politics municipal officers in practically all of the cities and judicial elections in every community, are expected to go far towards destroying the old party machines.

Abolish Blue Monday

Money Saving Time Saving Labor Saving

THE NEW WAY.

READ WHAT WE HAVE TO SAY

You can save many dollars in a year on your clothes and add a day of pleasure to your life each week with this wonderful Rapid Vacuum Clothes Washer, but cutting your laundry work in two. Most clothes are RUBBED OUT and not WORN OUT. When you send your clothes to the laundry what happens to them? They are soaped and beaten, and rubbed so that the hot soap-suds (sometimes a little acid added) is forced through and through the goods. This cleans the goods, but they do not last long. When your clothes are washed in your own home what happens? The hot soap suds are pushed in and out of the garments, as they are rubbed on the board. This cleans them, but wears them out. In every process of washing, soap and water are the only elements having any cleaning properties. When your clothes are washed with the Rapid Vacuum Washer what happens? Gallons of soapy water at boiling temperature (which sterilizes the clothes) is forced through the goods every 60 seconds. This cleans your clothes snowy white without straining a thread. You can now wash woolens, blankets, sheets, shirts, collars, bed quilts, etc., at home, and after washing the articles will be whiter, softer, cleaner, fluffier and more beautiful in appearance than before. Compressed air, hot water and soap does the work.

You can wash a tubful of dirty clothes in five minutes without rubbing, without bending, and with very little work.

A tubful of clothes can be rinsed and blued in the same way in one minute.

You can clean anything that can be cleaned with soap and water or gasoline in a few minutes, without straining a thread.

No more rough hands and tired backs for the person who does the washing.

The Vacuum Washer has no moveable parts, cannot get out of order, and with proper care will last for years.

WASHDAY NO LONGER A DAY OF DREAD

DIRECTIONS FOR OPERATION

Have your water hot, the hotter the better. Add sufficient soap and see that it is thoroughly dissolved before putting in the clothes, as hot water without soap will set the dirt. Use enough hot water to float the clothes, then operate the plunger up and down, each time a gallon or more of hot suds is forced through the fabrics, and the same amount is drawn back on the upward stroke. This suction force is produced by an automatic suction valve, which is a distinct and original feature of our invention. During five or ten minutes, which is required to do a washing, many hundred gallons of hot, soapy water are forced through the clothes, which cleans them in a more perfect manner than any other process and with absolutely no wear or tear. This is the secret of the success of this Rapid Vacuum Clothes Washer.

If you do your own washing, it will save you time, strength and temper. If you send your washing out, we know that you are not satisfied, as your clothes are worn and eaten with the strong washing compounds used by laundries. If you employ a maid, her time is worth money.

DO NOT LET ANOTHER WASHDAY PASS WITHOUT A RAPID VACUUM WASHER.

THE OLD WAY.

Which Way Do You Prefer ?

Five minutes only to every tubful of clothes and without hurting a thread. No bending over.

WITH THE BOXERS

Pal Moore and Frankie Russell are in training for their bout at New Orleans on September 15.

Young Shugrue, the Jersey City lightweight, says he has been offered a bout with Freddie Welch, to take place in Denver the latter part of this month.

It looks as though the next important heavyweight bout will be a battle between Frank Moran, of Pittsburgh, and "Gunboat" Smith.

BASEBALL NOTES

Houston is a repeater in the Texas League, having won both the 1912 and 1913 pennants.

Even with a weak team behind him, Pitcher Ray Caldwell, of the Highlanders, has done remarkable hurling this season.

Rousch, the youngster who has been playing short for the White Sox, looks like a handy man for the Callahan crew.

The Canadian League teams put up a great race this season, with Ottawa coming home a winner just seven points ahead of London.

John Pieh (pronounced Pie), has joined the Highlanders' pitching staff. It is not yet known whether he is of the soft-shell variety.

In recent games against Brooklyn and New York, Pitcher George Tyler shut out both teams. He held the Superbas to three hits and allowed the Giants but one bingle.

Ray Demmitt, of the Montreal team, is leading the batting list in the International League, with Simmons, of Rochester, and Swancina, of Newark, following close behind.

Ned Egan is making quite a reputation as a minor league manager. Three successive times have Egan and his Ottumwa team copped the pennant in the Central Association.

The Jones family has the edge in heavy clouting in the American Association. Uncle Tom, of Milwaukee, and Old Davey, of Toledo, are the leading batsmen in the association.

An all-star team of the Federal League will play a series of post-season games with Bill Phillips' Indianapolis team, who are the champions of the new organization.

Just as the Louisville Colonels were making a great fight for the American Association pennant they bumped up against the tail-end Indianapolis outfit and lost three straight games.

Eagle-Eye Jake Beckley, who has been playing ball for forty years, more or less, is out to land a job as umpire in one of the big leagues. Jake umpired in the Federal League this season and is alive to tell the tale.

The Cubs and the White Sox are to meet in a series of games for the Chicago championship. Likewise the Red Sox and the Braves will contest for the Boston title. St. Louis fans, however, do not appear keen to see the Browns and Cardinals in action.

William Valandingham Hieronymus, a right-handed pitcher from Clinton county, Ohio, has been signed by the Cubs. If Bill leaves at least seven-eighths of his name in Clinton county he will still have plenty of moniker for a debut in fast society.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:
Query—Where can one find wild cherries in this vicinity K. D.
Answer—There are plenty of wild cherry trees on the outskirts of the city. But you had better take a gun with you, some of those wild cherries are real ferocious.

Sporting Editor:
Query—Is boating allowed on the South Plainfield pond and is there any canoe racing scheduled for that place this fall? O. F.
Answer—Boating is not only allowed but has become a business. There are no races scheduled, in fact the pond is too small for any extensive regatta work.

Sporting Editor:
Query—When a baseball game is forfeited the winning club is awarded the game by a score of 9 to 0. How are those runs apportioned among the various players on the team? Do any of the hits, errors, etc., go into the official averages? I. C.
Answer—The nine runs are not counted in the batting averages. If the game goes five innings or more the hits, runs, etc., actually made, are counted.

Sporting Editor:

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL RESTORED.

Students of the Brooklyn Prep School besieged the Rev. Joseph H. Rockwell, S. J., president of the school, yesterday, and pleaded with him to rescind last Thursday's order regarding the abolition of football at the Crown Heights institution. It took the boys almost two hours to convince Father Rockwell that football under the present code is not dangerous. They pleaded their cause so eloquently that a special meeting of the faculty was called, with the result that last Thursday's order was rescinded and the boys may now go through with their season's gridiron schedule.

CARDS RELEASE TWO.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 13.—The local club of the National League announced yesterday afternoon that Catcher Roberts and Outfielder Cather had been released to the Indianapolis American Association club. Roberts will report to his new team in a few days, but Cather, whose leg was broken two weeks ago, probably will not join Indianapolis until next season.

RANDOLPH WILL TWIRL.

The Reading nine will make its first appearance in New York tomorrow, when the crack team clashes with the Suburbans at Suburban Oval, Granvesend and Sixteenth avenues, Brooklyn. Cliff Randolph, of this city, who has allowed only one run in twenty-seven innings, will pitch for the Suburbans and Schneider will catch.

LOCKE'S WILL PROBATED.

Philadelphia, Sept. 13.—Mrs. Blanche W. Locke, widow of the late William H. Locke, yesterday became part owner of the Philadelphia National League baseball club, of which her husband was president at the time of his death last August 14. The will of the late Mr. Locke was probated yesterday. It leaves his entire estate to the widow, who also is named executrix. The estate is valued at $28,500, but it is said these figures merely are approximated.

PENNANT FOR BINGHAMTON.

Binghamton, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Binghamton nailed the 1913 New York State League pennant to the mast yesterday, when Elmira was defeated in two exciting games in the presence of a vast crowd, a band playing between innings. The scores were 5 to 2 and 5 to 1. This is the team on which Cliff Randolph, the local pitcher, formerly played.

ANDERSON TO BE RELEASED.

Boston, Sept. 13.—Pitcher Anderson, purchased by the Boston Americans from the Brockton New England League club, will be released to that club, it was announced by President McAleer yesterday. Anderson has pitched in several games for the Red Sox, but did not, in the opinion of Manager Carrigan, show sufficient promise to warrant Boston making the second payment on his purchase price.

"MAC" SAYS

Looking over the number of holdouts on the Holy Cross football team we are convinced that the gridiron game has not yet become the paying business that baseball has been transformed into recently.

All of last year's men, almost without exception, are back in the fold and will try to maintain their positions on the eleven in spite of the rapid and encouraging influx of new stars.

Arthur Titsworth, who played great football for the Rutgers eleven two years ago, ought to be a valuable addition to the churchboys' backfield. He has the weight and looks like a star.

Once more we aver that the Holy Cross team will be in a class by itself locally and maybe as a State club. P. H. S. was light last year, but the schoolboys are still lighter this season when compared with the churchboys' outfit.

It might interest certain aspirants to the football spotlight to learn that farm hands are in great demand in Kansas. And still we find a lot of would-be tillers of the soil trying to keep the grass short on a football gridiron during the tryout days.

Not that it causes us any worry, but it is about time someone broke in with the information that Ernest Dorflinger was doped when he called off that Somerville clash last week.

Several times we have been led to believe that baseball as a business was quite a sport but now we are convinced that we have it frontways backward.

Human pickerel may be seen wading through all the ponds in town after recent rains, getting into trim for that aquatic team that has been proposed for Plainfield.

A call has been issued for the first practise of the recently proposed Y. M. C. A. swimming team which will be held next Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock. All members of the Y. M. C. A., whether they be intermediates, juniors or seniors, are eligible for membership on the team and a big squad is expected to start in the first drill.

The world's championship checker tournament was held this year in Binghahton, N. Y. The consensus of opinion is that Binghamton is an ideal place for a checker tournament.

Jerome D. Travers has sasserted himself as the Frank Gotch of golf.

Jerome Travers and Travers Jerome ran a dead heat in the Publicity Derby last week.

"I state that poker is not a game of chance but a game of skill, based on the doctrine of the integrals of differential calcucus"—William Travers Jerome, after a pinch. So it was because of the doctrine of the integrals of differential calculus that a Somerville fan held an ace flush and nosed out Jack Torpey's and Ernest Dorflinger's three kings in a little game recently.

HOCKEY CAPTAIN RESIGNS.

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 13.—The members of the Harvard hockey teams will meet at the opening of college and choose a successor to Captain Alin F. Sortwell, whose resignation has just been made public. Sortwell was the unanimous choice of the team as captain last February. He performed an unusual feat for an athlete last June when he received his university degree, concluding the ordinary four-year course in three years. Sortwell played at rover.

ACTING CAPTAIN WILSON CALLS HOLY CROSS PRACTISE MONDAY

In response to the initial call for football material, twenty gridiron warriors met at the home of William Coyle, on Waynewood place, last night, to launch the 1913 season and from present appearances it looks as though the local eleven would be even faster than the representative team of last fall which was strong enought to clean up on anything its size in the State and wound up the season by laying claim to the New Jersey Club championship. The fact that every man on the great team of last season with the exception of Earl Moran, Jack Mair, Harry Johnson, James Nash and Frank Clarke have reported for duty this year is in itself encouraging to those who are handling the managerial reigns and the prospects for a wealth of new and promising material are bright.

Although this was the first gathering of the season enthusiasm was rife and the warriors expressed a wish that practice be started at once in order to avoid any possibility of an eleventh hour rush such as took place last year just before the first contest was staged. At that time the manager and captain had little or no knowledge in regard to the respective playing merits of the men who were aspirants to jobs on the team and the eleven was selected at the last moment in regard to reputations rather than individual merits. This season, however, matters will be different, the early start affording those in charge an opportunity to get a line on all of the material that has presented itself for a tryout.

Jack Wilson, who acted in the capacity of field leader last year, was re-elected to serve temporarily as captain of this year's team and the twenty John Hancocks that were handed into him last night will be on deck Monday night at the first practice. As a number of the gridiron athletes are playing baseball just at present it will be impossible to hold Saturday afternoon drills and the first real drill will be held Monday night by arc light.

P. V. Martin, who coached the Stevens College warriors last year, and who is serving in the same capacity this season, will assist in whipping the Holy Cross pigskin chasers into shape for the opening game of the schedule, which will be played on September 27 with either the Dewitt-Clinton High School team, the Montreux Prep. School representatives or the Franklin A. A. Mr. Martin, the new coach, is a former Swarthmore and Penn State player and is well versed in every phase of the gridiron game.

An added feature of this year's schedule and one which will no doubt be greeted with enthusiasm by the followers of the sport was announced last night by Manager Jack Doyle, when he informed the players that all of the team's games would be staged on Cricket Field, one game being put on every Saturday afternoon. This will assure local followers of at least one good attraction each week on a home field and the move to keep the Holy Cross outfit a strictly home team should prove a popular one.

George Howe, who served as head linesman last season, was reappointed for this season. The fallowing names were handed in last night: Jack Wilson, James Manning, Ed. Bremble, William Coyle, Jack Caufield, Joseph Carty, Jack Ricketts, Thomas Ricketts, Myrton Glover, Arthur Titsworth, William Ruttledge, Louis Dixon, Richard Douglas, Thomas Lindsay, Robert Sharrets, Lester Hamilton, George Webster and Russell Vail. James Nash, who put up a speedy game at half-back last season and who has played for Holy Cross for five years, will be absent this year as he has entered a school in Philadelphia; Earl Moran, who played center last season has not as yet reported; Jack Mair, who played right tackle, is still a holdout; Frank Clarke, the former high school player and speedy end, is in Vermont, and Johnson, who played his first football last season at right and left guard, will shortly leave for college.

Among the new men are Arthur Titsworth, a former half-back on the Plainfield High School and Rutgers teams, who will ably fill-in the gap left vacant by Nash's absence; Richard Harrigan, who played center on the Holy Cross and Plainfield High School teams a couple of years ago; Leo Ayers, who has played nearly every position in football at one time or another; Louis Dixon, the baseball catcher, whose bulk ought to make him a speedy performer, and Robert Sharretts, who played such a phenomenal game in his first contest two years ago but who had the misfortune to break his collarbone in his initial game.

Among the veterans who composed last year's team and the positions they played and are trying to hold on to this year are Lester Hamilton and George Webster, left end; William Ruttledge, left tackle; James Manning, Myrton Glover, left guard; Joseph Carty, center; Jack Caufield and Edward Bremble, right-guard; Edward Bremble and Jack Mair, right tackle; Frank Clarke and Lester Hamilton, end; William Coyle and Russell Vail, quarter back; Tom Ricketts, left half back; Jack Ricketts, right half back; Jack Wilson and James Manning, full backs. The fact that some of the players are placed in two positions in the lineup is due to the fact that experimental shifts were made at various times in order to strengthen the team when players were out because of injuries.

N. J. TENNIS TITLE FOR MISS M'LEAN

Morristown, Sept. 13.—In the language of the baseball fan, Miss Marie Wagner, of the Hamilton Grange Lawn Tennis Club, New York, national indoor champion, broke even yesterday in the final round matches of the New Jersey State championship tournament on the dirt courts at the Morristown Field Club. The indoor star was defeated in her match for the singles title by Mrs. Marshall McLean, who at one time was the wearer of the national crown, in a hard two-set match. The scores were 6-4, 8-6.

In the doubles Miss Wagner was ably assisted by Miss Clare Cassell of the Bronxville Association, and this pair marched to victory in three sets over Mrs. W. H. Pouch and Miss Alberta Weber, at 6-4, 1-6, 6-3.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE FROM THE SOMERVILLE BASEBALL PARK.

Somerville, N. J.—1 o'clock—Weather O. K. for baseball. Line of fans camping outside the ball park since dawn has doubled during the last hour. Stallings has not been heard from. Special guards have been detailed to duty at the various telephones in town where false information might be handed out. Everything possible being done to stage the contest. Jimmy Clinton ready to take the mound.

HOPE CHAPEL FIVE IS STILL INTACT

Speedy Churchboys' Quintet Will Reorganize for the Coming Court Season.

Although the building of the new Hope chapel gymnasium and the completion of the same before the opening of the basketball season is now practically out of the question, basketball players of every size and calibre are preparing for another busy season in the West Fourth street rendezvous and the great court game will probably be promoted even on a higher basis than it was last year. The reorganization of the Chapel's representative quintet is now practically assured and the return of all of the veterans will make it an easy matter to start things going again for the 1913-14 season on the court. Last year the Hope contingent suffered but two defeats during the whole five months of playing, these two reverses being administered by the Y. M. C. A. Ajax in a three-game series to decide the championship.

Playing every week end and every holiday, the Chapelites hung up an enviable record which was equaled by no other local team and the string of consecutive victories was one of the longest and most substantial ever annexed by a local quintet. Out of last year's squad every player is once more available, including Johnny and Tommy Heron, Guy and Allen Snyder, James Doig and George Leighs and reorganization will be started in the near future.

CALIFORNIA STATE FAIR.

Sacramento, Cal., Sept. 13.—Beginning today and continuing through the coming week, Sacramento expects to entertain one of the largest crowds in her history. The occasion is the annual exhibition of the California State Fair Association, which this year bids fair to eclipse all of its predecessors in the number, variety and extent of its exhibits. Every building and pavilion is filled to overflowing with attractive displays illustrating the industries and resources of the State. A program of harness racing, a State shooting tournament and numerous free attractions have been provided by the management for the entertainment of the visitors.

The Year-Round Picnic.

Don't let the picnic habit sicken and die, just because cold weather is coming. There is no sort of outing so beneficial and at the same time so inexpensive and easily prepared—yes, Madam Picnic-Maker, even if the sandwiches and cakes and eggs must be prepared by you—as the picnic.

And cold weather is really no reason for giving up the picnic.

Do you remember in the story of "Elizabeth and Her German Garden," the midwinter picnic that she gave? To be sure she had a carriage at her disposal. They use to drive over the snows to the shores of a frozen sea, and there, jumping from foot to foot to keep warm, they would drink hot soup and eat sandwiches.

That was one example of the sort of picnic that cold does not interfere with. And even if you do not want to stand by a northern frozen sea and drink hot soup, you can still have picnics on the sunny days of winter, and on the many wonderful days of autumn, in some sheltered warm spot.

Cold Weather Picnics.

The picnic is an incentive to keep out of doors, and therein lies its best claim to notice. It is an inexpensive and informal means of enjoyment, and that is another point in its favor. So plan to have picnics all winter long, on pleasant days.

Of course, the cold weather picnic fare must be nourishing and satisfying, and somewhat different from the fare that makes a hot-weather picnic delightful.

To begin with, there must be some hot dish. If you can build a fire and broil a beefsteak or some chops, or fry bacon and eggs, the rest of the refreshments can be simple indeed—bread and buter, fruit and cakes would do. If you can heat soup over a fire, sandwiches of various sorts, crackers and cheese and jam can make up the menu—and this is an easily carried lunch. The soup can be carried in the form of cubes or capsules of concentrated meat flavor, to be diluted with hot water when you reach your destination. With such a lunch the sandwiches should be hearty—egg, nut, or cold meat fillings being the best.

Another good cold-weather menu is this: Hot coffee or chocolate, roasted potatoes with butter and salt, brown bread sandwiches, cold meat and cakes or crackers, toasted, with cheese.

Always take enough to eat to the cold-weather picnic. And always dress warmly. Tie a sweater by the arms about your waist, if you are warm when you are walking, to wear when you stop for lunch.

The cold-weather picnic lunch for the very cold day should be one that can be eaten en route. Each picnicker should carry his own lunch in his pocket, so each lunch should be neatly and compactly wrapped. This sort of lunch can be made up of meat sandwiches, cheese and brown bread sandwiches, a cake of milk chocolate, if it is liked, and an apple or two. A stop for hot coffee can be made at some convenient farmhouse.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

Some Things Some Women Have Done Without the Vote.

The other day I was talking to a friend, who, having an extremely busy life, had not as yet taken much interest in the suffrage question.

"It seems to me," she said, "that you women who don't believe in the suffrage ought to get together and do some of the things for which the suffragists say the vote is needed." Utterly astonished, I enumerated certain good work already accomplished or in process of accomplishment by women. For the benefit of others who may also be ignorant of the part that women play in civic work, I submit an epitome of the work of the Woman's Municipal League of the city of New York. It is official, being published by the League.

"The purpose of the League is to promote among women an intelligent interest in municipal affairs, and to aid in securing permanent good government for Greater New York without regard for party or sectional lines."

The League was influential in passing the Employment Agency Bill, which has been copied in other States.

It was influential in securing matrons for the police stations.

It was instrumental in obtaining Chelsea Park.

It was instrumental in securing the restoration of the parks on upper Broadway, and is working for the improvement of the grass plots on all parked streets.

It gives medals to the men of the Street Cleaning Department.

It has revived the Waring Juvenile Citizens' Leagues.

It has erected thirty free ice water fountains.

It has placed a play director in Washington Square Park.

It has an industrial membership of 300 tenement dwellers and carried on for their bentfit a recreation pier last summer.

It employs as field secretary a competent worker, who has served on Federal and State boards and commissions, and who thoroughly investigates any new piece of work undertaken by the League.

It administers a Home for Deficient and Delinquent Boys established by Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Sr., at White Plains.

It issues a Year Book and three Quarterlies, which keep members fully informed as to the activities of the organization.

It has a Courts Committee, which has been helpful in caring for and educating helpless victims.

It has a Tenements Committee, which investigates and has remedied many evils.

It has a Parks and Playgrounds Committee, which endeavors to secure new playgrounds and have the parks better policed.

It has a Streets Committee, which was influential in stopping the smoking of automobiles and has aroused the Department of Street Cleaning to further activities.

It has a Legislative Committee, which examines and reports on bills affecting the welfare of Greater New York.

It has a sub-committee of the Legislative Committee, which attends hearings on ordinances of public importance.

For this sort of work women are peculiarly fitted and many of them have more time for it than the men, occupied as they are by business, and handicapped by party affiliations.

A friend of mine complains that we who are opposed to suffrage are guilty of stating half truths. My own experience has been just the opposite. For my part, I am most careful to have chapter and page for any quotation I make, and to give ample context, but I often find that the same care is not taken by our opponents. For instance, in the "Votse for Women" column this week, we are told that Mrs. Grace Duffield Goodwin says: "If equal franchise were a question of allowing intelligent women to vote, I would say let men and women both have the ballot."

Now I have heard Mrs. Goodwin speak twice this summer and both times, speaking of the ignorant vote, she said, "If it was a question of ballot reform, limiting the right of voting to intelligent men and women, I might be in favor of letting women vote" but, as she went on to show, that would be impossible and the inference was that, being impossible, there was no harm in making certain allowances which might not have been made in an actual case.

As to the "intelligent" vote, here Mrs. Selden fails to "distinguish between things that differ" for she confuses intelligence with knowledge. It it just the difference between them that makes it impossible to have a manhood suffrage dependent on educational limitations. Because a girl or boy has gone through the High School it does not follow that they are as capable of voting intelligently as the working man gifted with what the farmers use to call "horse sense." When we speak of the ignorant vote, we mean along with the vote of uneducated people, that of the unintelligent, who may be found in all classes of society.

As to the Anti-Suffragist being no democrat, well! We believe in the democratic doctrine of the rule of the majority and so far, those opposed to equal suffrage are vastly in the majority, and judging by the daily accessions to our ranks, we are likely to remain so.

Some Cookery Suggestions

BAKED ONIONS.

DINNER MENU.
Cream of Turnip Soup.
Boiled Chicken.
Baked Onions.
Browned Potatoes.
Apple Tart.
Coffee.

THE nutritive value of onions is generally admitted, but the unpleasant odor that accompanies their cooking has made them unpopular with housewives. However, they may be baked without these unpleasant effects and an onion properly baked is one of the most appetizing of foods.

Baked In Paper.

Baked Whole Onions.—The large Spanish or Bermuda onions are the best baked. Wash clean, but do not remove the skins. Boil an hour; the water should be boiling when they are put in, and slightly salted. Change it twice during this time, always adding more boiling water. Drain off the water, take the onions out and lay upon a cloth, that all the moisture may be absorbed or evaporate. Roll each onion in a round piece of oiled paper, twisting it at the top to keep it closed, and bake in a slow oven nearly an hour. When tender all through, peel them, put them into a deep dish, and brown slightly, basting with butter freely. This will take perhaps a quarter of an hour more. Serve in a vegetable dish, sprinkle with pepper and salt, and pour the melted butter over them.

Onions En Casserole.

Baked Onions With Cream Sauce.—Wash and peel one quart of onions, put on in boiling water enough to cover, and boil without a cover until tender. Drain, place in a buttered casserole dish, pour cream sauce over them and bake until light brown.

To make the sauce, take a tablespoonful of butter and put it into a saucepan to melt. Then add a tablespoonful of flour and mix thoroughly. Slowly stir in a cup of cold milk. When smooth and creamy, add a teaspoonful of salt, a quarter of a teaspoonful of white pepper and boil for three minutes.

Anna Thompson

He Painted His Face With Stripes.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Funny Prank of A Prince.

EVELYN was eating a chocolate cream. She offered one to daddy, and as he took it he turned to Jack.

"Hasn't he any candy?" asked daddy.

"Mother said I might punish myself for being late at school in any way I chose, so I'm doing without candy," Jack explained.

"Well, I'm glad that you are willing to punish yourself, for that means that you will try to do better the next time," daddy said heartily.

"Most boys are naughty sometimes. All, except those good little princes and princesses in the fairy tales, seem to misbehave some time.

"And that reminds me of a funny story I heard about a jolly little English prince. His name is John, and he is the youngest of King George's sons. He is full of fun, and some of his pranks have horrified his elders.

"After having been in a good many scrapes, it is said, his mother, Queen Mary, gave him a very severe talking to.

"Prince John seemed so ashamed of himself that his mother had hopes that he would turn over a new leaf.

"So she asked him if he wouldn't promise to try to be better during the rest of his vacation. Prince John said he truly would promise, and I have no doubt he meant to try. He was very good for a short time.

"One evening there was a grand dinner party at Windsor castle. None of the children were allowed to be present.

"While wandering about, wondering how to amuse himself, Prince John found his sister's (Princess Mary's) paint box.

"He picked up one of the brushes and, dipping it in the paint, began to decorate his face with stripes. He used the gayest colors in the box, and when he had finished he looked at himself in the mirror and grinned. Prince John was a sight! But, alas, Prince John enjoyed the sight.

"Downstairs in the great state dining room his father and mother and their guests were having a fine time. The king and queen were pleased that everything had gone off nicely. Suddenly they were startled by a wild whoop, and an awful looking little boy with a gayly striped face sprang in the door. He danced over to the table, and it was only when he met the stern eyes of his parents that he began to feel uneasy. The guests were too polite to notice.

"The next day when his mother called him before her she said:

"'You know you promised to be good until your vacation was over.'

"'Yes; I know I did,' Prince John answered sorrowfully. 'But then you see I didn't know how long the vacation was going to be.'

"Yes; I believe John was punished. Even small princes are punished, and I am sure John well deserved it that time."

HIP BELTS AND BLOUSED COATS FAVORITES FOR CHILDREN

Fashions and fabrics for children's clothing are as alluring this autumn as for their elders, and happily for the mother who is to make the new garments they are not too intricate. She may be puzzled to know what to select from the variety of wool mixtures, serges, ottaman cloths, checks, plaid plushes and corduroy; but, having made a choice, she will find these two patterns just the right ones for an autumn coat and a smart street dress. Both have the long waist effect and the belt which adds such a stylish appearance to most children when worn below the hips as now.

The little coat (7508) is made of Hague blue ottaman cloth, a little heavier than poplin, but having a similar cross weave. It has one section for the back and closes at the side front with ornamental frogs of silk cord. The belt, the deep round collar and the cuffs are trimmed with soutache braid to match. The pattern is cut in three sizes. Size 4 requires 3¼ yards of 36 inch material. Fifteen cents.

Little French coats have a plaited section on the bottom like that pictured on the blouse, which is a part of a cunning suit model. There is a two-piece skirt attached to an underwaist. The material is one of the new brown and white fancy checks, and the trimming is cream color cloth for collar and cuffs. The pattern (7871) is cut in five sizes. Size 12 requires 4 yards of 36 inch material, one-half yard of lining and one-quarter yard of 36 inch contrasting material. Fifteen cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

Sufficient is to say, a design for a table-cover, to a needle worker and she immediately becomes interested, for a table-cover usually is a showey piece of work for the time required to complete it and one delights to work on articles which show the time spent on them. The design is generally large and is not as hard to embroider as the fine French work. A table-cover developed in pretty bright colors goes so far towards making a dull, dark room look cheerful and cozy. Constant thought must be given, however, when choosing colors and materials for table-covers or any kind of draperies, that they harmonize well with the style and colorings of the room. For instance, a crash table-cover would not be suitable in a room where the other draperies were of beautiful brocades and velvets, neither would colors which did not harmonize with the general color scheme. A crash table-cover would, however, be suitable in a room which is furnished very plainly and is delightful in a summer home or bungalow.

Embroidered table-covers may be made of heavy round-thread linen, rep, poplin or Russian crash and the above Norwegian design may be used on any of these. These materials are all inexpensive and come in a great variety of colors. This design is also appropriate for use on a couch-cover and may be embroidered in heavy rope silk, coarse mercerized cotton wools or raffia. Red, blue, green and yellow are the colors most used for such a design but it may be developed in two shades of blue or entirely in white on a sideboard-cover.

The design is very easily developed in unpadded solid work and outline stitch, and would make an attractive spot of color in a room. The edge of the cover should be finished with a neat hem about three inches wide.

This design for a table-cover comes in one size only. There are four corners, each ten inches square and four motifs each four and one-quarter by eight inches. Size of complete design is twenty-seven inches square. This design, number 14583, will be supplied to readers for fifteen cents.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 6.

"OH, yes, Id like to sell that old piano. We haven't any use for it, and it does take up a lot of room."

"Well, there are lots of people who would be willing to buy it if they knew it was for sale. Why don't you write a little ad. and put it in the paper?"

"Me write an ad.? Why, I don't know how. I wouldn't know how to begin."

The above conversation is purely and wholly imaginative. Yet I believe it has a counterpart in real life, right in this city, many times a year.

I claim that the right sort of a WANT AD. will sell that old piano, or anything else that is salable. And the right sort of WANT AD. isn't at all hard to "get up." You say in print just about what you'd say to a prospective purchaser face to face. You might say it this way:

OUR OLD SQUARE PIANO takes up room that we have other use for, so we'll sell it quite cheap. It's a Steinway; in good order, with fine tone. Come see and make an offer. Mrs. X.——Madison Ave.

Now, there isn't anything very wonderful about that ad., is there? No mystery, no clap-trap. Just a plain statement of what you have for sale, why and where.

That is all there is to WANT AD. advertising—except that the ad. be inserted in a good newspaper. Then it is practically certain to get results.

CLEANING SHOP

OFFICE AND WORKS

125 PARK AVENUE PLAINFIELD, N. J.

The high state of perfection reached in the Cleaning and Dyeing of Ladies' and Gentlemen's Garments and Household Goods and their immense value in prolongiug the life and usefulness of such articles, can only be appreciated by those who have been fortunate enough to have the services of a first-class dyeing and cleaning establishment.

My Dry Cleaning process thoroughly cleans and disinfects, raises the nap, and except where permanently destroyed, restores a garment to its original shape and color.

Although I have exceptional facilities, I, like all other reputable cleaners accept work only at owners risk. Materials are so frequently adulterated, rotten by chemicals, or made tender by age and exposure, that they are liable to deteriate--which often cannot be determined prior to cleaning--I reserve the right to treat each article by methods I consider best suited to its condition and texture.

Few outside of the leaders in the business realize the extent of the knowledge, skill, equipment and other facilities required to properly clean and dye garments. It not only requires equipment and other facilities costing many thousands of dollars, but necessitates CAPABLE, INTELLIGENT HELP, GOOD JUDGMENT, EXCEEDING CAREFULNESS and a KNOWLEDGE and SKILL that comes only after long years of EXPERIENCE of the right kind combined with special aptitude for the work.

HAVING THEIR CLOTHES PROPERLY CLEANED whenever soiled is the thing that well informed sensible people do. It is an economy not a luxury. It preserves both one's self respect and one's garments, and the saving expense is less than the saving in the cost of clothes.

Do not wait until perspiration, dirt and grease have destroyed the color or fabric. Send to me when first soiled and I will return to you clean and fresh as if new.

My work is of the highest quality and should not be confused with that of so called cheap Cleaners and Dyers

These so called Cleaners and Dyers have neither the knowledge, skill or facilities for properly cleaning and dyeing garments.

They rarely clean and frequently ruin garments entrusted to them.

All garments left to be cleaned or dyed are INSURED AGAINST FIRE

PASTOR DECRIES LIBERAL SUNDAY

"God Will Bring Curse upon us" if Sabbath is Destroyed Says Rev. Mr. Broek.

QUOTES DR. RICHARDS

Trinity Reformed's Minister Preaching On "Folly of a Liberal Sunday" Protests Against Amusements On That Day.

"The Folly of a Liberal Sunday," was the subject of Rev. J. Y. Broek's sermon at Trinity Reformed church, last night, in which he spoke plainly about Sabbath desecration and the great dangers that would accompany a "wide-open" Sunday. In part, Mr. Broek said:

"A few 'liberal' citizens want to take God out of the calendar. There has recently been somewhat of an agitation favoring a liberal Sunday of all sorts of sports and amusements and I as a minister of this city, and one who is deeply interested in the material and spiritual welfare of our beautiful city desire to utter my strongest protest against such an innovation.

"The agitation toucnes the very vitality of Christianity. I am certain that there are many Christian people in Plainfield who have been trained in Christian homes, and know something of the blessedness of a Christian Sabbath in a Christian home by personal experience, who will most heartily join me in my protest. Why take this day from us who enjoy its sacred rest, peace and calm, by allowing all sorts of amusements to destroy it.

"If you are going to allow all forms of games and amusements on the Sabbath Day, then I calmly ask why should we observe the Sabbath at all? I am quite positive that the natural result of the wide-open Sabbath would be to lose the Sabbath entirely. I am of the opinion that the imperative call of the hour is not how to make the Sabbath more liberal, but how we can preserve this Day of Rest. Inroads on Sunday desecration have gone at such a rapid pace for the last few years, that we may well ask 'have we any Sunday left?'

"To do anything to give greater license to Sabbath desecration would be a move to cripple the efficiency of our churches and Sunday-schools to that same degree. We are proud of our churches, the general religious life and the many Christian workers in this city. We should set no straw in the way of their efficiency by the opening of the counter attractions of the proposed liberal Sunday.

"The Lord's Day should be observed in a different way from a week-day or holiday. The late Dr. Richards, minister of the Crescent Avenue church, whose opinions were much respected, said the following in a sermon, 'Oh, let us be very careful to keep this first day of the week for its highest uses. Our fathers gave it to us. Let us carefully keep it for our children; for in these days many things are threatening it. An institution of this sort is precious, but is fragile. It took thousands of years in the building; you can destroy it in a generation. This clean page, white with religions of thousands of years; in as many days you can let it be soiled and stained, till it looks to you like all the other pages; and then I know not how you will whiten it again. I like to protect my holy day with a good many barriers of personal habit and scruple, so as to make sure that it shall stay different from other days. Let us separate this day from others, make it different, so that that heavy earthward pressure of the flesh and the devil may be lifted for a little while, so that our souls may stretch her wings for awhile and fly.'

"You cannot destroy the Lord's Day. It is as old as creation. All the lawmakers in the world cannot abolish it. We need a Sunday more today than ever before. God will bring a curse upon us if we try to destroy this holy day.

"All this talk that Sunday recreation is necessary to preserve physical health is rank nonsense. Tens of thousands of the busiest men of our day have demonstrated the fact that it is possible to keep Sunday and preserve the best of health. It would rather seem that the keeping of the Sabbath and sound bodies go together. A healthy spiritual condition will do much for physical health."

FUNERAL OF MISS THICKSTUN.

The funeral service of Miss Mary J. Thickstun will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the home of William D. Thickstun, 403 Central avenue. Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which Miss Thickstun was almost a life-long member, will officiate. The interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

TWO GO TO FLORIDA TO GET $32 THIEF

J. C. Lear Wanted Here for Small Theft and County Must Bear Big Bill.

Chief County Detective Galatian and Police Chief Kiely, presented requisition papers issued by Acting Governor Fielder to the Governor of Florida, this morning, for the extradition of John Clinton Lear, formerly of this city, who is a prisoner at Sebring, Fla., Lear is charged with embezzlement of $3,200 by the Metropolitan Insurance Co. The extradition is being forced by the National Surety Co., which was on Lear's bond while in the employ of the local branch of the insurance company and was obliged to make good the amount of money alleged to have been stolen by the prisoner.

Galatian and Kiely reached Jacksonville last night and are expected to start north with the prisoner tomorrow morning. Union county will have to bear the expense of sending the two officers to Florida.

SUFFRAGE NO CURE FOR VICE--P. S. KIELY

Chief's Opinion Given Miss Lawrence Circulated by Anti's National Assn.

Washington, Sept. 15.—In a statement issued last night, the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage quotes Miss Reina A. Lawrence of Plainfield, a business woman well known as an anti-suffragist, to the effect that the consensus of opinion among the members of the National Association of Chiefs of Police is that the ballot in the hands of women is not a means of abolishing the social evil, in direct contradiction to the contention of the suffragists. Chief Kiely, of Plainfield, is named as authority for it.

"This assertion," says the association, "is of peculiar interest at this time, because of the announcement of the suffragists that Mrs. Pankhurst, the leader of the English militant suffragists, is coming to this country next month for the express purpose of working against the white slave traffic."

Miss Lawrence is quoted in the statement as follows:

"Chief Kiely reported that the consensus of opinion of six hundred Chiefs of the National Association of Chiefs of Police at their meeting last June was that the social evil is a sex problem that women alone can solve. This is quite satisfactory to our suffrage friends thus far, but the chief continued:

"'The women themselves can abolish the social evil, not by means of the ballot, but by spreading the broad mantle of Christian charity about their sisters who have fallen. The fact is, however, that the women instead of trying to reclaim the fallen one, exclude her from their society. If the women would throw a protecting arm around these unfortunate girls, try to give them another chance in life, the social evil would soon be a part of the history of our unhappy past.'

"Here is the opinion of those men from many parts of the world, some from suffrage States and countries, who are surely qualified to know. As Chief Kiely says in conclusion, the police throughout the world have for years struggled with this appalling thing, and their opinion must have weight with thinking people.'"

WEST END DEMOCRATS WILL ORGANIZE A CLUB

Democrats of the West End of the city will hold a meeting tomorrow night at 934 West Third street, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of organizing the Jefferson Club. Considerable interest has been manifested in the organization and a large attendance of citizens is expected. The Plainfield Democratic Club will meet at its rooms at North and Park avenue, and will then adjourn to the meeting in the West End, making the trip in automobiles.

The purpose of organization is to strengthen the party not only for the primaries, but the coming election as well. The party has a number of members seeking nominations for local offices, including Common Council, and by having a strong organization it is believed that more effective work can be accomplished. All of those seeking nominations on the local ticket, as well as other prominent Democrats will be present to address the meeting.

PUBLIC DECENCY IS CLERIC'S PLEA

ALL WITHOUT SHAME

Rev. C. H. Mallery, of Heavenly Rest Church, Says These Things Threaten Our Civilization Like a Plague.

"Present Day Moral Laxity," was the subject of an interesting discourse by Rev. C. H. Mallery at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, yesterday morning. He took his text from 1st Timothy, 5:22, "Neither be partakers of other men's sins: keep thyself pure." In part, Mr. Mallery said:

"Christianity among other things was a revolt against pagan morals. Its teachings could not, and did not, tolerate the existing moral laxity of the pagan nations into which it thrust itself with their lascivious worship, doubtful personal purity and cruel and degrading public shows.

"A return of this state of affairs is partially threatened at this time, so that St. Paul's advice to Timothy not to be a partner of other men's sins, but to keep himself pure, seems to be timely. Note for instance the action of the New York police authorities in recently seeking to suppress two immoral plays. These have come into popularity in late years in place of legitimate drama which was always reckoned as a handmaid of religion.

"This lax moral instinct is also seen in much of the popular music of our day, which often borders on the repulsive. The tendency can also be seen in the prevailing immodest and suggestive dress of many of our women. In can also be traced in a certain class of art which seems absolutely without shame, in a certain kind of newspaper illustration, and in some of our moving pictures, dances and novels. These things are creeping into our civilization and threatening it like some dreadful plague and it is high time to recognize it and utter our protest against it. One would seem to see that in this state of affairs the evolutionary theory has received somewhat of a shock.

"How shall we combat this prevailing atmosphere? For if we have at heart the welfare of our homes and nation we shall fight against these things to the utmost of our power. First, we shall endeavor individuality to shun them and teach our children to shun them, taking pains to point out their dangers. Second, we should try to arouse a good public opinion against them. There is no direct consorship of immorality. In this country we have to depend simply upon what the legal authorities care to do. However, the legal authorities as well as the promoters of these things are very susceptible to public opinion, and it is to that we must look for relief.

"It is therefore the duty of Christian men and women to create such public opinion as will insure decency in these matters. Finally, surrounded as we are by this neuseous condition it will take all the will power at our command to resist it, and not even that alone can do so. For it will require in the last analysis the all-powerful Grace of God pervading our lives to cast out this sin and bring in the ideals of purity and rectitude. We shall therefore have to depend more and more upon God's help and the inspiration of the pure and spotless life of Our Saviour Jesus Christ, our pattern here as elsewhere.

"Do not blind your eyes to these conditions, my friends, and say that everything will come out all right, nor rely upon somebody or something else to right them. Realize their dangers, the sin in them and see how your soul, the souls of your children and the souls of the countless others may be poisoned by them, and never rest until you have done all that is within your power as Christians, as fathers, as citizens, to rid the world of them."

HE CLAIMS THEY STOLE MANY, MANY CIGARETTES

Charles Garfinkle, of 518 West Third street, 18 years old, and Alfred Sneideker, of 1115 West Third street, 19 years old, will be arraigned tomorrow morning before Judge William D. De Meza in the city court on a charge of breaking and entering and larceny, preferred against them by Louis Samuels, a storekeeper. Samuels claims the two men stole his account books and $4 in cigarettes and smoking tobacco. He said the alleged thieves forced a rear door.

3 Bros; 3 For Mayor; 3 Reps.

Lathams, of Jersey, Conn., and Iowa, Each Would Rule His Own Town.

Three brothers, in as many States, all running for the same office on the same party ticket, is the coincidence in the Latham family, E. B. Latham, of Dunellen, being one of the trio.

The Dunellen man is the proprietor of an electric supply house in New York and since removing to the borough three years ago he has taken an unusual interest in municipal affairs.

The Republicans induced him to become their candidate for mayor and the Democrats, Progressives and Socialists, apparently satisfied, have filed no mayoralty petitions, though the borough is a doubtful political centre and the Democrats have heretofore never failed to fight for the office.

W. E. Latham, a real estate man, has been nominated by the Republicans for the mayoralty at New Britain, Conn., and the third brother, Melville Latham, owner of poultry farms at Montezuma Island, Iowa, is the Republican mayoralty nominee at that place.

SOMERVILLE EDITOR HAS PASSED AWAY

John H. Mattison, Aged Seventy-eight Years, Dies After Long Illness.

Somerville, Sept. 15.—John H. Mattison, aged 78 years, for a number of years editor and publisher of the Somerset Messenger, died at Somerset Hospital, early this morning, after a long illness. He had made his home with Mrs. George M. Havenstrite, but was taken to the hospital on Friday last.

Mr. Mattison was born in Sussex county, and lived for a time in the West. He was a veteran of the Civil War, and after the war lived for some time in Newark, where he was connected for a while with the old Advertiser. Later he moved to New Brunswick, where he was connected with the New Jersey Fredonian.

In 1882 Mr. Mattison purchased the Somerset Messenger, which he conducted until 1910, when he failed in business, since which time he has lived retired. His wife died a number of years ago. He leaves no children, but is survived by two brothers, one living in Newark and one residing in New York city. No arrangements for the funeral had been made at noon today.

KATZENBACH HEARD BY PLAINFIELDERS

Martine Also Speaks Here When Gubernatorial Candidate Makes Address.

Accompanied by over a score of politicians and campaign assistants, Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., candidate for the gubernatorial nomination on the Democratic ticket, came to Plainfield early this afternoon and after taking luncheon at the Queen City Hotel, appeared at Madison avenue and West Front street. The party came in six automobiles placarded with "Katzenbach" signs. The next stop on the itinerary was Summit, where the candidate made himself known to a small collection of citizens who turned out to see him.

The party started from Elizabeth at 10 o'clock, proceeding to Rahway, where Katzenbach delivered a short address on "The Direct Primary." At Garwood the candidate spoke to several hundred employes of the Hall Signal Works and the Aeolian factory. Westfield was visited next. In the party who accompanied the candidate were:

Former Prosecutor William R. Wilson, of Elizabeth; former Alderman Peter J. McGurk, Tax Assessor Hugh F. Boyle, Captain Conlon, Samuel Parnes, candidate for Freeholder; Frank Rogers, Walter C. Fenney, F. X. Barnes, Forest R. Dye and S. R. Carlisle.

While the politicians were enjoying luncheon at the Queen City Hotel, United States Senator James Martine, unexpectedly, walked into the dining room. The zealous campaign managers attempted to get the popular Senator's endorsement of their candidate, but were unsuccessful. Martine said in a short address: "I hope the best man wins at the primary, and that man will get my hearty support. I have fought for Democracy side by side with Katzenbach, and I have always been glad to say a good word for him."

YOUNG MAN MET TERRIBLE DEATH

Leon Coombs is Fatally Scalded When Explosion Occurs at Elizabeth Plant.

HE LIVED IN THIS CITY

Had Been at Work Less Than a Week When He Was Killed—Only Twenty Years Old and Had Left Reformatory.

Paroled a week ago from the New Jersey Reformatory at Rahway, where he had been an inmate for the past three years, Leon Coombs, son of the late Louis Coombs, of this city, was scalded to death this morning as a result of an explosion which occurred at the Waclark Wire and Copper Works, Elizabeth, where he was employed. The young man, who was twenty years old, lived but a short time after the accident. Relatives were notified and arrangements will be made for the funeral and burial.

During his three years at Rahway, Coombs had a good record. He possessed good moral principles, according to the officials at the Reformatory and his behavior was such that it was decided a week ago to place him on parole. At the same time he secured a position in the wire and copper works at Elizabeth, where he is reported to have been doing well. Just what caused the explosion which resulted in the death of Coombs has not been learned.

It is reported that another workman was fatally injured at the same time.

AUTOS IN COLLISION; DRIVERS ARRAIGNED

A. B. McDowell, of 32 Gordon street, Perth Amboy, and John C. Lewis, of 403 East Fifth street, driving automobiles yesterday afternoon, figured in a collision at Park avenue and West Seventh street and were arrested later by Detective Sergeant Flynn, charged with reckless driving. Both were arraigned this morning in the city court before Judge De Meza. Lewis, who violated a minor provision of the motor vehicle laws, was released on a suspended sentence and the complaint against McDowell was dismissed. The judge in passing sentence told Lewis he was responsible for the collision.

The story of the accident was told on the witness stand by the defendants. McDowell said his wife and 15 months' old baby where in the car at the time of the accident and claimed that both were thrown from the car by the force of the collision. Lewis said he tried to swing his car to avoid the McDowell machine, and that in his opinion the accident was purely accidental. He said the car he drove belonged to a Mrs. Wagner, of 403 East Fifth street, who accompanied him. McDowell was driving his auto north on Park avenue and the other vehicle was proceeding west on East Seventh street. Both defendants claimed they were driving the machines at a speed within the law.

HIT BY AUTOMOBILE, YOUTH'S LEG BROKEN

Dashing across West Front street, near Somerset street, yesterday afternoon, Herman Eskason, a newsboy, of 21 Somerset street, got in the path of a passing automobile owned by Gustave W. Holman, of 114 West Clinton avenue, Irvington, and was knocked to the ground, sustaining a broken left leg and contusions about the back. The front left wheel of the car passed over the boy's limb below the knee. He is in Muhlenberg Hospital.

According to the police reports, Holman tried to stop his car in time, but the youth's negligence was so flagrant that all effort to prevent an accident was futile. In the automobile were Mr. and Mrs. Groon and their two children, who live at 64 Jerome avenue, Irvington. Freeholder George Kirch, of North Plainfield, was a witness.

Holman was arrested on a technical charge of reckless driving. He will be arraigned tomorrow morning before City Judge DeMeza.

REV. DR. EATON PAYS TRIBUTE TO GAYNOR

Late Mayor Great Power in New York, Says Pastor, Addressing Flock.

The Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, of Watchung, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, in New York, said a prayer for the Gaynor family at the morning service yesterday and before beginning his sermon said:

"Before speaking on my text I wish to refer to the calamity which has befallen this city in the sudden death of our Chief Magistrate. Next Sunday I shall try to express myself more fully. Mayor Gaynor was especially a man of many faults, and he was one of the first to acknowledge that fact to his friends, but, at the same time, he was a man of tremendous power and purpose. While I do not agree with all that he did I, at the same time, know that he was a great power in our city and his sudden death prevented him from explaining some of his great purposes."

Later, in an interview, Dr. Eaton amplified his remarks with a eulogy of Mr. Gaynor as an official. He concluded:

"I knew Mayor Gaynor, admired and loved him, and it would be a sad pleasure to lay a wreath upon his grave."

WILL HOYT GIRL NOW INTERVENE?

Hood Divorce Case Co-respondent's Counsel Appears at Trial at Newark.

HUSBAND ON STAND

Vice Chancellor Stevenson Announces That Final Argument Will Be Heard on Wednesday, October 1.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Newark, Sept. 15.—Following the further cross-examination of Richard Haden Hood before Vice Chancellor Stevens in the divorce proceedings instituted by Mrs. Frances Sparks Hood' this morning, when he fared rather badly during a severe grilling, Mrs. Hood was recalled to the stand to answer a few questions refuting allegations of her husband. The court announced that final argument in the case would be heard on Wednesday, October 1.

One Albert C. Wall, of Jersey City, who represents Miss Dorothy Hoyt, told the court he had been asked by the latter to intervene for her in the proceedings and he might seek an opportunity to have something further to say about her as one of the interested parties in the suit.

Vice Chancellor Stevens stated that the court still considered Miss Hoyt a minor and that the court always protects such a person. Mr. McCarter, of counsel for Mrs. Hood, objected to Mr. Wall's request, stating that Miss Hoyt's deposition was taken in London, and that she knew that she was vitally interested in the case, that she took frequent rides with Hood and was often seen in his company and she had had ample opportunity to be heard.

The Vice Chancellor said that if Mr. Wall gives a good cause to allowing Miss Hoyt to be heard such opportunity might be given, but he said, "The facts are in a narrow compass. What inference is to be drawn? The ordinary inference we know."

Hood was asked whether he had ever spoken to Mrs. Hood about his plan to adopt Miss Hoyt and whether he had ever presented her to his wife. He replied that he had not because he and his wife were estranged. He said that he had walked about his place with Miss Hoyt, but Mrs. Hood was not present at the time.

The question as to whether Hood had "bought detectives" was raised, and the testimony showed that James Lockwood, a detective employed by Mrs. Hood, had engaged a detective named John Berger to watch Hood in London, and Hood admitted having paid the latter $85. The Vice Chancellor asked Hood why he did that, and he said that he bought some letters, telegrams, etc., from Berger. One letter from Lockwood to Berger read, "So far no results," which Hood took to be an entire exoneration and a refutation of what he termed the "whole despicable allegation."

When the Vice Chancellor asked Hood if he did not think that it was a bad thing for a married man to have an unmarried woman come into his stateroom, he said, "I did not think so at the time, but now I see it in a different light."

Joseph Reardon, a coachman employed by Hood, was the last witness on the stand this morning, being called in the interest of Hood, but in the main his testimony was unimportant. Unless Mr. Wall succeeds in having a postponement in the interest of Miss Hoyt, the final argument in the case will be heard on October 1.

GOV. WILLIAM SULZER.

On Eve of Trial Says He Hopes For Acquittal.

©1913, by American Press Association.

The above is from a photograph of Governor Sulzer taken yesterday in the executive mansion just before he issued the following statement: "I am going to be acquitted. I will have a fair trial. I have said some hard things about some of the senators, and they have said some hard things about me; but this is a trial, not a political fight. They are both judges and jurors, and I believe most of them are large enough and honest enough to rise above any personal feeling they may entertain toward me because of what I have said about them and do me justice, and that is all I want."

MEXICAN REBEL BAND HOLDS 100 AMERICANS

Refugees Were Fleeing From Torreon to Saltillo.

Mexico City, Sept. 15.—One hundred Americans, including a number of women and children, refugees from Torreon, are reported to have fallen into the hands of rebels while proceeding overland to Saltillo. The authorities at Saltillo decline to take the responsibility of sending a force to their rescue, fearing, they say, that the rebels might commit atrocities on the refugees, which might otherwise be avoided.

The report comes from an official source at Saltillo, but has not been confirmed. The American embassy has been advised and has called on the Mexican foreign office to investigate the matter and do whatever is possible to relieve the Americans should the report prove true.

Foreign Minister Gamboa has had no advices further than the communication from the embassy. He expressed regret, but added that it was no more than might be expected as the result of the "neutrality policy" of the United States, which had hampered the administration in proceeding with a strong hand against rebels and bandits.

General Trucy Aubert, a federal commander, with 1,000 men, who is proceeding from the north to the relief of Torreon, passed Saltillo. He is traveling over approximately the same route as the Americans, and it is regarded as possible that the rebels will disperse before his advance. He is, however, making slow progress. Meantime the fate of the refugees remains in doubt.

UNION CLERKS IN MASKS.

Hold Meeting In London as Protest Against Low Wages.

London, Sept. 15.—The "black coated" worker made his first demonstration in Hyde park in favor of trades unionism, following tactics similar to those adopted by the laborers and artisans who were holding meetings in the vicinity.

The participants, many of whom were women, were clerks representing a great variety of employment. They marched from the Thames embankment to Hyde park, wearing black masks, with the object of "avoiding victimization."

Sandwich boards carried in the procession informed the public that 25 per cent of the clerks die of consumption in consequence of the wretched conditions under which they are forced to work.

TO RECEIVE BODY OF DEAD MAYOR

City Officials Arrange to Go Down Bay.

STOCK EXCHANGE TO CLOSE

Bishop Greer Will Officiate at Impressive Church Services—Lusitania, With Remains on Board, Due Friday. Flags at Half Mast.

New York, Sept. 15.—Every possible honor to the memory of Mayor Gaynor is being arranged in this city while the steamship Lusitania, bearing his body, is steaming here from Liverpool.

The public funeral service, to take place a week from today in Trinity church, will be most impressive, although simple, and will be attended by officials of the state, city and nation, nearly all of whom knew Mayor Gaynor personally.

The Lusitania is expected to arrive on Friday. Mrs. Gaynor has expressed the wish that there be no military escort to give the semblance of a state funeral, and her desire in this respect will be observed by the officials.

To Meet Body at Quarantine.

The body will be taken off the Lusitania at Quarantine and brought to this city on board the tug Correction, from the department of correction. Mrs. Gaynor, her son and daughters, Mayor Ardolph Kline, Mr. Adamson, Mayor Gaynor's secretary, and Commissioner Smith will receive the body on board the tug. The body will then be taken to the Gaynor home, 20 Eighth avenue, Brooklyn.

On Saturday evening the body will be taken from Brooklyn to the city hall, where it will lie in state until Monday forenoon, at which time the service will take place in Trinity church. Bishop Greer will officiate at the funeral, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Manning, the Rev. Dr. Page and the Rev. Dr. Holden.

Stock Exchange to Close.

It was learned that the New York Stock Exchange will be closed the day of the funeral.

Flags are flying at half mast over the municipal buildings and also on board all the vessels in the harbor.

The Lusitania is bringing over a distinguished list of sorrowing passengers, of whom there are 451 in the first cabin. Judge Nathan Bijur and Mr. E. A. H. Outerbridge, personal friends of Mayor Gaynor, are on board. Mr. Ogden L. Mills, Mr. Philip Lydig and Mr. Henry C. Phipps are also passengers.

The will of Mayor Gaynor has been deposited in the safe of Surrogate Ketcham in Brooklyn, in pursuance with a notation on the envelope containing the document in Mr. Gayor's handwriting.

JEROME SCORES WRIT OF THAW'S LAWYERS

Counsel "Trifling With Federal Courts," He Says.

Colebrook, N. H., Sept. 15.—For the first time in the history of his case Harry Thaw expects the federal courts to aid him in his fight for liberty, and he is impatiently waiting for a hearing tomorrow at Littleton on a writ of habeas corpus obtained by his lawyers from Judge Aldrich in the United States district court of New Hampshire. The writ may carry the Thaw case to the United States supreme court.

William Travers Jerome, representing the state of New York, declared that the latest writ obtained by Thaw's counsel is, to his mind, "trifling with the federal courts."

Sheriff Hornbeck of Dutchess county, N. Y., in which Matteawan is situated, has arrived in Colebrook with the requisition warrant signed by Acting Governor Glynn. Mr. Jerome will lay it before the governor early this week.

Annoyed at the reports that attempts were being made to spirit him away, Thaw issued the following statement:

"Some outside people have been spreading rumors which are unfounded and directly contrary to the facts. We are told that this was calculated to act against the opinion of people on our behalf. The fact is that I am very well contented where I am, and we are glad to be in Colebrook and with the way people here stand up against the efforts by outsiders to rush things; also I am very glad of the information obtained by local counsel and by attorney, Mr. Moses H. Grossman of New York, that Governor Felker may afford a full hearing."

COST OF LIVING SOARS.

According to an official statement of the United States Government the cost of living on June 15 was approximately 60 per cent. higher than the average between 1890 and 1900, more than three per cent. higher than it was a year ago and nearly 15 per cent. higher than it was two years ago. Investigations of retail prices in 40 cities conducted by experts of the Bureau of Labor show prices practically at the same level as last November, when the high records of the last quarter century were reached.

Fourteen articles of food were investigated and compared with the average prices between 1890 and 1900. Every one except sugar showed a marked advance; bacon, which led in the soaring, went up 128.5 per cent. Other articles which showed remarkable advances were: Pork chops, 111 per cent.; round steak, 102.5; smoked ham, 84; hens, 76.8; sirloin steak, 75.2; rib roast, 75; lard, 66.5; cornmeal, 57.3; potatoes, 44.4; butter, 41.3; eggs, 40.8; milk, 38.4, and flour, 28.6. During the same period sugar showed a decline of 8 per cent.

During the past year prices of 11 of 15 articles investigated went up. Bacon advanced 16.2 per cent.; smoked hams, 14.1; pork chops, 13.4; hens, 11.8; eggs, 11.7; round steak, 10.1; sirloin steak, 9.8; lard, 7.2; rib roast, 6.8; butter, 5.8, and milk, 4.1. The other four declined as follows: Potatoes, 31.9; sugar, 15.2; wheat flour, 7.7, and cornmeal, 3.9.

Prices were investigated in Atlanta, Baltimore, Birmingham, Boston, Buffalo, Charleston, S. C., Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dallas, Denver, Detroit, Fall River, Mass.; Indianapolis, Jacksonville, Fla.; Kansas City, Little Rock, Ark.; Los Angeles, Louisville, Manchester, N. H.; Memphis, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Newark, New Haven, Conn.; New Orleans, New York, Omaha, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Portland, Ore.; Providence, R. I.; Richmond, Va.; St. Louis, St. Paul, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Scranton, Pa.; Seattle and Washington, D. C.

MARSHALL'S PREDICTIONS.

A great increase in foreign commerce and a corresponding decrease in the cost of living in this country as the result of the revision of the tariff by the Democratic Congress is predicted by Vice President Marshall. No legitimate business will suffer through the changes in the various schedules, he claims, but the entire country will profit by the new legislation.

"The tariff as it now stands," says Mr. Marshall, "is the best the country has ever had, and I look for magnificent results from it. In a short time I expect to see a material increase in our foreign commerce, not only in imports but in exports, which will operate to reduce the living cost in this country through wholesome competition made possible by the new measure. Because of this greater importation of foreign merchandise I believe American manufacturers will be enabled to sell more of their products abroad. Goods which have been hitherto barred in some countries in retaliation of our high tariff will now find their way into all the marts of the world. Only dishonest businesses will be injured by the new tariff, while the country at large will prosper by it."

The son of the great Samuel J. Randall is seeking a Democratic nomination in Philadelphia and he shows the bad taste of trading on the name of his distinguished sire to land the place. In his political advertisements in the newspapers he says he "would feel especially gratified to receive the support of all those who believed in and who were friends of his lamented father."

About the only real fight for a party Gubernatorial nomination is that being waged between Colby and Osborne for the Progressive label. Colby is still in fine form but it looks as though Osborne were getting winded—and yet he is long on wind.

That order issued by the Postmaster General that all postmasters must observe the eight-hours work law the same as their clerks and carriers won't be disagreeable to Postmaster Bird except to shorten the number of hours he habitually puts in.

The Philadelphia Record remarks that "every Jerseyman who loves his home ought to fly a flag today, the third anniversary of the nomination of Woodrow Wilson as Governor of the State."

The Record editor's political spectacles may not be suited to all Jerseymen.

DEFAULTER SMITH HAS SURRENDERED

Roseville Trust Co. Embezzler Who Gives Himself up Had Interests in Dunellen.

Asserting that he returned to Newark as soon as he could after learning that the defunct Roseville Trust Co., in Newark, was closed, Raymond E. Smith, the defaulting treasurer-secretary of that institution, surrendered himself and was arrested Saturday night, charged with making a false report to the State Banking Department and with the embezzlement of $50,000. The shortage in the funds of the bank, however, amounts to over $300,000.

Smith, who has been sought for several weeks by scores of detectives, claims that he has not been hiding, but has been staying with friends in Cape May and Atlantic City. He made a flimsy statement, which is not given much credit, in which he states that when glancing over a paper he learned that he was wanted, and immediately left for Newark to give himself up to the authorities after ascertaining that the newspaper accounts were correct.

Smith is now out on $15,000 bonds to await grand jury action on the two charges preferred against him.

The alleged embezzler is president of two Dunellen concerns and has extensive business interests in both Dunellen and Plainfield.

Autoists have made several complaints about the condition of the street in this respect.

WORK OF THE TELEPHONE.

Its Magic Has Enabled Us to Snap Our Fingers at Space.

Just how modern is the essential and ubiquitous telephone—now connecting over a half million houses and offices in New York city—there is a casual line in "Pinafore" which serves to indicate. When the kindly chorus is condoling with Ralph Rackstraw on his separation from his Josephine it chants these words to picture the terror of his lot:

"No telephone connects with his dungeon cell."

The line falls flat today. But "Pinafore" was produced for the first time in 1878, and in 1876 the Bell patents for the first practical telephone were issued. Thus when the words were written they related to a new and startling invention that was the talk of the day, and the Gilbertian line was really a gay, topical jest.

It is a safe guess, however, that very few of the people who laughed at "Pinafore" in the seventies foresaw what the telephone would really prove to be. The years of the telephone are few. But already it has transformed business method and social intercourse. The railroads, the fast trains, the telegraph, wireless, the automobile, all helped to make the nineteenth century a century of acceleration.

The telephone worked more real magic than all the rest together. The discovery of astral bodies would hardly have done more to multiply human effectiveness and enable us to snap our fingers at space.—New York Tribune.

THREE WONDERFUL MIRRORS.

Used in Place of a Telescope in Mount Wilson Observatory.

From Los Angeles by trolley car and burro back up through the pine forests one reaches the Wilson observatory. No dome or gigantic telescope greets the visitor when he gains the summit. A huge Noah's ark of canvas destroys all preconceived ideas of what an observatory should look like, and within three wonderful mirrors take the place of the great tubular telescope of other observatories.

The observatory building is constructed of canvas, the sides being set in the form of tiers of steeply overlapping eaves. This arrangement is calculated to allow for perfect ventilation and is re-enforced by a vertical wall of canvas, which can be raised or lowered at will to obtain an even temperature.

The peculiar arrangement of mirrors that replaces the familiar telescope is the center around which all interest in the observatory revolves. These mirrors are constructed at the Yerkes observatory and are the finest products of the optician's manufacturing skill. The enlarging mirror, which is supported by a pier of stone at the farther end of the building, is of concave glass four inches thick, and the scientists tell us it is of twenty-four inch aperture by sixty foot focus.

The glass is polished ever so often with jewelers' rouge upon pads of chamois skin and is burnished every week or ten days, in order to remove all possible dust. In addition a galvanized cover is kept over it when it is not in use.—Christian Herald.

Frolics of Ivan the Terrible.

Ivan the Terrible, among his many insane freaks, would let loose wild bears in the streets of his capital and placidly say his prayers while watching the slaughter of his people, "flinging a few coins to the mutilated survivors as he rose from his knees." He would compel parents to slay their children, and children to kill one another; and if there was a survivor "the amiable monarch would dispatch him with his own hands, shrieking with laughter at so excellent a joke."

In one of his lighter moods of frolic he commanded the citizens of Moscow to "provide for him a measure full of fleas for a medicine," and fined them 7,000 roubles when they failed.

Why Married Men Live Long.

The reason a married man lives longer than a single man is because the single man leads a selfish existence. A married man can double his pleasures. Any time he has a streak of good luck it tickles him all over, but it makes him feel twice as good when he tells his wife about it. And she is so pleased and proud that he feels like a two-year-old. There isn't a chance in the world of a man's arteries hardening or his heart weakening when he can get a million dollars' worth of pleasure out of making his wife happy.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Too Thorough.

"Why don't you try to make your constituents understand problems of government?"

"That's what I have done," replied Senator Sorghum. "I have been too thorough about it. A lot of them now think that they can give advice instead of taking it."—Washington Star.

Fearfully Foxy.

"I work a foxy scheme on my boy. He'd rather wash the dishes than wash his hands, so I let him wash the dishes."

"What's the foxy part?"

"Why, he gets his hands clean."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Very Promising.

"Jones strikes me as a very promising young man."

"He strikes me that way too. But he never pays it back."—California Pelican.

Talent is that which is in a man's power. Genius is that in whose power a man is.—Lowell.

DIES RATHER THAN TAKE AID

De Vinez, Poet, Found Dead of Starvation.

Cleveland, Sept. 15. — Rather than lower the dignity of art by accepting aid as a charity patient, Richard De Vinez, poet and scholar and said to be a graduate of Cornell university, died of starvation beneath a tree in a vacant lot in Cleveland. Persons who identified the body said that De Vinez had just recovered from pneumonia and that he had beggared himself to pay the hospital bill.

"I'm living under the trees," he told one, as he declined proffered aid. Under the trees they found him. In a book were found verses that breathed his proud spirit.

Bleaching and Whitening.

No matter how careful the laundress has been throughout the summer, there are many faded colored garments at the end of the season. Careful laundering cannot prevent the sun from doing what it pleases in the way of spoiling bright and beautiful colors. And perspiration does some harm, and even careful washing weakens the more delicate colors.

Bleach Faded Things.

Some faded colors are just as attractive as brighter colors. Others are positively ugly. Certain pink turns a dirty grey, and light blue turns, sometimes, a faded, characterless green. Green, too, has a way of losing its individuality in a sort of smudgy yellow. Garments of such colors can be made quite white if they are boiled in some strong alkalki. Washing soda is good. The garments should be thoroughly rinsed in clear water after their boiling.

Bleaching in the sun is the best method of whitening garments, for of course the effect of all artificial bleaches is somewhat wearing on the clothes. Wet the things to be bleached and spread them on a sheet or a stretch of perfectly clean grass or a clean bush in the bright sun and keep them wet until they are sufficiently bleached. Lawn, by the way, took its name from the fact that it was bleached on grass lawns; and if we could be sure that our bleaching lawns would be as clean as those of Holland where the first linen bleached into lawn was made, we could look for no better bleaching agent than the effect of sun and grass combined. For there is a bleaching quality in sun-heated grass.

Javelle water, a strong bleaching agent, which must be thoroughly washed from the garments whereon it is used, is made in this way: Put two pounds of baking soda in a big stone jar with two quarts of hot, but not boiling water. When the soda is dissolved add half a pound of quicklime. Put the jar in a pan of hot water and put it over the fire until the contents are really hot. Then let it cool and carefully pour off the clear liquid. Bottle it and cork it and keep it tightly corked. When using it keep the cork out of the bottle as little as possible.

Some Cookery Suggestions

ICED FRUITS.

FRUITS chilled or frozen make satisfying summer desserts. Almost any fruits may be used for this purpose.

Plain fresh fruits served with ice cream are refreshing and nice.

Recipes for serving some fruits in this way are given here. Others will suggest themselves to the cook.

Baked, Then Iced.

Iced Apples.—Pare and core a half dozen large apples. Fill with sugar and a little butter and nutmeg. Bake until nearly done. Let cool and remove to another plate. Chill on ice. Serve with ice cream.

Watermelon Ice.—Take the pink pulp of a watermelon. Remove the seeds and add a cup of sugar. When the sugar is melted add beaten whites of two eggs and stir all together. Freeze but do not mold this. Turn the big round from the freezer on a platter. Dot with huckleberries and, if desired, sprinkle with a tiny glass of cordial or grape juice. This makes about two quarts. Use pulp and juice only, no water whatever. Select a very ripe melon.

With a Rich Sauce.

Frosted Peaches.—Pare and slice one quart of ripe peaches, mixing them with a cupful of powdered sugar. Arrange them in a pudding dish. Meanwhile prepare a meringue from the stiffly whiped whites of three eggs and three tablespoonfuls of sugar and heap it over the peaches and brown this lightly in a slow oven. Serve very cold with ice cream or an iced eggnog sauce.

Served With Cream.

Quince Snow.—Take six ripe quinces, cut in quarters; boil in water until very tender; then peel and rub through a coarse sieve. Have an equal quantity of fine sugar and the whites of three eggs beaten to a stiff froth. Beat into the eggs and sugar the quince puree very gradually and continue beating until mixture is white and frothy. Pile with a spoon on to a pretty glass dish and place in the refrigerator to become thoroughly chilled. Serve with one teaspoonful of whipped cream on top of each helping.

A Simple Dessert.

Iced Oranges.—Choose round, thin skinned fruit, all as nearly as possible of the same size. Peel and remove as much of the white pith as you can without actually breaking the fruit. Beat until very light the white of one egg and mix with it one-half of a pound of powdered sugar. Whisk this for ten minutes until vey smooth; string the oranges on a piece of stout thread, roll them in the icing until thoroughly coated and then hang them in the open door of the oven for about one-half hour or until the icing is dry. Chill them thoroughly before serving.

She Started Out With the Old Umbrella.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—A Rainy Day And an Old Umbrella.

IT was a warm night, and as he glanced out of the window daddy said that he thought it would rain before morning.

"We don't want it to rain tomorrow, though," Jack and Evelyn remarked. "When school is out we are going to visit Aunt Nellie, and if it rains we will have to stay at home."

"Dear, dear," replied daddy, "that would be too bad! When Aunt Nell was a little girl she liked to go visiting too.

"One day mother told her that if she were very good in school, when her lessons were over she might go to call on an old friend of the family.

"Nellie was much pleased. School was too far away for her to come home at noon, so we always carried our lunch with us. It had been bright and sunny when we started in the morning, but about noon the sun went behind a cloud. It got darker and darker, and before school closed it was raining.

"In the corner of the dressing room there happened to be a very old umbrella which seemed to belong to nobody. Nellie asked her teacher if she could borrow it.

"The teacher told her she might take it, and Nellie picked it up and started for the door. Some of the older children helped her put it up, and then she started bravely out in the rain.

"But instead of starting home she started up the street toward the house of the friend. 'I've an umbersol,' Nellie murmured to herself. 'Muvver won't mind.'

"As she trotted along the rain began to come down harder and harder. Maybe the sight of that battered old umbrella which Nellie was so sure would keep out the wet amused the rain cloud that sailed across the sky above her. At any rate, he sent the rain down harder and harder. The water poured in through the holes in the umbrella and ran down the umbrella handle.

"As she trotted along a breeze sprang up. An old shaky umbrella like hers is always fun for a breeze, and soon the wind was tugging at it till she could hardly hold it over her curly head. At last there came a gust stronger than any of the others and turned it inside out. Still Nellie held on to the umbrella handle until she reached the friend's door. Though her clothes were soaking, she was smiling and happy.

"'You see, I jus' wanted to come, and the rain wasn't very wet at first,' she explained; 'only the umbersol tried to run away.'

"They took her wet clothes off and dried them, but when she did not come home mother, who never dreamed she would go visiting when the weather was so bad, sent us boys out to find what had become of her. And then, of course, Nellie had to come home."

FALL HATS HERE.

Rembrandt Effects Are the Smart Caper.

THE NEW SHAPES IN HATS.

Yes, they're here, the new fall hats, early as it is in the season, and you're going to be picturesque, milady, in Rembrandt effects carried out in brown plush.

One of the models is of this artist type, the trimming being merely an inconspicuous band of galon.

The other hat is of plush, but a little more ornate in its trimming scheme, metal wings used in Mercury fashion being posed at one side of the creation.

Dressy Little Bows For the Neck.

This is a season of bows, and there is a great variety of designs. Small bows of color showing a combination of silk and lace or velvet and lace are especially attractive. Many are trimmed with rhinestone buttons. Quite a number are made with ends in jabot form, the bow at the top being rather small. Bulgarian silks are made up into bow and jabot effects.

Other materials employed are crepe de chines, plain taffetas and flowered silks. Besides the entire bow of Bulgarian design, touches of Bulgarian colors are also used in giving an enlivening touch of color to many of the white designs.

making this fabric in such light weight that the old objection of clumsiness has been overruled.

Milady, realizing the becomingness of velvet, is welcoming the reintroduction of this material with pleasure.

The afternoon gown in the cut is of a ribbed black velvet, with a queer pinned about hip drapery of plush, which also is seen on the kimono waist in bands down either side of the front.

The Mother's Part.

At a recent wedding the bride came down the aisle on her father's arm, but at the proper moment her mother stepped from the pew and "gave the bride away," so that she had a share in the actual wedding. It was a sweet thought that gave her more than the insignificant part the mother usually has in a marriage ceremony.

ROUGH WEAVES VIE WITH SOFT SILKS

Rough surfaces and ratine weaves continue to be fashion leaders for practical and stylish street suits. Just how jaunty and smart one of these materials makes up with a well chosen pattern is seen on the figure at the left. A gray and black boucle is used with white ratine collar and cuffs and black velvet edges. The skirt (7921) is cut in five gores with panel back and has a novel box plait section at the bottom front. A medium size requires 3 yards of 42 inch material for the skirt and the same for the coat. The skirt is cut in six sizes, the jacket in five. Fifteen cents each.

Dame Fashion declares that a soft silk dress of some kind is indispensable for dressy wear at this season. It is quite likely to be made of crepe de chine in the model on the right (skirt 7968, waist 7715). The skirt is cut in four pieces, lapping at the center front and back and has plaits laid in at the belt to give the peg top outline. The interesting feature of the blouse is the raglan sleeves, which form a yoke in the back and on the shoulders. The collar and vest may be contrasted or match, and a variety of sash girdles will add interest if one likes them. Size 36 requires 7 yards of 36 inch material. Both patterns come in six sizes. Fifteen cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

Just what delights the heart of the young boy or girl who is going away to college or boarding-school as this helps to make the room look cosy and homelike. A little gift such as this is appreciated by the college boy or girl because it is ever useful and rather a necessity. One can always find a corner which could be made more comfortable with a pillow, especially during the cold winter months which are coming soon, when one likes to spend spare moments nestled amid plenty of soft pillows with a good book. As draperies of all kinds help to make a room seem warm, one is always glad to cover the bare table with a runner in the winter.

The above design, which is very attractive and easy to embroider, is appropriate for use on a pillow-cover, or the two-halves may be used on each end of the runner. This design may be developed in one or more colors or shades of a color, in outline and unpadded solid work. The pillow-cover or table-runner may be made of heavy linen, rep, poplin, Shantung silk, crafts canvas, monk's cloth or Egyptian cloth which are all inexpensive materials and come in a good range of colors. In selecting the colors for a table-runner or pillow-cover, one should take into consideration the coloring of the room in which it is to be used, for nothing is so annoying as to go into a room where there are a number of colors which are not harmonious.

Transfer pattern number 14632 is eleven and three-quarters by fifteen and one-half inches and can be supplied to readers for fifteen cents.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 6.

"OH, yes, I'd like to sell that old piano. We haven't any use for it, and it does take up a lot of room."

"Well, there are lots of people who would be willing to buy it if they knew it was for sale. Why don't you write a little ad. and put it in the paper?"

"Me write an ad.? Why, I don't know how. I wouldn't know how to begin."

The above conversation is purely and wholly imaginative. Yet I believe it has a counterpart in real life, right in this city, many times a year.

I claim that the right sort of a WANT AD. will sell that old piano, or anything else that is salable. And the right sort of WANT AD. isn't at all hard to "get up." You say in print just about what you'd say to a prospective purchaser face to face. You might say it this way:

OUR OLD SQUARE PIANO takes up room that we have other use for, so we'll sell it quite cheap. It's a Steinway; in good order, with fine tone. Come see and make an offer. Mrs. X.——Madison Ave.

Now, there isn't anything very wonderful about that ad., is there? No mystery, no clap-trap. Just a plain statement of what you have for sale, why and where.

That is all there is to WANT AD. advertising—except that the ad. be inserted in a good newspaper. Then it is practically certain to get results.

SHAME ON HONUS WAGNER, HE CARES FOR MONEY!

Honus Wagner, famed exponent of baseball, now refuses to be placed in the position of having his uniform "accepted" by the Carnegie museum, as though it were something that had to be offered. When asked by a friend whether he would present his baseball suit to the museum after he is through with it, he said:

"Well, if the Carnegie museum wants to pay me $15 for my suit I guess they can have it. I have only two suits—one is in the laundry, while I am playing in the other one, and they are worth $15 apiece. I haven't thought about donating any uniform to the museum, so if they want one they'll have to come across with the fifteen bucks."

PENNANT FOR BINGHAMTON.

Wilkesbarre Second, Troy Third and Utica Fourth at Finish.

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 15.—The New York State league completed its seventeenth season yesterday. Binghamton, for the first time since the league was organized, won the pennant after a close fight. Prior to the present year the Binghamton team never was a great contender for first honors except in 1902, when beaten out the last day by Albany.

Wilkesbarre, ever to be considered in the running, finished just behind Binghamton. Utica, for a great part of the season in first position, weakened and is now resting in fourth place after a stiff fight with Albany, decided only yesterday.

SLOCUM GETS A NO-HIT, NO-RUN GAME FROM BURLESQUE PLAYERS

Getting more than his share of breaks and putting over an article of baseball that was a delight to the 500 fans who witnessed the game at Scotch Plains yesterday afternoon, Louis Slocum, the local youngster who has been treated to more ups and downs in baseball than any other local diamond performer, shut out the Royal Colored Giants and Company (company meaning Tommy Mullin and Matty Coughlin) without a hit or run in nine regulation rounds, the final score being 19 to 0 in favor of the 'Plains contingent. Slocum's curvology had the colored and white members of the Royal outfit breaking their necks to get an unobstructed view of the pellet and even when they did succeed in locating the pill with the wagon tongue, the horsehide never went out of the infield unless it traveled via the air route and was quickly gobbled up by a fielder. Thirty-three men faced Slocum, thirteen dying with three strikes up their shirts and four getting free tickets to station number one.

Coming on the field minus two players, the Royal Giants pressed into service Matty Coughlin, the former P. H. S. twirler, and Tommy Mullin of the Somerville Central Leaguers, who played left field and shortstop respectively and were the main cogs in the opposition. The ten errors made by the Royals helped the Scotch Plains boys to bring across nineteen counters after they had secured life on the sacks with the aid of thirteen safe licks. Several times during the latter part of the engagement Slocum's record was at stake and in the last frame it looked as though Tommy Mullin was going to break a friendship tie with the local hurler and score a run which would mar the whole affair. In the ninth Mullin, the first man up, got a pass and stole second and third before the first man had flied out to Reick. Perched on third ready to race home at the first opportunity, Mullin was forced to stay at the difficult corner when Slocum fanned Pete Simmons and made Brown pop up to Gray in back of third base. This was the Plainfielder's closest call but in the fourth Maiden was given a pass, Mullin got on through Coyle's error sending Maiden to third and Coughlin got a pass, filling the bases. Slocum got himself out of the hole by fanning Simmons and Brown.

Eleven men faced Brown in the sixth session and eight out of that number scored. The Alberts brothers, Wilson and Slocum each got a pair of hits off Brown's delivery and every man on the team got at least one clout out of the pellet with the exception of DeNitzio, who walked three out of the six times he was at the plate. Although Henry Alberts got two hits he was the one man on the nine who failed to cross the plate with a counter during the engagement.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

WOMEN'S TENNIS TOURNEY.

Montclair, Sept. 15.—The fourth annual open tennis tournament for women was staged on the Montclair courts yesterday afternoon, the date having been assigned to the Montclair club by the National Tennis Association, under whose rules the tournament will be conducted. It is expected that the tournament will equal the standard set by the three which preceded it in Montclair.

KILBANE TO MEET WALSH.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 15—Accompanied by his manager, Jimmy Dunn, Featherweight Champion Johnny Kilbane left last night for Boston, where he will meet Jimmy Walsh, of that city, in a twelve-round bout tomorrow night. Kilbane expressed confidence in his ability to defeat Walsh.

DRAFTING OF PLAYERS.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 15.—Baseball magnates, managers, players and reporters began arriving in this city last night to be in attendance at the annual meeting of the National Baseball Commission today to supervise the drafting of players from the minor leagues.

GOOD HIGH JUMP.

Warwick, R. I., Sept. 15—Worcester athletes were successful in three events at the Moose Day Athletic meet at Rocky Point yesterday. Eugene Gilleran won the high jump with a mark of 6 feet 2½ inches; Timothy Donohue, also of Worcester, took second place.

WILL DRAFT 34 MEN.

Now that the "holidays" are over, so far as President Charles Holiday Ebbets, of the Brooklyn club, is concerned, the Flatbush squire, with the assistance of his right hand man, Fred Hanlon, issued a draft list Saturday for thirty-four players from early as many minor league clubs scattered from ocean to ocean. In the collection are twelve pitchers, one catcher, ten outfielders and eleven infielders.

COOMBS IN HOSPITAL.

Philadelphia, Sept. 15.—"Jack" Coombs, star pitcher of the Athletic baseball club, and hero of two world's series, is in the University Hospital. Muscles of the giant pitcher's back, weakened by a recent attack of typhoid fever, physicians say, were unable to stand the strain put upon them in his attempt to work into condition. It is said he may be placed in a plaster cast for several weeks.

INDIANAPOLIS WINS FLAG.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 15.—The Federal League, said to be the first independent baseball organization to complete its full schedule, closed its first season yesterday, with the Indianapolis club far in the lead for the pennant.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL LEAGUER LOOKS LIKE A COMER IN DIAMOND GAME.

Pressed into service almost at the last moment, and playing a position entirely new to him, Herbert A. Stine, the .390 hitter of the championship First Baptist baseball team, gave a good account of himself in a Pet uniform at Somerville, Saturday afternoon. Induced by Manager Dorflinger to take the trip and warm the bench, Stine was treated to an agreeable surprise when his name went down in the scorebook as a regular almost before he had gotten used to his surroundings and the faces of a new set of teammates.

Stine, as a catcher, is some ball player, but his friends in the bleachers at Somerville, Saturday were somewhat doubtful about his ability to play the keystone sack with a semi-professional outfit, in fact, Stine was a little shy himself and reluctantly consented to do the best he could, which afterwards proved to be all that was needed. After the nervousness of the opening rounds left him, he steadied down and was a reliable cog in the Pets' infield during the whole contest.

Handling one putout and two assists with perfect ease, he was kept from chalking up a more creditable fielder's record through the desire of a second baseman to "hog" everything that came within twenty feet of the keystone bag, a thing that has discouraged many a would-be Pet in his first appearance.

SOMERVILLE GOLFERS PLAN MEN'S AVOIRDUPOIS HANDICAP

After a midsummer lull, golf at the Somerville Country Club is about to be resumed with a vim. Beginning Saturday, when the women and men both held forth, there will be something to attract every week-end until the snow flies. The women will compete in a nine-hole event, playing the first, eleventh, twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth and home holes.

The novelty in the club's fall schedule consists of a "men's avoirdupois handicap," in which excess of weight clearly has its disadvantages, for the reason that heavyweights will be taxed an entrance fee of $1.50, while a $1 fee will be charged lightweights. Heavyweights, by the way, will be those admitting to a total of more than 200 pounds. The committee has consented to allow entrants with wasplike figures to defer weighing in until after luncheon, and as a further concession it has been announced that after playing eighteen holes dissatisfied ones may try again, provided they "loosen up" to the extent of a second entrance fee. Heavyweights will compete for a silver and the little fellows for a copper cup.

On Saturday, October 11, well-known amateurs will compete there in a four-ball match. Jerome D. Travers, of Upper Montclair, the national champion, and Horace Cook, of Trenton, will compete against Oswald Kirkby, of Englewood, and John N. Stearns, 3d, of Princeton. Conditions call for thirty-six holes. An invitation tournament is also being arranged for the Bound Brook and New Brunswick clubs on the Somerville course, details of which will be announced later.

GIRLS WILL PLAY 'PLAINS.

The Bloomer Girls' Baseball team, of New York city, will lineup against the Scotch Plains aggregation at the 'Plains field next Sunday afternoon. The home management is arranging for a preliminary contest between two local teams to be started at 2 o'clock.

JIMMY CLINTON, IN HIS MEANEST MOOD, SMOTHERED THE PET TEAM

Taking advantage of the Plainfield Pets, while in his meanest mood and delivering an article of baseball that ought to be prohibited in semi-professional circles, Jimmy Clinton brought victory to the Somerville Central Leaguers Saturday afternoon by a score of 5 to 1 and incidentally tied matters up in the race for the flag, making a third and deciding game necessary. The peer of semi-pro heavers had the Queen City batters completely at his mercy at all times and the Pets spent the afternoon in breaking their backs trying to reach for his benders and drops. A change of pace such as many a pitcher tries to pull off at various times but that which few ever accomplish, was Clinton's deadliest reliance and at no time was he in the least danger for men seldom inhabited the sacks. But twenty-nine men faced him in the nine rounds, two more than the minimum number that could toe the rubber, and every one of the nine Pets fanned at least once with the exception of George Ortlieb, and he squirmed out with the aid of some horseshoe stuff.

The teams are now tied for the pennant:

	W.	L.	PC.
Plainfield	11	5	.688
Somerville	11	5	.688

Errorless exhibitions of fielding were staged by both contingents, and although Plainfield appeared minus the services of some of its stars, the substitutes fitted in admirably well and while their efforts on the offence were futile with Clinton on the hillock, their work on the defence was of the top-notch order. Plainfield's lone tally came in the initial round, when Eddie Stallings, the second batter to face Clinton circled the bases on a fluke when Grimes made a bad heave from left field to second base trying to nip the batter who had previously pounded out a two cushion smash.

Four Somerville uniforms crossed the plate in the stretch stanza and this work in the scoring department put the game on ice for the Somerset county regiment, and incidently made a third game with additional gate receipts necessary. Seven men faced George Ortlieb in the seventh and four sped across the gutta percha with markers to their credit. After the fluke in the opening frame Clinton took charge of his own game and with the exception of the fourth inning, only three men faced his slanters in this session. Howard Craig was the only representative of the baseball burg by the hills to land on the sacks after Eddie Stallings' pointer had been rung up in the first, and the Plainfield captain and third baseman halted at the second station so rough was the going.

Somerville had several chances to tie up the count after Plainfield took the lead in the first, but played the part of the fox laying in the rear until the fifth inning, when Conti's single brought in Porter, who had profited by Ortlieb's greatest fault, that of issuing too many free tickets to the men who face him in every contest. The seventh was their lucky trip to the rubber, however, and the Pets were buried so deep that rescue at that late hour was practically out of the question.

Conti led the hitting for Somerville, getting two timely singles, while Eddie Stallings and Dalton were credited with two baggers and Jimmy Porter pounded out a three-sack lick. The absence of Joe Harter made several shifts in the lineup necessary, Lewis, who was engaged to substitute failing to appear at the last moment, and Stine was selected to do duty at second base. The Sunday-school leaguer put up a good game in a position entirely new to him.

FIRST GAME WON BY SAURER BALL TEAM

Second With the Royal Giants Left Unplayed Saturday Afternoon.

Playing a game of near baseball in which twenty-one errors figured prominently, the Saurer and Royal Giant teams took so long to play the first contest of their scheduled double-header at Parker Field, Saturday afternoon, that there was no time left for the second contest and the Royals had to be satisfied with an 8 to 5 defeat administered by the Saurer team, winners of the City League pennant.

Miller, who twirled winning ball for the motor truck makers, allowed but four hits, two of which were made by Catcher Waldorf. Dixon led with the bat for the victors.

H. C. MUNGER WINS CLASS B COMPETITION

Owing to the fact that many of the players went to Baltusrol Golf Club, Saturday, to witness the match between the English and Americans, there was a small field out at the Plainfield Country Club. The finals in the fall tournament for Class A was postponed to this week. In Class B, H. C. Munger defeated A. W. Kleinecke, 2 and 1, thereby winning the cup. Charles A. Reed won the sweepstakes with a score of 83, 15-68. There was the usual dance at the clubhouse Saturday evening, following the dinner.

REACH SEMI-FINALS IN P. C. C. CHAMPIONSHIP PLAY

Good progress was made in the tournament for the men's singles tennis championship at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday. When play ceased for the day only the semi-final and final rounds remained to be completed. They will be run off next Saturday afternoon.

All the favorites came through, the present champion, Carr B. Neel, former doubles champion of the United States, winning both his matches with ease. The other semi-finalists are Henry J. Cochran, Albert D. Beers and R. L. Carter, the two first named being former holders of the title.

The summary:

First round—Carr B. Neel defeated T. M. Day, 3rd, 6—0, 6—2; Arthur Lovell defeated Harold Brown by default; H. J. Cochran defeated H. L. DeForest, 6—2, 8—6; J. Whitney Baker defeated Francis P. MARTIN'S TEAM COMING.

Jack Martin's teammates, now fighting for the International League pennant, have agreed to accompany him to Plainfield a week from next Saturday, when the Rochester herd will lineup against the Plainfield Pets on Parker Field. Should Rochester succeed in winning the International pennant by that time and Plainfield should annex the Central pennant there would probably be a little issue on the side to contend. What would the winner of such a battle be the champion of?

PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL PRODUCT LOOKS GOOD TO MANAGERS.

Matty Coughlin, who did some good work twirling in a Plainfield High School uniform during the last two seasons, played in a Royal Giants uniform at Scotch Plains yesterday afternoon, and as a result of his work on that occasion will probably be given a tryout with Joe Alberts' crew during the remaining games of the present season.

Coughlin played left field, and besides doing some sensational fielding, performed the unusual stunt of throwing the pellet from deep left field to home plate almost on a line. This piece of work called for a loud burst of applause from the fans and he followed it up by throwing from a deep field to the pitcher's box almost immediately afterwards.

WARRY AND NIBS ARE AGAIN IN THE POINTS

Local Battery Wins Another Contest for Trenton Baseball Team.

Twirling for the speedy Trenton baseball team at Recreation Oval Long Island, yesterday afternoon, Warry McLaughlin, the local pitcher won his game by a score of 13 to 7 allowing seven hits, walking two and running three. Eight errors were made behind the Plainfielder and seven in back of his opponent.

"Nibs" Hand caught for Warry upholding his fellow Jerseyite in clever style throughout the whole game. Hand and McLaughlin each got a sacrifice hit, and the pitcher was also credited with one of his team's singles.

NAMES ARE CONFUSING.

Two teams, dubbing themselves the Holy Cross elevens, are booking games to be played in the borough during the coming season. Although the major Holy Cross eleven that has become veteranized through its numerous consecutive years of playing in the borough, is again in the field of competition, a bunch of junior players, representing the Holy Cross church have put a similar aggregation in the game and are also playing under the name of Holy Cross, with no "junior" handle attached. While both teams apparently have the right to be called the Holy Cross team, it would be far better and less confusing if the youngsters would agree to affix the "Junior" part of the title.

HOLY CROSS PRACTICE.

The initial practice of the Holy Cross football team is slated for tonight and Coach P. V. Martin will be on hand at that time to receive all candidates for the eleven. All those who contemplate trying for the team are requested to be on hand in uniform for the first drill.

FARMERS ABANDON PLOUGHS AND FROLIC AS GUESTS OF HUNT CLUB

The Watchung Hunt Club entertained the local farmers, over whose lands the members hunt, and their families, Saturday afternoon, the affair being held at the club's grounds near South Plainfield. It was called "A Jollification Day," and it was that in every sense of the word. The farmers, their wives and children turned out in large numbers and the club left nothing undone in providing a full afternoon's entertainment. At noon all were invited to sit down to a genuine farmer's dinner, which began with the serving of clam chowder and ended up with ice cream, watermelon and cigars. As an added attraction there was a band of music which discoursed popular airs all of the afternoon.

After the dinner all enjoyed horse and foot races which comprised the program. There were six events, three foot races for farmers' sons, a couple of flat races for farmers' and members' horses, and a horse jumping contest.

In the second event, jumping contest, in which there were sixteen entries, Beverley Brown riding Rufus C. Finch's "All Aboard," went off at the first hurdle, but escaped injury. The crowd was thrilled during the fourth event, "The Jolly Derby," when Louis Sutterlein riding Leslie Lambert's horse, went off as the horse bolted through the crowd and stumbled over a rope. The rider at first was thought to be seriously injured, and was rushed to the hospital. An examination showed but slight injuries and Suterlein left the hospital a few hours later.

In the sixth event, 'Hunters' National," for members' horses, about a half-mile, Rufus C. Finch, riding "Harold A. Frank," was in collision with Lawrence Smith, who was riding "Chancellor," the winner, and he went off. He suffered a slight shake-up.

The races were all run off in good time. Those on foot furnished plenty of excitement and fun for the crowd. The winners in each received a gold watch, the second a silver watch, and the third a penknife. The first, the 100-yard dash, was won by Eugene Geary, with Herbert Terry second and Cornelius Clark third.

The second event, jumping contest, in which there were sixteen entries, was won by J. J. O'Donohue's "Lion Heart," with Brown Rolston's "Crusher," second; Edward R. Finch's "All Alone," third, and Harry L. Finch's "Manifesto," fourth.

The quarter-mile foot race, the third event, was won by William Ball, with Robert Hodge second and Joseph Phillipe third.

"The Jolly Derby," the fourth event, for horses the bona-fide property of farmers over whose land the club hunts, was one of the best of the afternoon over a half-mile course. It was run off in two heats. In the first, William Bennett's "Bob," and William Galbraith's "Jack," finished one, two, and in the second heat, Chris. Kelley's "Ben," with Frank Kelley up and William Frazee's "Barney," finished first and second. "Ben" won the third heat handily, with "Bob" second and "Jack" third. It was the opinion of a number that "Ben" was a pretty good looking farmer's horse.

The fifth event, half-mile foot race, was won by Robert Hamilton, with Lester Soper second and Martin Terry third. The last race, "Hunters' National," for horses owned by members, about a half-mile, was won by Lawrence Smith's "Chancellor," S. D. French's "Richard" was second and H. A. Bourne's "Philae," with J. J. O'Donohue up, third. There were prizes in each race, and each horse in the farmer's race received a fine blanket, with the purse comprised $50, $25, $15, $10.

The members of the Hunt Club joined in making the affair a great success, while their wives and sisters assisted in the entertainment. Rufus C. Finch, master of the hounds, and his brother, Harry L. Finch, were largely responsible for the affair, and others who assisted were R. H. Towner, C. W. Holland, J. J. O'Donohue. The judges were Harry A. Bourne, H. Stuart Hollis and J. Schuyler Casey. The fine dinner was served by Timbo and was all that one could desire.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEAM BEATS CITY LEAGUERS

Hope Chapel's Rally in Ninth Brings Home the Bacon in a Speedy Clash.

When representative teams from the City and Sunday-school Leagues met Saturday afternoon in an after-season battle, Plainfielders counted on getting their first chance to size up the two organizations in regard to playing strength, but so close was the battle waged between Hope Chapel and the West End A. C. the two runners-up, that little or no insight could be gained, the church boys winning by a ninth inning rally with a score of 5 to 4. Two runs in the final session tied and won the game for the Chapelites, after they had been in the rear during the previous eight stanzas. For six innings the West Ends maintained a lead of 3 to 1, and the Hope contingent tied matters up in the seventh. In the eighth the West Ends took the lead only to have it squelched by the Sunday-school Leaguers in the last round.

Jack Denny, the former P. H. S. twirler, appeared on the mound against Schott, the Sunday-school League strikeout phenom, and while he allowed but nine hits against his opponent's twelve, the Chapelite's bingles were the timeliest and counted for runs. Tommy Heron's work with the wagon tongue was a valuable asset to the winners, the left field guardian getting three bingles, one of which was a two bagger. H. Rosenson, Coughlin and Geary did some clever batting for the losing crew, the former each getting three apiece and the latter two.

CLIFF RANDOLPH HAS PITCHED THIRTY-SIX SCORELESS INNINGS.

Pitching once more for the Suburban A. A. baseball club against the Reading nine at Suburban Oval, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon, Cliff Randolph, of this city, held his record unblemished during nonther nine rounds by shutting out the opposition with a score of 6 to 0. This makes the thirty-sixth scoreless inning Randolph has twirled and his third consecutive shutout in a Suburban uniform.

It was learned at the Suburban field yesterday that two major league scouts were on hand to watch Randolph's work and he once more demonstrated that he possesses big league talent. It is said that Brooklyn representatives offered Randolph a proposition to twirl for the Dodgers next season but he did not accept the terms yesterday.

THIRD SHUT-OUT FOR LOCAL HURLING STAR

Cliff Randolph Holds the Reading Team to Two Scratch Hits.

Cliff Randolph scored his third consecutive shutout for the Suburban A. A. team at Suburban Oval, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon, pitching against the Reading crew of Pennsylvania, winning by a score of 6 to 0. He allowed but two scratch hits and fanned thirteen batters, and walked four of the opposing batters.

Randolph's teammates pounded out ten bingles and played errorless ball behind their pitching star. Randolph himself got two of the bingles.

The DAILY PRESS Will Do it With the RAPID VACUUM CLOTHES WASHER

Money Saving — Time Saving — Labor Saving

THE NEW WAY.

READ WHAT WE HAVE TO SAY

You can save many dollars in a year on your clothes and add a day of pleasure to your life each week with this wonderful Rapid Vacuum Clothes Washer, but cutting your laundry work in two. Most clothes are RUBBED OUT and not WORN OUT. When you send your clothes to the laundry what happens to them? They are soaped and beaten, and rubbed so that the hot soap-suds (sometimes a little acid added) is forced through and through the goods. This cleans the goods, but they do not last long. When your clothes are washed in your own home what happens? The hot soap suds are pushed in and out of the garments, as they are rubbed on the board. This cleans them, but wears them out. In every process of washing, soap and water are the only elements having any cleaning properties. When your clothes are washed with the Rapid Vacuum Washer what happens? Gallons of soapy water at boiling temperature (which sterilizes the clothes) is forced through the goods every 60 seconds. This cleans your clothes snowy white without straining a thread. You can now wash woolens, blankets, sheets, shirts, collars, bed quilts, etc., at home, and after washing the articles will be whiter, softer, cleaner, fluffier and more beautiful in appearance than before. Compressed air, hot water and soap does the work.

You can wash a tubful of dirty clothes in five minutes without rubbing, without bending, and with very little work.

A tubful of clothes can be rinsed and blued in the same way in one minute.

You can clean anything that can be cleaned with soap and water or gasoline in a few minutes, without straining a thread.

No more rough hands and tired backs for the person who does the washing.

The Vacuum Washer has no moveable parts, cannot get out of order, and with proper care will last for years.

WASHDAY NO LONGER A DAY OF DREAD

DIRECTIONS FOR OPERATION

Have your water hot, the hotter the better. Add sufficient soap and see that it is thoroughly dissolved before putting in the clothes, as hot water without soap will set the dirt. Use enough hot water to float the clothes, then operate the plunger up and down, each time a gallon or more of hot suds is forced through the fabrics, and the same amount is drawn back on the upward stroke. This suction force is produced by an automatic suction valve, which is a distinct and original feature of our invention. During five or ten minutes, which is required to do a washing, many hundred gallons of hot, soapy water are forced through the clothes, which cleans them in a more perfect manner than any other process and with absolutely no wear or tear. This is the secret of the success of this Rapid Vacuum Clothes Washer.

If you do your own washing, it will save you time, strength and temper. If you send your washing out, we know that you are not satisfied, as your clothes are worn and eaten with the strong washing compounds used by laundries. If you enjoy a maid, her time is worth money.

DO NOT LET ANOTHER WASHDAY PASS WITHOUT A RAPID VACUUM WASHER.

THE OLD WAY.

PROTEST AGAINST SEWER BOND TAX

West End Residents Tell Council Assessment is Unjust—No Benefits.

NO SEWERS THERE

Other Petitions Made to City Fathers—Sachar Wants Giraud Avenue Macadamized—County Tax Budget Filed.

Real estate owners in the West End of the city in a petition to the Common Council, last night, made what was considered a just protest against the city's levying a tax on property in that section of Planifield to liquidate sewer bonds on the ground that they have no sewer improvements and in many instances are obliged to depend on cesspools. The petitioners consider that some action should be taken to either furnish sewer connection or clean cesspools. It was set forth in the petition that for years the property-owners have been paying for sewers in other parts of the city without receiving any direct benefit. The petition was referred to the sewer committee.

Jacob Sachar in a petition asked the Council to grade and macadamize Giraud avenue, explaining that he has erected three new houses on that street. This matter was referred. A communication from the West End Civic Association made inquiry about a petition for a fire hydrant on West Sixth street. City Clerk James T. MacMurray's reply was read in which it was stated that the resolution authorizing the hydrant was passed, Councilman Fred Endress had urged the improvement and if it was not installed by September 30, he would like to be notified. The communication was filed.

In accordance with the law, H. W. Headley filed maps of a tract of land to be developed, for the approval of the Council, one of which is to be filed with the county registrar of deeds. A resolution offered by Mr. Endress and adopted, provided for giving the usual notice to property-owners regarding the laying of sidewalks and in case of failure, the city will do the work and charge it up to the property.

Another resolution by Mr. Endress and adopted, gave the O. A. R. Motor Company permission to install two five hundred gallon tanks, one for gasolene and the other for kerosene, on South avenue.

Councilman C. C. Randolph filed a copy of the county budget with the city clerk and he also stated that Tax Collector W. R. Townsend had complied with the request of the State Board of Taxation in supplying it with a copy of the city tax map.

COURTS OPEN IN SOMERSET CO.

Justice Parker Charges First Grand Jury Under New Law.

MINISTER IS EXCUSED

Court, However, Declines to Release M. C. Van Arsdale—Judge Beekman Also on Bench—Some Cases of Local Interest.

Somerville, Sept. 16.—The September term of the Somerset County Courts was convened this morning, with Justice Charles W. Parker presiding. Judge D. H. Beekman was also on the bench. The list of forty persons selected to serve as grand jurors was then gone over. M. C. Van Arsdale, of North Plainfield, and the Rev. Isaac Sperling, of South Branch, and H. E. Green, of South Bound Brook, asked to be excused, but Justice Parker declined their request, except as to Rev. Mr. Sperling. William C. Kirchner, of North Plainfield, and Charles C. Wheeler, of North Plainfield township, are also among the jurors.

In his charge to the jurors, Justice Parker called attention to the fact that this was the first grand jury to be drawn under the new law in Somerset county, and he explained the methods by which the list had been made, so that the selection is partly made by the sheriff and partly by the court.

Justice Parker stated that he heard that some of the cases of assault and battery had been glossed over after the original charges had been made and were modified somewhat, and he called their attention to the law, which required the jurors to make their own investigations, independent of the prosecutor, although he wished it understood that he was in no way criticizing the prosecutor's office in his remarks, and that he had no facts with which to substantiate what he had said.

These are included among the Supreme Court cases on the trial list:

Milton Knapp vs. Edward Corning and Gardner Corning—action at law. Nelson & William N. Runyon; H. K. Gaston.

Harry W. Hoffman vs. Charles G. Westlecraft, etc.—action at law. F. A. Pope; W. S. Angleman.

Charles Barker vs. Charles Pfizer, Jr.—action at law. John F. Reger; Louis H. Schenck.

Among the Circuit Court cases is F. L. C. Martin Automobile Company vs. Benjamin A. Hageman, Jr.—in attachment. Vincent W. Nash, Jr.; Wm. A. Coddington.

Judge Benjamin A. Vail will sit for the trial of causes on October 6.

HIRSCH MUST PAY; OTHERS TO SUE TOO

District Court Decision if Sustained May Allow Recovery for More People.

The decision in the case of Louis C. VanNest against Hyman Hirsch to recover $487.70 for materials furnished in the construction of the Hirsch building on Watchung avenue, which was given yesterday by Judge Walter L. Hetfield, of the District Court, was in favor of VanNest. His counsel is Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, Jr. William Newcorn, who represents Mr. Hirsch, has given notice of appeal.

In case Judge Hetfield's decision is sustained, Mr. Hirsch will become a defendant in suits brought by Philip Jahn, John H. Cose, Arthur E. Smith, A. B. Laing and Hugh Reilly, whose claims aggregate $5,000. It is the contention that Mr. Hirsch paid Simon Roth, a contractor, about $5,000 before the completion of the building and that the latter left the city without paying Mr. VanNest and others who furnished materials. Judge Hetfield's decision allows Mr. VanNest the amount of his claim, $487.70, and costs.

Mr. Hirsch maintains that he did not pay Roth until the terms of the contract were fulfilled, and that the stop notices were served on him after Roth had been paid.

RAN INTO AUTO.

Alfonso Parretto, 6 years old, of 334 East Front street, had a narrow escape from serious injury yesterday afternoon, when he ran into a passing automobile at Watchung avenue and East Fifth street while crossing the street. The car was owned and driven by A. H. Stevens, of 927 Park avenue, who reported the occurrence to the police. Parretto was unhurt.

MT. ST. MARY'S IS OPEN TODAY

Academic Department Sessions Begin and College Course Starts Sept. 24.

ENROLLMENT IS LARGE

New Building to Be Dedicated on October 19 When There Will Be An Elaborate Program—A Fine Institution.

Studies will be resumed today in the academic department of the College of Mount St. Mary. The enrollment shows a very large increase over previous years. Classical, modern language and commercial courses are approved by the New Jersey State Board of Education.

Work in the college department, Gabriel Hall, will be resumed on Wednesday, September 24, and gives and unusual opportunity for young women to secure a college education—a classical course leading to the A. B. degree and other courses with a major in music, fine arts, domestic science and art and education leading to a degree.

Graduates who have pursued the courses in education may secure New Jersey and other State teachers' licenses without examination. There are extension courses, afternoons and Saturdays for teachers and those preparing to teach. In the primary department a high class graded school for boys and girls between the ages of five and twelve years is provided. The college and its allied schools provide opportunities for a complete education without change of institutions. The new buildings, full modern equipment and an efficient faculty, leave nothing to be desired. The dedication of the new building will take place on October 19. An elaborate program is being planned, details of which will be announced later.

TWO LOCAL YOUTHS HELD FOR LARCENY

Storekeeper Prefers Charges Against Garfinkle and Sneideker.

Charged with larceny by Louis Samuels, a storekeeper of West Third street, Alfred Sneideker, 18 years old, of 1115 West Third street, and Charles Garfinkle, 18 years old, of 518 West Third street, were held in $300 bail each to await Grand Jury action when arraigned this morning before City Judge DeMeza. They were unable to furnish bail. Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., sprang a surprise when he asked that the complaint be amended by making an additional charge against the prisoners, that of stealing $200 from Samuels' safe. The two youths had previously been charged with the theft of $4 worth of cigarettes and some account books.

Louis Fay, who was a court spectator, was also given a surprise when he was called from his seat, and brought before Judge DeMeza to explain his actions in trying to induce Samuels to drop the charge against Garfinkle, thereby compounding a felony.

Fay, according to the police, after securing the account books, went to Samuels and offered to "return the books in five minutes" if he, Samuels, would sign papers to the effect that he would not press the charge against Garfinkle. Fay is also said to have threatened Samuels with violence unless he consented. Samuels refused and told the police of Fay's alleged offer. The latter's conduct will be placed before the Grand Jury for investigation.

The stolen goods have been returned to the storekeeper by Detective-Sergeant Flynn and Roundsman Saffron, who traced the articles to the homes of the two prisoners. Garfinkle and Sneideker were arrested Sunday afternoon by Detective Flynn and Patrolman MacIntyre.

WOMEN PARTICIPATE IN SCHOOL ELECTION

Did They Vote—Yes; and so Somerset School Gets Needed Improvements.

A special election held in the North Plainfield High School last night, to determine whether the borough residents approved of the proposed expenditure of $9,000 to improve the sanitary conditions at the Somerset School, brought out a vote of fifty-three favorable, and twenty-seven against the proposition. The polls were open for one hour and Dr. Justus H. Cooley, president of the Board of Education, presided at the election.

Out of eighty ballots cast, twenty-five women voted, the latter condition being due directly to enthusiasm stirred up at the Parent-Teacher Association meeting held yesterday afternoon. The proposition offered the voters was whether or not the Board should be authorized to appropriate an amount not to exceed $9,000 and to authorize the Board to borrow money to be used by issuing short term notes in the corporate name of the District Board in such amounts and payable at such times as the legal voters should determine.

The bid for the plumbing work has been awarded to Tobin and the masonry will be done by Townley. The toilet facilities in the North Plainfield school are such at the present time as to make extensive improvements urgent and the work of installing the new equipment will be started at once.

BELIEVE THE PRISONER IS SECOND-STORY MAN

In arresting Floyd Taylor, of Newark, for the larceny of $15 from the home of his employer where he worked as a handy-man, Detective-Sergeant John J. Flynn believes he has a man wanted in several large cities for second-story jobs. Investigation has revealed that Taylor, who is 26 years old, has but recently been released from State's prison where he served a long term for burglary. His picture and pedigree have been secured from the Rogues' gallery at the Newark police headquarters.

Taylor was arraigned this morning before City Judge DeMeza, but was remanded back for a hearing this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

BLOOD TRANSFUSION HAS PROVEN FUTILE

Miss Ethel Terry Dying and Sister Who Gave Blood to Save Life is at Bedside.

The heroic sacrifice of her sister, Miss Eva Terry, an instructor in the North Plainfield High School, who submitted to an operation in Bellevue Hospital, New York, last spring for the transfusion of blood, failed to restore Miss Ethel Terry, of Long Island, to her normal health and today she is dying in the institution where the operation was performed. Miss Eva Terry has been granted a leave of absence from her duties in the Borough High School to be at her sister's bedside during the few remaining hours she has to live, physicians in charge of the case having given up hope of prolonging the young woman's life.

Miss Terry left her duties in the borough school last year to be with her sister when the latter was lingering between life and death in the New York hospital and was one of two to volunteer to submit to the operation for the transfusion of blood when the request was made, the second to give blood being Ralph Young, a friend of the victim.

When Miss Eva Terry went from her home in North Plainfield yesterday she had not been advised as to whether another transfusion operation would be tried but in such event she will undergo another blood loss.

MULDOWNEYS REFUSED DIVORCE

Vice Chancellor in Denying Petitions Says There Was Perjury on Each Side.

THE CO-RESPONDENTS

Wife's Parents Make Affidavit That Daughter is "Wayward" and Had a Comfortable Home—Permitted to Furnish New Evidence.

Newark, Sept. 16.—Giving it as his conclusions that there had been a "deal of perjury on both sides," Vice Chancellor Howell yesterday denied both a petition and cross-petition thus denying the release sought by both husband and wife in a divorce suit and counter-suit between Dominick and Mrs. Elizabeth Muldowney, of Plainfield.

The husband, who filed the original petition, named George Wood, of Newark, as co-respondent. In support of his charge his attorney, Winfield S. Angleman put in the record the arrest and commitment of Muldowney to the Essex County Jail in June, 1912. According to Muldowney he was employed by the Ransome Concrete Manufacturing Company, of Plainfield. His wife left him on December 17, 1911, he says, "without just cause or provocation," taking their four-year-old daughter, Dorothy, with her, and going to Newark to live. She had deserted him several times before, he said.

Philip and Mrs. Catherine Hapeney, of Plainfield, parents of Mrs. Muldowney, offered an affidavit made by them in behalf of their son-in-law, in which they characterized their daughter as "wayward." Mrs. Hapeney in her affidavit stated that "her daughter refused to live with her husband in his good and comfortable home."

In her answer filed by J. A. Matthews, Mrs. Muldowney denied her husband's charges while in a cross-petition she accuses him of a like offense, naming Jennie Marshall, of Plainfield, as co-respondent. It was shown that since October, 1912, Mrs. Muldowney had received $5 a week in accordance with an order by Vice Chancellor Stevens. The Muldowneys were married November 11, 1906, by a justice of the peace in Elizabeth. The Vice Chancellor continued the case to give the complainant an opportunity to produce more evidence.

DE KOVEN OPERA CO. PRESENTS ROBIN HOOD

No more seasonable attraction could possibly have been devised than the revival of "Robin Hood," which the de Koven Opera Company will offer at the Plainfield Theatre tonight. That light opera classic sprang into favor from the time of its first performance over twenty years ago. Musical entertainments have come and gone in the interim, but "Robin Hood" still retains its freshness and it makes the musical comedies of the day seem tawdry in comparison. The present revival of "Robin Hood" is under the auspices of a special company organized by Reginald de Koven, the composer. The original production and chorus intact, is the company that will be seen here. Maid Marian will be sung by Adele Dilli, dramatic soprano from the Royal Opera, Genoa, and the title role falls to Misha Ferenzo, leading tenor of the Imperial Opera, St. Petersburg. From the field of light opera have been recruited Joseph Parsons for Little John, Jerome Daley for Will Scarlet, Sara Maon for Alan-a-Dale, Helena Morrill for Annabel, Tillie Salinger for Dame Durden, Phil Branson for the sheriff and Sid. Braham for Sir Guy of Gisborne. That sterling old comedian, George B. Frothingham, the last of the original Bostonians, will be seen for the five thousandth and some time in his original impersonation of Friar Tuck.

YORK & ADAMS AT PROCTOR'S.

Yorke and Adams, considered the funniest Jewish comedians in vaudeville, are the headliners at Proctor's this week, and the way they radiate humor is a scream. They think it and dream it. They are natural born comedians and their appearance "In the Art Gallery" is just one continual laugh from beginning to end. Yorke and Adams are the pair that will chase the blues. Johnson, Horton & Johnson, "The Three Burlesquers," are another riot of fun. The Hickman Brothers & Co., in a farcical sketch, "A Detective Detected," are especially clever. Clifford and Douglas are a funny pair, and O. K. Sato, the comedy juggler, does more funny stunts in thirteen minutes than one could imagine. He is a wizard.

LIFE THREATENED BY BLACKMAILERS

BORE LOCAL POST MARK

Outlaw Makes No Definite Demand on $100,000 Heir, But Refers to a Previous Conversation — Letter Was Printed and Well Worded.

Since receiving a letter signed "Black-hand" yesterday, William Stansbury, of Scotch Plains, is in a state of constant fear lest he should be struck down while traveling the public highway going to and from his home in the village. About a year ago young Stansbury was left a fortune estimated to consist of between $80,000 and $100,000 by his grandfather and since that time he has been more or less of a stranger at the family homestead at Park and Mountain avenues, in Scotch Plains.

The young man received his mail at a Scotch Plains hotel and he was greatly surprised this morning to find the black-hand threat among the communications handed to him by the postmaster. The tenor of the letter appeared to be a demand and referred to some conversation the recipient had evidently had with the writer on some previous occasion. The demand was printed as a means of eliminating any possibility of identification through handwriting and threatened Stansbury with a horrible fate in the event of his refusal to comply with the terms. No definite sum was stated but the letter intimated that the receiver knew what was wanted and if he failed to comply with the certain terms that were probably talked over at some previous date he would be way-laid.

The letter described the Scotch Plains resident as a breaker of promises and intimated that he would receive ample return for some wrong he had seemingly done the writer. The communication bore a Plainfield postmark and had been mailed at the local office before 1.15 o'clock this morning. On the back of the envelope a skull and pair of crossbones appeared and the address was also printed in black ink. The spelling was correct.

When a Daily Press reporter called at the Stansbury homestead in Scotch Plains this afternoon he was informed that the receiver of the "black hand" letter had not been there for several days and no information could be obtained to identify the sender. Stansbury is about twenty-two years of age and is of a nervous temperament, the receipt of the letter having preyed considerably on his mind. Some months ago he was reported to be engaged to a young woman living on Terrill road, but the wedding has not as yet taken place.

Accompanied by a friend, Stansbury came to Plainfield early this afternoon. His destination was unknown, but it is rumored that the "blackhander" lives in this city and that the wealthy young man was seeking the writer of the missive.

MISS ROSINA THOMAE IS DEAD AT FANWOOD

Miss Rosina Maria Thomae, aged 81 years, died this morning after a lingering illness at the residence of her niece, Mrs. Robert L. Thomae, on North avenue, in Fanwood. She was born in Baltimore, the oldest child of the late George F. Thomae, for many years a widely-known merchant of New York and at the time of his death president of the Seaman's Bank for Savings.

Miss Thomae's early years were spent in Brooklyn and New York and in 1876 came to reside with her sister, Mrs. James B. Carter, of Bonnie Burn, Washington Valley, and had passed the last fourteen years in Fanwood. She was a woman of brilliant mind and eminent social qualities. He whole life was one of devotion to her home circle and she was esteemed and loved by many friends and will be mourned by all who knew her. The funeral will be held at the late home Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock and the burial will be in Woodlawn cemetery, New York.

MOTOR LAW OFFENDERS.

Three violations of the State Motor Vehicles law came to the notice of Recorder Gano in the North Plainfield police court this morning and each offender was fined $5. The offenders were Dudley Gorden, of 29 Grove street, charged with driving an automobile without a license; Peter Ryman, of Harrison, charged with reckless driving, and Peter Walsh, of North avenue, who was alleged to have been exceeding the speed limit on his motorcycle.

—There is no place in town where that next lot of envelopes can be so neatly printed as at the Daily Press office.

JOHN LEAL SCHOOL OUTGROWS CAPACITY

Juniors' Department no Longer Can Be Accommodated at Old School Bldg.

With an enrollment that exceeded the accommodations, compelling the transfer of the junior department to 450 West Seventh street, John Leal's School for Boys was re-opened on West Front street, this morning. The school, which has always been popular, especially among boys who wished to prepare for college, is even more so this year as indicated by the greatly increased enrollment in all departments.

C. D. Wardlaw, the associate principal, has been placed in charge of the junior department on West Seventh street, and Miss Marjorie Robinson, who has been added to the faculty, will have charge of the intermediate department. Mr. Leal is now making arrangements to bring all departments together later in the year by enlarging his school, possibly on a new site. His plans are not yet perfected. While the enrollment is larger than ever, no figures were obtainable today as many of the boys who contemplate entering the school have not yet returned from their vacation.

PARENTS, TEACHERS APPROVED EXPENSE

North Plainfield Ass'n Also Disavows Being Unfriendly to Education Board.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the North Plainfield High School, at a meeting held at the school yesterday afternoon, endorsed the proposition to expend $9,000 for improving the sanitary condition of the school by installing approved lavatories, etc. The vote was seventy in favor and seven against and the action of the association will be communicated to the Board of Education.

Dr. J. H. Cooley, of the Board of Education, outlined the plans for the proposed improvements. Those who refused to vote on the question gave as their reason that they were not sufficiently acquainted with the details and desired to look into the matter still further.

There seemed to be a mistaken idea prevailing among some of the members to the effect that the association and Board of Education were not in harmony. This idea was disputed, it being the sense of the majority that all are working in harmony for the best interest of the school and every effort is being made by the association to co-operate with the board. The membership of the association was increased yesterday to 125. Yesterday's meeting was called by the executive committee of the association.

CASHIER WORKS ON BANK MIXUP

Officials Sign New Bond For R. E. Smith.

HE WILL AID EXAMINERS

Has Conference In Office of His Counsel, Ralph Lum, With Several Directors of Bank—His Financial Affairs Discussed—Didn't Know Institution Was In Such Shape.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 16.—Raymond E. Smith, former treasurer and secretary of the Roseville Trust company, who surrendered at Rahway, Saturday night and was brought here and placed under $15,000 bail, had a conference in the office of his counsel, Ralph Lum, with several directors of the bank, including two of the principal promoters of the reorganization plan. Clifford F. MacEvoy, chairman of the Depositors' association, also was present.

The financial affairs of Smith were discussed and he claimed that if he could have the bankruptcy proceedings against him dismissed he could materially aid the bank, as his individual liabilities are small, while his assets are considerable.

The directors evidently took stock in Smith's statement, as when the conference was over they went to the courthouse, where they signed a new bond for Smith, thus releasing his counsel, who had gone on Smith's bond after the arrest. Smith then started for the bank to begin the task of disentangling the mixup which has given the bank examiners so much trouble.

Before leaving Newark with Attorney Lum, after getting bail, Smith made the following statement:

"At the time of my departure some four weeks ago I had no thought or realization that the affairs of the bank were in such shape as I have since heard. I have been with friends in south Jersey and Delaware, and I have had no word or news nor seen any paper until a couple of nights ago.

"I make the statement, and I believe the future will prove it, that I have never directly or indirectly stolen one cent nor used one cent of the bank's money for my own individual ends and purposes. I have never lived extravagantly as the reports have stated.

"If it shall later appear that I have made mistakes, perhaps serious mistakes, in the efforts and endeavors to help my friends it will perhaps be my turn to suffer for it, and I shall try to take my medicine like a man."

TRINITY DUTCH ARMS ENJOYED A FEAST

Two Ministers and Prosecutor Spoke and Association's Band Provided Music.

Rev. Ernest R. Brown, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Dunellen; Somerset County Prosecutor Frederick A. Pope, of Somerville, and Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of the church, were the speakers at the first fall supper of the Dutch Arms Men's Association of Trinity Reformed church, last night. Charles M. Dolliver was the toastmaster. During the evening the Dutch Arms Band enlivened the occasion with a program of popular music. There were about 150 members and friends who sat down to an excellent dinner.

Prior to the speech-making, Arthur B. Cole made a few remarks in which he extended a welcome to the members, thanked them for their loyalty and predicted a prosperous year for the organization. In introducing the speakers of the evening Mr. Dolliver was quite humorous and this was also a feature of the several speeches.

All of the speakers emphasized the importance of the work of young men in the church, commending the Dutch Arms for what it has already accomplished and predicting a successful future for the organization with the display of so much activity.

The supper was arranged by the good and welfare committee of the Dutch Arms, assisted by some of the wives of members. The committee was as follows:

Louis Neumann, chairman; Chauncey F. Colthar, S. A. Stover, H. N. Holden, P. K. Dilts, A. B. Davis, J. H. Borman, E. S. Weaver, F. W. Powers, J. P. Van Horn and A. Swalm. The officers are: Arthur B. Cole, president; first vice president, Fred S. Cutter; second vice president, Lindlau M. Leek, secretary, Charles Beiter, and treasurer, George Volk. Mrs. A. B. Davis, Mrs. C. F. Colthar, Mrs. A. B. Cole, Mrs. Edward Weaver, Mrs. Louis Neumann and Mrs. John Dean assisted in the serving of the supper.

THAW PRISONER OF U. S. OFFICER

Confident Nemises Jerome Can't Get Him.

FEDERAL COURT HEARING

Fugitive's Lawyers Will Ask For Adjournment Pending Extradition Proceedings—Meanwhile Counsel In Canada Make Move to Take Him Back.

Colebrook, N. H., Sept. 16.—The United States government now is the custodian of Harry K. Thaw.

United States Marshall Nute arrived here from Concord to take charge of the fugitive as a result of the federal habeas corpus writ sworn out by Moses H. Grossman of New York city, his new counsel.

Thaw is delighted at the new turn in his fight for freedom.

"I have tasted liberty and it is good," said he. "Now that I am in the custody of the United States I am certain that my fight will be prolonged to final victory. Jerome cannot coerce the United States government. Just now Matteawan looks as far away as the grave."

Marshal Nute will take Thaw to Littleton today to arraign him before Federal Judge Aldrich.

The fugitive's lawyers will ask for an adjournment pending the hearing before Governor Felker in the extradition proceedings tomorrow. Judge Aldrich will doubtless grant the request and remand Thaw to Concord.

Want Thaw In Canada.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 16.—Harry K. Thaw's Canadian lawyers have not given up hope of bringing him back to the Dominion. N. K. La Flamme, one of their number, announced in court that he and his associates still expected to ask the appeal court of Quebec for a decision on the constitutionality of the immigration act invoked when Thaw was hustled across the Canadian border into Vermont. If they succeeded in having the law declared invalid they would make a formal demand "through the proper channels," La Flamme said, for Thaw's return to Canada.

Six of Thaw's legal staff appeared before the appeal court to see what Chief Justice Archambault and his associates would do to the immigration officers for disobeying the court's writ of habeas corpus and the prohibition writ ignored when Thaw was suddenly deported.

To their disappointment the court instead of meting out summary punishment, adjourned the proceedings until Thursday morning. Counsel for the immigration department promised that the officials named in the writ would attend the hearing Thursday.

Mr. Michael formerly was president of the National Wholesale Dry Goods association and was prominent in the philanthropic work of St. Louis. He was a director in the National Bank of Commerce and of the Commonwealth Trust company and the Louisiana Purchase Exposition company.

BULL MOOSE PLAN CAMPAIGN

Twenty Members of House Form Committee to Pick Candidates For 1914.

Washington, Sept. 16.—Plans for placing Bull Moose candidates in every congressional district in the campaign of 1914 were initiated at a meeting of Bull Moose members of congress.

Twenty members of the house formed themselves into a congressional committee with the understanding that they would have support in the senate at least of Senator Poindexter of Washington state. Judge Hinebaugh of Illinois was elected chairman, Representative Rupley of Missouri secretary and Representative Hulings of Pennsylvania treasurer.

MACK FAILS TO APPEAR.

Not Before John A. Hennessy to Tell of Campaign Contributions.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Norman E. Mack, former chairman of the Democratic national and of the state committees, failed to appear before John A. Hennessy, Governor Sulzer's special investigator, to answer charges of having failed to account for moneys contributed to him in the last gubernatorial campaign.

Instead, Mr. Mack, through his secretary, James W. Reilly, served Mr. Hennessy with summons and complaint in a $5,000 action for libel.

MAKING OF CITZIENS.

How the Winston-Salem, N. C. Board of Trade is helping the high school to train boys for citizenship is told in a bulletin just issued by the United States Bureau of Education.

The school authorities established a course for high school seniors in government and economics, and put it under the direction of the secretary of the Winstom-Salem Board of Trade. The course is a foundation course in the principles of economics and government, but with special reference to the industrial, commercial and agricultural problems of the United States, particularly the Southern States.

Next a "Juvenile Club" was organized among the boys, in connection with the Board of Trade, the purpose being to have the boys check up their theoretical knowledge gained in school with the practical, everyday problems of an industrial centre, such as Winston-Salem is. Boys in the club were granted all the privileges of regular Board of Trade members, except voting. They were allowed to take part in debate and were assigned to committee work. Before entering the club they took the "Athenian oath," whereby they promised allegiance to the highest ideals of civic righteousness for their city.

One of the first tasks assigned the boys was to assist in the industrial survey of Winston-Salem which the Board of Trade is making. Students who had been specializing in the economies and government department of the High School were chosen for this work. In this way they are getting a first-hand knowledge of organized industrial efforts in its relation to the welfare of the community.

"The Winston-Salem plan," says Le Roy Hodges, secretary of the Board of Trade, trains the boys of the city directly for citizenship; first in the high school, where they are taught the principles of civil government and instructed in the theories and basic problems governing our economic order; second, in the juvenile club, where they have the means of being identified with the real work of municipal development, and take part in actual social and industrial investigations., An apportunity is thus provided for the boys to study at close range the varied industries of the city under competent direction and in an official capacity.

"In brief, the plan contemplates first, teaching the boys how to live; and, second, equipping them with an education whereby they can make a living, which, in the end, is the real secret of practical training for intelligent citizenship."

A NEWSPAPER'S DUTY.

On its own behalf and that of the contributors, the Daily Press acknowledges the resolution of thanks passed by the City Union of the King's Daughters for the fund raised during the summer for the support of the Day Nursery. For some years past, this paper has raised a similar fund for the maintenance of the baby camp conducted by the Union, but as that institution became unnecessary when the Day Nursery was formed the usual fund was devoted to that purpose.

Appealing for contributions for worthy causes, we take it, is the duty of a properly conducted newspaper. The newspaper is not performing its whole duty when it fails to be of service to the public and holding to this belief the Daily Press from time to time has appealed for help where the need was urgent. Most recently, it sought financial aid for the family of the late Peter Murray and the response was most gratifying. Here was a family practically poverty-stricken, the widow being left with eight children only one of whom was able to work. Their little home is heavily mortgaged and the children were without sufficient clothing and very little food. Thanks to the good people of this city, the interest on the mortgage has been paid, food and clothing have been provided and now there is a happy family who are grateful to their benefactors.

AN UNDESIRABLE.

Instead of pleading with President Wilson to allow her to land on these shores, the suffragists could best serve their cause by objecting to the admittance of Mrs. Pankhurst. As the head and front of the militants of England she is coming with the avowed purpose to raise funds to continue that treasonable work in her own country. America has no room for people of her type.

VALUE OF AN IDEA.

The value of a good idea put into business practise is illustrated in the case of the late Thomas A. Sperry, of Cranford, who left $2,000,000, accumulated within a few years in the trading stamp business of which he was the originator.

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR MISS MARY THICKSTUN

The funeral of Miss Mary J. Thickstun was held yesterday afternoon at the home of William D. Thickstun, on Central avenue, and was largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which Miss Thickstun was almost a life-long member, officiated. He read the Scripture lesson and made a brief address. There were a number of floral tributes. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Miss Thickstun was a native of Plainfield and had always lived here. She was a devoted Christian and greatly interested in the work of the First Baptist church and all its departments, especially that of missions.

SAY, HOW ABOUT THAT AUTO FIRE APPARATUS

Contrary to expectations no action was taken at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, regarding the purchase of an automobile fire engine for the city. The session was announced to be held for that purpose, but nothing was said on the subject. One of the councilmen said today that he expected that Robert C. Woodhouse, of the Nott Fire Engine Company, would have something to say, but he did not address the members. Just what is proposed is not known.

In response to a request from members of the Councilmanic fire committee the engine from the Sauer plant was taken to Rahway road today and a test was made there for the purpose of seeing whether it would be possible to reach the Arens house with a stream of water. It is understood that with one thousand feet of hose this was accomplished. Within a few days the International Motor Company will have compiled official figures regarding the tests of its engine, showing exactly what it is capable of doing.

THE FORUM.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

Dear Sir: Many times of late, the writers under the caption, "Votes for Women," in the Press have harped upon the imagined, and entirely erroneous theory, that the Antis are objecting to the granting of the franchise to women, merely or chiefly on the grounds that ignorant women would have the exercise of it as well as the better educated.

Coupled with this, the impression is conveyed that Antis are entirely satisfied with the existence of the ignorant male vote.

In your issue of the 10th, half of a statement which I have heard Mrs. Goodwin make several times, is quoted. I have also seen it quoted many times by suffragists, but never correctly, or in its entirety, which seems hardly fair.

In substance, Mrs. Goodwin's statement was: "That if it was a question of limiting the vote to the educated, thoughtful and intelligent of both sexes, we might look upon it very differently."

In her book, "Anti-Suffrage, Ten Good Reasons," Mrs. Goodwin says, "We must put time and brains upon the problem of the foreign man as a voter. How will it help to add the foreign woman?"

It is quite true that the Antis consider the ignorant vote a menace, the existing male as well as the non-existent female, but the men are out working with other men, learning the language and the usages of their future homes, preparing themselves as far as their toilsome life will permit, for their citizenship.

It is an undisputed fact that a large proportion of the married foreign women who come to this country live here for years without even learning the language.

They are not ambitious, save to work for their homes and their families, they live in their homes, feeling satisfied and safe to leave the outside life to the husband and father, secure that he will do better in it than they could do.

I know in New York, a Hungarian grandmother over seventy years old, all of whose children were born in this country, whose grandchildren are all over twenty, comfortably well off, and she does not speak any English.

I know a Russian and a German mother, who have been here, one fourteen, the other twelve, years—in Plainfield,—neither of whom speak, or understand, English.

These three women do not belong to the hopelessly ignorant and illiterate in their own countries, but on the contrary read, write and sew, and are excellent thrifty housewives.

They do not wish any sympathy thrown away on them either. They are worthy of the highest respect in their places, but that place is not as a unit in our Government, and to do them credit, they do not ask to be placed in any such false position.

We regard then the vote of the ignorant female foreigner, even such women as these, who in the language and customs of their own country are not so ignorant as the large majority of those who land here every year, as a menace.

Doubly one, when added to the vote of the men, who even with their outside life, have so much to learn before they are fit to tackle with any degree of intelligence or realization of responsibility, the duties of citizenship in the country of their adoption.

As one able writer puts it: "Coming from different political conditions, new to republicanism, new to responsibity, new to freedom which, in the exuberance of the second generation, he misreads 'license.'"

The Antis see and realize all this regarding the ignorant male vote and know it must have time to adjust itself, but they have no more idea of asking a constitutional amendment to abolish the opportunity for it to do so, than they have of asking one to establish the added menace of simply doubled numbers.

Thanking you for your courtesy,
Yours very truly,
R. A. LAWRENCE.

NAB DENTIST IN PRIEST MURDER

Sleuths Get Harlem Doctor In Midnight Dash.

ANNA HIRT ALSO PRISONER

Girl Who Identified Body of Victim Held as Material Witness—Officials of Tombs Say Accused Clergyman Is Hopelessly Insane.

New York, Sept. 16.—Following a midnight dash in an automobile by Inspector Faurot and several headquarters detectives, Dr. E. Nuret, a dentist, who lives on the ground floor of 301 St. Nicholas avenue, was arrested early today in connection with the murder of Anna Aumuller. He was taken to the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station and later to headquarters. Miss Anna Hirt, a friend of the murdered girl, who identified her body at the Hoboken morgue, is held as a material witness.

According to a dispatch received from Munich, Bavaria, Hans Schmidt, the priest who has confessed the murder of Anna Aumuller, was acquitted of fraud there by a court on the ground that he was of weak or unsound mind.

At that time the priest, who was best known in Munch as "Johannes" Schmidt, was under the jurisdiction of the Mainz bishopric of the Roman Catholic church, the dispatch stated, but was under suspension by the bishop for fraudulent transactions.

He disappeared from Munich and the bishop did not know he was acting as a priest in New York, as his suspension never had been rescinded.

Another dispatch which throws more light on Schmidt's antecedents was received by Mgr. Lavelle from the bishop of Mainz. It read as follows:

"Hans Schmidt, born at Asachaffenburg, Germany. A priest of the diocese of Mainz; ordained 1907; chaplain, 1909. Ran away from Munich because of attempted frauds; arrested by police, declared insane and discharged. Suspended by his bishop for this reason and also for presenting falsified documents with regard to studies alleged to have been made.

"(Signed) Bendix, officials of Bishop of Mainz."

Forged Credentials.

When Schmidt was shown this dispatch he said:

"Others may have thought I falsified documents, but God gave them to me."

The church credentials which Schmidt presented when arriving in this country apparently were forgeries, it was explained, unless he had managed to retain the real documents, despite his suspension by the bishop.

It was learned that at the order of the Right Rev. James A. McFaul, bishop of the Catholic diocese of Trenton, N. J., Schmidt was banished from that diocese in 1910 because he had performed a marriage ceremony without the proper diocesan dispensation and because the bishop thought Schmidt lacked "common sense." In the letter of banishment Bishop McFaul wrote:

"You are hereby notified that you must leave this diocese immediately. It is evident that you are wanting in common sense, and therefore I do not desire to have anything more to do with you."

In the course of a short examination by Deputy Commissioner of Correction Wright and Warden Fallon of the Tombs the priest admitted that he had been confined by his parents in a sanitarium in Germany six or seven years ago. He was released after four months.

"Is Absolutely Insane."

At the conclusion of the examination Commissioner Wright said:

"The man is absolutely insane. We wanted to get a few facts, but one can't get facts from an insane man. He spoke in a tone so low that we could hardly hear his words."

"In an experience running through forty years Schmidt is positively the most complete lunatic I have ever seen," said Warden Fallon. "He is now in the observation ward, where he belongs.

"When we asked him about his motives he merely reiterated, 'The Lord told me to do it.'

"We asked him if he had any remorse while cutting the body up. He replied: 'I merely did what the Lord commanded. I wanted to drink her blood.'

"He is one of the most dangerous criminals ever in the Tombs. He is of the type of men who would kill any one without knowing the nature of the act."

The examination, which lasted only ten minutes, took place in the warden's office. As Schmidt was led in, holding himself very erect, his black clothes a network of wrinkles and a day's growth of beard on his face, he appeared more like a laborer than a cleric. He looked the warden straight in the eyes during the questioning.

Frost Destroys Crops.

Geneseo, N. Y., Sept. 16.—A killing frost did thousands of dollars' damage to farmers' crops here. Last week's frost killed potatoes and corn plants on the flats alone. Yesterday's frost killed potatoes and corn on a triple area on the upland. Gardens are almost entirely destroyed.

GARRISON PRAISES UNITED STATES ARMY

Declares It Never Was In Better Condition.

Washington, Sept. 16.—"I don't believe the army was ever in better condition," said the secretary of war, Mr. Garrison, when he returned to his desk at the war department after an absence of two months, visiting all the important military posts outside of New England and some of the stations in the middle states.

"If we are going to attract the men we want and raise the efficiency of the army we must have a shorter term of enlistment," said he. "I am in favor of a three year term, with the privilege of discharge into the reserve as soon as an enlisted man proves his efficiency. I have not decided what the shortest period of service with the colors should be. That will depend entirely upon the individual. I am in favor of discharging men as soon as they earn discharge and as a reward for their hard work."

Mr. Garrison said he had not yet decided what period a discharged soldier should serve in reserve.

"And to make the army more attractive to the best class of men," said he, "I favor vocational training for the army, so that in addition to the military training and discipline, which a man would acquire through service, he would leave with some trade when he goes again into civil life. Wherever I went I found universal approval of this idea."

Mr. Garrison said he does not favor nor would the country tolerate a large standing army. He thinks that a shorter enlistment to be followed by a term in the reserve would go a long way in building up the army without increasing it numerically. The secretary declined to discuss the scheme for the concentration of the army in a few strategic centers, rather than to have them distributed throughout 157 posts in unimportant locations.

MURDERS WIFE'S FAMILY.

Tennesseean Shoots Down Her Father, Mother and Brother.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 16.—Edward Baxter, thirty-five years old, whose wife, Jessie Smith Baxter, had left him, went to the home of her father, Henry Smith, and on being told that he could not see his wife shot and killed Mr. and Mrs. Smith and their son, Oscar Smith, six years old.

Mrs. Baxter, who faced death for five minutes, finally escaped from her half crazed husband and ran through the building to the backyard and found refuge with neighbors.

After the killing Baxter loaded his gun and walked north to the Belt Line railway tracks. The police began a search for him as soon as they were notified.

O. B. LEONARD TELLS OF LOCAL BAPTISTS

Plainfield's Historian Writes Interestingly of a Religious Flock.

Apropos the extensive improvements being made at the First Baptist church, Oliver B. Leonard, church clerk and historian, has prepared some interesting data concerning the history of the church. This is contained in the weekly bulletin of the church, distributed at Sunday's services, which also shows pictures of the early church. Mr. Leonard's sketch follows:

"It was a century ago, lacking five years, when the religious element in the village of Plainfield decided to build a meeting house in town for public worship. The nearest Protestant churches were at Scotch Plains, Samptown (near South Plainfield), Westfield, Rahway and Bound Brook. The Society of Friends had their place of gathering for "Silent Communion" since 1788 on the present site of their house.

"A general meeting of the citizens was called in January, 1818, to consider the feasibility of starting a church. About seventy-five persons were present, mostly of the Baptist persuasion, and by them it was deemed expedient to attempt the movement. Sufficient subscriptions were made and during the spring ground was obtained and a Building Committee appointed.

"Our spiritual forefathers purposed to build a house unto the name of the Lord of the following materials and proportions. Oak trees and hemlock were cut down and brought from the Watchung mountains and timber of the right size was hewn therefrom for the frame of the structure. The whole exterior was covered with shingles of cedar. The foundation stones were brought from the hills also, being quarried out of the sandstone in the valley between the first and second mountains. There was no basement under the building. The length of the house was two-score and eight feet, the width thereof was two-score and two feet, and the height was twenty-two feet from bottom of sill to top of plate. The exterior, sides and front, was painted white, the rear brown and the roof of slate color.

"As to the interior the ceiling was half arched the whole depth of the building. There were fifty-five pews with doors. The seats were made of very hard boards, uncushioned, and so high that only adult occupants could rest their feet on the floor. As for the small boy, few in number, he was unable to see out or touch bottom while imprisoned in the pews.

"There was a gallery on both sides of the church supported by six columns, extending to the ceiling for additional strength to the roof.

"The pulpit was located at the entrance so that the worshippers faced the audience when they came into the house.

"Two large boxstoves were provided and placed in the entrance corners on each side of the front doors. Long smoke pipes extended to the rear where the chimneys were built. Wood four feet in length was used for fuel for heating the room. Anthracite coal had not been discovered. The floor was sanded every week, there being no carpets. When meetings were held after sun-set, the house was lighted with candles. Among the prescribed duties of the sexton was 'sanding the floor, snuffing the tallow-dips and tending to the stove fires.'

"Among other furnishings to the meeting house at the beginning was a mahogany table costing $7, which is still preserved for use in the vestibule of the present church.

"An old bill of November 30, 1818, reveals the cost of the following articles: Two brass candlesticks for the pulpit, with stems, pans and wire for same, $20.00; 10 yards carpet for pulpit platform and steps with stair rods, $11.50; 6 chairs for $6.00; tin candlesticks and brackets attached to pillars, both above and below the galleries, $8.45; 2 pairs candle snuffers, $1.50. The two stoves with smoke pipe, $63.50. Cord wood by the wagon load, candles by the score and white sand by the barrel.

"The Building Committee reported the completion of the house early in the fall of 1818, and called the subscribers together on the 23d day of October to consider the propriety of allowing a certain number of the members of the Baptist church at Samptown, about to be dismissed, to occupy the new meetiag house and constitute a Baptist Society in this place. This was unanimously agreed to.

"On Wednesday, November 25th, 1818, the society was regularly constituted into a Baptist church by solemn and appropriate services.

"The following named persons composed the constituency, all of whom affixed their names to the solemn covenant which was to be their rule of practice toward each other:

"Elder Jacob F. Randolph and wife, Sarah Randolph; Daniel F. Randolph and Rosanna F. Randolph; Benjamin Laing, Sophia Laing; John F. Randolph, Elizabeth Randolph; William Lupardus, Mary Lupardus; Samuel Estil, Elizabeth Estil; John Manning, Jane Manning; Abraham Lane, Margaret F. Randolph, Elizabeth Manning, Rachel Dunham, Mary A. Dare, Mrs. Mary F. Randolph, Jeannette Coriel, Elizabeth F. Randolph, Hetty F. Randolph, James A. Dare, Anna F. Randolph, Mary F. Randolph, Sarah Flatt, Nancy Molleson, Rachel Soper, Mary Stites, Anna Meads, Peter Laing (colored), all from Samptown, and Drake Dunn and wife, Nancy Dunn, from Piscataway.

"At a public meeting of the church and congregation, held in the meeting house, December 14, 1818, the first board of trustees was elected, and at the same time, heartily agreed to confirm the appointment of Elder Randolph as pastor, to take charge of the parish on a yearly salary of $250.

"The original subscribers to the cost of the meeting house composed the greater part of the townspeople of that early day, including a few near-by neighbors. The list is given for information of interested readers and the first pewholders are indicated by a star:

"Additional subscribers after the organization of the church:

"This original old meeting house as enlarged 15 feet in the rear during 1837, and ornamented by a colonnade in front in 1844, is represented on last page of the church calendar. The illustration shows the appearance of the building for the past twenty-five years of its occupancy before it was removed to make room for present building erected in 1869.

"The old church structure, now converted into tenements, is still standing on New street. The oak frame is just as sound as when hewn out of logs by hand, and the cedar shingles are not in the least impaired with age."

TRENTON'S MAYOR HITS AT HIS CRITIC

Trenton, Sept. 16.—The latest move in the "civil war" of the City Commission is Mayor Frederick W. Donnelly's announcement that he will not only not resign, but will continue in office and may even seek re-election in order to refute the charges that have been made against him by Director of Public Safety George B. LaBarre. The latter's accusations were made at the regular Friday afternoon meeting, when he charged the Mayor with making extravagant, misleading and untruthful statements, as well as saying that the executive had made a "despicable attack upon me from behind the skirts of a woman and dastardly timed to come during my absence." Donnelly promises to soon issue a statement in defense of himself and which he says will unmask conditions of which the public knows nothing. Heretofore he has been devoting his entire time to the city's affairs, but he now declares that he will give half of each day to his private business enterprises. The trouble between the commissioners is due to the question of building a nurses' home at the municipal hospital.

JAMES J. HILL NOW IS 75 YEARS YOUNG

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 16.—James J. Hill, the last of the comparatively few men in America who are credited with having earned the title of railroad kings, celebrated his seventy fifth birthday anniversary today. Mr Hill was born in Guelph, Ont., Sept. 16, 1838. A year ago last July he announced his retirement, having completed thirty-three years of active railroading in the Northwest. He had concluded to take a rest, he said, and in a valedictory he reviewed the growth and progress of the Great Northern system and declared the time had arrived to place the command of the road's forces in younger hands.

After announcing his retirement Mr. Hill went on his annual fishing trip to the St. John River. This summer he has again been catching salmon in Canada. But the year that elapsed between these fishing trips was not one of vacation and relaxation. Mr. Hill's activities during the twelve months or more that have passed since his retirement have been varied enough to tax the energies of a man of half his years.

Last summer Mr. Hill bought two banks in St. Paul, merged them, and also acquired control of the Northwestern Trust Co. He is no longer chairman of the board of directors of the Great Northern, it is true, but it may be said that he still keeps in closest touch with every detail of the workings of that system. Not a cent is spent but he knows the reason for the outlay. Not an earnings statement but is scanned and analyzed by the master mind.

Seventy-five years young, Mr. Hill may not be chairman of directors, but he is chairman of the Great Northern system none the less.

MANUFACTURERS IN HALIFAX.

Halifax, N. S., Sept. 16.—Halifax extended a hearty welcome today to the many distinguished visitors assembled here from all parts of the Dominion for the annual convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. The sessions will continue several days and will be devoted to the consideration of a wide variety of questions of importance to the industrial world. C. B. Borden, of Montreal, is slated for election to the presidency. Much interest is manifested in the convention banquet which will be held at the Halifax Hotel, Thursday evening. Hon. Robert L. Borden, the Dominion premier, and Hon. G. H. Murray, premier of Nova Scotia, will be among the speakers.

GEMS AND FARMHANDS GONE.

New Brunswick, Sept. 16—Getting an early breakfast, two men secured from a New York agency by George McCracken, of Middlebush, a farmer, to work on his farm, went to their rooms Sunday to shave. Later on his daughter going to her room to dress for church, discovered that her gold bracelet was gone. Investigating further, it was found that $200 worth of jewelry and money were missing, as well as the farmhands. McCracken does not know their names or whereabouts.

STRANDED SCOUT BACK.

Asbury Park, Sept. 16.—Russell Wolfe, fifteen years old, the Boy Scout who was stranded in London, when he became saparated from Chauncey V. Cooke, former master of the local patrol, arrived at his home here Saturday, money for his passage having been cabled by his father, Charles D. Wolfe. Young Wolfe, on his father's advice, has refused to discuss Mr. Cooke or the incidents that led to their separation. Mr. Cooke and the boy sailed for England last June.

Pickle Day.

Tuesday is a good day for making the winter's supply of pickles. That is to say, if the kitchen is large, it is a good day. For the fire will be lighted for ironing, if that is your ironing day, and the pickles can be cooked while the irons are heated, and bottled by the ironer as a rest from her tedious work.

Of course, the hard part of pickle making is the preparing of the vegetables, and fortunately that is almost always necessarily done the day before the pickles are cooked.

Always put pickles in glass bottles or stone jars. Cook them in a granite saucepan as the vinegar corrodes tin. Use wooden spoons and forks in preparing them.

When they are prepared, fill the bottles three-quarters full of them and then fill the remaining cavity with vinegar.

Green Tomato Sliced Pickle.

This pickle is easily prepared and is delicious. To make it slice a peck of green tomatoes, and put them, in layers with salt, in a stone jar. Let them stand over night. In the morning mix four pounds of granulated sugar, an ounce of ground cinnamon, an ounce of ground cloves, and a quart of vinegar. Put on the stove, bring to a boil and boil for half an hour. Then simmer for about two hours.

Chow chow can be made in this way: Boil a head of cauliflower, a quart of onions and a quart of string beans separately until tender. Cover a quart of little green cucumbers with salt water for twenty-four hours. Then break the cauliflower into small pieces and mix all the vegetables, draining the cucumbers from the brine. Put half a gallon of vinegar in a porcelain lined kettle, cupful of sugar, a gill of salad oil, and two tablespoonsful of mustard. Mix an ounce of tumeric powder and half a pound of English mustard, moisten with a little cold vinegar and add to the hot vinegar. When this thickens add a cupful of sugar, a gill of salad oil and two tablespoonfuls of mustard seed. Pour over the vegetables.

Plain little green cucumbers can be pickled like this: Wash and dry a hundred of them and put them in jars. Cover with a brine strong enough to bear an egg for twenty-four hours. Take from brine, wipe dry, and put in clean jars. Cover with hot vinegar in which an onion, twelve whole cloves, three blades of mace and an ounce of mustard seed have been boiled.

Okra Gumbo. Steamed Rice.
Fried Sliced Fish. Stuffed Potatoes.
Cauliflower Salad.
Chocolate and Vanilla Ice Cream.
Black Coffee.

NOVEL salads may be made with cauliflower mixed with other vegetables. Recipes for salads of this sort are given here:

Mixed Vegetable Salad.—Procure a selection of cooked vegetables, such as cauliflower, peas, beans, young carrots and turnips, new potatoes, beets, etc. Mix lightly with mayonnaise sauce, care being taken not to break the vegetables. Arrange some lettuce leaves in the form of a cup and place the mixed vegetables in the center. Garnish very lightly with a little mustard and cress.

Served With Plain Dressing.

Lettuce and Cauliflower Salad.—Separate one head cauliflower; lay in cold water ten minutes. Drain and pour over it boiling water enough to cover; add one teaspoonful salt and boil until tender in uncovered boiler. When cold place on lettuce and serve with French dressing.

Cauliflower and Mayonnaise Salad.—Cook cauliflower in slightly salted water, drain and chill. Break, arrange on a salad dish and cover with mayonnaise dressing. Garnish with cold boiled carrot cut in small cubes or in fancy shapes with small vegetable cutters.

Mixed With Peppers.

Tomato and Cauliflower Salad.—Boil a cauliflower and set aside to cool. When cool pick apart into small pieces. When shredded place in center of platter lined with lettuce leaves, sliced tomatoes and rings of green pepper. Cover all with mayonnaise dressing.

Piquant Cauliflower Salad.—Boil a fresh, firm head of cauliflower until it is tender. After removing it from the boiling water squeeze the juice of a lemon over it and set it aside to cool. Then break the head into small pieces and place the pieces on crisp lettuce leaves, season with salt and pepper, dot with the chopped green peppers and cover with mayonnaise dressing.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Edna and Her Doll Family Are Photographed.

The Dolls Were Placed Beside Her.

JACK and Evelyn knew by the grin on daddy's face that he had something funny to tell them.

"Most little boys and girls like to have their pictures taken, especially if the pictures make them look nice," said he.

"Florrie and Mimi had theirs taken the other day by the Neighbor Lady. It was a charming picture, and little Edna, who had gone off and hidden behind some bushes, was quite sorry she wasn't in it.

"The next time she saw the Neighbor Lady she told her to be sure to come down some day with her camera.

"'I'm goin' have my pitcher tooken, too,' Edna explained.

"The Neighbor Lady said she was sure to come as soon as she could, and so she did.

"It was a pleasant afternoon when she came down the road with her camera, and the three children were in the yard.

"Edna did not run away and hide, as she generally does when neighbors come in. Of course the Neighbor Lady is not much of a stranger, but one of Edna's favorite games is playing pretend.

"Her sisters had told her that if she ran away she could not get her picture taken, so the little girl sat very quietly on the garden bench with her favorite doll.

"'She looks nice there, doesn't she?' the Neighbor Lady said to the children's mother. 'Suppose we take her picture with her dolly.'

"But Edna had ideas of her own as to how she wanted her picture done.

"'Want picture tooken with other dollies,' Edna insisted.

"Then Florrie and Mimi began bringing out dolls and piling them up around Edna. There was the French doll, the doll with curly eyelashes, the doll with one arm, the doll with half a head, the doll that would float, the rag doll, the wooden doll, the boy doll, the colored Dinah doll and many more.

"They couldn't stand the dollies in a row on the seat with Edna because the row would have been too long to get into the picture, so they stood them up and draped them over the back of the seat.

"The Neighbor Lady tried to coax Edna to have just the best looking dolls taken, but Edna was firm. It should be all or none of them.

"So the Neighbor Lady hurried and snapped the camera, and the picture was taken.

"And when it was finished Edna was quite put out because the dollies on the ends of the row had not got into the picture.

INDEPENDENCE DAY IN WORRIED MEXICO

City of Mexico, Sept. 16.—War-ridden as is this republic there was no appreciable diminution in the crowd that assembled in the Zocalo last night to hear Provisional President Victoriano Huerta cry "Viva Mexico" and ring the liberty bell. The ceremony, known as the "Grito of Hidalgo," ushers in the annual celebration of the Mexican independence day.

It was on September 15, 1810, that the patriot priest, Padre Hidalgo, began the revolution which resulted in the overthrow of the Spanish power in Mexico. During the preceding year the revolutionary spirit was rife throughout the country. Many attempts to perfect an organization that might contend with the Spanish power were made, but they uniformly ended by the execution of all the leaders in the plots.

Hidalgo was one of the leaders of an undiscovered plan and it was intended, as in other cases, to perfect organization before striking the first blow. Word came to Hidalgo that the plot had been discovered and the troops were even then on the way to arrest him.

Then it was, so the story goes, that Hidalgo rang the bell of his little church in the town of Dolores and summoned the band of patriots about him. A mass was said and he announced that the time had come for action. About 300 men, poorly armed and with virtually no equipment of war, responded, and the march on the city of Guanajuato was commenced. As the motly band of insurgents passed the church at Atotonilco Hidalgo took the banner illustrating the appearance of the Holy Virgin at Guadalupe and raised it as the battle flag of the war of independence.

But while Hidalgo and his compatroits were fearless, they were not soldiers nor skilled in the art of war. After achieving wonderful success and with a constantly increasing army he had reached almost in sight of the City of Mexico, when the tide turned. His army was dispersed and he fled northward toward Chihuahua, where he and his chief lieutenants were captured. They were promptly executed and their heads placed on spikes at the four corners of the prison as a warning to other revolutionists. Other leaders arose, and Mexico continued in a state of upheaval and unrest for seventy years, until the soldier and statesman, Porfirio Diaz, was elected to the presidency.

Thus, briefly sketched, was the beginning of Mexican independence, and this is the reason that September 16 is celebrated throughout the Republic of Mexico.

The beginning of the annual celebration last night was marked with all of the customary enthusiasm. In the great square where their forefathers lifted their eyes to the top of the teocalli to see the throbbing heart that the priest cleft from the bosom of a fair prisoner, the peones, jammed a hundred thousand strong, gazed on the clanging bell that Hidalgo used 103 years ago. The poorer classes occupied all the central part of the square. Directly in front of the National Palace, the Municipal Palace and the Cathedral, the three great piles which bound three sides of the Zocalo, chairs were placed for the better classes. The numerous windows and balconies of the edifices mentioned were reserved for invited guests.

From dark the crowd was entertained with fireworks, while half a dozen picked military bands, playing alternately, never allowed the music to cease for more than an instant. Five minutes before the hands on the great clock over the Palace indicated the hour of 11 the bands stopped. There was a hush that only emphasized the burst of applause that greeted Gen. Huerta when he appeared on the brilliantly lighted central balcony of the Palace. As he took hold of the gilded cord that reached up to the historic bell, the crowd again was stilled. With the first clang of the hour the time-honored "grito" was delivered by the executive. Then the massed bands burst into the national hymn, accompanied by a chorus of a thousand voices. For nearly an hour the Provisional President was cheered. In the excitement of the occasion there were many "mueras" for the "Americanos" and many "vivas" for Don Victoriano.

Today the celebration of the national independence day was continued with unabated enthusiasm. The decorations of business houses and residences were on a more elaborate scale than ever before. The grand civic and military parade this afternoon numbered thousands of marchers. It was several hours in passing the stand, whence it was reviewed by Gen. Huerta, the officers of the cabinet, members of the senate and chamber of deputies, high officers of the army, and many prominent citizens.

PLAIDS WITH PLAIN MATERIAL A FAVORED FASHION

Soft silk and wool materials such as eolienne and crinkled crepes lend themselves to admirable afternoon dresses that are beginning to have some fullness in the blouses. A new model (7911-7961) has been sketched to suggest a way for the home sewer to make a dress that will combine style and utility. The skirt is cut in three pieces and easily draped in the front, where two buttons hold the fullness. The pointed trimming pieces take the place of a belt at the slightly raised waist line. Five and one-half yards of 42 inch material will make the entire dress. The patterns may be had in five sizes. Fifteen cents each.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

An Attractive Collar and Cuff Set in the Popular Bulgarian Design.

A collar and cuff set, embroidered in the bright Bulgarian colors, adds a lively note to an otherwise plain and sombre dress. One is always glad to have a large variety of these pretty collars on hand as nothing improves the appearance of a dress so much as fresh, dainty collars and cuffs.

This collar is one of the latest shapes, being very narrow in back and long on the shoulders, giving the long drooping effect which accentuates the slender, youthful appearance that is so much desired.

The design is not only popular, being Bulgarian in origin, but is very quickly and easily embroidered and is very effective for the amount of work required. The collar is suitable for wear with dresses or coats, the motifs may be used as muffs, on sash-ends or to catch up the drapery of a dress.

Cerise, purple, vermillion, orange bright green and black make the popular Bulgarian colors from which may be chosen three or four colors for embroidering the collar and cuff set shown above. For instance, the edge of the collar may be buttonholed in purple, the figures developed in solid work, in green and purple with a touch of orange here and there then outlined in black.

This collar comes in medium size only, but the neck may be made larger by cutting inside the line or smaller by cutting outside. Three-eights of an inch should be allowed for a seam when cutting out the neck. A strip of bias material should be sewed to this to form a band and also to keep it in shape. A straight strip may be used if preferred but the bias conforms to the curves of the neck and therefore, makes the collar lie smoother.

Pattern number 14640 will be supplied to readers for ten cents.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 7.

THE other night, just before retiring, I started to read a little 2 x 5-inch paper-bound pamphlet, written by a young friend of mine who is the advertising and sales manager of a metal shingle and siding manufacturing concern up in the province of Ontario, Canada. It's title was "Your Questions Answered."

Now, ordinarly, to man who knows as little about shingles and sidings as I do, a treatise on the subject is a good thing to read just before bedtime in order to insure going to sleep. But this wasn't that kind of a treatise.

It was one of the best little pieces of advertising matter it has ever been my good fortune to come across. It went at the matter of advertising shingles from the viewpoint of the possible buyer of shingles. Every question that an intending purchaser of the article advertised could possibly ask a salesman or representative of the company face to face was asked in that pamphlet, which was very attractively printed, and each question was answered in a frank, chatty, straight-from-the-shoulder way that simply compelled belief in the statements made and inspired confidence in the advertiser.

It was aimed at the Canadian man-on-the-farm. Had I been a farmer, with a house or barn that needed shingles or siding, that little question-and-answer advertisement would have made me sit right down and write to that firm—or to its nearest agent, as was suggested in the pamphlet. There was no bombast and there were no extravagant claims in that piece of advertising matter. It was all selling talk — very simply written, quite inexpensively dressed—but every word of it the kind of here's-what-we've-got-and-here's-why-you-should-buy copy that sells what it advertises.

And the fellow who wrote that piece of advertising is only 22 years old. Would that every merchant who spends money in the use of printer's ink could spend it as wisely! Would that I could put into the hands of every prospective advertiser a copy of that pamphlet so that he might profit by its example. For it proved a theory I have long entertained—that good advertising isn't noise or buncombe or cleverness, but just common sense, aided and abetted and backed up by common honesty.

Sea Girt, N. J., Sept. 16.—Captain W. H. Richard of Ohio broke the world's record for consecutive bullseyes on the 500 yard range with sixteen inch targets by scoring 23 without a miss. Captain Richard was shooting in the Meany match at the international and interstate tournament. After he made a perfect score of 10 he kept shooting according to the rules of the match.

Corporal R. B. Moore, marine corps, was second, with 17 bullseyes. Sergeant C. B. Long, Massachusetts, had a similar score, but his sighting shot put him in third place.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

WILL REPLAY GAME.

Cincinnati, Sept. 16.—Making a precedent, the board of directors of the National League last night ordered the game that was played between the New York and Philadelphia National League clubs on August 30 to be finished on October 2, with the same men in the field and the same status existing that existed on the day Umpire Brennan awarded the game to New York on account of the spectators allegedly interfering with the batters.

WORLD'S TOUR OPENS IN CIN.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 16.—Charles Comiskey, president of the Chicago American League Club, announced last night that the first game of the tour of the world which the New York National and the Chicago American teams will make this year will be played in this city on October 18. From this city the two clubs will proceed westward by easy stages to the Pacific Coast.

HO POP! HO POP! GOLF.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—A tournament unique in golf will be played on Wednesday, when grandfathers of the Homewood Country Club will vie for honors. The event was once postponed through the influence of prospective grandfathers. Unless visits of the stork make other members eligible, thirty-four players will enter. Each has been invited to bring a guest, who also must be a grandfather. Each contestant will be allowed half a stroke for each grandchild and a full stroke for each grandchild produced at the tee. A bronze statue of a child teeing a ball, designed by the daughter of a member of the club who is a grandfather, will be awarded the winner.

BRITISH CRICKETERS BEATEN.

Philadelphia, Sept. 16.—The all-Philadelphia eleven yesterday won the cricket match from the Incognito Club of London by three wickets. The Englishmen scored 140 runs in their first innings and 199 in their second, a total of 339. The Philadelphians having made 293 in their first time at bat needed 137 in their second innings to win, and they took the match, making 139 runs for the loss of seven wickets.

GOLFERS READY TO TEE UP.

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 16.—After being the scene of two weeks of hard practice, culminating in almost continuous play yesterday, the course of the Country Club was swept and dusted and its eighteen holes replaced for the twenty-fourth open golf championship of the United States, which starts today.

SPORT WRITER DIES.

Philadelphia, Sept. 16.—Frank L. Hough, sporting editor of the Philadelphia Inquirer, died at his home here yesterday after a long illness. He was fifty-five years old. Mr. Hough, as sporting writer, was known from coast to coast. At various times he had a financial interest in both boxing and baseball.

LYNCH FINES FIGHTERS.

Cincinnati, Sept. 16.—President Lynch announced yesterday that he had fined both Manager Tinker of the Cincinnati club and Shortstop Maranville of the Boston club $50, and First Baseman Myers, also of the Boston team, $100 for fighting on the field during the first game of the double-header here last Saturday. Tinker was also suspended three days for using abusive language to Umpire O'Day.

"MAC" SAYS

A Dunellenite informs us that Bob Fitzsinimons hasn't a gray hair on his head. He neglects to mention that Mr. Fitzsimmons, who has made Dunellen famous, hasn't a brown hair, or a blue hair, or a green hair or a mauve hair, or a hair of any race, color, creed or previous condition or servitude. Aside from that he resembles Paderewski.

Jimmy Clinton is on the market. The big hurler is charged with being a regular ball player, and that is an unpardonable crime in Somerville.

It's almost a crime to sick Clinton on a Central New Jersey League outfit, and the heaver himself ought to be ashamed to mix with such company.

It's bad enough to be beaten, but when you swallow a dose like the one administered Saturday, it's time to throw up the sponge.

Pete Simmons announces that he is still in the game of baseball, but it's hard to believe this statement after watching his charges at Scotch Plains, Sunday.

If you had your choice between holding a government job in Mexico and managing a Central League club, what would you do? That's just what we thought.

As a result of the Jerome case, Ernie Dorflinger has announced that he will not take an all-star team composed of Plainfield and Somerville players on a tour of Canada after the present season drops its curtain.

In the fall
Of all sad words a fan can hear
The worst are: "Watch our smoke next year."

A chunk of bone weighing 500 pounds has been unearthed in the wilds of Maine. This proves that prehistoric man played baseball.

Although "Hub" Stine, the former Sunday school leaguer, fanned the first time he faced Clinton, as did most of the other Pets, he forced the veteran to pitch eight balls to him. If every man had done as much, the result might have been different.

In the second inning, Bill Dalton, a former Pet, pounded out a two-bagger when he faced his old pals, but was forced to wait at third while three batters died.

"Big Six" Nelson is considered to be a pretty lengthy person, but when George Wiltse stood up against the New Market representative Saturday he towered nearly a head above him. Some pole.

Clinton's change of pace was a great asset to the Somervillians. His two-speed delivery with the reverse clutch had the Plainfielders guessing all the time.

Tommy Mullin and Matty Coughlin, two white ball artists, appeared in Royal Giant uniforms Sunday afternoon. What is baseball coming to at Scotch Plains on Sundays?

Playing left field for the Royals Sunday afternoon, Matty Coughlin was the center of attraction. He made some beautiful catches in the left garden and his throws to home were of the sensational variety.

It is rumored that Coughlin will get a tryout with the Plains nine next week.

It has worked out just as we have avered it should on several different occasions. Plainfield and Somerville, as baseball aspirants for a title, are tied up again.

Wonder if Ernie Dorflinger will sign "Slim" McConnell to tame Jimmy Clinton.

The box at Somerville bothered "Germany" George Ortlieb to some extent Saturday, but if the big Westfielder had been any kind of a gardener he would have ploughed up a new one without being detected by Umpire O'Rourke. The latter took exception and censured Orty for digging furrows in the infield.

Louis Stocum, the no-hit, no-run performer, will appear in a new role next Sunday. He will be called upon to tame a set of feminine artists at the Plains.

MARTIN DRAFTED BY BOSTON NATIONALS

Local Shortstop Returns to the Big Show via the "Picking" Route.

Among the 108 minor league players elevated to the major leagues via the draft route yesterday in Cincinnati, was Jack Martin, of this city.

Jack Martin.

who is at present playing with the Rochester International League outfit. The Plainfield shortstop was drafted by the Boston Nationals and was among the 67 players secured by the American League against the National organization's pick of 41.

Since he was a member of the Plainfield baseball club, Jack Martin has had a varied career in minor and major league baseball circles. Given a tryout by the New York American League club he was shipped to Richmond, Va., for further seasoning and later brought back for another trial. He was then sent to Rochester and came back to the Yankees at the beginning of the present season, when he took the training trip and warmed the bench for over a month under the management of Frank Chance.

It was the opinion of many that Martin did not get a "square" deal with the Yankee club this season, as he was given little or no opportunity, either during or after the training trip, to show his ability before being farmed out to the International League nine. Since returning to Rochester Martin has been putting up a consistent fielding and batting game and is one of the regulars on whom the Rochester club is relying to wrest the pennant from the Newark club.

HOPE CHAPEL BASKETEERS WILL ANSWER FIRST CALL FOR INDOOR DRILL TONIGHT

Once more assuming the position of leader-off in the basketball seasosn's batting order, the Hope Chapel Club's athletes have issued a call for the first indoor drill, which will be held tonight on the Chapel court. Present prospects look particularly bright for a quintet of basket-cagers that will even surpass the stellar crew of last season and the wealth of new material will swell the nucleus of veterans so that it will be a difficult task for the leader, who will be selected tonight, to pick a representative aggregation to play under the club's colors. Although taking a step in advance of the football season, this sport is not fostered in Hope Chapel circles, and the churchboys are ready to take up the popular indoor pastime at once, thereby getting the jump on rival quintets in this city. While a little earlier than last season the Chapelites' start will no doubt prove of value to them when the season actually opens.

Hope Chapel was one of the leaders-off last year but obtained a rather disastrous start and reorganized soon after the opening bell was sounded. After reorganization the quintet took on the aspect of an entirely different five and suffered but two defeats during the entire "second" season, both of these reverses being registered by the Y. M. C. A. Ajax in wresting the trophy from the Chapel contingent. All of last year's men are back in the fold ready to send off another session of basketball during the next five months and Captain Tommy Heron, who led the team through last year's successful schedule, will lead the team tonight. Following the first practise a captain and manager will be selected and work of booking contests will be started at once.

Of last year's sterling squad the Heron brothers, the Snyder brothers, Jim Doig, George Leighs and David Wardrop are fighting for their old berths and among the new performers are Howard Firstbrook, Nans Luthman, Arthur Thorn, Arthur Grisley and several members of the boys' club five of last year. Jack Martin, at the close of the International League season, will probably act as coach, and Frank Rimmer will once more do the officiating. While nothing has been done as yet toward starting work on the proposed new gymnasium, the Chapelites may be able to stage their games in the new building during part of the season at least, if the work of construction is started at once.

BOWLING QUINTET MAY BE FORMED AT HOPE CHAPEL

Providing the new bowling alleys, to be built in connection with the proposed remodeling of the Hope Chapel gymnasium, are installed before the bowling season gets too far under way, the Hope Chapel athletes will introduce a new branch of sports into their already large and season-wide routine. During the past year several notable pinners have made their appearance in the churchboy's ranks and while practicing on the old Hope Chapel alleys and on other local alleys have hung up some creditable marks.

Among those at Hope Chapel are Nans Luthman and Arthur Thorn, two pinners who became known in local circles last year through some notable pin smashing on the Saengerbund Hall alleys, while bowling in competition as members of the German five. A number of other athletes have displayed rare ability along this particular line and a fast aggregation could easily be formed out of those who specialize in this popular branch of indoor and winter athletics.

DIAMOND-STUDDED CUPS FOR FIRST BAPTIST INDIVIDUAL HONOR WINNERS.

As rewards for superior work in batting and fielding, respectively, Herbert Stine and Carlton Smith were recipients of silver loving cups during the Sunday-school session in the First Baptist church, Sunday morning, the donor, Arthur M. Harris, making the presentation to the athletes who did such good work in bringing the Sunday-school League title to the First Baptist team during the season just closed. The trophies were sterling silver, studded with rare diamonds (a baseball field engraved on the outer surface), and in making the awards Mr. Harris praised the winners for their sterling performances on the playing field.

Stine led the batting with a mark of .390 for the season and Smith was the best fielder, having a percentage of .978. Stine was second in the individual fielding averages and Smith was the runner-up in the batting records. Stine has since been signed by the Plainfield baseball club and wore a Pet uniform for the first time last Saturday afternoon.

Miss Barbara Fleming, of this city, and Miss Eugenie Steiner won their places in the fourth round of the lawn tennis cup singles yesterday in the annual tournament on the courts of the Montclair Athletic Club at Montclair, N. J. There was a sprightliness about the action of Miss Fleming, who hails from the Plainfield Country Club, that was most captivating to the large gallery that sat about the courts at the opening of the meeting, which has become one of the important features of the autumn season on the courts.

Beginning in the second round Miss Fleming defeated Miss Dora Goodbody, a niece of the famous English player, at 6-0, 6-3. Then to get into the round before the semi-finals the local girl overcame the plucky Miss Polly Sheldon after three slashing sets at 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

In her matches Miss Steiner revealed both steadiness and speed, which easily carried her past her opponents. Miss Lois Sharer was the first opponent of Miss Steiner, and she was beaten off setless after some lively sessions at fast driving at 6-1, 6-4. Miss Steiner met Miss Hutchinson in her second contest. The latter failed to guage the length of the court and her propensity to overdrive the base line soon terminated the first set at love. Miss Hutchinson settled into her game in the second set. Miss Steiner, however, outplaced her in the rallies and won at 6-0, 6-2.

Mrs. Marshall McLean, who recently regained her holding of the New Jersey State title, won two matches. Miss Edith Condit went down to defeat in the first match against Mrs. McLean at 6-1, 6-0. Mrs. McLean in the next match defeated Miss Hazel Sawyer by the score of 6-0, 6-2.

For spectacular effects none of the original field of forty-seven competitors surpassed Miss Alberta Weber, who pranced and pirouetted through two splendidly played matches. She defeated Mrs. Bishop at 6-1, 6-1, and Mrs. David C. Mills at 6-0, 6-2.

Miss Beryl Sawyer scored two victories. She began by defeating Miss Bessie Wright at 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, and finished with Miss Marjorie Pierson, one of the local stars, at 2-6 6-3, 6-1.

TWENTY CANDIDATES FOR LOCAL ELEVEN

Next Holy Cross Practise Will Be Held Friday Night at Hyde Oval.

Turning out for the first football drill of the season under the direction of the new coach, P. V. Martin, formerly of the Penn State and Swarthmore College elevens, twenty aspirants to jobs on the Holy Cross football eleven appeared on Hyde Oval last night and were drilled in the rudiments of the game under arc lights. For the most part the initial crew was made up of veterans of the 1912 championship team, and the influx of new players and the surplus who intend to make their appearance at the next practice, will make the vets hustle to maintain their positions.

While the going was light last night and the weather favorable to gridiron practice, Coach Martin started off by handing out a few preliminary pointers, giving the players something to think about until the next practice which will be held Friday night at 8 o'clock.

GOLD WATCH FOR LUYSTER.
"Flick" Luyster, the Elizabeth ball player who is well known in this city, where he has appeared on several occasions, has been presented with a handsome gold watch by the Lawrence New England League Club management, having been declared the most valuable player to the team during the championship race just closed. Luyster captained the Lawrence team, being a leading hitter and faultless guardian of right field.

BRUGGY WILL LEAD "PROS."
Frank Bruggy, the former Bound Brook baseball club's catcher, has been elected captain of a professional basketball team which will represent Elizabeth on the courts during the coming season. Bruggy is a clever court performer and he is signing up a fast quintet of stars to play the point trophy for the New York club. and winter.

WENZ WINS FOR N. Y. A. C.
Ezra Wenz, the interscholastic record-holder who hails from Roselle, scored a decisive victory from scratch in the two-mile handicap feature run, competing under the colors of the New York Athletic Club, in the Tottenville A. C. games, Saturday. Wenz's points in this event won the proint trophy for the New York club.

UNION COUNTY WARRIOR.
DeLozier Davidson, a former Battin High School star, is a prominent candidate for an end position on the Lehigh University football team this season. Davidson was easily one of the cleverest and brainiest gridiron warriors that ever played the game at Battin and he left the Elizabeth school with a well established "rep."

UNION W. C. T. U. HAS 'RESOLVES'

Lauds Bryan, Endorses Votes for Women and Condemns Immodest Gowns.

AT ANNUAL SESSION

Despite Her Protest, Mrs. Tomlinson is Re-elected President—Mrs. E. F. Feickert Makes a Stirring Address.

Elizabeth, Sept. 17.—Praise for Secretary of State William J. Bryan for substituting grape juice for wine at official dinners, resolutions endorsing woman suffrage, condemning the immodest dress of American women, together with a stirring address by Mrs. Edward F. Feickert, of this city, on "Woman Suffrage," and the election of officers, comprised the principal features of the twenty-ninth annual convention of the Union couty W. C. T. U., held here, yesterday.

The union went on record as urging the American designers to design styles for the American women that will be becoming and modest, condemning strongly the present immodest styles which are being worn. The convention closed last night with an address by Mrs. Feickert, on the subject of "New Jersey's Need of Woman Suffrage."

Mrs. M. D. Tomlinson, who has been county president for many years, urged that she be allowed to retire owing to increasing duties, but the union refused and beside re-electing her to the office, also elected Mrs. Edith Currie, of Cranford, as associate president, for the purpose of giving Mrs. Tomlinson any assistance needed. The other officers are as follows:

Honorary vice-president, Mrs. Scriven Stoddard, of Elizabeth; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Morris L. Harick, of Dunellen; recording secretary, Mrs. T. C. Bodine, of Plainfield; treasurer, Mrs. M. F. Cox, of Cranford. Mrs. Elizabeth A. Parse, of this city, was re-elected superintendent of the department for railroad men and firemen; Mrs. Mary Winter, of this city, was again chosen superintendent of the Sunday-school and Sabbath Observance Department and Mrs. M. C. Dobbins was re-elected superintendent of the work for soldiers and sailors. All of the departmental reports were encouraging showing that considerable progress was made during the past year.

MISS MARGARET BOURKE IS NOW MRS. O'DONNELL

The marriage of Miss Margaret M. Bourke, of Raritan, and Raymond F. O'Donnell, of Somerville, took place in the Church of the Immaculate Conception with a nuptial high mass this morning at 10 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father J. J. Zimmer, of Raritan, pastor of the bride. The mass was sung by the choir of St. Bernard's church. LEAVES FOR CHINA TO STUDY LANGUAGE

Lawrence M. Mead, Theological Student, to Prepare for Missionary Work.

Lawrence Myers Mead, son of Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, of East Front street, who has been a student at the Union Theological Seminary during the past year, has been granted a three years' leave of absence to become one of a party of association workers who will leave on Monday for China. The party goes to China under the auspices of the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association, of which William D. Murray, of this city, is a member.

The workers will make the trip to Seattle, from which place they will leave on September 29 for China. Mr. Mead will spend one year at the University of Nanking, where he will devote his attention to studying the Chinese language. He will be out two or three years before returning to this country to complete his studies.

The changed attitude among the Government and educated classes toward Christianity since the Republic was formed has given the missionary forces an opportunity unprecedented in the world's history. In this field of Christian activity the association holds a peculiarly favorable position. The cities all over China are calling upon the association to supply them with secretaries. It is to prepare himself to fill such a position in one of these strategic centres that Mr. Mead is going to China.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Steengrafe, who have resided in South Plainfield for the past seventeen years, are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary at their home today, over seventy relatives and friends of the couple from New York and New Jersey being present. The couple were married in New York, September 17, 1863, and before her marriage Mrs. Steengraft was Miss Johanna Wehnann, of New York city. The pair came to South Plainfield in 1895, where Mr. Steengraft owns one of the largest farms in this vicinity, comprising 140 acres.

Until two years ago Mr. Steengrafe was engaged in the shipbuilding business but retired from that activity in 1911 and since then has devoted much of his time to his farm in South Plainfield. He is seventy years of age and his wife is seventy-six.

The couple entertained at an elaborate anniversary dinner in their home at noon today, all of their six children being present, together with numerous relatives and friends. The home was decorated profusely with goldenrod. Mr. and Mrs. Steengrafe were the recipients of many remembrances.

Among the communications and congratulations received by the couple was a cablegram from relatives in Germany from whence both came over sixty years ago.

HUERTA'S BIG BLUFF INTERESTS WASHINGTON

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, Sept. 17.—Congress may take notice of one expression in Huerta's message to the Mexican Congress last night. Huerta intimated that the course of the Wilson administration is not approved by the American people, seeking thereby to lead his followers to believe that President Wilson makes a personal attack upon Huerta.

It was only with difficulty that the American Congress was restrained ten days ago from passing a resolution supporting the President's Mexican policy and it is expected that this effort will be renewed and carried out. This government will be guided by the necessity of the case and not influenced by Mexican protests in the matter of retaining warships in Mexican waters.

LINEN SHOWER FOR MISS HELEN WOOLEY

Miss Helen Woolley, of Central avenue, was tendered a linen shower at the home of Miss Florence Dixey in Westfield, last night, in honor of her approaching marriage to Raymond Fitz-Maurice Ingram, of Elizabeth. The affair was attended by many of Miss Woolley's former classmates in the Plainfield High School, she having been valedictorian of the class of 1912.

Miss Dixey's home was elaborately decorated for the occasion and the guest of honor received many presents. Those present were the Misses Neva Waldorf, Helen Platt, Millwood Lutz, Ruth Douglas, Helen Crane, Jessie Stewart and Maragaret Vandeventer.

MOTORCYCLIST FINED.

Jacob Van Pelts, of Lyons, had such little regard for the authorities of North Plainfield that when he was arrested last August for speeding his motorcycle along Somerset street and was released on his own recognizance to appear in court the next day, he failed to show up. Last night he was arrested on a warrant in his home town and brought to the borough jail. When arraigned before Recorder Gano this morning he was fined $8 and costs, which amounted to an additional $2. He paid the ten "bones," and after receiving a lecture on "the respect that should be shown a court of law," was released.

DEMOCRATS ORGANIZE THE JEFFERSON CLUB

Some Union County Politicians Speak at Meeting—Campaign Work Started.

Many Democrats politically prominent throughout Union county attended the organization meeting last night of the Jefferson Democratic Club at its headquarters, 934 West Third street. Approximately 150 persons were present last night and over one-half of this number enrolled as members.

Among those who spoke were Mayor Percy H. Stewart, of this city; General Dennis Collins, of Elizabeth; Assemblyman Hugh F. McLoughlin and William Leonard, both of Elizabeth; Otto Linke, of this city; Francis V. Dobbins, of Ranway, candidate for the Assembly nomination; Vincent Manahan, of Dunellen; David L. Coleman and R. A. Claybrook, candidates for Councilman-at-large; J. H. Coyle, councilmanic candidate from the Fourth ward, and John P. Owens, who is seeking the city judge nomination on the Democratic ticket.

Preceding the speech-making, these officers were elected: President, Edward Strappe; vice-president, John Hawkyard; secretary, Harvey Van Pelt; treasurer, Caeser Grobes, and sergeant-at-arms, J. Greenberg. Councilman Patrick J. Reville, presided, during the election.

Daniel J. Courain, who took a prominent part in promoting the organization of the new club, opened the meeting with a short address, telling the voters the purpose of the meeting and impressing upon them the necessity of banding together in an organization to secure a victory at the coming elections.

Mayor Stewart made an earnest plea for Acting Governor Fielder, who is seeking the nomination for the State executive office. He said that Fielder is following in the footsteps of President Woodrow Wilson, and if the great principles of the President were to be carried out the present Acting Governor should be the man for the office. Stewart said without Fielder as the standard bearer of the party, in this State, the Democrats would be staring defeat in the face.

Francis V. Dobbins, of Rahway, who is seeking an Assembly nomination, referring to the matter of appointments said, "Elizabeth is trying to 'hog' it," and stated that steps should be taken to break up this practice because it was detrimental to the party. Assemblymen McLoughlin and Leonard, who are running for renomination, in short addresses, said they stood on their records and asserted they did not want the vote of one man who does not think that they made good at Trenton. Otto Linke, of this city, another seeking an Assemblymanic nomination, and General Dennis Collins, member of the State Democratic Committee, also spoke.

The evening's session ended with the serving of refreshments.

PRESENT COUNTY COMMITTEE MEETS FOR LAST TIME

The last meeting of the present Union County Republican Committee was held Monday night in Republican headquarters, at Elizabeth. Although the majority of the present members of the committee will retain their office, some of the incumbents have decided not to seek the county position any longer.

One man who will retire is Hamilton F. Kean, brother of former United States Senator John Kean, who has served on the committee for the past twenty-nine years, being elected in 1884.

Mr. Kean retired voluntarily, as he felt that he has done his duty and he is of the opinion that another man from Union should be on the county committee.

Routine business was transacted and all the affairs of the present committee were adjusted so as to prepare the way for the new committee, which will assume office on September 30.

SEARCHES HERE FOR LOST AUNT

Mrs. Sarah O'Brien Sought by Her Niece, Miss Florence Murphy, of Minnesota.

EFFORT PROVES FUTILE

Visitor Appeals to Daily Press for Assistance in Locating Missing Woman—Plans to Return to the West Tomorrow Night.

Coming here from St. Paul, Minn., Miss Florence Murphy has instituted a search for her aunt, Mrs. Sarah O'Brien, well known in this city and North Plainfield during the past thirty years, who mysteriously disappeared on the eve of her niece's advent. Miss Murphy has made inquiries among friends of the missing woman but her efforts have proven futile and unless she is able to find some trace of her relative before tomorrow night she will return to her home in the West. Mrs. O'Brien had been employed as a housekeeper in local homes and always had her mail addressed to 43 Manning avenue, the rectory of St. Joseph's church.

At the rectory it was said that Mrs. O'Brien called frequently and always waited with anticipation for the arrival of a communication from her relatives in the Western town, but for several weeks she has not made her appearance, and contrary to her usual custom has not communicated with Father William H. Miller. She is about seventy-five years of age.

Her sister, Miss Murphy's mother, sent the latter to Plainfield for the purpose of bringing Mrs. O'Brien to St. Paul to make her future home. Coming here as a stranger, Miss Murphy formed acquaintances who have assisted her in her efforts to locate the missing woman. Any information concerning Mrs. O'Brien's whereabouts will be welcomed by her. Ten years have elapsed since Miss Murphy has seen her aunt and should she meet her on the street it is doubtful if she would recognize her, she says, so faint is her recollection of the local woman's appearance.

Miss Murphy came to Plainfield direct from St. Paul, arriving here last Saturday night, and has been constantly making inquiries since her arrival. She wears an Elks' emblem, the property of her brother, who is an active member of the St. Paul Lodge.

Miss Murphy appealed to the Daily Press today to aid her in locating Mrs. O'Brien.

MISS KATHERINE E. M'EVOY BRIDE OF ALBERT M. J. HOOD

Miss Mary Mullen, of New York, was the bridesmaid, and Joseph McAuley, of Brooklyn, was the best man. After a wedding trip the couple will live in Brooklyn, where the bridegroom is engaged in business.

AUTOIST EXONERATED.

Gustav Holman, of Irvington, who figured in an accident at West Front and Somerset streets on Sunday afternoon, when Herman Eskason, a newsboy living at 21 Somerset street, ran into his automobile, was arraigned before City Judge De Meza this morning, on a charge of reckless driving and the complaint was dismissed. Holman was driving slowly, according to witnesses, and the street was conjested with traffic. Several witnesses testified that Eskason was totally to blame and that he ran directly in the path of the passing car.

The Scotch Plains Parish House is being put in condition for the opening of that popular recreation centre for the fall and winter terms. The initial opening will probably be observed by an entertainment and the social committee connected with the institution is making arrangements toward this end. REFORM SCHOOL DIRECTOR KIGHT WAS NOT INDICTED

Flemington, Sept. 17.—The Hunterdon County Grand Jury, which heard the case of Henry O. Kight, director of the Fairview Reform School, did not indict him. He was accused of cruelty to his charges.

Kight gave up a job at the Camden Y. M. C. A. five years ago to establish the school and collected $3 a week for each boy sent to him by county probation officers and others until a recent investigation caused the removal of all the boys.

Harry Sparks, the eleven-years-old Camden boy whose experiences at the school precipitated the investigation, was brough before the grand jury recently, slim, sick and in bandages, to give an account of beatings he says he received at the hands of Kight.

The store whose ads present the widest variety of opportunity news is "elected," always. NO REASON FOR IT.

When Plainfield Citizens Show a Way

There can be no reason why any reader of this who suffers the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the pains and dangers of kidney ills will fail to heed the words of a neighbor who has found relief. Read what a Plainfield citizen says:

Mrs. E. Dorflinger, 900 Clinton avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "The first symptom of kidney trouble in my case was a dull, heavy pain in my back and head. This was followed by a tired, languid feeling and I knew that my kidneys were gradually giving out. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and getting a box at Randolph's drug store, I began using them. Before long I improved and I continued until I was cured. I hold just as high an opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills now as when I gave my former testimonial. The cure they made has been permanent."

NEW PROVIDENCE POLITICS DISCLOSES SCANT RIVALRY

New Providence, Sept. 17.—Political activities in both the borough and township are listless. In the borough where there are two councilmen to be elected, only one party, the Republican, has candidates. The Democrats have not nominated a candidate even for county committeeman.

The two candidates for councilman are Harry Wilborne and Councilman Lyman B. Coddington. Councilman William M. Myers declined to seek re-election, but consented to run for Republican county committeeman.

In the township a committeeman is to be elected. Louis A. Burgmiller is seeking a nomination for re-election on the Democratic ticket. He is the only candidate.

The only partizan test is over the freeholdership. Bradford Jones, of the borough, is seeking a renomination on the Democratic ticket, and Percy G. Honeyman, chairman of the township committee, is on the Republican ticket.

STYLISH—RELIABLE

was written by a friend of the Rothberg Store. The writer is not an "ad man"—but a local carpenter, and one of the best in town.

Will YOU write an advertisement for Rothberg's?

In line with the straight talk idea

Ralph Waldo Emerson said of Goethe: "Talent alone cannot make a writer. There must be a man behind the book."

This is also true of a business. The ability to buy and sell; without the underlying principle of the square deal; the mutual profit idea, will not put a business on a solid foundation. There must be a man behind the business.

In the Rothberg Store you will find men with the ability to buy, sell and give real service to the purchaser—and you will always feel that there is a MAN BEHIND THE business.

"BIG TIM'S" ESTATE IS FIXED AT $2,000,000

Larry Mulligan and Nearest Kin Made Beneficiaries.

New York, Sept. 17.—Bequeathing his entire estate, said by his lawyer, Henry G. Goldsmith, to be close to $2,000,000, the will of the late Timothy D. Sullivan, whose body was found in the morgue on Saturday, where it lay since Aug. 31, was made public by Ellison & Ellison, lawyers, of 165 Broadway.

Since the making of the will by Mr. Sullivan two of those mentioned in it Helen Sullivan, his wife, and Mary Ann Summers, his sister, have died.

The entire estate now goes in equal shares to his brother, Patrick H. Sullivan; Lawrence Mulligan, his half brother; Mrs. Margaret Hickey, his half sister, and the daughters of his deceased sister, Mrs. Summers.

The four persons named in the will, which was made Oct. 6, 1907, were Mr. Sullivan's nearest relatives. His wife, whose protection he was assured of by her dower rights in his estate, died last autumn.

No mention is made in the will of the adopted child of the dead representative's wife, who announced after a committee had been appointed to look after Mr. Sullivan's affairs that she would sue for her share of the estate.

The witnesses to the will were "Little Tim" Sullivan, since dead, and Henry G. Goldsmith.

MAY FREE THAW; JEROME BEATEN

Fugitive Scores Big Victory In Federal Court.

ISSUE OF SANITY RAISED.

Judge Aldrich's Decision In Habeas Corpus Proceeding Indicates Case May Go to United States Supreme Court. Prisoner Jubilant, Jerome Angry.

Littleton, N. H., Sept. 17.—By a remarkable turn of the wheel of fortune Harry K. Thaw is nearer freedom than he has ever been since the day he was placed in the Tombs for killing Stanford White. William Travers Jerome, deputy attorney general of New York, is in a position where Jerome will have to prove that Thaw is sane before he can get him extradited from the state of New Hampshire. This situation resulted from an order by Judge Aldrich, in the United States district court, taken upon Thaw's habeas corpus proceeding, whereby he sought freedom from the clutches of the New Hampshire officials.

No day was set for the resumption of the hearing, Judge Aldrich saying that the delay would be "about a week." In the meantime Thaw will be under the guardianship of United States Marshal Nute and Sheriff Drew of Colebrook. A day for reopening the case will be selected by agreement between Thaw's counsel and the attorneys for New York state.

The court granted the postponement at the request of Thaw's counsel and against the protest of William Travers Jerome, who declared that the only purpose of the writ was to keep Thaw out of the hands of the New York state authorities in the event that Governor Felker orders the fugitive sent out of the state.

Judge Aldrich took the case seriously. He intimated that the question of Thaw's sanity and the right and wrong of his detention in Matteawan might properly be raised in the United States district court.

Jerome Gets Postponement.

Jerome got into telephonic communication with Governor Felker and persuaded the governor to put off the hearing on the Thaw extradition warrant until next Tuesday. The hearing was to have been held today. It began to look as though there was anything but harmony between the state administration and the federal court.

While the court was giving the decision on the habeas corpus postponement, Thaw looked across the counsel table and smiled broadly at Jerome, who clearly was nettled at the turn the affair had taken and also by remarks made by Judge Aldrich when Jerome raised his contention that the habeas corpus writ was not sued out in good faith.

After Jerome had offered the affidavit of a New York newspaper man to show that Moses Grossman of Thaw's counsel had given the impression that the federal writ was desired only as a measure of delay, Judge Aldrich asked:

"Do you intend to raise this question formally? Unless you have a good case the question of good faith would better not be raised."

Will Pass on Sanity.

Jerome then said he was willing to accept the statement of George F. Morris, one of the Thaw lawyers, that the writ was sought in good faith. Mr. Morris said that he and his colleagues carried the Thaw case to the federal court in order that every phase of the long contest might be properly reviewed, which, he said, had been impossible in state courts. The hearing on the writ, he said, would give opportunity to have a United States court pass finally on the question whether Thaw was rightly or wrongly confined in Matteawan.

The week's delay, said Morris, was asked because the argument would consume more than a day and Governor Felker had set today for the extradition hearing. Morris said also that the Thaw lawyers had been unable to get a copy of the New York requisition served on the governor.

JUDGE THAYER ACCUSED.

Federal Official In Shanghai Charged With Shirking Duty.

Washington, Sept. 17. — Charges against Judge Rufus F. Thayer of the United States court at Shanghai, China, were laid before the house committee on expenditures by John F. Curtis.

Mr. Thayer is sixty-three years of age and was appointed by President Roosevelt. Ten years ago he married Miss Harriet I. Barnes of Albany.

PUT IT IN THE BANK.

Here's a sermonette in which the advice given should be heeded by every man, woman and child and particularly the young who is just starting out in life for surely what Editor Russell preaches in the Elizabeth Times will be read with interest wherever newspapers are published:

"To make spare money safe, put it into the bank. Besides being secure there and always handy to get at when you really need it, it will not be so easy to get at when the impulse comes to spend it foolishly. It is one of the principal functions of the bank to safeguard the money of the depositor, and many times it thus protects money, even from the owner himself.

"Another way the bank helps is in educating its depositors as to the earning power of money. It is not the desire of any banker to have public money lie dormant. Those who deal with banks and study their methods soon learn that the success of the banker in getting money at work is no more than the individual may attain proportionately in handling his own finances through the bank. When you deposit in the bank you will find many factors of security for your savings. For one thing, bank officers and directors are men of demonstrated business success. Their combined or "collective" ability, experience and integrity works for your benefit when you are a depositor in the bank. Possibly you have certain fixed payments to make. Most persons have life insurance premiums to pay at stated times. Many, right after making one payment, begin to prepare for the next.

"Every week or every month a little money is deposited in the bank, and when the premium again becomes due, the money is there to meet it—and along with it a little interest. Some persons have loans on which interest is due, or payments must be made every year or every six months, and in order to be sure of meeting these payments they deposit a little money when the pay envelope comes in, and as the payments become due the money is on deposit to meet them.

"Perhaps you have children and are planning to educate them; perhaps you wish to take a trip to some place of interest next year; perhaps you wish to establish a reserve against loss of work or old age. There are many other reasons why you hould start and maintain a savings bank account. Your own needs or desires will suggest them to you; but whatever your needs, whatever your occupation or responsibilities, it is a good thing to put money into the bank regularly."

WITHOUT "OUR JIM."

Says the Jersey Journal:

"If James E. Martine, the Farmer Orator," asks the Newark News, "had not been sent to the Senate what would have been the result of the vote on the tariff bill?" There wouldn't have been any tariff bill, and there wouldn't have been any vote. If James E. Martine had not been sent to the Senate the heavens would have collapsed long ago or the earth would have shriveled up like a dried Plainfield potato. But why worry? Isn't Mr. Martine in the Senate and isn't everybody happy?"

No, not all happy by a long shot. As his neighbors, we miss him most at this time of year, we miss that prediction of a Democratic landslide, we miss that annual candidacy of his for this or that job and we miss listening to those forecasts of terrible calamities to be visited upon us in the event of Republican success at the polls. Our little world seems strange indeed without "Jim" Martine among us.

The condition of the P. S. R. Netherwood line tracks is a positive disgrace to this community. Although characteristic pie-crust promises were made to relay the rails as was done on the Fourth street line, the corporation has done nothing. So defective are the rails that it was considered too dangerous to place the light open cars on that line during the summer. And yet the Common Council's public affairs committee stands for it all without a murmur.

About the cheapest of self-advertisement ever indulged in by a reputable newspaper is to be found in the offer made by the New York World to pay William J. Bryan an annuity of $8,000 during his term of office if he ceases lecturing for fees. The World is a sane newspaper but it seems to be suffering a temporary aberration.

THE FORUM.

AS TO ASSEMBLY.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

In these days when the two greater political parties are so closely matched, it is a matter of interest to every citizen that the best candidates be nominated on each ticket.

To my mind it is the part of good citizenship for every man to give private and public utterance to whatever information he may have as to the relative merits or demerits of the various candidates, whether of his own party or of the opposition party.

As your paper is an independent paper, I realize that you have a very large circulation among the Democrats of Union county, and I want to avail myself of your very valuable sheet to give candid expression to the plain facts in connection with one candidate for Democratic nomination for member of the Assembly.

Too often this office has been sought only by very young men, usually very young lawyers of little or no experience. This year, the Democratic party is very fortunate to have as a candidate for nomination, Francis V. Dobbins, of Rahway.

Mr. Dobbins is a lawyer of thirteen years experience. He has been concerned in business matters of large importance and has, during all those years, had an active law practice. Besides this, he has had practical political experience as city counsel of the City of Rahway.

He has the brains of an astute lawyer and the character of a trained man of affairs. The politicians, if he shall be nominated and elected, will not be able to use him as a cat's paw, as they find themselves able to use so many less experienced men. He has both the brains and the experience and the character to make him a leader in the Assembly.

While I do not urge any Republicans to desert their party to vote for him, in case of his nomination, I do not hesitate with all candor to heartily recommend him for nomination to all Democrats who are interested in having the best men available on the Democratic ticket.

There is another phase of the situation which concerns the Democratic voters of Plainfield and the municipalities of the county other than Elizabeth, in a peculiar manner.

Since the passage of the direct primary bill, there has been a very decided centralization of control of the Democratic party in Elizabeth. While the Democrats of Elizabeth may not out-number the Democrats of the rest of the county, yet being a compact body, they have exercised a practical control over the disposition of all county offices.

This is undoubtedly a bad thing for the Democratic party itself and for the public at large. While no doubt Elizabeth furnishes its share of talent, it is unfortunate if able men who happen to reside outside of Elizabeth are shut out from a share in the political life by the mere fact that they do not live in the wards of Elizabeth.

Mr. Dobbins, living in Rahway, and experienced in the needs of the City of Rahway, is much better fitted to represent the City of Plainfield, than are candidates who owe their nomination and the greater strength of their support to the larger and more densely populated City of Elizabeth.

Mr. Dobbins, while appealing especially to the Democratic voters outside of Elizabeth, seeks first and foremost to prevent factions in the party rather than creating a faction distinct from what threatens to become an Elizabeth faction.

Very truly yours,
RICHARD BOARDMAN.

Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 16, 1913.

ANIMAL ACT AT PROCTOR'S.

Dick's clever animal actors, including trained ponies and dogs, will head the vaudeville bill at Proctor's theatre, tomorrow, and the rest of the week. They will surely please the children and the grownups as well. Basketball on bicycles by the Oxford trio, an English act, will be another feature. "Art" Adair, "that musical boob," in a comedy act; Buckley and Moore, the boys who invented upside-down dancing; Lillian Murtha, a charming and clever character singing comedienne, together with the best photo-plays, comprise the big bill.

Dignity of Senatorial Visiting.

There is something impressive in the way one senator generally calls on another in the office building at Washington. A repressive dignity precludes the old time free and easy method of "dropping in to see Tom" or Jim or Jack—kicking in the door and sitting down on the table or desk and "smoking up" without invitation. Today there is a sedate step, measured and regular, as the senator sets out to call, with a manner and bearing that at once suggest senatorial dignity and courtesy. Such a bearing and dignity must perforce take the place of the impressive senatorial toga of the old days, and a visiting dramatist (a lady, to be sure) has suggested that it would be most fascinating to come to the senate on some holiday and find the distinguished gentlemen who now wear tweed and business suits attired in the Caesarian toga and mantle—a mise en scene that would leave Shakespeare's Julius Caesar at its best presentation hopelessly in the background.—Joe Mitchell Chapple in National Magazine.

Dreamland.

Most people sleep for about eight hours out of the daily twenty-four. That means they sleep one-third of each day, or one-third of their entire lives. And, according to many scientists, the whole time we are asleep we dream. We do not remember most of these dreams. Indeed, we remember only the very last one before we wake or some dream that is so vivid it wakes us. In other words, for one-third of our total lives we are dwelling in dreamland. And dreamland is a country of more utter absurdities, more grisly horrors, more fears, hopes, surprises and novelties than any land described by the most imaginative author. It is a land full of mystery, a land that science has for sixty centuries sought in vain to explore. It lies amid wholly unexplored regions of the human brain, regions which its possessor never saw.—New York World.

Foretelling the Weather.

Here are a few hints for foretelling the following day's weather: First of all, look at the northwest for your weather. However threatening the sky may appear, if you see a bit of blue in the northwest you won't have a stendy downpour. At the worst it will only be showery.

If the day has been very fine and the blue sky is suddenly specked over in the evening with little curly clouds then look out for a change of weather The longer they take to form the longer the time before the change comes about.

A red sun in the early morning is a bad sign, for there will be wet weather before the next twenty-four hours are over. Though the sky at sunrise may be absolutely cloudless, yet if the eastern horizon is red or orange the clouds will roll up and rain probably will fall before nightfall.

Evening red and morning gray,
Two sure signs of one fine day.

Tennyson's Last Hours.

Dr. G. H. R Dabbs was the medical attendant on Tennyson during the latter's last illness. A few hours before the end the poet turned to the doctor and said "Death?" The doctor merely bowed his head. "That's well," said Tennyson Dr. Dabbs has left on record a picture of the concluding scene. "Nothing," he writes, "could have been more striking. * * * On the bed a figure of breathing marble, flooded and bathed in the light of the full moon streaming through the oriel window; his hand clasping the Shakespeare which he had asked for but recently and which he had kept by him to the end; the moonlight, the majestic figure as he lay there, 'drawing thicker breath,' irresistibly brought to our minds his own 'Passing of Arthur.'"

South African Lame Sickness.

An investigation of the South African disease known as lamziekte, or lame sickness, suggests that it is due to a special plant poison that is generated under abnormal conditions in grasses or other plants that are normally harmless. Its development seems to be associated with unusual weather and soil experiences, of which summer drought is important. Through such conditions wilting would favor the formation of the poison, and this gives explanation for the common belief that the disease results from eating wilted plants.

The Equator In Africa.

At the equator in Africa there are only two seasons—the wet and the dry The former lasts eight months. During the rains the natives live in houses made principally of bamboo and roofed with leaves, but as soon as the rains stop they set out for the forests and jungles.

GRAND ARMY VETERANS PARADE IN THE SOUTH

Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 17.—Feeble with the weight of years, but with something like the old enthusiasm with which they battled in this vicinity half a century ago, several thousand survivors of the Civil War made their annual march today through the gayly decorated streets of Chattanooga. The parade marked the formal opening of the forty-seventh national encampment of the G. A. R. For two hours the blue-clad veterans who came out of Chattanooga, Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge; of Stone River and of Chickamauga; of Fredericksburg and Antietam; of Gettysburg and the Wilderness, and some who participated in the panorama of war from Sumter to Appotomax, marched in martial array before thousands of cheering spectators, among whom were many of those whom they had faced on the battlefields of the '60s. The parade was reviewed by Commander-in-Chief Beers and his staff, official representatives of the State of Tennessee and the City of Chattanooga, and many invited guests.

CONSIDER PARDON FOR SLAYER OF HUSBAND

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 17.—The State board of pardons today took up for consideration a petition asking a pardon for Mrs. Kate Edwards, who has been in jail in Reading for twelve years under sentence of death for the murder of her husband, John Edwards. Because of the public sentiment which opposes inflicting the extreme penalty on a woman, four governors of Pennsylvania have declined to set a day for her execution. The petition for pardon sets forth that it is contrary to the spirit of the law as well as to the public sentiment for a prisoner to be kept so long under death sentence and declares that it is the belief of the petitioners that the woman already has been sufficiently punished for her crime.

Mrs. Edwards and a negro were convicted of first degree murder in 1901. The negro worked in a nearby stone quarry with Edwards. Five days after Edwards was found beaten to death both Mrs. Edwards and the negro were arrested. After her conviction Mrs. Edwards confessed and exonerated her alleged accomplice and he was later by special act of the legislature given a new trial and acquitted.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" comes to the Plainfield Theatre, Saturday afternoon and night. Eugene Walter, the dramatist of the novel, has followed the scenes laid in John Fox, Jr.'s widely read book with fidelity, though he has written a new play rather than confined himself to a dramatization in its strictest sense. Of course, he emphasizes June's great love for Jack Hale, the jealousy of her cousin Dave, the rough yet sincere affection of her father, Judd Tolliver, the humorous simplicity of Uncle Billy and Old Hun, the quiet strength of Hale, and genuine chumship of Berkley as well as the pictures of the mountaineer's household and the feudists which are all strikingly impressive by the mobility and breadth of their portrayal. Neither pains, expense or artistic ability have been spared to give Mr. Walter's play a truly splendid production.

STAGE MANNERISMS.

Grossmith Rebelled Against Imitating Charles Mathews.

Weedon Grossmith in "From Studio to Stage" has something sensible to say about the practice of imitating the methods and mannerisms of great actors, a practice that was once more frequent than it is now. On his return to London he played a part that had been played many years before by Charles Mathews and who had thus established a sort of orthodoxy in its presentation. Mr. Grossmith relates:

"I was asked by the producer to do the same business that Charles Mathews did, and when making my exit at the end of the first act the stage manager said, 'Now, Mr. Grossmith, throw the tails of your frock coat over the back of your head.'

"'Why?' I asked.

"'Because Mathews did it,' he replied.

"'Never,' said I. 'Not having had the good fortune to see the great Charles Mathews, I naturally can't imitate his methods, and I must do things my own way.'

"'Really,' said the producer and, looking at the other members of the company for applause and encouragement, in his best cynical vein added, 'We have many of us heard through press notices what a brilliant actor Mr. Weedon Grossmith is in America, but is he going to improve on Charles Mathews in London?'

"'That's not quite the point,' I replied. 'How Charles Mathews did this business I don't know. At any rate, he was a gentleman in every part he played, and I am much afraid his imitators have vulgarized his business, for it doesn't seem to me possible that Charles Mathews would make an exit from a drawing room in the presence of ladies throwing his coattails entirely over his head, and, whether he did or not, I absolutely decline to do it.'"

BEATS OF THE HEART.

Sounds That Tell Just How That Wonderful Organ Is Working.

Do you know what a doctor hears when he sounds your chest and listens to your heart beating?

Your heart, if it is quite sound, makes a noise very like "lub-dup, lub-dup, lub-dup," all the time. The two syllables come very quickly together, and between each "lub-dup" there comes a pause, the short period when the heart is resting, as it were.

The "lub" sound is due to the blood flowing out of the heart, and the "dup" is the closing of the heart's valves. Just by the loudness of these two syllables the doctor knows if your heart is working as it should do.

Supposing the "dup" is very loud, for instance, that tells him that the valves are being "slammed to," just as a door is, and that the pressure is greater than it should be. The cause of this is generally what is known as an "aneurism."

If the valves are not closing properly the doctor hears a sound very like "duff" instead of "dup." The heart is then said to have a "murmur," and the physician knows what steps to take to correct it.

When the first sound, "lub," is softened into "luff" it warns the doctor that his patient has something wrong with the mitral valve. The "lub" sound is always very much weaker when one is suffering from fever, and it is this weakness, due to the weakness of the heart muscle, which makes the doctor so anxious at those times.

When the heart says "luff-duff" he tells you to knock off work for a time and have a complete rest, for your heart is in a bad way.—Pearson's Weekly.

Police View of Wagner.

Here is a description of the great composer which was dated May 18, 1849, when a warrant was issued to arrest Richard Wagner, one of the most prominent adherents of the revolutionary party, and to deliver him up to the royal court of justice. Wagner is thirty-seven or thirty-eight years old, of middle height; has brown hair, wears glasses; open forehead; eyebrows brown; eyes gray blue; nose and mouth well proportioned; chin round. Particulars: In speaking and moving he is hasty."—London Spectator.

Dickering For Talent.

"My wife has adopted a scheme used by these baseball managers."

"How now?"

"She is carrying on negotiations with our neighbor, Mrs. Wombat."

"About what?"

"My wife wants to trade our laundress and a couple of housemaids for Mrs. Wombat's star cook, but Mrs. Wombat wants a bonus."—Pittsburgh Post.

Making a Burglar Useful.

"Lie still there and I won't hurt you. All I want is your money and your jewels and then I'll git."

"All right, old man, and while you're searching for the jewels if you run across my dress studs I wish you'd put them out on the dresser. I haven't been able to find them for a month."—Detroit Free Press.

Giving Himself Away.

"Here, ma," requested the boy, hurrying in from school before time, "hang my jacket up behind the stove."

"Is it wet?"

"No, but teacher sent me home to tell you to warm my jacket for me."—Judge.

YOUNG WOMAN TAKES HER LIFE

Father and Brothers Mourn For Housekeeper.

SHE TOOK MOTHER'S PLACE

Doctor Forces Door of Bedroom and Finds Victim Dead on Floor Close to Her Bed—Gas Was Turned on and Was Escaping.

East Orange, N. J., Sept. 17.—George Davis and his three sons of 171 North Seventeenth street, are heartbroken over the death of Clara Davis, the only daughter and sister, who killed herself in the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Simpson at 125 Park street, Ridgefield Park, N. J. The young woman had kept house for her father and brothers ever since the death of her mother some years ago, and recently she had had a nervous breakdown.

Mrs. Simpson, an old friend, invited her to her home, saying that the quiet there would do her good, and a week ago last Saturday Miss Davis arrived at the Simpson house. For a few days she seemed to improve, and on an automobile ride declared that she had never felt better in her life. On Sunday, however, she was despondent again and declared that she wished she were dead.

That night Mrs. Simpson heard the girl moving about her room and found her very nervous. She fixed a hot bath for her and put her back to bed, the girl saying she thought she could sleep. But when a maid went to summon her for breakfast she found the door locked. Dr. Simpson forced it and found Miss Davis dead on the floor close to her bed. The gas was turned on and was escaping.

The girl's body was taken to Brooklyn. She will be buried beside her mother in Evergreen cemetery.

FIND POISONED CANDY CLEW

Arrest Expected of Maniac Who Tried to Murder Children.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 17.—An arrest is pending in the "poisoned chocolate" case that has so aroused residents of the Chelsea section of the city. Detectives are on the trail of the supposed maniac who placed the box of sweets on the sidewalk at Winchester and Hartford avenues Monday. Evidently he is possessed with a mania for murdering children.

Tales of similar attempts at murder during the last few days are being told by cottagers and frightened parents are searching among their children's possessions for poisoned candy.

The chocolates, in which enough bichloride of mercury had been concealed to kill two score persons, are held by Captain of Detectives Whalen.

SHAMELESS ABOUT SOCKS.

Why, Those Chinese Really Wear Garters Outside Trousers.

East Orange, N. J., Sept. 17.—The Rev. Dr. Stanley White, secretary of the Presbyterian board of foreign missions, told the Presbytery of Morris and Orange, N. J., in the Elmwood Presbyterian church here, that the Chinese have taken to wearing American garters, but, twisting the mode, they wear the garters outside their trousers.

"American sewing machines and other labor saving devices are in use commonly in even the smallest Chinese villages," said Dr. White. "The adoption of American customs has spread also to articles of clothing. One merchant told me that his largest trade last year was in the sale of men's garters."

SMITH FOUR TIMES GUILTY

Court Tells Grand Jury In Charge on Bank Wrecking.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 17.—While instructing the Essex county grand jury in this city Chief Justice Gummere called special attention to the wrecking of the Roseville Trust company and to Raymond E. Smith, its secretary and treasurer.

The court stated that the findings of the state banking authorities tend to show that Smith was largely responsible, though not solely responsible, perhaps, for the despoiling of the bank.

"So far as Smith is concerned," the chief justice said, "the fact appears that he is guilty of embezzlement, as well as forgery, alteration of the books and also of making false entries. Each of these is a criminal offense."

Torn Coattails Betrayed Thief.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

The Housewife's Daily Economy Calendar

FRANCES MARSHALL

Economy of the Prevailing Mode.

Every woman in the world ought to rejoice in one aspect of the prevailing mode—it is economical in some respects.

Do you remember poor Meg, in "Little Woman," who squandered her struggling husband's wages on silk for a new frock?" Wasn't it twenty yards that she bought? If Meg had lived today, she would have had eggs instead of beef for dinner one day and bought five yards of silk with the money saved in that way. And John would have gone without a slice of roast beef instead of an overcoat.

So take advantage of the present styles; or at least take comfort in their economical aspects.

The Style's Economics.

Smart women are going without gloves at dinners, at the theatre and opera and at dances. And poor women could do no better than to copy their example. For many for gloves, worn on all occasions, makes up no small portion of a woman's dress budget.

Veils, too, Paris taboos. And veils, at their best, are an extravagance. To be sure, there are some women who look infinitely better with them than without a veil when they are dressed in street costume. It is well for them to go on wearing veals, whatever the latest cry of fashion, and economize in some other way. But the woman who wears a veil just because she thinks she ought to can now remember that Paris has discarded veils.

Leather belts, too, used to be a big item of expense. Now almost all street skirts are made with belts of the same material, and so another penny can be saved. And the lack of linings in our clothes is another economy.

Like the fad for going without gloves, the fashion of going hatless in the evening, even in some of the big cities, is a good one. Nowadays a careful woman can get along with one well-chosen new hat, and some old cap or hat for rainy weather. She could not do this when she must wear a hat to the theatre, and restaurants, and even to the opera unless she sat in the most expensive seats.

So take heart. There may be some things about the present styles that we do not like. But let us revel in their economy.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

The suffragists are justly elated over the latest convert to their cause, Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, who in her address from the throne yesterday says that a bill is to be introduced removing the constitutional obstacles in the way of granting suffrage to women. The general elections in Holland last June resulted in a great victory for the Liberal party, and it was certain that the Clerical, very conservative, Ministry would be forced to resign. The new Liberal Ministry intends to include in the Woman Suffrage Bill an amendment granting universal male suffrage.

For years the suffragists of the Netherlands have been preparing for what has just occurred. It is one of the best organized countries for suffrage, the Holland Auxiliary to the International Suffrage Alliance having one hundred and fifteen branches.

In June the woman suffrage campaign in Norway came to a victorious end, the Parliament removing the tax qualification which still applied to 230,000 women. All men and women twenty-five years of age and residents of Norway for five years are now allowed to vote.

Women now vote upon equal terms with men in Norway, Australia, New Zealand, Finland and nine States of the United States, they have municipal suffrage in England, Scotland, Denmark and Sweden. The only countries in Europe which are not organized for woman suffrage are Spain, Greece and the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, all countries in which men have only a very limited degree of suffrage.

Those who think the workers for woman suffrage in our own country are radical, do not realize how far behind all other English-speaking countries the United States is in this matter.

Chief Kiely is quoted as saying that he does not think women's influence will be used to abolish the evil of white slavery. Evidently he is not familiar with the work of Jane Addams, and, in our own State, of Mrs. Carolina Alexander. It is due to her efforts that New Jersey at last has a Reformatory for unfortunate women, so that instead of being herded in with criminals of the lowest stripe in the penitentiary, girls who have perhaps only made one false step are given a chance to redeem themselves, taught to be decent and self-respecting and helped to find homes when they leave the Reformatory. It is significant, however, that in New Jersey, where women do not vote, only $17,050 has been appropriated this year for the Women's Reformatory, as against $206,860 for the Men's Reformatory. Perhaps those opposed to suffrage for women will hasten to say that this is merely an indication that there are not as many vicious women as there are vicious men. I hope they will!

Some Cookery Suggestions

APPLES FOR SALAD.

FOR salads ripe, juicy apples which are a trifle tart yet not sour are to be preferred. This fruit, which is always available in most households, may be combined with nuts and other foods in making many delicious and useful salads

Combination Salad.

Apple and Raisin Salad.—Take two cupfuls of diced tart apple, one cupful of diced celery, one-half cupful of raisins a dash of salt, one-quarter cupful of olive oil, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, one teaspoonful of powdered sugar, celery tips or lettuce leaves.

Stew the raisins in a little water. Mix together the oil, salt, lemon juice, sugar and a tablespoonful of the raisin juice, beating well. Marinate the apple, celery and raisins separately in it for thirty minutes, then toss together and serve garnished with the green.

To Serve With Game.

Apple and Tangerine Salad.—Peel and slice two apples, add the pulp of four tangerine oranges and then as much cut up celery as there are apple and tangerine together. Sprinkle over with a little celery salt. Now add one sliced banana and half a cupful of blanched and well chopped walnuts, flavor with celery salt and pepper and stir lightly with a fork.

For a dressing put one cupful of sour cream into a bowl. Stir in gradually half a cupful of melted butter, the juice of a lemon carefully drop by drop and the whisked whites of two eggs. This is a nice salad to serve with game.

Salad In Cups.

Apple and Pear Salad.—Winter pears and red winter apples should be used for this. Hollow some apples to form cups and let these stand in water with a little lemon juice squeezed into them until serving time. Mix some of the apple pulp with cut up celery and grapefruit and stir in some good mayonnaise. Fill the apple cups with this mixture: Decorate them with marachino cherries stuffed with hazel nuts. Serve with toasted crackers and cream cheese.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — Daddy Longlegs Tells His Own Story.

The Little Girl Caught Longlegs.

THERE was a rush and scramble for daddy's knee, which was the favorite place for hearing the bedtime story.

Jack reached daddy first and climbed to the prized place. So Evelyn quietly perched on the wide arm of daddy's chair, which stood by the open window. As she did so a long legged insect alighted on the outside of the window screen.

Jack and Evelyn laughed as they watched the little creature darting about over the wire.

"He wants to come in and hear the story," Evelyn suggested.

"One daddy never likes to tell his kiddies a story before another daddy," daddy laughed. "So Mr. Daddy Longlegs will have to stay out. But, ha, ha! I know what I'll do. He shall tell the story himself."

Daddy changed his voice to the funniest little squeak you can think of and began thus:

"My name is Daddy Longlegs. Some folks call me Father Longlegs. To others I am known as Harry Longlegs. It doesn't matter what you call me, but I want you children to stop feeding my dear babies to those nasty goldfish you keep in the bowl.

"Only this morning, when a dozen of the babies were swimming around in their nursery in the rainwater barrel by the stable, those children dipped the darlings up and carried them in and fed them to the fishes. They were beautiful little mites that looked something like bits of red worsted.

"I'm not sure it isn't safer to do as my cousins. All their eggs are laid at the roots of grass, and when the babies come out they can suck the grass juice until they grow wings and fly about looking for a living.

"Cousin Daddy Longlegs says that the farmers grumble about them. They say that the little ones suck all the juice out of the grass so that it dies and he has no grass to make into hay.

"Once I flew into a house where there was a light on the table. All insects love a light. I don't know why it is, but when I see one I just feel that I have to fly straight at it.

"When I reached the light it was so hot that I would have been burned, but a dear little girl caught me and put me outside the window so I couldn't get in again. She was kind, wasn't she?

"Oh, ho; here comes a mosquito! Just watch me catch her. I'll make short work of her. Yes; I eat mosquitoes. I'm hungry now, and I'll eat her too."

Perhaps Mrs. Mosquito heard this, for she whisked away, and Daddy Longlegs went after her.

NEW RUNSWICK PRESBYTERY'S 175TH ANNIVERSARY TUESDAY

New Brunswick, Sept. 17.—In the First Presbyterian church here next Tuesday the satted meeting of the Presbytery of New Brunswick will be held beginning at 9:30 a. m. The occasion will be the 175th anniversary of the presbytery. The celebration of that event will take place from 2.30 to 4.40 o'clock in the afternoon, when addresses will be made by Rev. I. Mench Chambers, moderator of the Synod of New Jersey, and by Rev. George H. Ingram, stated clerk, on "The Beginnings of the Presbytery of New Brunswick." In the evening, beginning at 7.30 o'clock there will be a continuation of the anniversary. The address then will be made by Professor Frederick W. Loetscher, of Princeton Theological Seminary, on "The Presbytery of New Brunswick's Place in the History of the Church." Rev. Dr. W. H. S. Demarest, president of Rutgers College, will make known the greetings from the Reformed Church in America. There will be greetings, too, from churches organized prior to 1750.

BARONET'S SON TO WED.

London, Sept. 17.—Among the passengers sailing for New York today was James Hope-Nelson, who is going to St. Louis to claim as his bride Miss Isabelle Vale, of that city. The marriage will add another to the already long list of alliances between American girls and English title-holders. The bridegroom-elect is the eldest son and heir of Sir William Hope-Nelson, baronet, who is a wealthy steamship owner. It is understood that the wedding of Miss Valle and Mr. Hope-Nelson will take place in St. Louis early next month.

BOSTON HAS A BIRTHDAY.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 17.—Boston was 283 years old today and in celebration of the anniversary Mayor Fitzgerald arranged for a "get-together party" in Faneuil Hall for the purpose of booming the ancient city. Boston was settled in 1630 by Puritan colonists under John Winthrop. Soon after the settlement was made the original name of Trimountaine was changed to that of Boston, after the Lincolnshire town whence many of the colonists had come. The city was incorporated February 23, 1822.

SHEER FABRICS ARE COMBINED WITH FUR, VELVET AND SILVER RIBBON

It is said that some of the leading Paris designers when in quest of fresh inspiration for a gown will go into a garden, and, seeing a particular flower, will evolve a costume which carries out its color and some of its form. This season it must have been a veritable butterfly in the garden which prompted the making of gauze-like wings on blouses and skirts and trimming them with silver and gay colored blossoms. Noticeable style features in the gown on the right are the flowered pink crepe, with a deep band of satin to match, a chiffon blouse and tunic wired on the bottom in the novel "lamp shade" fashion, the mousmee bow and the band of Alaska sable fur trimming. The skirt is cut in three pieces, and the tunic in two. Pattern No. 7924, which comes in three sizes for misses—16, 17 and 18—may be used to duplicate this debutante frock. Size 16 will require 4¾ yards of 30 inch material.

There is an indescribable charm about filmy dresses for young girls, whether the materials are expensive or quite the reverse. Fashion in her ordering of frocks for this winter has favored nets, of which a dotted variety is seen in the illustration. It has a three piece gathered skirt, drawn in near the foot with two straight gathered ruffles, having tuck shirrings above. The quaint surplice fichu has been revived and appears in a new way above the girdle of satin ribbon. The bows on the skirt and sleeves and the narrow top of the girdle are of rose velvet ribbon, with silver tassels. Pattern 7928 can be used to reproduce this simple dancing frock. It is cut in three sizes—16, 17 and 18. Size 16 will require 4½ yards of 36 inch net. Fifteen cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

Five Dainty Little Cross-stitch Motifs Suitable for Embroidering Gifts for Christmas or Fairs.

Christmas is but three months off and that is not long when there are a number of gifts to be made. For the wise woman should begin her Christmas embroidering months ahead. Surely everyone prizes a gift, which the giver has made with her own hands, far above one which has been bought at the last minute, for it shows that time and thought has been given to the recipient. A touch of hand embroidery is particularly appreciated, for all neither have the time to spend in embroidering fancy articles for themselves nor the money to buy these dainty little things. Then there are also the fairs of different kinds which usually come shortly before Christmas for which small hand embroidered gifts are always acceptable.

Cross-stitch is one of the simplest and easiest of all the embroidery stitches to do and is very effective for the amount of work required. This stitch is one of the first embroidery stitches taught to children, on account of its simplicity, so no one need hesitate to do a bit of fancy work if they have the desire.

The five little cross-stitch designs, illustrated above, are appropriate for use on bags, towels, bureau-scarfs, pin-cushions, table-covers, also children's aprons, dresses and bibs. These little designs are very attractive and effective, especially when developed in more than one color. The natural or more conventional colorings may be used as suggested by the design.

For instance, the basket of flowers might be developed in four colors. Pink and blue, yellow and blue, lavender and yellow or any two harmonious colors may be used for the flowers with a touch of green for the leaves and brown for the basket. The tree in the tub may be green with a touch of red here and there to represent fruit or flowers and the tub may be brown or a different shade of green, while the pine tree would look well all brown or green.

Linen, lawn, batiste, huckaback, damask or canvas are all appropriate material to use when embroidering these designs. Very heavy silk or mercerized cotton should be used so that the design will cover the material to give a solid effect. Silks should not be used on an article that is to be washed often as mercerized cotton washes far better.

Transfer pattern number 14503 contains five different designs: Four trees each three by two and two-thirds inches, four trees in tubs each three by three inches, four bunnies each three by three and three-eights inches, four wreaths each two and one-half inches in diameter, and four baskets each two and one fourth by two and one-fourth inches. This pattern may be supplied to readers for ten cents.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 7.

THE other night, just before retiring, I started to read a little 2 x 5-inch paper-bound pamphlet, written by a young friend of mine who is the advertising and sales manager of a metal shingle and siding manufacturing concern up in the province of Ontario, Canada. It's title was "Your Questions Answered."

Now, ordinarly, to man who knows as little about shingles and sidings as I do, a treatise on the subject is a good thing to read just before bedtime in order to insure going to sleep. But this wasn't that kind of a treatise.

It was one of the best little pieces of advertising matter it has ever been my good fortune to come across. It went at the matter of advertising shingles from the viewpoint of the possible buyer of shingles. Every question that an intending purchaser of the article advertised could possibly ask a salesman or representative of the company face to face was asked in that pamphlet, which was very attractively printed, and each question was answered in a frank, chatty, straight-from-the-shoulder way that simply compelled belief in the statements made and inspired confidence in the advertiser.

It was aimed at the Canadian man-on-the-farm. Had I been a farmer, with a house or barn that needed shingles or siding, that little question-and-answer advertisement would have made me sit right down and write to that firm—or to its nearest agent, as was suggested in the pamphlet. There was no bombast and there were no extravagant claims in that piece of advertising matter. It was all selling talk — very simply written, quite inexpensively dressed—but every word of it the kind of here's-what'we've-got-and-here's-why-you-should-buy copy that sells what it advertises.

And the fellow who wrote that piece of advertising is only 22 years old. Would that every merchant who spends money in the use of printer's ink could spend it as wisely! Would that I could put into the hands of every prospective advertiser a copy of that pamphlet so that he might profit by its example. For it proved a theory I have long entertained—that good advertising isn't noise or buncombe or cleverness, but just common sense, aided and abetted and backed up by common honesty.

LOCAL ENTRANT IN RACES.

William H. Schooley, of this city, is one of the competitors entered in the swimming races at Branch Brook Park, Newark, next Saturday afternoon, the local amphibian having entered the hurry-scurry event. Schooley has been training in the Y. M. C. A. pool during the past week and is optimistic of his chances of carrying off one of the medals.

TOURNAMENT NOW OPEN.

The tennis tournament arranged for the girls of the First Baptist church will be started on A. M. Harris' courts on Central avenue this afternoon. Two cups have been offered for the feminine racquet wielders to compete for and the rivalry that has been unearthed is keen and the playing will probably be close.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

KONETCHY MAY GO TO CINN.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 17.—There is one thing the St. Louis ball fans may keep carefully in mind—it is that Ed Konetchy, considered by some critics the best first baseman in the National League, will be traded this fall. "We hope to trade Koney," said President Britton yesterday. "We feel that we can strengthen our club to a big extent by letting the big Bohemian go. Koney is a great ball player, a good trading asset, and we are going to profit thereby." The uniform Koney will be most apt to wear will be that of Cincinnati. Britton is in conference with Joe Tinker with the object of securing Bob Bescher, the big outfielder of the Reds. Koney will figure in this deal.

MARATHON CHAMPIONSHIP.

The second annual professional Marathon championship of the world has been scheduled for October 19 at the Newark Stadium Motordrome. The course will be the full classic distance, 26 miles, 385 yards. Foremost among the great runners who will try for first money is Willie Kolehmainen, world's champion and record holder. Hans Molmer, winner of the first big Powderhall Marathon, is coming over specially for the race.

KILBANE BEATS WALSH.

Boston, Sept. 17.—Johnny Kilbane, of Cleveland, O., the featherweight champion, won a decision over Jimmy Walsh, of Boston, in a twelve-round bout at catch weights before the Atlas Athletic Association last night.

WELCOME FOR SULLIVAN.

A large number of representatives of clubs in the Metropolitan Association met yesterday and formulated plans for a monster demonstration in honor of James E. Sullivan, the American Commissioner to the Olympic games, who will return to New York on Friday aboard the steamship Cedric after a European trip of several months, during which he is admitted to have done much for the furtherance of American athletics.

CY MORGAN SALE SET ASIDE.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 17.—The National Baseball Commission yesterday set aside the sale of Pitcher Cy Morgan, of the Kansas City Club, to the Cincinnati Club and ordered that the latter club be reimbursed for any expense it had gone to in securing the player. Manager Carr, of the Kansas City Club, and Morgan himself testified that his arm was not in condition when ordered to report to Cincinnati.

BALL PLAYER STEARNS DEAD.

Winnebago, Minn., Sept. 17.—Clarence Stearns, formerly of the St. Paul team of the Northern League, but who finished the season with Sheridan, Wyo., died at his home here yesterday of hemorrhage of the brain, caused, according to his physician, by being struck twice in the head by balls this summer.

BASEBALL NOTES

Gilhooley, the new member of the Boston Braves, batted for an average of .314 while with Montreal this season.

The Carolina League pennant race was a hot affair this season with Winston-Salem copping the flag by four points over Durham.

By putting up a league record for successive victories, Lowell swept the other New England League teams off their feet, and romped home a pennant winner.

Heine Zimmerman, of the Cubs, who led the National League in batting last year, stands eleventh in the National's list of leading sluggers this season.

Of the leading trio of batsmen, Jackson, Cobb and Speaker, in the American League, Jackson and Speaker have taken part in thirty more games than has Cobb.

Walter Johnson, the Washington star, has a big lead in the race for pitching honors in the American League, while Humphries, of the Cubs, looks like a winner in the National League.

George Brickley, brother of Charley Brickley, the Harvard football star, has joined the Athletics. He has been playing in the outfield for the Newport (N. H.) team this season.

The great start Fritz Maisel, of the Yankees, gets in stealing bases, resembles the speedy work of John McGraw, when John starred with the Baltimore team a few years ago.

Mordecai Brown and Ed Reulbach, the former Cubs, have been pitching fine ball of late. Brown is holding his own with Cincinnati, while Reulbach has proved himself a bear in Brooklyn.

In boosting the salary of Manager Bill Carrigan, the owners of the Boston Red Sox have made it plain that they have confidence in Sir William's ability to produce a winning team in 1914.

Charley Carr, the former big leaguer who resigned the management of the Kansas City team recently, says that he will devote his entire time to his new baseball college in Texas, in the future.

Manager McGraw will wig-wag his athletes from a burglar-proof coop if the Athletics and the Giants meet in the world's series. John's idea is to cross any attempt on the part of the Athletics to steal his signals.

Atlanta fans declare Billy Smith the greatest manager in baseball. After winning several pennants in Atlanta Bill took up the management of the Buffalo team, and later of the Chattanooga team. He returned to Atlanta this season and led the Crackers to the Southern League championship, after the closest race in the history of that organization.

CARLSTROM WITH THE PETS.

Albie Carlstrom, the Elizabeth boy, who has been playing with the Lawrence team of the New England League during the past season, will appear in a Pet uniform during the remainder of the present season and should prove a valuable addition to the Pets' infield in the chmapionship game next Saturday afternoon with Somerville. Carlstrom has been putting up a superior article of the National pastime in the New England States during the season just closed and was one of the leading stickers and fielders on the team.

HUMAN FISH SCARCE.

Those interested in the formation of a Y. M. C. A. swimming team met in the association last night and discussed plans for arousing enthusiasm among the members in order to effect the organization as soon as possible. To date few aquatic performers have taken advantage of the opportunity offered to appear in open competition and although there are a number of excellent swimmers on the association register, the response has not been encouraging.

MISS WILDEY WON A SENSATIONAL MATCH

Miss Barbara Fleming, the Other Local Entrant, Idle Yesterday.

The second day of the woman's annual tennis tournament conducted yesterday by the Montclair Athletic Club on its courts in Montclair, was productive of some close and interesting sets. The most interesting match of the afternoon was contested in the women's doubles in the third round of play. Miss Polly Sheldon, with Miss Bessie Wright, created a sensation by capturing the second set from Mrs. C. N. Beard, the Montclair Athletic Club champion, who had as her mate Miss Marie Wagner, the national indoor champion. The two title-holders captured the first set, 6-4, but could not repeat in the next, losing, 6-3. Miss Sheldon and Miss Wright played dashing tennis and their work surely merited the victory. The third and deciding set was not played, as darkness came on, making play impossible. This set and the match will be decided today. The winners of the second set were so full of confidence after their victory that, if it had been possible to play the final set, Mrs. C. N. Beard and Miss Marie Wagner would most likely have had to show their best to capture the deciding set.

Miss Edna Wildey, of this city, won a close match from Miss Alberta Weber, the clever Shelter Island player, in the third round of play in the singles. Miss Weber showed a great reversal of form from that which she displayed at the State championships at Morristown last week, while Miss Wildey seemed to be playing above her natural speed. It was a surprise to have Miss Weber eliminated, as she was looked upon as a sure contender in the semi-finals and as a likely candidate for the finals.

Miss Marie Wagner, by her victories in three rounds of play, is the first to become eligible to compete in the semi-finals. In the second round of play she disposed of Miss Hamilton handily, 6-2, 6-3. Miss Pauline Botticher also proved easy, Miss Wagner winning, 6-1, 6-3, in the third round. Miss Eugenie Steiner lost the first set to Miss Wagner, 6-1, in the fourth round of play, but in the next set made the indoor champion go almost to the limit before she finally won, 6-4. Miss Steiner shows remarkable signs of becoming a champion and her playing was commented upon by the experts.

Mrs. C. N. Beard, the Montclair Athletic Club champion; Miss Cassell, last year's tournament winner; Mrs. Marshall McLean, the State champion, and Miss Edna Wildey having all registered victories in the third round yesterday, will be ready to compete in the fourth round of play today. The finals of the singles will probably be held over until Saturday.

The consolation matches were started yesterday, and will be continued today, as will the women's doubles. The mixed doubles, which should furnish some exciting matches will also get under way this afternoon.

Y. M. C. A. GYM OPENING.

Physical Director E. C. Ostlin, of the local Y. M. C. A., is planning to reopen the gymnasium class work during the first week in October. Instead of forming a color league, such as was organized last year and which proved highly successful, Mr. Ostlin is planning to form the members into graded classes and offering some suitable award for the best improvement during the season of gym work.

PLAINFIELD TEACHER MAY PLAY WITH INTERNATIONAL LEAGUERS

When the Jersey City International League team takes the field in Jersey City this afternoon to warm up for the game with Johnny Dunn's Orioles, a Plainfield face will appear in a Skeeter uniform, and will probably remain in the limelight when the championship game opens at 3:30 o'clock. The most recent contribution of the Queen City by the Hills to organized baseball is Carl Johnson, assistant manual training teacher in the local public schools, and although Mr. Johnson is a star ball tosser his personal modesty has prevented his fame and ability from becoming known before this time. Since his graduation from Drexel Institute in Philadelphia in 1912, Mr. Johnson has been teaching the manual arts in the local schools and has never appeared in a semi-professional game in this city, in fact, he has never played ball for money, and if he should be given a contract by the Skeeter management it would be the first compensation he has received as an athelete.

Mr. Johnson was captain of the Drexel Institute team during the season of 1912 and played a star game for the orange and black crew during his college career. Since his graduation he has played ball only for the exercise he got out of the National Pastime and last year acted as coach and director of the Stillman Grammar School's athletics. He does not specialize in the diamond game but is an all around athlete and is in the best of shape to show to his best advantage in Jersey City this afternoon.

When asked for information concerning his tryout and debut in minor league baseball circles this morning Mr. Johnson said that he was not looking for notoriety as the result of his baseball ability but was finally induced to admit that he will go to Jersey City and be given a trial behind the bat. The solicitation of friends secured the opportunity for Mr. Johnson and he had nothing to do with the preliminary arrangements other than to accept the offer made him.

"MAC" SAYS

We are at least satified that the Central League agony cannot be prolonged after Saturday afternoon. Win or lose, the big fuss will be decided.

Albin Carlstrom, a former Pet, will prove a big asset to the Pet combination here Saturday, taking Garretson's place at the initial corner.

Another star has been unearthed in local baseball circles, but this one is the biggest surprise ever handed local fandom. Who would ever think that a school "prof" had the makings of a big leagger?

Bull Ferring, formerly an American League umpire, has been adjudged insane. There are several prominent baseball managers who are willing to make affidavits that every umpire in the game is more or less nutty.

Umpire O'Rourke's long service in the Central New Jersey League (about six weeks) is one of the surprises of the season. Other Central League officials have taken the court before their third appearance on the same field.

Joe Alberts is planning a come back day for himself at Scotch Plains next Sunday. The little sorrel top used to be somewhat of a hurler and it is possible that he will pitch part of the game against the suffragettes at the Plains, Sunday.

Slocum is away on a fishing trip and this may reverse his no-hit, no-run conditions, if precedent again holds true.

If we remember correctly it was a little sojourn by the ocean side that put Slocum on the toboggan when he was pitching for Bound Brook last year.

P. H. S. GRIDIRON TEAM WILL PLAY ROSELLE

Strong Schedule of Games Includes One With the Local Schoolboy Eleven.

The Roselle High School football team will have its hardest schedule to go through this year. Manager Murray Tribbitt announces that ten games will be played this season, seven of them probably at home, Plainfield High School being one of the home opponents.

The biggest game of the season will be that with DeWitt Clinton High School of New York on the local grounds on November 22. This will be the first time that a New York city high school has played there, and the local warriors will have a hard time to beat them. DeWitt Clinton usually is one of the first three in the ranking for Greater New York interscholastic championship. If the red and gray warriors defeat them it will not only mean a big feather in their hats, but also that other New York schools will be placed on future Roselle schedules.

Another new team on the schedule is Seton Hall preparatory school. The game should be interesting, as the prep school always is represented by a strong, well-coached team.

Coach Kopp has been working the candidates for the team very hard in preparation for their first game with Newark Central High, another newcomer on the schedule. The team will not be as heavy as last year, but speed will make up for lack of weight. The first scrimmage was held Sunday afternoon and on the first team were Captain G. Davies, Pierce, Van Cleef, Benedict and H. Davies, who played their last year's positions. Thirty players have been reporting for practice. The schedule is as follows:

Sept. 27—Newark Central High School, at Roselle.
Oct. 4—Seton Hall preparatory school, at South Orange.
Oct. 11—Open. (Game with Cranford being arranged).
Oct. 18—Plainfield High School, at Roselle.
Oct. 25—Pingry School. (Place not decided).
Nov. 1—Carlton Academy, at Roselle.
Nov. 8—Rahway High school, at Rahway.
Nov. 19—Battin High School, at Roselle.
Nov. 22—DeWitt Clinton High School, at Roselle.
Nov. 27—Pingry School, at Elizabeth.

ROCHESTER VS. PETS.

Jack Martin and a team composed of Rochester, International League, ball players will lineup against the Plainfield Pets, on Parker Field, Saturday, September 27. Jack Martin will play short for the visitors and the locals will pit their best lineup against the leaguers.

DECIDING GAME WILL BE PLAYED AT PARKER FIELD SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

Managers Jack Torpey, of the Somerville club, and Ernest Dorflinger, of the Plainfield Pets, got their heads together yesterday and have announced that the third and deciding game for the Central New Jersey League pennant will be played on Parker Field next Saturday afternoon, much to the gratification of Plainfield fans who have been counting on attending this game.

Although nothing definite has as yet been decided besides the playing field and date, it is more than likely that both teams will be padded considerably for the playoff. Jimmy Clinton, who made the Pets look like a bunch of novices last week, will probably be on the firing line again and it is possible that he may be opposed by Cliff Randolph, who has been twirling for Brooklyn Suburbans, and has thirty-six scoreless innings to his credit. Albin Carlstrom, recently returned from the New England League, will play shortstop, the one weak spot in the Pets' line-up all season.

"DUNELLEN BOB" HAS ANOTHER CLOSE CALL

Fitzsimmons Gets Out of Jury Duty by the "Skin of His Teeth."

Robert Fitzsimmons, the former pugilist, and at present owner and manager of a farm in Dunellen, just escaped jury duty by the "skin of his teeth," yesterday, when the first Grand Jury under the new jury reform law of the State was selected in New Brunswick. The ex-fighter was in court to plead in person his request to be excused, in case his name should be among those called.

There was an unusual large lobby present, many of whom were attracted by the likelihood of meeting Fitzsimmons, and others interested in the new method of jury-choosing. The panel as selected contains five New Brunswickers. Its foreman is Edwin G. Fraser, a real estate man, of Perth Amboy.

As Deputy Sheriff Houghton called the names of the forty citizens who were drawn by lot several days ago to serve on the Grand Jury, each man came forward either to assume his seat in the jury box, or to present to Justice Bergen his request to be excused. The Justice stated that the first 23 men whose names were read would constitute the jury, barring those whom he might excuse.

Thirty-five names in all were called before the necessary twenty-three were secured, and the jury box declared filled, there being twelve who were excused by the court. The name of Robert Fitzsimmons was the thirty-sixth on the list, so that with the granting of one more excuse, he would have been called upon to serve.

"It's an honor to serve on the grand jury," said Fitzsimmons after he had left the courtroom. "I have always wanted to serve and have been anxiously waiting for the honor, but I am glad I was not called on now. You know I have not been doing very much for the past two years, but I have a $50,000 moving picture contract on just now. I feared I might be sued if I served on the grand jury and failed to fulfill the contract. This was my first experience in court and I enjoyed the novelty."

SUFFRAGETTES WILL PLAY AT THE 'PLAINS SUNDAY

Manager Joe Alberts, of the Scotch Plains baseball team, has signed the Bloomer Girls' nine, of New York city, to appear on the 'Plains' field in the weekly Sunday game this week and is arranging for a preliminary contest which will probably be staged between two Plainfield teams. Several City League clubs have been approached on the subject and it is not unlikely that a pair of the aggregations that have been competing for the local league's flag will be seen in an after-season clash.

The Bloomer Girls are a combination of the fastest feminine baseball performers in the metropolitan district and Manager Alberts has guaranteed the fans a good contest for their money this week. Last year a girls' nine appeared at the 'Plains and proved to be one of the best drawing cards of the season, although their playing did not come up to expectations. This team, however, is of a different calibre and the article of ball they are heralded as being capable of playing will probably make the male ball tossers hustle to keep in the running.

"CLEOPATRA" IN PICTURES.

"Cleopatra," a wonderful photoplay production in six reels, comprising six thousand feet of film, will be the attraction at The Plainfield Theatre tomorrow and Friday. It cost $100,000 to make this remarkable picture and it is complete in every detail, telling the story in a fascinating way. This picture will be presented matinee and night, Thursday and Friday.

SCHMIDT FEARED AUMULLER GIRL

Victim Had Threatened to Expose Dual Life.

MURET HELD AS COINER.

New England Flooded With Counterfeit Bills, and Chief of Secret Service Flynn Says Clergyman and Dentist Resemble Suspects.

New York, Sept. 17.—Following are the new developments in the murder and dismemberment of Anna Aumuller:

The motive for the crime was fear of exposure, and not "for love," as declared by the Rev. Hans Schmidt, the murderer.

Anna Hirt has supplied to the police information to support the conclusion that Miss Aumuller was about to confess her relations with Father Schmidt at a meeting arranged for the very day on which she was killed and hacked to pieces.

Coroner Feinberg and Father Braun are convinced that Schmidt is sane, but a monster and a pervert.

Inspector Faurot has positively connected Schmidt with the dentist, Ernest A. Muret, in an elaborate counterfeiting scheme.

Schmidt has confessed that he treated women as "Dr. Emil Molliere, formerly of Paris."

The assertion of the dentist that he first met Schmidt in New York has been shattered by the discovery of photographs of Muret taken in Mainz, Germany, the place where Schmidt was arrested for forgery.

Schmidt and Muret have been intimately associated since the former arrived in this city in 1910.

Passed Counterfeit Bills.

Evidence was obtained by secret service agents that Schmidt and another man not only made counterfeit ten and twenty dollar bills in a flat at 516 West One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street, but passed them in Boston, New Haven and other New England cities. Schmidt, the federal officers say, worked the counterfeiting scheme with "Dr." Ernest Arthur Muret, a bogus dentist, who was arrested in a raid at 301 St. Nicholas avenue, where he lived.

After conferring with Captain Henry of the secret service, in the customs house, Chief of the Secret Service William H. Flynn announced that he had temporarily taken charge of the government's end of the counterfeiting case. The chief made the following announcement:

"The priest and the dentist resemble and nearly answer the description of two men who have recently passed counterfeit twenty dollar bills in Boston and neighboring places and in New Haven and other cities in the vicinity."

The government agents have in their possession thirty-five of the bills passed in Massachusetts and Connecticut. In the majority of cases the counterfeits were given to bartenders in saloons.

Passed on Bartenders.

"The bills of which I speak," said Chief Flynn, "were made by a photo-mechanical process. Two pieces of paper, printed separately, were pasted together after silk threads had been distributed between. The work was not completely turned out on the printing press as far as the printing goes, but pen and ink were used to make the counterfeits more perfect. The bills were cleverly made, I will admit that, but they were not the kind of a bill that would deceive, under any circumstances, persons expert in the handling of currency.

"In the case of bartenders and other uninitiated people the bills would have easily passed muster, as the men do not possess the 'feel' which is acquired by money experts after years of handling.

"It will be impossible to tell whether or not the bills collected in Massachusetts and Connecticut are similar to those run off in the Harlem flat until I or my men examine the plates of the counterfeit bills tomorrow.

"At present the whole matter is in the hands of the police, and we cannot get at the plates and recovered bills just yet. You may rest assured, however, that I will take care of this dentist fellow as soon as the plate is turned over to us."

SPANKER OF FATHER BAILED.

Wealthy Church Members Go on Bond of Rev. E. A. Hanley.

Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 17.—Rev. Elijah A. Hanley, president of Franklin college, indicted by the Vigo county grand jury on a charge of assault and battery on his aged father, Calvin Hanley, a farmer of this county, surrendered to the sheriff and was released on a bond of $300.

Mr Hanley came here from Indianapolis and, accompanied by the Rev Clark R. Parker of this city, a member of the executive board went to the sheriff's office. His bond was signed by three wealthy members of the First Baptist church of this city.

DR. E. A. MURET,
Held In Connection With Slaying of Girl by Schmidt.

Defying detectives to connect him with the disposal of the body of Anna Aumuller, who was murdered by Rev. Hans Schmidt, "Dr." Ernest A. Muret, the priest's associate, an unlicensed dentist, declared that no evidence against him could be found, although the apartment which he and the confessed murderer rented at 516 West One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street was found to contain counterfeiting implements, spurious money, surgical instruments and hundreds of name cards such as Father Schmidt had.

PRAY AS BOY DROPS 500 FEET TO DEATH

Lad Clings to Balloon Until Strength Fails.

Woodstock, Conn., Sept. 17.—Five thousand persons stood horror stricken at the county fair, while George Bernier, thirteen years old, was carried 500 feet in the air, dangling from the guy rope of a balloon. They turned their heads away as his hold upon the rope broke and he shot to the earth like a plummet, to land dead with every bone in his body broken.

The boy, with his brother, two years older, came from Mechanicsville to attend the county fair. The main attraction was billed as the "sensational hair raising triple trapeze drop of Professor Fowler of Boston from his balloon."

The boy was one of a hundred who volunteered to assist in holding the ropes while the balloon was inflated. Then the signal was given to stand and get back. The little fellow, in his anxiety to get a better view of the aeronaut, failed to see that his foot was close to the guy rope.

At the aeronaut's word the rope was cut and the balloon, which had been tuggling like a caged thing, shot upward a hundred feet. The boy, the rope at a half hitch about his ankle, hung head downward. The crowd gave a cry of horror at the sight.

At five hundred feet the child, unable to hold longer, let go. Several clergymen at the fair knelt in prayer as the body shot downward, gaining in speed as it came. An instant after the body struck the ground Fowler dropped from his trapeze, and came fluttering down in his parachute.

There were hundreds of vehicles parked in the infield of the race track, but the boy's body struck a bare spot.

FUHRMANN WINNER.

Organization Beaten by W. J. Conners In Buffalo Primary.

Buffalo, Sept. 17.—Official returns show that the antiorganization Democrats in Erie county have won in the primaries by more than 5,000 votes.

George G. Meyer was designated by the regular Democrats, of whom William H. Fitzpatrick is the boss. The Sulzer faction is headed by Louis P. Fuhrmann, present mayor. His victory means that William J. Conners, the former state chairman, will be back in the saddle again.

Daniel J. Riordan, manager of the antiorganization campaign, said: "We have won substantial victories in twenty-four of the twenty-seven wards. I am sure the Fuhrmann faction has won a big victory.

FLYNN RAN DOWN THE TWO THIEVES

Detective Captures Pair in Newark and They Are Held When Arraigned in Court.

LOOTED LOCAL SHOP

Taken Into Custody As They Attempted to Cash Check Given For Stolen Goods—Await Grand Jury's Action.

As a result of the good detective work of Detective-Sergeant John J. Flynn, the thieves who entered Leo Zeisel's sporting goods store in West Front street on Monday morning, Sept. 8, have been captured. Following a clue which led to Newark, Flynn succeeded in placing John Connelly, of 1574 Collins street, Philadelphia, and Edward Connolly, alias Barrett, of 816 Kimber street, Camden, under arrest yesterday as they were about to cash a check at a Newark bank. Brought to this city, the two men pleaded guilty this morning before City Judge DeMeza and were held in $300 bail each to await the action of the Grand Jury. They stole two bicycles, twelve revolvers and many other articles from the local shop.

After successfully looting the Zeisel store, the two self-confessed thieves hid the wheels in a lot in South avenue. The other articles they took with them to Newark and pawned. Last Tuesday they came to Plainfield again and secured the hidden wheels which they took to the store of Charles Krebs, at 51 William street, Newark. Krebs gave the men a check dated yesterday. In the meantime, Flynn had circulars printed and sent them to the surrounding municipalities notifying the authorities of the theft. With the aid of a Newark detective Flynn traced the stolen bikes to the Krebs place, learned that the buyer had given a check dated ahead in consideration. Flynn waited in the vicinity of the Newark institution yesterday and when two men came to the paying teller's window to cash the check, he beckoned to a Newark policeman who placed the looters under arrest.

HALF MILLION FOR MILLSTONE WOMAN

Mrs. Hickey Gets That as Share of Half-brother "Big Tim" Sullivan.

Mrs. Margaret Hickey, of Millstone, a half-sister of "Big Tim" Sullivan, the Bowery's noted leader, will receive one-quarter of his estate, according to "Big Tim's" will, which has been filed in New York. The estate will net about $2,000,000, it is reported.

Mrs. Hickey is not yet sure that she will receive the entire amount of the bequest, for the reason that Erastus J. Parsons, of Dowsey & Parsons, of New York city, has announced that his client, Miss Ada Sullivan, who for years passed for the daughter of Mr. Sullivan, will file a suit for a share of the estate.

Miss Sullivan was not mentioned in the will of Representative Sullivan, although she lived with his wife or his relatives from the time she was two years old. She is now twenty years old and has been appearing on the stage.

"Unless Miss Sullivan receives a fair share of the estate we shall certainly bring suit," said Mr. Parsons yesterday before the will was made public.

"We think we have positive proof that she is the daughter of Timothy D. Sullivan. We have communicated with the dressmaker who made her clothes when she was a child, and this dressmaker said they were expensive and were always paid for by the nurse who had charge of the little girl. We know where this nurse is, and expect soon to have her evidence, clearing up all doubt as to the parentage of Ada Sullivan.

"When Ada was two years old her nurse went to this dressmaker and ordered her to hurry the completion of the garments she was then making for the child, as 'Ada had to go to a foundling institution.'

"Next day Ada was taken away from the foundling institution by the Sullivans. She lived with them until Mrs. Sullivan died last year. When Timothy D. Sullivan became ill and the committee of his person and estate was appointed all provision for Miss Sullivan ceased and she was forced to go to work to support herself. She has not been in New York in two weeks.

"If she is 'Big Tim's' daughter, and he recognized her as such, she is entitled to part of his estate."

William B. Ellison yesterday said Miss Sullivan was not related to Timothy D. Sullivan, nor legally adopted by him, according to the assertions of the family's living relatives.

Dog May Die By the Decree

Canine Bit Man and It Will Be Shot if Rabies Symptoms Are Found.

James Trimmer caused the arrest this morning of Mrs. Albert Griebe, of 132 Johnston avenue, a neighbor, who owns a dog which he claims bit him.

The defendant was arraigned before City Judge William G. DeMeza, who in suspending sentence, told Mrs. Griebe to tie the animal up for observation and within ten days to bring him to headquarters to be shot if he shows signs of rabies.

DR. MANDEVILLE SUES FOR DIVORCE

Elizabeth Man Named as Co-respondent in Papers Filed by Physician.

Cranford, Sept. 18—Dr. Charles H. Mandeville, of Newark, has applied to the court for a divorce from his wife, Kathleen Mandeville. Dr. Mandeville's petition for divorce was filed in the Chancery Court at Trenton yesterday by his counsel, Frank W. Long, of the Union Building, Newark.

Dr. Mandeville seeks a divorce on statutory grounds and names Augustus Hopf, of Elizabeth, as corespondent. Hopf was until recently one of the firm of Thum & Hopf, proprietors of the Standard Pharmacy, in Walnut avenue, now known as Grossman's drug store. The petition sets forth several dates when the alleged offenses took place at his former residence, 25 South avenue, west.

The Mandevilles came here two and a half years ago and occupied the residence at 440 Lincoln avenue. They moved into 25 South avenue, west, about a year ago. Mrs. Mandeville was formerly Miss Kathleen Allan. She was a stepdaughter of Dr. Mandeville and many years his junior. The couple were married eight years ago at Hoboken. They have no children.

Dr. Mandeville is one of a well-known Newark family of doctors. He has practised medicine in Newark for twenty-eight years and for five years had a branch office at Allentown, Pa., where he took his wife for the benefit of her health.

Mrs. Mandeville is at present with relatives in Burlington, Vt. She left here in May and packed everything of value in the South avenue house in boxes and barrels and shipped them away from the house.

Mrs. Mandeville was a very active worker in Trinity Episcopal church and secretary of the Parish Circle. She was also an active worker in the Village Improvement Association and conducted the lunch room in the Sherman School.

Mrs. Mandeville is 36 years of age and attractive. She is of the brunette type.

Augustus Hopf, alleged corespondent in the case, is much younger than Mrs. Mandeville. He was a member of the Cranford Republican Club and several other organizations. He is a talented vocalist and musician.

WOMAN APPLICANT FOR NATURALIZATION PAPERS

Elizabeth, Sept. 18.—There were about sixty applications for naturalization papers in the county court, today, and included among them was one made by Mrs. Sophia Rosenquist, of this city. AGED D. A. R. MEMBER DIES AT SON'S HOME

ACCUSE CONTRACTOR OF STEALING GOODS

Kapelsohn Released in $1,000 Bail for Hearing on Charge Preferred by Loizeaux.

Charged with the theft of a piece of smoke pipe, 12 ranges and 8 furnaces, Emanuel Kapelsohn, of 1263 Arlington avenue, a contractor, was arrested last night at 11 o'clock, an a warrant sworn out by J. D. Loizeaux, vice-president and treasurer of the lumber concern in this city, bearing his name. Kapelsohn was released this morning in $1,000 bail for a hearing on Monday morning before City Judge DeMeza, after having spent the night in jail. V. W. Nash, Jr., and Harry C. Runyon, represent the defense and W. R. Codington, of the law firm of Codington & Blatz, is counsel for the complainant.

The charge of theft is based on the builder's action in taking the goods mentioned in the complaint from a house which he erected at 1234-6 Arlington avenue, after several mortgages had been placed on the house and foreclosure proceedings had resulted in a sheriff's sale, at which William Newcorn is said to have purchased the property for Kapelsohn.

The situation is explained in a statement given to reporters by the lawyers for the defense, as follows: "Mr. Kapelsohn is a builder of 30 houses in Arlington avenue, south of Randolph road. A carload of ranges and furnaces were purchased for these buildings from the Thatcher Furnace Co., and Mrs. Annie Kapelsohn, wife of the defendant, gave a mortgage of $2,500 on a property she owns, to insure the payment to the furnace concern. As the furnaces and ranges were required to complete the houses which her husband was building, they were delivered to him. The J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Co., furnished the lumber and other material for the construction of the house at 1234-6 Arlington avenue and a first mortgage was given the company on that property. Subsequently the J. D. Loizeaux Co., sold the mortgage to Sarah L. Manning.

"Interest on the mortgage lapsed and yesterday the property was sold by sheriff's sale to satisfy the mortgage and was bought for Kapelsohn by Mr. Newcorn. It is claimed that Francis J. Blatz, representing Loizeaux, was at the sale and bid on the property, but was unsuccessful in getting it. Subsequent to the sale the warrant was sworn out charging Kapelsohn with the theft of these articles. Mr. Kapelsohn states that 16 furnaces and 12 ranges were taken by him from the Arlington avenue property and were placed in a storeroom at his home because they had been allowed to stand out-of-doors so long that they were beginning to rust and that Loizeaux has no right to them or interest in them."

Mr. Nash further stated that Loizeaux had no interest in Kapelsohn's building operation in Arlington avenue with the exception of the one house—that known as 1234-6 Arlington avenue.

VICTORY FOR CITY IS WON BY REED

P. S. C. Finally Admits Corporation Counsel is Right About Change in Lights.

FREE SERVICE PROTEST

Corporation Takes to State Utility Commission Question as to Whether it Must Furnish Public Buildings Free.

Replying to the request of the Common Council as set forth in a resolution adopted by that body whereby certain changes are desired in the street lighting system, L. D. H. Gilmour, counsel for the Public Service Corporation, has informed Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, who took up the matter with the company, that it will comply with the resolution, but adds that it will be impossible to make the changes in lamps by October 1 as the time fixed.

While nothing was said in the resolution or accompanying letter to the company about the "free lighting" clause of the old contract, Mr. Gilmour still holds that under the provisions of the Public Utilities Act, it is not lawful for the company to give free lighting for the public buildings in this city. However, to settle the question legally, Mr. Gilmour states that it will be submitted to the Public Utilities Commission and if that body decides that the company can furnish the free light it will abide by the decision. Otherwise it will be discontinued and the city is to pay for the free lighting furnished from the time this notice is given.

While it will be up to the Common Council to decide this point, it seems to be the opinion that it would be willing to abide by such a decision. But the free lighting clause has no bearing on the question of improving lighting conditions and the company will make the changes as requested, the victory being due to Corporation Counsel Reed, who contended that the change made no difference in the contract. The P. S. C. stubbornly resisted this contention but finally admitted Mr. Reed was correction in his legal opinion as rendered to the city.

The 25 candle-power incandescent lamps are to be replaced by 32 candle-power Tungstens in the residential and part of the business section, and a number of 350 candle-power Tungstens are to be used in the business section. The 32 candle-power lamps can be furnished promptly, but it will take a little time to make the other changes.

W. C. T. U. ADDRESSED BY MRS. FEICKERT

Tells Them Petticoats Were Disfranchised but Male "Repeaters" Not.

Chitizing the action of the Legislature in disfranchising women during the early days in New Jersey, Mrs. Edward F. Feickert, addressing the Union county W. C. T. U., at its convention in Elizabeth, declared "They disfranchised the petticoats, but did not attempt to disfranchise the large body of male 'repeaters.'

Mrs. Feickert quoting from the early history pointed out that three Elizabeth women are alleged to have "repeated" and some of the colored male voters cast their ballots, so it is said, and then donned women's clothing and voted again and then the Legislature decreed that thence forth women and negroes could not vote. Mrs. Feickert in general characterized the laws of the State unfair to women and briefly reviewed some of the features.

During the course of the county convention, Mayor Mravlag was thanked for his "slight effort to close the saloons in Elizabeth on Sunday"; Sheriff Wright was commended for his humanitarian interest in the welfare of jail prisoners and critisized for permitting the prisoners to "enjoy the luxury of smoking and loafing in jail while the poor wives were overworking themselves to support neglected homes"; Warden and Mrs. Dodd, the latter matron of the jail, were complimented and the Board of Freeholders was thanked for improvements made at the jail.

2ND MURDER TRIAL WILL BEGIN SEPT. 29

Papalillo Must Face Jury Again on Charge of Slaying Colored Man.

Elizabeth, Sept. 18.—Mateio Papalillo, of 213 West Third street, Plainfield, who early in the summer was saved from the electric chair for the alleged murder of his neighbor, Thomas Deers, colored, when the jury disagreed, will be re-tried on the murder charge on September 29. Judge Connolly will recall the old panel from which the jurors who served at the first trial were selected. Victor J. D'Aloia, of Newark, who was the defendant's lawyer, will represent him. Since his last appearance in court, Papalillo has been confined in the county jail without bail.

It will be remembered that at the closing hours of the initial trial, the defense sprang a surprise by claiming that Papalillo was not the murderer and that, on the other hand, while Deers and the defendant were engaged in a fistic argument, another Italian named Salvatore Ianiria had reached around Papalillo's body and lunged a keen-bladed knife into the dead man's abdomen, causing his death. In support of this claim, Mrs. Ianiria was placed on the witness stand and testified that her husband was the real murderer and that he had escaped to Italy soon after committing the crime.

Deers was murdered Saturday, April 12, in front of his home, following a quarrel over house rents. Papalillo was arrested by Detective-Sergeant Flynn. The prisoner never denied the crime to the Plainfield authorities, it is said, and the police of that city regarded the sensational eleventh-hour defense made for Papalillo as mythical, although they could in no way prove to the contrary, with the exception that several witnesses testified that Papalillo was the one who buried the knife in Deers' body.

FINDS HER LONG LOST AUNT HERE

WILL NOT GO WEST

Local Woman Owns Property in Plainfield and Is Reluctant to Rejoin Her Sister Just Now and So Miss Murphy Returns Home Alone.

Through a news story published exclusively in this paper yesterday, Miss Florence Murphy, who came here from St. Paul, Minn., last Saturday night, in quest of her aunt, Mrs. Sarah O'Brien, has been successful in her search. She met her lost relative for the first time in ten years this morning.

Mrs. O'Brien is well known in this city, where she has lived for the last thirty years and mysteriously disappeared on the eve of her niece's coming, leaving no means of communication. Reading the story of Miss Murphy's trip East in the Daily Press yesterday, a prominent city official, in whose home the supposedly missing women has been employed as a domestic, got in touch with the paper and as a result Miss Murphy was informed of her aunt's present abode.

Miss Murphy came here with the idea of taking Mrs. O'Brien back to St. Paul with her, where her sister, Miss Murphy's mother, now resides, and awaits her coming. The Plainfield woman is reluctant to go West, however, as she owns property in this city which is at present involved in litigation. It is probable that she will refuse to accompany her niece when the latter leaves for home tonight. A member of the family in whose employ Mrs. O'Brien is at the present time stated this morning that she had been anxiously awaiting the arrival of mail from her relatives in the West and she knew nothing of her niece's arrival here until she read yesterday's issue of the Daily Press.

Mrs. O'Brien did not try to elude her relative who wanted her to leave the city in which she has made her home for so many years, but upon learning of her niece's coming took steps to find her. Whether or not Mrs. O'Brien consents to go to the home of her sister, Miss Murphy will leave for St. Paul tonight. This is the first time she had seen her aunt in ten years and the two are spending the last few hours of Miss Murphy's eastern visit together.

Big Store Celebrating Its 17th Anniversary

No Brass Bands or Professional Singers, but Bargains for Customers the Feature.

The Big Store began the celebration of its seventeenth anniversary last Monday and will continue it for two weeks. Throughout this period the two big buildings, which face Sixth Ave. on either side at Eighteenth and Nineteenth Sts., will be centers of attraction for the thousands of shoppers who know that bargains abound when anniversaries come around. Both stores are gorgeously dressed to please the eye. More than 5,000 flags have been used in the Big Store alone, and every department—there are 102 departments—has individual decorations that show taste and individuality. Miss Liberty, who watches the fountain on the main floor and keeps her eye on things generally, has been given a new cloth of gold.

Mr. B. J. Greenhut, of the Greenhut-Siegel Cooper Company, was looking Miss Liberty over to-day. He regards her as the Big Store's mascot.

"Yes," said he to our reporter, "this is the beginning of our eighteenth year, and I predict it will be a great one. We have made things look pretty so that our customers will be pleased, but we have done more than that. Instead of brass bands and professional singers to help us in our celebration we have done something strictly original. We have placed on sale for the coming two weeks goods that will put in the pockets of our customers the money we would have spent in extensive musical and concert programmes."

Many interesting things are to be seen on the various floors of the Big Store. The Food Show, on the fourth floor, is an eye opener. Here more than 100 demonstrations are going on, and the samples that are being given out would keep a small family for a month. The decorations on this floor, made up of white maple saplings and autumn leaves, are most effective.

The Big Store is ready to give all its patrons, new and old, a hearty welcome and a share of its profits while the celebration is on. Goods worth more than $200,000 have been underpriced for the occasion.

STYLISH—RELIABLE

was written by a friend of the Rothberg Store. The writer is not an "ad man"—but a local carpenter, and one of the best in town.

Will YOU write an advertisement for Rothberg's?

In line with the straight talk idea

Ralph Waldo Emerson said of Goethe: "Talent alone cannot make a writer. There must be a man behind the book."

This is also true of a business. The ability to buy and sell; without the underlying principle of the square deal; the mutual profit idea, will not put a business on a solid foundation. There must be a man behind the business.

In the Rothberg Store you will find men with the ability to buy, sell and give real service to the purchaser—and you will always feel that there is a MAN BEHIND THE business.

DISCONTINUES OFFICE WHEN POSTMASTER ASKS INCREASE

New Brunswick, Sept. 18.—The request made by Joseph Danzie, a druggist in Highland Park, for a raise of salary of $100 as postmaster, has resulted in the Postoffice Department ordering Postmaster Peter Hendricks, of this city, to discontinue this substation. The orders have been carried into effect, causing inconvenience to the residents of the borough across the Raritan river.

Sometime ago the department established a branch in the drug store, then conducted by the Van Deursen Pharmacy, of this city. The government paid $100 a year, but Mr. Danzie thought it worth $200. He requested the increase, and the closing of the office is the answer. The residents will endeavor to have it reopened.

The local office has the Highland Park mail delivered by carrier, the sub-station being only a convenience in selling stamps and issuing money orders.

WOULD LIMIT WATER CO.'S RARITAN RIVER DIVERSION

Trenton, Sept. 18.—Taking of testimony was begun before Vice Chancellor Backes yesterday in the proceedings instituted by residents of Bridgewater and Hillsborough to enjoin the Somerville Water Company from diverting water from the Raritan River or its tributaries, except to the extent that may be necessary to supply Somerville and Raritan.

The first witness called was Charles H. Folwell, secretary of the State Water Supply Commission, who produced the records of the board for the purpose of showing that the commission has not given its consent to the proposed diversion of water as required by the act of 1907.

The main contention of the complainants was that the Somerville Water Company has no authority to divert water for the purpose of supplying municipalities or individuals outside of the communities of Somerville and Raritan. In this connection, the complainants allege that the act of 1876, under which the water company claims to exercise such authority, is unconstitutional and therefore void. Failure of the company to obtain the approval of the Water Supply Commission, was urged as a further incident in support of the claim that the company is usurping power which it does not properly possess.

William H. Boardman, assistant engineer for the Water Supply Commission, and Clyde Potts, an engineer, of Morristown and New York, were called to give testimony regarding the flow of the river at different periods of the year and under different conditions. Much of the testimony was objected to by counsel for the water company, but all of the questions were admitted by the vice chancellor as revelant to the inquiry.

The complainants in the proceedings are all riparian owners along the Raritan River. They are Bernard Meyer and John F. Schmalike, of Bridgewater; John Groendyke, Cyrus S. Peterson, William Beardsley, George V. Gresse, John W. Hamilton, Charles W. Hamilton and John M. Frazee, all of Hillsborough.

DECISION IS RESERVED IN AN "OLEO" CASE

Margaret Moran, a clerk in the employ of the Wisconsin Creamery, at its store on Madison avenue, was the defendant in an action in the District Court, today, wherein the State Board of Health was the complainant. Josiah Stryker, of the Attorney-General's office, represented the State Board of Health, while Judge Higgins, of Jersey City, represented the defendant.

It was the contention of the State that the defendant had violated section four of the oleomargarine act, in that she did not properly notify customers that oleomargarine was being sold, as required by law. Judge Higgins maintained that there had been no violation of the law.

Judge Walter L. Heffield reserved decision.

It was added that the captain hoped to arrive at the Lightship at 11 p. m. Thursday and that the vessel probably would dock early Friday morning.

Announcing the New Fall Clothing for Men

(Men's Clothing—Second Floor—Washington Street).

The Bamberger store invites the men and young men of Newark and nearby to critically inspect the new Fall and Winter clothing that has been gathered for them. It will do any man good to see this splendid stock of suits and overcoats, not merely to learn what's what in men's styles, but because the clothing demonstrates clearly and convincingly that the average man does not have to patronize a custom tailor to get distinctive clothes. In fact, men of discriminating judgment will easily see that they can secure better materials, better tailoring, better fitting qualities, better satisfaction in Bamberger suits and overcoats than is possible in a tailor shop for a fourth to a third more money. The best clothing makers in the world enter into competition with each other to be represented in Bamberger clothing stocks. You may therefore expect to see clothing of surpassing merit at this store.

The New Blue and White and Black and White Chalk Stripes, Brown Mixtures, Gray Mixtures and Staple Patterns and the English and Conservative Models will meet the approval of any body of discriminating men. Not only do the suits and overcoats look good on the outside—they ARE good on the inside. The interlinings are the best qualities and the tailoring the best possible obtainable, according to the price of the garment. The materials are guaranteed all wool. There are extreme English cut coats with long roll lapels, patch pockets and cuffed sleeves for men who like a little dash in their apparel. There are conservative models for the more sedate. GREAT CHURCH GATHERINGS.

Two unusually important church conferences or conclaves will be held during the coming month and in view of the vital questions to be discussed and decided at these gatherings their outcome is awaited with a great deal of interest in church circles throughout the country. Bishops and clerical and lay deputies of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States will gather in New York city on October 8, to the number of about eight hundred to attend the forty-third triennial general convention.

It is twenty-five years since a general convention has been held in New York city and the leading clergymen and laymen of the diocese have made every effort to make the occasion notable in the annals of the church.

The delegates will come from every part of the United States and will represent the communicants of the Protestant Episcopal church in this country, of whom there are about 1,000,000. The convention will include 100 bishops and 600 deputies, 300 of whom are clergymen and 300 laymen.

One of the proposed changes in church law which will come up at the convention and which, it is expected, will be debated with great forcefulness by the advocates of both sides, will affect the representation in the convention, so that such representation in the convention shall be based on the number of communicants in any diocese instead of being the same for all regardless of the number of communicants.

Another matter which is expected to give rise to considerable discussion is the question of changing the name of the church. This matter has been agitated for a long time, but the views concerning the name to be substituted for the present designation of the church are widely different. A majority of those who are dissatisfied with the present name, seem to favor the name of American Catholic church. Another subject of considerable importance to be considered is the attitude of the church to marriage and divorce.

The second American Catholic Missionary Congress, under the auspices of the Catholic Church Extension Society, which will open its session in Boston on October 19, is looked upon as one of the most important Catholic church gatherings held in this country for many years. Eighty bishops from different parts of the United States, Canada, Mexico, and other countries, hundreds of minor members of the catholic clergy and thousands of laymen will attend the gathering.

The Catholic missionary work of the world will be discussed at the coming congress and plans will be formulated for carrying on ths work with even greater zeal than heretofore. The necessity for this is realized and appreciated by the entire Catholic clergy. The Holy See has appointed the Most Rev. John Bonzano, D. D., Archbishop of Mitilene and Apostolic delegate to the United States, as his special pontifical delegate to this congress, a most signal tribute to the importance of the gathering.

CHANGE FOR BETTER.

Truly remarkable is the change in politics as respects the line of action pursued by rival candidates for party nomination. This has come to pass since the new primary law was ordained but never has it been emphasized better than in the present campaign for gubernatorial party labels. Here we have men of the highest type of citizenship, in all three major parties, aspiring to be the standard bearers and each in his own way is conducting a clean fight. None has yet offended by engaging in any "mud-slinging" to harm his adversary, except Osborne, of the Progressives.

Each is confining himself to a discussion of the issues, calmly and clearly explaining his own beliefs as to governmental policies and obligations. There has been a frankness of expression that is really admirable. Equivocation and evasevness have been an absent quantity. The respective candidates of the various parties are spending their days addressing the people through their press bureaus and they are spending their evenings personally speaking to the voters.

May it ever be thus.

The Saturday contributed editorial will interest you. Don't fail to read it.

CIVIL WAR VETERANS HOLD THEIR REUNION

Forty Survivors of the 30th Reg't, N. J. Vols., Gather at Somerville.

The annual reunion of the Thirtieth Regiment, N. J. Vols., was held at Somerville yesterday. The attendance of veterans was small, there being only forty in all at the meeting and about fifty at the dinner. At the business meeting it was decided to hold the reunion hereafter on the first Wednesday in October instead of the third Wednesday in September. These officers were elected for the coming yar:

President, Nathan V. Compton, of Rahway; vice-president, Chris. Ehni, of Raritan; secretary-treasurer, Jas. E. Tier, of Rahway. These officers are all new as the death of the old officers made this action necessary.

Out of the original 101 members of Co. H which recruited from this section there are only about nine survivors among whom are Nelson Runyon, Charles H. Randolph, J. Lance Mundy, Randolph Thorn, Tenadore Van Cleef and Jacob Manning. The late J. Frank Hubbard was captain of the company. Some of the above attended yesterday's reunion and enjoyed the dinner served at Schenck's Hotel.

OVATION FOR THAW ON WAY TO CONCORD

Crowds Cheer Him at Stations Along Route.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 18.—Over a thousand cheering spectators greeted Harry K. Thaw when he arrived here in custody of United States Marshal Nute and Sheriff Holman Drew.

All along the route, during the four hour run from Littleton, Thaw got ovations. At Plymouth a short stop was made for luncheon in the railroad station dining room. Harry had a table reserved for himself, his two guards and ex-Governor Stone and Merrill Shurtleff, one of his New Hampshire lawyers.

During the meal the entire population of Plymouth filed past the dining room window to get a look at Thaw. They gave him a big cheer as his train pulled out and Harry returned the greeting with many smiles and waves of the hand.

On arriving at Concord the train had literally to crawl along the tracks, so closely was the throng packed. As Thaw descended from the smoking car the crowd made a rush for him.

A pretty woman in a varicolored mackinaw coat screamed, "Three cheers for Harry Thaw!"

The cheers were given with a will.

Thaw was driven to the Eagle hotel, where he has a comfortable suite, the best he has had since his fight began, and at once went into a conference with his attorneys.

The hotel is directly opposite the state house, where on Tuesday Governor Felker will hold his hearing on the application of the governor of New York to extradite the man from Matteawan.

MRS. PANKHURST CONFIDENT

Believes Openmindedness of Americans Will Prevent Deportation.

Paris, Sept. 18.—Mrs. Emeline Pankhurst, the leader of the British militant suffragettes, made her promised statement regarding her proposed visit to the United States.

Mrs. Pankhurst said she will go to America as announced, sailing from Havre on Oct. 11, and will run the risk of being held up at Ellis island, confident that the openmindedness of the Americans will act to prevent her deportation.

"I have considerable faith in the openmindedness of the Americans," she observed.

The militant leader then proceeded to point out that there was nothing on which she could be lawfully held up in the United States. She asserted that she could not be detained as an undesirable and pointed out that she is not a fugitive from English justice, although under a three year sentence.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

As a result of the election held this morning to select directors for the Boys' Athletic Association the following four were chosen: Benjamin Rosenson, Guy Snyder, Donald Sminck and William Peacock. The fifth office was tied between Morris Mann, Arthur LaRue and Craig Blair and another ballot will have to be taken. The tellers were John Cottrell, Clinton Berrien, Philip Schuyler, Elston Hoagland and Harold Williams.

The football team held its first scrimmage of the season yesterday afternoon on Parker Field, the eleven taking the field with the following players: Ends, Smith, Mann and Noonan; tackles, Herrmann, Butler and Gavett; guards, Pennock, McKenzie and Berrien; center, Lindsey. The backfield consists of halfbacks Green and Snyder; fullbacks, Sminck and Schenck, and quarterback, Captain Peacock.

Smith, who played for the Somerville High School eleven last season, is showing up particularly well on the P. H. S. eleven and is looked upon as one of the most likely to secure a position in this year's line. The P. H. S. team is short a kicker but several of the aspirants are being coached by Director Hatch and some phenom may develop before the season opens.

A communication was received from Pennington Preparatory School this morning and a game will be arranged with this strong prep school eleven. A contest is also pending with the Long Branch High School team.

The senior class elections will be held tomorrow in the school corridors.

COLORED BISHOP SPEAKS AT FIRST M. E. CHURCH

Rt. Rev. Evans Tyree, of Nashville, Tenn., of the First Episcopal District comprising the Philadelphia, New York, New England and New Jersey Conferences of the A. M. E. church, spoke last night before a large congregation in the First M. E. church, taking for his text, the last verse of Isaiah. The colored surplus choir of the Mt. Zion church, rendered a program of hymns.

Bishop Tyree compared the existing condition in the world with the condition that will prevail when the ransomed of the Lord shall be returned. He told of his work in the south and particularly in the district of which he is bishop. He said the conversion of the colored people is making them more intelligent and slowly but surely fitting them for their fight in the industrial world.

NO MORE BEER AT ELECTIONS

Justice Swayze Banishes Old Custom as Unlawful.

IS AN INDICTABLE OFFENSE

If Anything of Kind Happens This Year Those Offending Must Be Presented For Trial and Punishment. Board Unable to Count Votes In Some Cases.

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 18.—Another reform has struck Jersey. Beer will be seen no more in election booths. Custom must give way to law, says Justice Francis J. Swayze of the New Jersey supreme court. In charging the Hudson county grand jury now in session he declared he had been informed that in some parts of the county it was a long standing custom of the election boards to have a keg of beer or other liquor in the election booth for its own use and also to have a basket, box or other article placed so as to suggest the donation of money for the board.

The having or bringing liquor into a polling place was against the law and an indictable offense, and the justice charged that if anything of the kind happened this year those offending must be presented for trial and punishment.

This action will break up a long standing custom which has resulted in the votes of some sections of Hudson county not being returned as counted for a day or even several days. There have been cases in past years whereby the time the polls closed at 7 in the evening the board was in no condition to count votes, and even if they attempted to do so some of the members would be liable to count double.

It used to be no uncommon thing for the interested spectators to "sit in" to count the votes for local officers so as to know the result and let the board sleep. The counting of the head of the ticket, being of minor importance locally, was left for another day. Even when the vote was counted all sorts of mistakes were made.

DRUG CRUSADE IN JERSEY.

Pharmacists Arrested For Selling Heroin and Cocaine Illegally.

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 18.—Hearing that hundreds of young men in lower parts of this city had become addicted to the use of heroin and cocaine by the extensive sale of the drugs and that within the year three of the victims had been killed by the habit, Director of Public Safety Hague launched three weeks ago an investigation which was marked yesterday by the arrest of four druggists and two clerks on charges of selling drugs illegally. They were held in $2,500 bail for examination, and five young men were paroled as witnesses.

The arrested druggists were Harry Halper of Avenue C and Twenty-sixth street, Bayonne; Frank J. Bangham of Claremont and Jackson avenues; Harry Wackerbath of Hudson boulevard and DeKalb avenue, and Theodore Norwood of 115 Palisade avenue, Jersey City. Of the same address is William Binkley, one of the clerks, and the other clerk was J. A. Zabriskie of 131 Shippen street, Weehawken.

BODY OF GIRL FOUND IN RIVER

Stones Tied Up In Dress Lead Police to Suicide Theory.

Kearny, N. J., Sept. 18.—The body of Alice Hopper, sixteen years old, of 183 Windsor street was found floating in the Passaic river at Harrison. She disappeared from her home on last Saturday evening just after having supper.

The fact that her dress was pulled up to the waist, tied at the back and that several stones were found inside of the dress, the police say, points to suicide. An examination failed to reveal any wounds on the body. From its general appearance death appeared to be due to drowning.

The girl was brought to this country several years ago with a younger sister, both having been adopted by Mrs. Sarah Hopper, who is now abroad visiting relatives in Liverpool. She had finished at high school last year and was acting as housekeeper in the absence of her foster parent. Members of the Hopper household were unable to assign any reason why the girl should take her life.

STOKES AS MOOSE STALKER.

Seeks to Coax Progressive Votes Into the Republican Poll.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 18.—Determined to get out a full vote at next Tuesday's primaries if possible and also desiring to make it known that all Progressives who want to affiliate with the Republicans this year will be warmly welcomed, former Governor E. C. Stokes has written to each of the Republican county chairmen asking them to make the law plain to the voters. He argues that a man who voted for a majority of the candidates on the Republican ticket last year is still a member of the G. O. P. and entitled to all party privileges.

The former governor also announced the members of his advisory committee.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

By a special arrangement with William A. Brady, Charles Frohman will present Grace George at the Plainfield Theatre, Plainfield, for a single performance of J. M. Barrie's playlet, "Half An Hour," preceded by the comery, "The Younger Generation," on Wednesday, September 24. It will be the first double bill given at this theatre in some time; it will be Miss George's first appearance as a Frohman star, and it will be the first performance on any stage of Mr. Barrie's latest short play—similar in reality and vigor to his earlier playlet, "The Twelve-Pound Look."

POLITICAL

Basing their claims on a comparison of the number of signatures on the nominating petitions, the Colby Progressives in the county say that their candidates for the Assembly, former Mayor Moy, of Plainfield; Mayor Fish, of Roselle Park, and Clarence P. Morrell, of Elizabeth, should have a walk-over in the primary election. Their were 312 signatures to their nominating petitions, point out the Colbyites, compared to 145 signatures for the Osborne Assembly candidates and they also point to the fact that the latter had their petitions in circulation about three times as long as the Colby adherents, as significant of the way the vote will result. Asserting that all parts of the county were represented on the Colby candidates' petitions, while the Osborne petitions were signed mostly by Elizabethans, the Colby men say they will more than hold their own in Elizabeth and will easily carry the rest of the county.

COLLINS SHOULD EFFACE SELF.

If Major-General Dennis F. Collins is a candidate for the chairmanship of the Democratic State committee, as dispatches from Trenton intimate, he had better put the ambition aside.

General Collins is the president of a brewery in the city of Elizabeth. As such he is the avowed representative of a special interest. One of the characteristics of the times is the elimination of the special interest from politics.

The State committee, elected for three years, is now a legally constituted body. The law contemplates that the State chairman shall be a campaign manager, a director of strategy. It provides that he shall sit in the State convention of his party to help frame its policies. Custom has made him a collector and distributor of campaign funds. He recommends appointments, and puts his influence as State chairman behind his recommendations.

Would the Democratic voters of the State, if they had the direct voice, put a brewer in a place of such great political power? Wouldn't they build splendidly to attract the lightning of criticism if they should? They would be supplying their opponents with the deadliest ammunition. Not much strategy in that.

State committeemen, either openly or secretly, are often the creators of judges and prosecutors in their own counties. County judges grant the liquor licenses for the smaller municipalities; prosecutors have excise laws to enforce.

Here are the instruments of political death for the party that makes a brewer its State chairman. They may never be used, but they are too temptingly close to the hand for comfort.

The voters of the State would hardly put the regulation of the liquor trade in the hands of a brewer, no matter what assurances they had that he would rise above selfish interests. The affairs of the brewery come too close to the making of party policies, too close to the business of the Legislature and the work of the courts to permit with wisdom the selection of a brewer as the official head of a party organization. In a more or less degree it would let him regulate the liquor traffic.

If it is a prejudice of the people that would cause them to object to a brewer as State chairman it is one so widespread that it demands concessions from a wisely directed party. But it is no prejudice. It is a recognized principle that an interest which exists because the people have given it certain privileges shall not itself attempt to control the granting of these privileges.

The breweries of New Jersey own a vast number of saloons. They are in politics. General Collins' brewery in Elizabeth is no exception. The State excise investigating commission wrote a sad story of brewery domination in Elizabeth. By effacing himself as a candidate for the State chairmanship General Collins will greatly aid his party. If he is not capable of making the sacrifice voluntarily, it should be imposed upon him.—Newark News.

LIVED IN THE SAME TOWN

Letters Show Dentist Was Sought by Scotland Yard—Schmidt Not Only Murderer, but Sneak Thief and Counterfeiter.

New York, Sept. 18.—Working on the cases of Hans Schmidt, self confessed murderer of Anna Aumuller, and "Dr." Ernest A. Muret, accomplice of the priest in a counterfeiting plot, two score detectives of the United States secret service and the New York police department made reports which led to the following conclusions:

"That Schmidt and Muret, long before they left Europe, had formed a criminal partnership and that not only since coming to the United States, but long before each had knowledge of the criminal operations of the other, and that Schmidt, far from being a lunatic, was one of the most deliberately cunning and heartless crooks in criminal history."

Muret a Fugitive From Justice.

This conclusion was based on the following facts:

Among the possessions of Muret in his flat at 301 St. Nicholas avenue was found a photograph of himself taken in Mainz, Germany, during the time that Schmidt lived in that city.

From letters found in the St. Nicholas avenue flat of the pseudo dentist it was found that he is a fugitive from English justice and that Scotland Yard detectives were trying two years ago to locate him and presumably still would like to know his whereabouts. The letters disclosing this fact were from Muret's wife—he has posed in this country as an unmarried man. From the tenor of these letters it is believed that the charge against him was in connection with illegal practice of medicine.

Other documents found in the Muret flat indicate that he had traveled under several different names in many cities on two continents and that in Chicago he was known as Dr. Arthur Held.

Schmidt's Many Crimes.

Schmidt was shown to have been not only a murderer, but in his priestly guise a counterfeiter, a sneak thief and a man who as a priest stole hundreds of dollars from letters sent by parishioners to his pastor and from the Easter collection taken at St. Joseph's, the church he was supposed to serve.

William J. Flynn, chief of the United States secret service in New York, a man of long experience with counterfeiters, declared that in all his experience he had never found a man who pursued counterfeiting to be insane. More than this, he had never heard of an insane counterfeiter.

Church Vessels In Muret's Safe.

In the safe in the office of "Dr." Muret were found papers indicating that Muret had been involved in a questionable land deal and several anointing cups, receptacles used by priests to hold blessed oil in the administering of extreme unction. These are believed to have been placed in the safe by Schmidt.

The more the detectives worked to run down the clews to the mysterious activities of Schmidt the more they became convinced that only a minor part of these activities had so far been uncovered.

SECRETARY LANE NO BETTER

Requires Absolute Rest For a Fortnight, Physicians Say.

Berkeley, Cal., Sept. 18.—That the improvement in the condition of Secretary of the Interior Lane has not been as rapid as had been anticipated was the interpretation placed on the action of the physicians in removing him from the home of his brother in North Berkeley. It was said he was removed because it was too noisy in the districts where the secretary's brother lives. Absolute and unbroken rest for at least a fortnight is regarded as necessary.

WIFE FACING TRIAL FOR REUTER MURDER

Two Men Convicted and She Must Answer in Court as Their Accomplice.

Bartlesville, Okla., Sept. 18.—Hundreds of visitors have arrived here from Tulsa and other cities of this State, attracted by the fact that on Monday next Mrs. Laura M. Reuter, a former society leader and prominent church worker of Tulsa, will be placed on trial before a jury in the local district court upon the charge of complicity in the murder of her husband, Charles T. Reuter, an attorney of Tulsa. Guy Mackenzie and Joe Baker, the two men whose accomplice Mrs. Reuter is charged with having been, were tried upon the charge of murder some months ago and are now serving life terms in the State penitentiary, having been found guilty of the murder of Reuter.

The case was originally on the docket of the superior court at Tulsa, but was transferred to the district court at Bartlesville on a change of venue, after an agreement to this effect had been reached by the attorneys of the State and those of the accused woman. The case will be tried before District Judge R. H. Hudson, by whose order a venire of 100 jurors has been drawn from which the jury in the case will be selected. County Attorney Pat Malloy, of Tulsa, and his first assistant, Ed Crossland, will represent the State, while several noted lawyers will guard the interests of Mrs. Reuter.

The coming trial, which is awaited throughout the State with a great deal of interest, will probably form the concluding chapter of one of the most puzzling mysteries which the authorities and courts of Oklahoma have ever faced. Although two men were found guilty of the murder the real motives and the true inside history of the crime have never become publicly known. Whether the mystery will be solved at the coming trial remains to be seen. Nearly two hundred witnesses have been subpoenaed by the State and by the defense and the trial is expected to last a month or more.

Charles T. Reuter, a well-known and prosperous lawyer of Tulsa, was killed in his bedroom on the upper floor of his Tulsa residence on the night of May 5 last. The shots which had caused his death and the screams of Mrs. Reuter alarmed the whole neighborhood and when the police entered the house they found Mr. Reuter dead on his bed, while Mrs. Reuter was locked in her room on the opposite side of the hall, screaming for help. It was ascertained that jewelry valued at $400 and $150 in cash, which Mr. Reuter was known to have in his pocket, were missing and the natural inference was that Mr. Reuter had been killed by burglars who had entered his house to rob him.

A thorough investigation was at once begun. It was ascertained that a tall man, masked, and with a red light dangling from his belt, had been seen running from the Reuter home immediately after the shots had been heard. But the burglary theory did not satisfy the police officials and on the following day Guy D. Mackenzie, Grover Bellew, his chauffeur, and Joe Baker were arrested on the theory that Reuter's murder was the result of a conspiracy, with robbery as a blind to conceal the real motive. Not until the preliminary examination of the three men began was Mrs. Reuter served with a warrant charging her with being a party to the alleged conspiracy.

At the preliminary examination a great deal of damaging evidence unearthed by the police was offered and the men as well as Mrs. Reuter were held for trial. The men were tried together and in the course of the trial the prosecution maintained that there had been intimacy between Mackenzie and Mrs. Reuter. It was shown that there had been frequent quarrels between Reuter and his wife; that Mrs. Reuter and Mackenzie frequently met and that she accompanied him several times on joy rides in his automobile. The attempt to prove an alibi for Mackenzie and the other men accused, failed, and while the charge against Bellew was dropped, Mackenzie and Joe Baker, his friend and companion, were held for trial. Their trial was brief and they were found guilty and sent to the penitentiary for life.

Mrs. Reuter, who comes from a good family and occupied a high social position in Tulsa, where she was prominently identified with church work and women's club life, was held for trial but was permitted to remain at liberty upon her own recognizance. She continued to live quietly in her home on North Cheyenne avenue, Tulsa. She is the daughter of Benjamin McKean, formerly postmaster at Indianapolis, Ind., is 26 years old and has two small children. Public opinion seems to be in her favor and it is believed by her numerous friends that she will be able clearly to establish her innocence of any actual or implied share in the alleged conspiracy which led to the murder of her late husband.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

The Housewife's Daily Economy Calendar

FRANCES MARSHALL

GO TO SEE THE DENTIST.

After reading some articles written by men and women of profound learning the reader comes to the conclusion that one wrong condition accounts for all the sorrow and unhappiness and suffering in the world. Sometimes it is adenoids that come in for attention. Sometimes it is broken arches. Sometimes it is eyestrain. And sometimes it is uncared for teeth.

Of course, a man or woman can go through life with poor teeth and yet have enough health to be happy and sane. But the soundness of the teeth has a real and important bearing to the soundness of the rest of the body. Therefore, it behooves everyone to look well to the care of his teeth.

When to Begin.

It is never too soon to begin to care for a child's teeth. Although the latest theory is that boracic acid is perhaps not best as a mouth wash for very small babies—because they swallow a little—still the babies mouth should be put in good condition to receive its teeth even before these make an appearance. It should be kept clean, if not with anything else, at least with water.

The first teeth should be carefully watched, for if they are allowed to decay they often affect the teeth coming in about them and sometimes injure the gum. So watch for any signs of decay and have them attended to immediately.

It is an odd thing that children, most of them, do not like to wash their teeth. Tooth washing should be as much a habit as washing the hands; and be it said in encouragement, the child who once gets in the habit of washing its teeth regularly three or four or even five times a day becomes a crank on the subject—and has good teeth in old age to show for it.

Instill the habit of a regular visit to the dentist early. Once every three or four months the child should be taken to a reputable dentist to see that the teeth are sound and clean. Small cavities can then be detected and cared for and small bills will be the welcome result.

MOTHERS' WORK

Conducted by the Plainfield Mothers' Association. Every Thursday

Contributing Staff.

Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, Mrs. Jos. Smith, Mrs. Wm. M. Sandford, Jr.

The Daily Press for Thursdays containing the column on Mother's Work will be sent by mail for one dollar a year, in advance.

In telling the N. E. A. of his now famous system of school credit for home work, L. R. Alderman said that one day he told his algebra class that I would give them ten problems for the next day's work. Five will be in the book, and the other five will be out of the book. The five out of the book will be, First, help get supper tonight; second, help with supper dishes; third, help get breakfast; fourth, sweep a floor; fifth, make a bed. I also gave certain duties to the boys. I said, these tasks are going to count the same as algebra problems.

The next morning I was delighted to see the eagerness with which they responded.

* * * * *

The tasks were changed during the year. We had at different times credit given for home work, the same as for school work. During a discussion at an institute meeting, a very good principal asked me, "If we give credit in algebra for home duties, what will become of the algebra?" I never have been able to answer his question. ..... It seemed worth while for us to go into home work and give some credit for it

Everyone should read this entire address. It may be found in Child Welfare Magazine for August, which is on file in the Public Library, or a copy may be had for ten cents by sending to J. B. Lippincott Co., 227 South Sixth street, Philadelphia.

"Dr. Montessori's Significant Play," Jennie B. Merrill, Ph. D., The Mother's Magazine, July. In the home, if you begin with a child of eighteen months or two years, give him the simplest block of the set upon the floor. Draw out one cylinder, and then stop to see what he will do. Perhaps he will put it back; perhaps he will poke his little finger into the hole, or perhaps he will spy another brass knob and imitate your action. It matters not which he does. The important thing is to have him do something of his own volition. Do not interfere unless he attempts to put the wooden cylinder into his mouth. In such case, take it quietly, without saying, "No, no," and slip it back into its hole. If he wants to draw it out, let him do so. If he does nothing, draw another cylinder out and possibly go on removing several in succession until the child's attention is concentrated upon your action. Leave him alone now, and observe from a distance.

* * * * *

If the little one should be content simply to put one or two cylinders in and out, do not urge him further. Let him have the pleasure of discovering the other brass knobs at some later time. The average mother forces the child and wants to show him too much at a time.

* * * * *

Gradually he finds out that some cylinders will not go into the smaller holes, that the smaller cylinders will go into larger holes, but that if he wants to put them all in, he must find the right places for each one. He becomes more of less conscious of large and small, and larger and smaller, and a graded diminishing series. When he is ready, take out the two extremes and say simply, "This is the largest," "This is the smallest." Back of this language lesson are his sense impressions.

A surprise comes when he fits in all but one cylinder and finds the hole left over will not accommodate the one left. Now he must hunt for the error. It would be wrong to show him. It is the discovery of his own mistakes that will be most helpful. Dr. Montessori calls this auto-education, and has arranged her materials so that it is possible for a child left to himself to improve and correct his own errors.

* * * * *

Let us now recapitulate these exercises Dr. Montessori suggests as "First Grade," or for the youngest children.

1. Helping daily in placing chairs or other small objects in their proper places, and gradually doing it quickly.

2. Use of little looms for exercises in lacing, buttoning, hooking, tying, in order to help the child in dressing and undressing himself. (A shoe may be used instead of a loom.)

3. Opportunity to pour out water from a little pitcher into a basin, to bathe his own hands several times daily, using soap with some care. (Very tiny cakes, or pieces, or thin slices, can be given if children are inclined to waste soap.)

4. Fitting cylindrical inserts into corresponding holes in wooden blocks, introducing gradually three sets. Where it is inconvenient to procure this material, devise similar exercises with home materials. Remember, grandmother's medicine bottles! Use boxes and bottles of many sizes, fitting covers and stoppers. Stand them in rows according to size. Such exercises are not fully equivalent to those suggested by Dr. Montessori as can be readily tested—but they are of marked value as substitutes.

"How Strict Are You With Your Daughter?" Hon. John J. Freschi, city magistrate of the City of New York, Good Housekeeping, July. This kind and just judge knows and sympathizes with girls as Judge Lindsey with boys, and has acquired a national reputation for his wise and helpful decisions and personal work in behalf of the unfortunate.

One may as easily be too careful of a daughter as not careful enough. Young girls beyond number, who might have grown up to virtuous womanhood under parents who were what the world would term "lax," have been actually driven to disaster by parents widely acclaimed as paragons of watchfulness.

* * * * *

Does it not strike you as a singular coincidence that such parents do have weak daughters to a surprising degree?

* * * * *

They would force their mature ideas on her immature mind. Good reading, lectures and croquet, they prescribe as proper amusements for her. One might as logically expect a patriarch to enjoy marbles and leap frog.

Amusements—congenial amusement—is the inalienable rights of youth; and the parent who combats it wages a losing fight with instinct—the same instinct that draws the young of every animal to play. Pleasure is as essential as food in the normal development of the child. You may deny a certain variety of food or amusement, but Nature will require a substitute. It remains with the parent whether that substitute be wholesome or harmful. The parent who is blind to this, is directly responsible when the daughter, to satisfy that instinctive craving, takes to the course of secrecy. Secrecy is the parent of all evil—its inspiration, its source and the opportunity and the means of its concealment. Even wholesome pleasures, when secured clandestinely, become dangerous. Since the days of Mother Eve, there has been something alluring about the forbidden.

* * * * *

Invariably, it is at the most unpropitious time in the girl's life—when the sex instinct is unfolding—that the thoughtless parents become most censorious. Fear of the male haunts them. They forbid the dances, excursions, and the like. Their daughters would be thrown in contact with young men. If they but stopped to think, that is the very reason these diversions appeal to the girl. The parents announce, with finality, that they don't purpose having their daughter's mind filled with romantic foolery!

Oh, the blatant presumption of these parents. They are going to oppose the most resistless of all nature's manifestations. As well say that they are going to prevent the seeds from awakening at the touch of spring. If the girl be normal, she is inevitably going to awaken to the touch of romance.

"Carnality in Song, Dance and Dress," from Literary Digest. "Is it not pitiful to look upon a little girl, perhaps seven or eight years old, snapping her fingers, swaying from side to side, and lustily singing, as if her very heart were in every note, 'Ev'rybody's doin' in, doin' it.' She hears her big sister sing it; her big sister hears it at a "show,' and her beau buys it for her. Glance at the sheet music displayed on the piano in the 'front parlor' of nearly every home in the country. Do you see any songs like 'Annie Laurie,' 'Ben Bolt,' or 'The Last Rose of Summer?' No; you see 'The Devil's Ball,' 'The Dippy Rag,' 'The Baboon Baby Dance,' and 'The Tango Twist,' each one with a title-page picturing contortioned dancers partly clothed, and the printed words, 'The reigning success of the day.' And the worst of it all is, that these songs appeal not only to the low- and vicious-minded, but the great majority of our church-going, pious-minded people pay out their money to attend theatres in order to hear and applaud them."

* * * * *

"Never in history were the modes so abhorrently indecent as they are today. One may make the closest study of costumes through the prints and drawings and sculptures of five thousand years and find nothing to equal the shameless styles worn unabashed in the crowded streets and summer resorts by hundreds of thousands of apparently respectable girls."

* * * * *

"If girls had a faint idea of the disgusting sight they presented, or could hear some of the unmanly, dissolute remarks made about them as they pass along the streets, clad in transparent waists, or one of those short, outlandish, tight-gripping, hobble skirts, they would feel so ashamed, that if they had a spark of virtue left in them, they would go to their rooms or get out of sight somewhere till they had a sensible dress to put on. How can they expect people to distinguish them from the low and corrupt if they dress exactly like them?"

GOOD ROADS CONVENTION.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 18.—County chairmen of the various political parties, union labor organizations represented by their officials, members of automobile clubs, medical societies and local roads associations gathered here today in large numbers in the hall of the House of Representatives to discuss the question of good roads and arouse interest in the proposed $50,000,000 State bond issue for roads, which will be voted on at the November election.

Some Cookery Suggestions

TIDBITS OF CORN.

LUNCHEON MENU.
Sliced Tongue. Homemade Pickles.
Mock Oysters. Stewed Plums.
Neufchatel Cheese.
Lemonade or Iced Tea.

MOCK Oysters.—Grate ears of young sweet corn into a dish and to a pint of the corn add one egg, well beaten, one small teacup of flour, one-half of a gill of cream and one teaspoon of salt. Mix it together. Fry like oysters, dropping into the fat by spoonfuls about the size of an oyster.

Roasted Ears.

Roast Corn.—Corn may be roasted under the broiler flame of a gas stove. Done this way corn is delicious. Strip the husks and silk from the corn and lay the ears on the broiler after the flame has been burning rather low for ten minutes. Then turn the flame on a little more, place the corn quite closely on the broiler under it and let the corn cook quickly, turning it often to keep from scorching. Serve each ear in a folded napkin and eat with a lot of butter.

Corn Pudding.—Prepare the corn as for fritters. Then beat together two eggs, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and a teaspoonful of salt. When they are a smooth paste add the corn pulp and stir it well through the mixture. Last, add one quart of milk, stirring it well through the other ingredients. Pour this batter into a well buttered dish and bake it in rather a quick oven for a half hour. This may be eaten hot or cold. It is nice cold, served with currant jelly.

Cooked In a Pudding Dish.

Baked Corn.—Cut enough corn from cobs to make a quart. Heat a cup of milk. Then beat two eggs and add to them three tablespoonfuls of cream, a teaspoonful of salt and half a teaspoonful of pepper, then two tablespoonfuls of melted butter and the scalded milk. Place the corn in a buttered baking dish and pour the liquid over it. Bake in a slow oven till firm.

Corn Fritters.—Take five ears of fresh green corn, three eggs, two tablespoonfuls of milk or cream, one tablespoonful of melted butter if milk is used and a teaspoonful of salt. Beat the eggs well, add the corn and other ingredients. Thicken with flour in which have been mixed a teaspoonful of baking powder and one-quarter teaspoonful of soda. Fry as you would fritters.

Anna Thompson.

Dollie Looked at the Mouse.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Dollie Didn't Shop Much That Day.

DADDY had promised to take Jack and Evelyn to the toyshop to select a new game.

"And when I do I hope you will be very good."

"Of course we will. We are always good when we go out," the children answered indignantly. But daddy answered:

"Well, Dollie thought she was being good, but I am afraid it will be some time before her mother wishes to take her again.

"You see, it was this way: Dollie's grandpa had been visiting at her house, and when he went home he gave the little girl a half dollar with which to buy anything she liked.

"Dollie's mother promised to take her to the biggest toyshop in the town, and one afternoon they started out. Dollie dressed in her best clothes and clasping the silver half dollar fast in one fat hand.

"She was a very charming little girl, and perhaps that was the reason the salesman in the shop took a great deal of trouble in showing them all the nice things in the place.

"He showed them all kinds of dolls, and the little girl looked at them. She had so many dolls at home that she did not care to buy another.

"Fifty cents isn't a great deal of money, after all, when you come to spend it in a really attractive toyshop, and as she looked around Dollie became more puzzled every minute.

"'Why don't you buy a book?' her mother suggested. She hoped Dollie would select some nice quiet toy.

"'I don't fink I care for books,' Dollie said politely, and then her mother called her to look at a funny puzzle. The puzzle wasn't exactly what Dollie was looking for either. She would have liked a toy piano or an electric engine that pulled a train of cars over a steel track, but these cost too much.

"'Now, how is this?' the salesman asked jokingly as he plumped a gray tin mouse down in front of her. The mouse had a spring inside of its little body and would run around in a very lifelike manner when it was wound up.

"Dollie looked hard at the mouse. She wasn't used to toys of this kind, and she wasn't sure that it was not really alive.

"Dolly turned up her small nose at the tin toy. 'No,' she objected; 'don't want tin mouse. At our house we have lots and lots of them that go without winding up. And mother jumps on chairs when they run over the floor.'

"Dollie's mother got red, for the salesman giggled. She took Dollie's hand, and they went out of the store. Dollie didn't have a chance to spend her money that day."

MODISH FROCKS FOR THE MATINEE GIRL

Frills and furbelows, feathers and fur contribute to the subtle charm of Paris fashions at the moment. The matinee girl in her new fall suit will be as attractive as many heroines across the footlights if she heeds the earliest call to don loosely hung frocks, with queer little draperies and a sash, such as appear in these sketches. To obliterate the waist line is the fashion makers' intent, and how easy that will be for the amateur working with the exact pattern for these latest kinks.

Surah ecossais in the large plaid jacket on the figure at the left (7963) is one of the smartest fabrics, made up as it appears with a two-piece skirt of plain navy blue poplin draped at both sides. The coat blouse closes diagonally in the front and is trimmed with a crush belt, collar and cuffs of soft blue suede. The decorative strip on the skirt is black velvet, matching the heavy bar in the blouse. This pattern is cut in three sizes for misses. Size 16 will require 3 yards of plain silk for the skirt and 2½ yards of 36 inch material for the coat.

Green velours de laine has been used for the attractive model made after pattern No. 7969. The fullness at the side of the two-piece peg-top skirt is shirred in an original way and ornamented with three bands of contrasted material embroidered with a simple soutache design (embroidery pattern No. 14055). The blouse and deep collar are similarly trimmed. Four and three-eighths yards of 42 inch goods will make a dress in size 16. Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 8.

I SAW a copy of the first edition of the Kansas City Evening Star the other day, dated September 18, 1880. It was a little four-page newspaper, with six columns to a page, and the page was only about two-thirds the size of the newspaper page you are holding.

The first thing I looked for was the CLASSIFIED or WANT ADS. The sum of total WANT ADS. carried in this first issue of The Star would make about three-quarters of a column in this newspaper. There were only half a dozen classifications—"Boarding," "Lost and Found," "For Sale," "Wanted," "To Rent" and "Miscellaneous."

Of course, CLASSIFIED advertising was something new in those days. But did you ever stop to think how tremendously the volume of such advertising carried by modern newspapers has increased? Today the Kansas City Star carries in its daily issue twenty or more columns of WANT ADS., under goodness knows how many classifications.

CLASSIFIED advertising has had tremendous growth because it is "the advertising of the people for the people." The CLASSIFIED pages are a daily market-place where human wants are advertised and exchanged.

No matter what you want, you can get it by becoming an advertiser in the CLASSIFIED columns. That is why WANT AD. advertising has grown and is still growing. IT IS A MEDIUM OF PUBLIC SERVICE THAT IS BECOMING MORE AND MORE APPRECIATED BY THE PUBLIC.

THE BOSS FORGOT TO BE BLIND

IN THE SPORTING SPOTLIGHT

"MAC" SAYS

From Mrs. Roarer's cook book—"How to devil a crab." Just call Bob Bogardus aside and tell him that Frank Wilcox has been signed to umpire in the Central New Jersey League next season.

Cheer up, the Central organization may be one of the thousand and one leagues under the sea by this time next year.

Open season for deposing Plainfield twirlers is now in full blast. Under the new game laws local performers cannot be deposed more than once a week. Every time the Plainfield Pets have a game a little harder than the previous one the old reliable gets benched and a new star makes his debut.

George Ortlieb will probably be called upon to warm the players' bench Saturday just because the fans crave for the sight of a new face on the mound every time an important game is pulled off.

It's not because George is not effective against Somerville but a new twirler is always necessary to a red letter day bill.

A great many athletes dislike to travel on the road and lay the blame for many a home defeat on the inconveniences incurred while traveling. There's one consolation for the local fans, however, and that is that the Pets can offer no such excuse if they are trounced Saturday.

Occasionally a ball player's nerves are shattered by an army of photographers that always follow a team during a championship season. This is another big league asset that has been missing in the Central League.

Another proof that the world is hard to please—the baseball manager wants the breaks but the football manager lives in fear of the breaks.

Plainfield High School football warriors were put through their initial scrimmage yesterday afternoon at Parker Field. To date, nobody has been killed or pulled to pieces this fall on Parker Field. An evidence that the season is not yet under way.

Wonder what Central League stars will be gobbled up by the vaudeville magnates Saturday.

Equinoctial storms are predicted for the coming Saturday afternoon. That will mean another period of anxiety before the Central rag is awarded to some keeper.

Frank Chance, of the New York Yankees, will get a new contract next year, but there is a rumor afloat that he is willing to trade a new contract for a new team.

Reports from the Polo Grounds state that "King" Cole, the former Cub, who has been playing minor league ball, returned yesterday to look over his old-time pals, and posed for a number of snap-shots. This indicates that the big hurler is in his old time form.

Possibly those gents over in Brooklyn are called the Dodgers because they persist in dodging the first division in the National League.

Read the other day that the American Indian is the ward of Uncle Sam, which prompts us to ask how Glenn Warner lost his grip on the situation.

Speaking of Indians, somebody has stated that the American Indian is dying out. Go up to Carlisle, Pa., and watch football drill some afternoon.

Since Yale began the new sport season by winning the golf championship, Harvard in alarm has asked for three more football coaches.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

TYNG WILL DEFEND TITLE.

Burlington, Ia., Sept. 18.—The annual tournament of the tennis players of Iowa, Illinois and Missouri for the tri-State championship in singles and doubles began here today in the presence of a large gallery of society folk from various parts of the three States. J. Tyng, as winner of last year's singles, will defend his title, while the Musselman brothers, of Quincy, will defend their title in the doubles.

PHILA. CRICKETERS LEADING.

Philadelphia, Sept. 18.—In the second match between the Incognitti Cricket Club, of London, and the all-Philadelphia eleven, which began at Haverford yesterday, the Philadelphians were retired in their first innings for 189 runs. The Englishmen scored 100 runs for the loss of three wickets when play ended for the day.

YALE MEN SENT TO HOSPITAL.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 18.—Two of the strongest players on the Yale football team were removed to the New Haven Hospital last night. "Hal" Pumpelly, the sensational drop kicker and full back, has water on the knee, and "Tommy" Cornell, quarterback and sprinter, has a severe attack of tonsilitis. Yale trainers said last night that neither will be able to get into the game for several weeks at least.

GLAD TO BECOME A YANKEE.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—"King" Cole, the former Chicago National and Pittsburgh pitcher, whose good work this year has been a factor in Columbus' play in the American Association, denied here yesterday that he was displeased at being drafted by the New York Americans. On the contrary, Cole declared he would be glad to play with the New York Americans, and said he "would give them all he had."

NEW FOOTBALL WRINKLE.

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 18.—An innovation in football paraphernalia was introduced at Harvard yesterday. Dorric Parmenter, varsity coach, set up a board, fashioned as a picture, on an easel. In the centre of the easel and at the height the outstretched hands of a kicker would be placed to receive a pass from centre is an oval hole the size of a football. The centres, playing in position yesterday, constantly pegged at this hole for accuracy in passing, just as they would relay the pigskin if one of their fellows were on hand to receive it for the purpose of punting or attempting to kick a goal.

COOMBS IN A PLASTER CAST.

Philadelphia, Sept. 18.—Jack Coombs, star pitcher of the Athletics, is suffering from an affliction of the lower part of the spine, as an aftermath of typhoid fever, according to the X-ray photograph developed yesterday. Coombs was placed in a plaster of Paris cast and was removed to his home. The physicians declare he will have to remain in the cast for weeks, but hold out hopes for his ultimate recovery.

NEW PLAYERS FOR DETROIT.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—Has common water any color or not? If so, say what color. W. B.

Answer—Pure water consists of hydrogen and oxygen, H 2-O, and is a colorless, odorless, tasteless, transparent liquid, which is very slightly compressible. We note that your query is postmarked "Dunellen." You must take for granted of course, that some water is colored by ingredients that flow through it.

EFFECTS OF QUARANTINE.

New Orleans, Sept. 18.—At the call of the Live Stock Exchange buyers of cattle and hogs from the territory tributary to this port, met here today to consider the action recently taken by a prominent steamship line, which refuses to continue to carry hogs and cattle. Attorneys for the live stock men declare that the transportation company cannot refuse arbitrarily to accept any kind of legitimate freight. Steamship men, on the other hand, declare that the recent Cuban quarantine laws make a longer delay necessary than a passenger carrying ship can afford to allow. A committee probably will be sent to Cuba to treat with the government of the Island.

MISS FLEMING LOST HARD TENNIS MATCH

Teamed With Howard Craig She Afterwards Wins Mixed Doubles.

The women's annual tennis tournament being played on the courts of the Montclair Athletic Club at Montclair is now running at full blast. Yesterday the women's singles, doubles and consolations were continued, and the first and second round of the mixed doubles were played.

The fourth round of play in the singles saw both Miss Clare Cassell, last year's winner of the tournament, and Mrs. Marshall McLean, the present State champion, win their respective matches, and today they will be ready to play in the semi-finals. The match between Miss Clare Cassell and Miss Barbara Fleming, Plainfield's hope in the tournament, was a crackerjack. Miss Cassell won the first set, which was featured by exceptional fine tennis, 6-2. Both girls played the lines and had the referee on his toes at all times watching the "outs." The second set went to the Plainfield girl without a great deal of exertion, the score of this set being 1-6. In this set Miss Cassell turned her ankle, and it handicapped her to a great extent in getting after the driving returns made by Miss Fleming. After a short rest Miss Cassell went in and, displaying her usual fine tennis, disposed of her rival, 6-1.

Miss Jane Jackson, of Essex Fells, continued to play her usual consistent game in the third round of play. By defeating Miss Beryl Sawyer, 6-3, 7-5, she puts herself in a position to play in the fourth round, and if returned a victor in this match will play in the semi-finals. Judging from her past playing in the present tournament, she should be up with the leaders this afternoon.

Mrs. William H. Pouch and Miss Edith May Handy, in the doubles, surprised the gallery by their victory over Mrs. Marshall McLean, the Jersey champion, who was teaming with Miss Edna Wildey, who she had just defeated a few minutes before in the singles. The game was in the third round of play and the victory was one unlooked for. The match required three sets before the issue was finally decided. The score was 6-2, 4-6, 6-3.

The mixed doubles were started yesterday and in a great many of the matches the winners were awarded their victory by default. Miss Barbara Fleming and Howard Craig had their hands full before disposing of Miss Bessie Wright and Malcolm Hunter in the second round of play. The both sets were close, the score being 6-3, 6-4. Miss Polly Sheldon and Clifford Cairns defeated Miss Finkel and H. Bennett in the second round of play, gaining their victory in easy fashion, more so than the score, 6-3, 6-1, would indicate.

HOME RUN RECORD MAY BE SMASHED

Gavvy Cravath Has Put 18 Balls Into Unguarded Territory This Year.

If Gavvy Cravath, of the Phillies, shatters the National League record for home runs established by Bucky Freeman in 1899, the Brooklyn pitchers will not be to blame. They have refused to allow Dooin's fence breaker to once put the ball out of the lot this season. The same cannot be said of any other set of National League slab men, for Gavvy has obtained four-baggers in the games with the Cardinals, three each in the games with the Pirates, the Giants, the Reds, and the Braves and two in the games with the Cubs. Thirteen of his four-cushion blows were struck at home, two in St. Louis, one in Cincinnati, one in Boston and one in New York.

It was by hitting for the grand tour that Cravath became a Phillie regular this season. He was doing bench duty for Dooin until Monday, May 5. The previous Saturday, acting as a pinch hitter for Bill Killifer, Cravath had without hesitation and on the first ball pitched lifted the serve of Christy Mathewson's among the denizens of the left field bleachers. In the regular line-up on the following Monday Cravath whaled another homer and he has been contributing them pretty regularly since.

Cravath seems to be a patriotic sort of batsman, for he got one homer on Decoration Day and another on the Fourth of July. On Independence Day, Cravath was acting as a sub swatter. On August 14 Cravath got two four-baggers off Mordecai Brown of the Reds in one game. The Quaker swatsmith hasn't yet hit for the full distance with all the bases occupied, but he is likely to do so before the season ends, though said season no longer is in its infancy.

Eight of Cravath's four-baggers have been made when the cushions were uninhabited, seven were torn off when one athlete was waiting to score and three were manufactured when there were a pair of runners on what is occasionally alluded to as the two paths. It is interesting to note of Cravath's ability to manufacture homers and hit in the pinches that the New York Giants during a fan fest the other day, thought that Cravath would be the winner of the Chalmers car offered for the National League's most valuable player. It was the Giants' opinion that Joe Jackson would get the American League trophy.

The home runs made by Cravath this season are fully described below:

Four Baggers Made at Home—13.

May 3—Off Mathewson, New York, one man being on base. Cravath was acting in pinch hitting capacity for Killifer and hit the first ball pitched by "Big Six."

May 5—Off Marquard, New York, no one being on base.

July 4—Off Rudolph, Boston, two men being on base. Cravath batted for Becker.

July 7—Off Perdue, two men being on base.

July 8—Off Camnitz, Pittsburg, one man being on base.

July 12—Off Geyer, St. Louis, two men being on base.

July 16—Off Griner, St. Louis, one man being on base. Hit decided game in Phillies' favor.

August 14—Off Brown, Cincinnati (2). First home made with no one on base, second with one man on base.

August 20—Off Lavender, Chicago, no one being on base.

August 28—Off Lehrsen, Pittsburg, one man being on base.

Four Baggers Made Abroad—5.

May 30—Off Fromme, New York, no one being on base.

August 2—Off Suggs, Cincinnati, no one being on base.

August 4—Off Harmon, St. Louis, no one being on base.

August 6—Off Harmon, St. Louis, no one being on base.

YALE CUP WINNERS WILL ENTER Y. M. C. A. TRAINING COLLEGE

Seldom is a college fortunate enough to have among its opening enrollment two students who have been awarded silver loving cups for attaining the highest possible efficiency average in social, athletic and scholarship work during their high school careers, but such will be the case at the International Y. M. C. A. College in Springfield, Mass., next Tuesday morning, when Herbert A. Stine and George Townley, graduates of the North Plainfield High School, report for the opening classes. The two popular borough fellows made their decision to enter Y. M. C. A. work known this morning and they are now at work making final preparations for the launching of their college careers.

Both of the young men will pursue secretarial courses and their previous records made in high school circles make them seem particularly well adapted for their special line of endeavor. Schuyler and Charles Line, of East Front street, are also students in the Y. M. C. A. college and the Plainfield colony have already made elaborate plans for a "Queen City term" at the institution.

Townley and Stine have been considering the proposition of entering the college for some time past but did not make their final decision until last night. Each of these young men won the Yale cup in the North Plainfield High School the year they graduated, Stine in 1911 and Townley last year, and both played on every athletic team turned out in the North Plainfield High School.

Stine entered North Plainfield High School in 1908 and played on the football team during the next two years, that department of sport having been eliminated in 1910 because of the lack of available material. He played for four years on the baseball and basketball teams and captained the basketball five in 1911. He was awarded the Yale cup for supremacy in scholarship, athletics and leadership in 1911.

Townley entered the borough High School in 1909 and took no active part in varsity athletics during his freshman year. He played for three years on the basketball and baseball teams and was captain of baseball in 1911 and of basketball last year. There was no football team during the time he was a participant in N. P. H. S. athletics. He was awarded the 1912 Yale efficiency cup, similar to the one awarded Stine.

Stine has gained some prominence as a baseball player since his graduation, having caught for the Dunellen semi-professional nine the year he completed his High School course and last Saturday he joined the Plainfield Pets, playing second base. Both Stine and Townley were members of the First Baptist nine, champions of the Sunday-school League during the season just closed, and Stine was awarded the cup for the best batting average and was a runner-up for the fielding cup. He played left halfback for the Holy Cross football team two years ago and has been active in Y. M. C. A. and independent basketball circles.

OPENING PLAY IN GIRLS' TOURNEY

Two Matches in Junior Class and One in the Senior Division Yesterday.

Play in the First Baptist church girls' tennis singles tournament started yesterday afternoon on the courts of A. M. Harris, of Central avenue, the donor of the two silver loving cups offered for competition in the two classes. The entries have been divided into a junior and senior class and one cup will be presented to the champion in each division.

Yesterday's matches were all won in straight sets and one match had to be left unfinished in the senior class, as the time of play was limited. All of the sets yesterday were won in rather easy fashion the closest being the one played between Miss Marsh and Miss Pilger in the senior class which was won by the former with scores of 6-2, 6-4. The summaries:

Senior Class—Miss Gladys Marsh defeated Miss Emily Pilger 6-2, 6-4.

Play will be continued this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon and the finals will be run off Saturday afternoon, finishing the tournament.

CHAMPIONS WILL CLASH.

Champions will meet champions Saturday afternoon, when the First Baptist baseball team, flag winner in the Sunday-school League, and the Saurer nine, champion of the City League, meet on the West End diamond in a post-season scramble. The teams each claim the city's minor baseball championship and the fight will probably be a hotly waged one.

PIERCE HAS MADE 4TH STATEMENT

Explains Planks About Indeterminate Franchise and Jury Reform.

A CANDIDATE'S VIEWS

Tells of His Fight in the State Senate and Approves President Wilson's Plan For Jury System Change.

Cranford, Sept. 18.—Senator Carlton B. Pierce, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, has issued his fourth statement, explaining his last two planks—the indeterminate franchise and jury reform. The statement follows in full:

"The perpetual franchise create a monopoly. The short, limited franchise has retarded development. The new plan of intermediate franchise is the middle ground between the two, avoiding the faults of both its predecessors.

"The Federal Government adopted it in the city of Washington prior to 1900, and has since extended it to Porto Rico and the Philippines. It has been in successful operation in Wisconsin since 1907, and in modified form in Massachusetts for many years.

"Its distinguishing characteristic is the right of the municipality to cancel the franchise at any time, on reimbursing the holder for the fair value of the property taken, exclusive of franchise.

"This gives the municipality complete control of the situation, which means complete power to enforce good service. At the same time it stimulates development and extension, for the simple reason that moneys invested cannot by any lapse of time be forfeited.

"The value to the municipality is plain. The value to companies intending good service is equally plain—for as a practical question, demonstrated by experience, the franchise continues so long as proper service is furnished. The name given the franchise—tenure during good behavior—happily expresses the whole situation.

"Utility companies intending good service themselves like it. This is established by the fact that under the Wisconsin law, permitting existing companies to come in under the act, forty-six companies representing fourteen million dollars, abandoned their old franchises and came in the first year.

"Two years ago I offered in the Senate a model standard indeterminate franchise bill, drafted by Delois L. Wilcox, the well-known expert. The first year I could get only seven votes in its favor. This year it passed the Senate 13 to 4, but was held in committee in the Assembly. I am hopeful it can be put through both houses at the coming session, despite the strenuous fight of the Public Service Corporation against it.

"New Jersey is among the few States retaining the old common law plan of having the sheriff select grand and trial jury panels.

"In general it has worked satisfactorily; but it is open to abuse and has in fact been abused in specific instances.

"The accepted modern plan is to remove jury drawing as far as possible from political control. Of necessity this means the elimination of the sheriff.

"In his message to the Legislature on February 25, 1913, President (then Governor) Wilson thus powerfully, and I think correctly, states the issue:

"'Many men of the highest character now fill that office (sheriff), but again and again by obtaining control of the office of sheriff, the interests which have denied the laws, which have built up selfish, private interests, which have sought to get the State in the clutch of personal, political machines, have bent the law to their own uses, and I speak with absolute confidence when I say that I know the public opinion of this State now cries out for and demands reform of no hesitating or doubtful character, which shall take the selection of grand juries out of the hands of the sheriffs and place it elsewhere.'

"In common with President Wilson, and the members of the Senate, irrespective of party, I favor the plan recommended by the recent jury commission, for the appointment of jury commissioners in each county by the court. The Republicans prefer appointment by the Circuit judges, the Democrats by the Supreme Court justice. Either is satisfactory and either is true reform.

"I am opposed to the compromise proposition to be voted upon by the people in November—that the sheriff and chancellor shall appoint. It is a sacrifice of the principle involved, and will, I trust, be defeated, that true reform may follow.

"This statement closes the general explanation of my five planks—abolition of grade crossings, equalization of tax assessments, restoring a reasonable tax upon banks and trust companies now practically escaping taxation, indeterminate franchise and jury reform. I purpose to issue one further statement before the primary discussing the slogan appearing opposite my name upon the primary ballot—"Abolish grade crossings, equalize tax assessments."

SULZER IS ON TRIAL AT ALBANY

Governor to Make Desperate Fight.

GRIM BATTLE BEGINS

None Will Venture Forecast of Outcome.

MANY SURPRISES HINTED AT

Declared That Executive Will Not Take Stand, but Mrs. Sulzer Will Be Important Witness.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press)

Albany, Sept. 18.—The Sulzer impeachment Court met at noon today and adjourned at 12:55 to meet again tomorrow.

In the reconstructed Senate chamber the State Executive was formally placed on trial for "high crimes and misdemeanors." Most of the actors in the drama that were not already here flocked into Albany this morning—the senators and the court of appeals judges who are to sit as the high court of impeachment, the assembly managers who prepared the prosecution's case, the lawyers for both sides. Also there appeared hundreds of sideliners, for whom crushing disappointment was in store when they found that only 200 seats had been allotted to the public.

Sulzer In Seclusion.

The atmosphere at the state capital is not unlike that which hovers over a small county seat on the eve of an important murder trial. Counsel for both sides are hidden in hotel rooms, conferring regarding the essential features of the lines of attack and defense. The principal figure of this sensational chapter of state history has not been seen outside of the mansion provided by the state for its governors. The official scene of his activities has been deserted, save for attaches who knew nothing of his occupations on the eve of his trial.

With his lawyers, Messrs. Herrick, Fox, Hinman and one or two other advisers Mr. Sulzer put in his entire day yesterday at his residence. Lieutenant Governor Martin H. Glynn, who has been proclaimed governor de facto by the legislature hostile to Mr. Sulzer, performed the routine of executive undertakings in the temporary office provided for him. Few callers invaded either of the rival camps. Last night 1,200 of Mr. Sulzer's friends indulged in a mass meeting and listened to speeches more or less hysterical, and all condemnatory of Mr. Sulzer's accusers, from half a dozen volunteer orators headed by George Foster Peabody.

Governor Determined.

If Governor Sulzer's word and assurance are to be taken as the sure representation of his condition of mind and his intentions he will stick to the end. That was about the only thing in the way of a statement that came from him, and it was given indirectly.

In a situation that has been gloomy for him for many days, Governor Sulzer took some satisfaction from the receipt of the news that his enemy, Fitzpatrick, the Tammany leader in Erie county, had been defeated in the primaries. When the message containing this information was taken to him at the executive mansion it is said that his face glowed for the first time in weeks. It was then he said that he was prepared to see the trial through, notwithstanding all the rumors to the contrary that have been floating around Capitol hill.

All further efforts to get the governor to talk proved unavailing. He declares that he is still held to secrecy by his counsel. He has a complete defense, his friends say, but that is as far as they will go. His lawyers are equally silent. D-Cady Herrick, who seems to be taking the leading hand for the defense, was with the governor and, after his long talk, was as silent as before.

Managers Engage Stanchfield.

John B. Stanchfield was added to the list of counsel for the assembly managers. While Alton B. Parker will remain at the head of the men who will present the evidence against Sulzer, it is believed that Mr. Stanchfield will bear the brunt of the work.

The Sulzer adherents will tell you that a careful figuring out of the members of the court that will pass the final verdict shows that not more than thirty-five will vote against the governor and that at least thirty-seven or thirty-eight votes will be needed to convict him. They give no grounds for their calculations.

There is good reason for the belief that when the court convenes in all its solemnity and the senators, as well as the judges, become fully impressed with the grave duties that devolve upon them, previous animosity and prejudices held in the senate will be expelled to a great extent. Observers say that any organization that would attempt to inject politics or previous differences into a trial at which the whole nation is looking would be digging its own grave in doing so.

Prosecution May Call Mrs. Sulzer.

Mrs. Sulzer, it was said, would probably be called as a witness by the prosecution to testify as to the truth of the statement published on the night of the impeachment, Aug. 13, that she and not Governor Sulzer indorsed the several campaign checks for which the governor failed to account in his election expenses certificate.

For some weeks past Mrs. Sulzer has been ill, but during the last few days she has recovered remarkably. She is the governor's constant companion while he is away from the capitol. She accompanies him on all his automobile trips around Albany.

Mrs. Sulzer told Senator Abraham J. Palmer on the night of the impeachment that she cashed a large number of the checks which Governor Sulzer is charged with diverting to his own use, "because she knew the governor was careless in money matters."

HOPE CHAPEL VS. Y. M. A.

A nine of Hope Chapel Sunday-school League players will go to Bound Brook next Saturday afternoon to lineup against the Y. M. A. aggregation of that place, which hung a victory up at the expense of the First Baptist Sunday-school League champions last Saturday. The champions were somewhat crippled when they took the field against the Bound Brook nine, however, and the Chapelites are hopeful of a victory this week.

MAKE YOUR LIGHTING DRAW TRADE

This advertisement is intended for advertisers; for merchants who have goods to sell and who want to attract the attention of the buying public to those goods.

As a rule a show window, taken foot for foot, is the most expensive portion of the average establishment. It is one of the most effective means a merchant has for appealing to the public. It is a medium through which first impressions are made upon prospective buyers. For these reasons it is important to the merchant that he should get the most efficient results from his window displays.

Stores are open for business only a limited number of hours each day. Show windows can be made to do business after the store is closed. What they need for efficient overtime work is PROPER illumination. And PROPER illumination does not mean wasted light, extravagance or high bills. It means making every unit of light do what it is intended to do. It means directing the rays of light so that they will fall upon the goods displayed without creating shadows or distracting effects.

Proper window lighting can be made a trade pulling form of advertising which will more than pay for its cost. Let our engineers tell you how it can be done.

WHY HE OPPOSES GOV'T OWNERSHIP

Everett Colby Addressing Local Voters, Says Regulation Is Proper Remedy.

TALKS AGAIN TONIGHT

Father of the "New Idea" In Politics, Seeking Progressive Gubernatorial Nomination, Predicts Outcome of the Primary Campaign.

In his quest for votes to gain for him the Progressive nomination for Governor, former State Senator Everett Colby spent twenty minutes here this morning, and spoke to about 150 men who gathered in front of the Queen City Hotel. With him were the party's county candidates, favored by Colby's friends, for the Assembly, including former Mayor G. W. V. Moy. During the course of his remarks Mr. Colby said that he expected to be nominated by his party, and that his opponents in the other two great parties would be Governor James F. Fielder and Edward C. Stokes.

"This fight is not merely the question of putting one group of men out of office, and putting others in. If it were I would not be a party to it. There are vital issues involved, which the two old parties do not seem to care to solve." The former Senator then told of the domination of the State by the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Public Service Corporation when he was first in the Senate eight years ago, and how the Republican bosses had refused to allow legislation to be passed that would remedy evils because the interests mentioned made big campaign contributions each year.

"So far as Governor Fielder and Governor Stokes are concerned, it would be untrue to say that they, as individuals, are not worthy of support." He expressed the belief that the Progressive party plan for the solution of economic and social problems was the only one now offered which would solve the great questions of the day. The selection of a "Jim" Smith lieutenant as his campaign manager by Fielder was criticised, as indicating that it would be hard to get away from the Smith influence in case of the present Governor's election.

"Campaigns should be run by men devoted to the public service, and not by politicians, and those who 'knock' their opponents, instead of presenting issues, have no decent goods to sell," said the speaker. "What we want to do is put the country back in the hands of the people, and the only way to do that properly is to establish the initiative referendum," which he explained, showing the way it has worked in Switzerland.

"I am opposed to Government ownership, because I have not been shown as yet any evidence that it is necessary." He quoted freight rates in Germany, which are more than twice as high as those in this country under government ownership, as an evidence that present railroads are being run economically, and said that the candidates who promised re-

MISS SANDERSON NOW MRS. EDMUND TEMPLIN

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Sherman a September Bride.

Miss Sara Louise Sanderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Sherman, of Woodlawn avenue, and Edmund Mason Templin, formerly of Plainfield, but now of New York city, were quietly married yesterday at St. Mark's Episcopal church, New York. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. P. Faucon, assistant rector of the church.

The bridesmaid was Miss Agnes Cooley, of North Plainfield, and the best man was Harry Sanderson, brother of the bride. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was enjoyed. Mr. and Mrs. Templin have taken up their residence in the Dawson Apartments on Audubon avenue, New York city.

The bride has been a resident of this city for several years. She is a graduate of the Plainfield High School, being one of the most popular members of her class.

A. E. FORCE & CO. TO ADD SHOE DEPARTMENT

A. E. Force & Co., the West Front street dry goods merchants, have decided to enlarge their business by adding a shoe department. Yesterday the firm purchased the stock and fixtures of A. E. Giddes, at West Front street and Madison avenue, and will take possession on Monday, September 22. They also acquired the lease on the present store and will continue the business in its present location.

A complete line of the best shoes, including the Sorosis, for men, women, misses and children, will be displayed as soon as the stock can be shipped from the factories. This stock, while not located in the firm's main store, for lack of room, it is believed will fill a long felt want.

The business policy of giving better values for the same money will apply just the same as on other merchandise and charge customers will receive the same consideration as at the main store. Trading stamps will also be given. Alfred Lacey, an experienced shoe man, widely known here, will be in charge. Mr. Lacey was formerly engaged in the shoe business at Westfield and more recently at Bound Brook.

UP FOR NON-SUPPORT.

David Smith, of Steiner place, was arraigned in the borough court this morning, before Recorder Gano on a charge of non support preferred against him by his wife. He promised to pay his spouse $6 per week and was released on a suspended sentence.

TWO TWO-FAMILY DWELLINGS.

Isaac Bloom, of New York city, has purchased of Harry Dreier the latter's tract of land on West Front street, opposite Lafayette place, where he will erect two two-family dwellings with all improvements.

DENTISTS' CLAMBAKE ONE HUGE SUCCESS

Dental Society Members and Wives Enjoy a Day at Gillette.

The second annual outing and clambake of the Plainfield Dental Society which was held at Gillett, yesterday, proved to be an enjoyable affair. The party which was made up of about twenty-five, including guests and the wives of some of the members, left here at 11 o'clock in the morning in automobiles. Upon the arrival at Gillett a half-hour later, all sat down to a fine chowder lunch.

Between that time and 3 o'clock when the bake was opened, the dentists enjoyed games, including baseball. Sides were chosen and for more than an hour they batted for supremacy. It was finally decided that Dr. Guy Hillman's side had won by a score of 13 to 12, the winning run, a "homer," being made by him. He had to slide for the home plate and when he fell the report was heard some distance away. Another feature was the fielding of Dr. C. L. Crist on the opposing team. He made a hit every time he came to the bat and as many runs. Some of the doctors and dentists enjoyed clay pigeon shooting and a game of quoits.

The bake, which was arranged by William Cassell, of Gillette, was a fine one and included everything that one could possibly wish for. After the "inner man" was filled up, the party started for home, arriving here about 7 o'clock in the evening.

The society had for its guests: Drs. Hasbrouck, Bush and Hutchinson, of New York city; Dr. and Mrs. P. B. Cregar, Dr. H. R. Hubbard and Dr. A. H. Dundon. The others in the party were as follows: Dr. Charles G. Davis and sister, Miss Davis, Dr. and Mrs. Raymond Stevens, Dr. and Mrs. George Moore, Dr. and Mrs. Charles L. Moore, Dr. and Mrs. Guy Hillman, Dr. and Mrs. O. B. Whitford, Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Clawson, Dr. Leonard, Dr. Walter Mancill, Dr. Frank W. French and Dr. C. L. Crist.

CIVIL WAR MUSICIANS GATHER AT CHATTANOOGA

Joseph N. Bogert of this city, secretary-treasurer of the National Association of Civil War Musicians, known as the largest drum corps in the world, received word today that 107 members of the association are in attendance at the G. A. R. encampment at Chattanooga, Tenn., and led the parade on Wednesday. The old musicians received a great ovation. Ozetta Marshall Taylor, a "daughter" of the association, is also attending the convention.

This is the first reunion that Mr. Bogart has been unable to attend, being detained at home by illness. He retains a lively interest in the proceedings, especially those pertaining to the war musicians, receiving daily letters and newspapers. Captain and Mrs. William C. Smith and daughter, Miss Clara Barton Smith, are among those from this section at the encampment.

SOMERVILLE TAX RATE IS $2.07 ON THE $100

Somerville, Sept. 19.—The tax rate in the borough this year will be $2.07, instead of $2.02, as at first reported. While the borough rate will be .67, instead of .70 as last year, the special school rate will be .54 as against .47 last year; the county rate being .60 and State school .26, which brings the total up to $2.07.

The amounts to be raised in the borough are as follows: Total for borough purposes, $30,000; county tax, $27,276; State school tax, $11,956; special school tax, $24,455 making the total amount to be raised in the borough, $93,687, as against $87,181.04 last year.

PLAINFIELD SEMINARY BEGINS ITS FALL TERM

The Plainfield Seminary was reopened yesterday for the fall and winter terms with exactly the same enrollment as that of last year. The seminary has undergone many improvements and has been thoroughly renovated. The accommodations for pupils has been increased. Miss Arnold, the principal, has made a number of changes in the faculty since last year.

SULZER LOSES FIRST POINT

Lawyers Were Unable to Remove Accusers From Court of Impeachment.

COUNSEL FIGHT HARD

Close Obsgervers Believe That It Was Necessary to Win This Point and Outlook for New York Governor, is Now Bad.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Albany, Sept. 19.—When the Sulzer impeachment trial was resumed this afternoon the first question taken up was the challenge made by Sulzer's attorneys of the right of four of the Senators to sit in the court, as they were the accusers. After hearing argument on the question the court voted unanimously not to consider the challenge, the four men involved, Senators Wagner, Frawley, Ramsperger and Sanner, being excused from voting.

The attitude of Governor Sulzer's counsel indicated that his defense will be that every act alleged against him, even if true, is outlawed. To accomplish his expulsion from office it will be claimed that the governor's prosecutors must prove him guilty of "high crimes and misdemeanors" committed since he assumed the reins of government on Jan. 1 last. Practically every one of the eight counts in the articles of impeachment, the governor's legal battery maintains, is based on some alleged overt act committted before his inauguration.

It is pretty generally admitted by close observers that the battle to save Governor Sulzer must be won before the high court of impeachment settles down to the examination of witnesses. With this idea in view it is the avowed purpose of the Sulzer counsel to interpose every constitutional and legal barrier from the moment when the rules of procedure are adopted today.

The first skirmish is expected to come early in today's proceedings.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY GIVES "DUTCH SUPPER AND DANCE"

Under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary of the North Plainfield Improvement Society, a "Dutch Supper and Dance" was given last night in the town hall. The affair was a great success, about 150 members and friends sitting down to an excellent supper prepared and served by the members of the auxiliary. The menu was an attractive one and thoroughly enjoyed.

After the supper the large room was cleared and there was an informal dance which continued until a late hour. Piano and violin music for dancing was furnished by some of the members. The affair netted a good profit for the society.

The committee in charge comprised Mrs. George Schmidt, Mrs. William Patte, Mrs. Dirk DeHaas and Mrs. Hippolyte Texier. They were assisted by other members of the auxiliary as well as by members of the society.

JR. MUNICIPAL ORCHESTRA CONCERT ON TUESDAY NIGHT

The weekly rehearsal of the Junior Municipal Orchestra held in the Franklin School auditorium last night brought out fifteen instrumentalists and a number of the senior orchestra members who assisted in the work of instructing the juvenile players. The committee in charge of the work is not yet satisfied with the number enrolled in the group and have made a request that any other young persons playing instruments of any kind enlist in the work.

The first public concert under the auspices of the junior orchestra will be given at the open meeting of the Plainfield Board of Trade in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium next Tuesday night.

COMMUNION POSTPONED.

The September communion service at the Congregational church announced for next Sunday has been postponed, as the congregation is now holding services at the Hartridge Auditorium. The anticipated preparatory service will not be held this evening and the mid-week services will be necessarily omitted for the present. It is hoped that the Seventh-Day Baptist church will be available for services the first Sunday in October.

FIELDER ADDRESSES CROWD IN PLAINFIELD

Acting-Governor, Aspirant for Democratic Nomination, Makes Two Speeches.

Acting Governor James C. Fielder, who is seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and who is making a tour of Union county, today, received a cordial welcome when he addressed a good sized crowd this afternoon at West Front street and Madison avenue. He was accompanied by county candidates and others prominent in State politics. The Governor reached this city about 3 o'clock, remaining here about an hour. He briefly touched on some of the more important issues of the campaign, making an appeal for support.

The Governor went from here to Westfield, where he is scheduled to speak at 4.50. EMPLOYES OF P. S. R. ENJOYED AN OUTING

Members of the Public Service Railroad Employes' Social and Athletic Club and a representative delegation of the corporation's officials went by trolley to Seidler's Beach, Staten Island, yesterday afternoon, where they enjoyed a shore dinner and an elaborate program of out-of-door sports arranged especially for the occasion. Speeches by men prominent in the executive department of the railroad featured the afternoon's program and following the dinner many of those interested in the company's employes spoke of the spirit of fraternalism resulting from the organization of the social club. Among those who spoke were John J. Gettings, Mr. Bolen, A. M. VanBuskirt, of Newark, and Patrick J. Fahey.

Among those on the outing were George Luhr, Charles Brant, John Millwater, Henry Goldstein, P. J. Fahey, Charles Favier, Michael Makl, Harry Eick, Patrick Maguire, John Mathews, Arthur Wittrup, Thomas Dorgan, William Nevins, John Gobel, Patrick Morran, H. J. Smith, John Devins, George Panko, M. Hipp, John Gordon, L. Lavitzio, George Benton, Thomas Smith, Ben Wyckoff, B. Faulks, Martin Drake and Charles Collins.

PROCTOR'S NOVEL SHOW.

The Proctor show this week is filled with novel features. The Oxford Trio, a clever English basketball team on bicycles, is the first to introduce the game on wheels, and the game is played on its merits and lovers of sports will enjoy it. Art Adair, the funny musical comedian, is real funny and makes a hit. Dicks Animal Actors is a fine act, the ponies and dogs performing almost impossible tricks. Lillian Murtha and Johnny Harrigan, a clever team of singers and character comedians, make a big hit. This is Miss Murtha's first appearance here, but Mr. Harrigan has played Proctor's a number of times. This act carries special scenery. Buckley and Moore, the wonderful upside-down dancers, are especially good.

THIEVES PLEAD GUILTY.

John and Edward Connelly, who were arrested by Detective-Sergeant John J. Flynn, charged with stealing a quantity of sporting goods from Leo Zeisel's store on West Front street, were arraigned before Judge James C. Connolly in Elizabeth this morning and pleaded guilty to the charge of taking some of the articles mentioned. They will be sentenced Friday.

political and business life, gubernatorial aspirants, a former United States Senator, the mayor, councilmen, and many others were conspicuous in the crowd.

The toastmaster was Arthur A. Cannon, chairman of the building committee of the council. He called upon the following to respond to toasts: Acting Governor James F. Fielder, former Governor Edward C. Blatz, who is seeking the city judge nomination of the Republican ticket, and several local citizens who aspire to become members of the Common Council.

As the members of the council, the honored guests and speakers took their places beside their chairs, David B. Doyle, president of the Columbus Club, with simple ceremony unveiled a bust of Christopher Columbus, set in the cornice of the large hall directly over the centre of the stage. Seated on the platform, surrounded by a profuse display of palms, was an augmented band, which rendered

BIG UNION MEETING OF BAPTIST WOMEN

Two Congregations Represented at Missionary Meeting—Addresses Are Heard.

Under the auspices of the women of the First and Park Avenue Baptist churches, an interesting union missionary meeting was held in the latter church, yesterday afternoon. A brief report of the missionary society of the Park Avenue church showed $195 in the treasury with $120 paid on this year's apportionment. Mrs. David M. Runyon, president, was in charge of the meeting and conducted the devotional services.

Mrs. Gabriel Reid Maguire very briefly presented the plan of "the every member canvas campaign" in which the Baptist churches of America are about to engage during this year and next, which is their centennial year of foreign missions. The aim of this campaign is "every member of the church a member of the missionary society."

The address of the afternoon was given by Miss Marie Dowling, of China, who spoke in an interesting way of the superstitions of that ancient people, describing many of their customs, especially their abominable marriage laws which permit an older brother to sell his sister to a man she has never seen and that for a mere trifle.

At the close of her address Miss Dowling reminded her audience that these Chinese girls were as intelligent when educated as the average American girl, many of them more so and she asked for the same educational advantages, for the same Gospel, which she said is the only power that can lift the Chinese woman up to the level of her sisters.

MISS ROSINA THOMAE'S FUNERAL LARGELY ATTENDED

The funeral of Miss Rosina Maria Thomae was held at 2.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the late home in North avenue, Fanwood, and was largely attended by relatives and friends. There were many floral tributes. Rev. F. B. Carter, of Montclair, a relative, conducted the service, offering prayer, reading the Scripture and making a short address. Mr. Carter is assistant rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, of Montclair, and had known Miss Thomae for a number of years. The burial took place in Woodlawn cemetery, New York.

MISS LEVITT BRIDE OF MICHAEL ROSENTHAL

Miss Ida Levitt, of Brooklyn, and Michael Rosenthal, of this city, were married last night in Lexington Hall, New York, Rev. Dr. Cooper, of that city, officiating. The bride was attended by Miss Sarah Norr, as maid of honor and the bridesmaids were the Misses Celia Loriett, Nettie Lorlett, and Mary Levitt, the last named a sister of the bride; Miss Rose Rosenthal a sister of the bridegroom and Miss Ida Seidle. David Rosenthal, a brother of the bridegroom, was the best man.

The ushers were Max Rosenthal and Harry Robinson, of this city; Lewis Cohen, Charles Reiner, Herman Copsolen and John Copsolen. After the wedding there was a reception and supper was served. The bridegroom is a member of the firm of Rosenthals', of West Front street. The bride is well-known here, where she has visited many times.

'Boy Was Good to His Mother;' He Will Tread Warship Bridge

Youth Without Influence, Working His Way as Enlisted Man in the Navy, Gets Appointment Coveted by Sons of the Rich, Congressman Tuttle Naming Him for Annapolis.

The designation yesterday of Joseph F. Wall as a midshipman at Annapolis from the Fifth Congressional District of New Jersey by Congressman Tuttle will have a political interest in the district, and a human, sentimental interest throughout the State because some day "the boy who was good to his mother" may tread the bridge of a flagship.

These places at Annapolis and West Point are much sought after by men of wealth, power and ambition for their sons and favorites, and great influence is brought to bear on the Congressman who has the power to name the young man who may, if he is able to pass the examinations, win the coveted place.

This young man, not yet eighteen, is an enlisted man in the navy, an orphan without the "influence" generally supposed to be necessary. Young Wall is one of those bright, ambitious Irish boys who formerly lived in the Congressman's home town of Westfield, who had his own way in the world to make. His father was a Civil Service employe of the city of New York and died while the boy was in school, leaving his son to become at once the care and dependence of his mother. Then one morning the mother was found dead in the garden attached to her little home, and the boy was alone in the world. There was a little property and the court named Judge Dolan, of the Newark Juvenile Court, as his guardian.

The Nacy appealed to the adventuresome spirit of the lad and he enlisted, and as an evidence of his spirit, had won the place of a petty officer on board the Minnesota at the end of six months, and has the distinction today of being the youngest petty officer in the navy. He heard of the vacancy at Annapolis and made his own application by letter. He was also wise enough to ask the few family friends back of him to write the Congressman in his interest. Of course they knew little about the young man, but with singular unanimity they all remembered that he had been "good to his mother."

The Congressman was interested and opened a correspondence with the officers of the ship, now lying in Hampton Roads. There was singular unanimity of response here also. All agreed that he was ambitious, industrious and bright; that he had accomplished things, and the Congressman sent for him. He came to the office yesterday, a gne young fellow, with the bloom of health in his cheeks and the freedom of the sea in his deportment. He went away with the Congressman's assignment as his first choice for appointment at Annapolis and as happy and confident a young man as has left Washington in many a day.

N. P. H. S. TENNIS TOURNEY NOW NEARING COMPLETION

Five matches were contested yesterday in the second days' play of the North Plainfield High School singles tennis tournament with the result that one senior, four juniors and one sophomore still remain in the struggle for the handsome trophy offered to the school champion.

Two matches were played in the second round, Hoyt Tomkinson defeating Martin McDonough, 6-1, 6-0, and Frank Dunning defeated Roy Force, 6-4, 6-3.

Dunning was again obliged to give a handicap of fifteen points on every game and at times Force pushed him to the limit. The remainder of the second round and probably the semi-finals will be played tomorrow.

ROUGH MARRIAGE KNOTS.

Pledges Under Which They Were Tied in Medieval Times.

The matrimonial contract today is a thousand times more polite than it was in the middle ages. It has lost the engaging frankness of its medieval originals.

In the good old days when the bride was taken "for fairer, for fouler, for better, for worse," and promised "to be buxom and bonny" to her husband, her father gave the bridegroom one of the bride's shoes as a token of the transfer of authority. The bride was made to feel the change by a blow on the head duly administered with the shoe. How much more significant and eloquent a use of the article than our "refined" custom of throwing it after the carriage! The husband took oath to treat his wife well, in failure of which she might leave him. As a point of honor, however, he was allowed to "bestow on his wife and apprentices moderate castigation."

An old Welsh law lays it down that three blows with a broomstick "on any part of the person except the head is a fair allowance," while another provides that the stick "be not longer than the husband's arm nor thicker than his middle finger."

The bride, however, had her privileges. In certain countries it was her accepted right the morning after the wedding day to ask for any sum of money or any estate that she pleased, and her husband could not in honor refuse. A man had to be pretty sure of his bride's "intentions" to run such a risk.

These old time marriages were often hard driven bargains, which unblushingly displayed a good deal of unlovely human selfishness. Yet the rough knots that were tied a thousand years ago held faster than many of the beribboned and bejeweled bonds we so genteely adjust today.—New York World.

The Metaphysical Society.

The distinguished company of contributors to the first number of the Nineteenth Century was selected from a yet more distinguished company of which Lord Avebury was a member. This was the Metaphysical society, founded by James Knowles and Tennyson in 1869. Its members ranged from Dean Stanley to Huxley and from Tyndall to Manning, and its meetings saw such unusual sights as the Catholic Manning, supported by two Protestant bishops, presiding over a discussion among atheists, deists and freethinkers. The society formed the nucleus of the band of contributors who supported Knowles as editor first of the Contemporary and then of the Nineteenth Century.—Westminster Gazette.

Had to Follow.

One day a young colored man of sporty appearance dropped in at a country livery stable and said he needed a job. He looked promising, so he was set at work greasing the axles of a buggy.

In a remarkably short space of time he reported the task finished.

"Look here," said his new boss, "do you mean to say you've greased all four of them wheels already?"

"Well," rejoined the new man, "I've greased the two front ones."

"And why haven't you greased the two hind ones?"

"Well," said the new man again, "so long's the two front ones goes all right the two hinds ones jes' nachelly got to foller!"—Everybody's.

Lobster Twine.

A man who had wondered what lobster twine was found the answer very simple. It is a fine quality, stout twine an eighth of an inch in diameter, made of manila hemp and originally intended for making the netted part of lobster pots. Lobster twine has come also to be used on board vessels, both sail and steam, for serving ropes, for whipping ropes, including ropes even of wire, and for various other purposes for which a stout, durable twine of this size might prove useful. There is probably more lobster twine used now on vessels than for the purpose for which it was first made.

Puzzled Him.

Mark Twain and his peculiarities were being discussed by an English class in a certain high school. One youthful orator had very eloquently described Mark's personal appearance and had laid unusual stress on the author's fondness for wearing white flannels.

"Gee!" said one much interested youth. "I don't see how the public knows whether his flannels were red or white."—Everybody's Magazine.

Good Scheme.

"I suppose you take excellent care of your health?"

"No," replied Farmer Corntossel. "I tried every kind of medicine I could get hold of for awhile. Then I gave up and forgot about my health, and I've felt better ever since."—Washington Star.

Sunday In Helgoland.

The Sabbath begins in Helgoland at 6 o'clock on Saturday evening, when the church bells are rung, and ceases on the following day at the same hour. At one time no vessel was permitted to leave the port during the Sabbath.

Prematurely Aged.

Conductor—Madam, that child looks older than three years. Mother—Yes, indeed he does, conductor. That child has had a lot of trouble.—Everybody's.

Sincerity—a deep, genuine sincerity—is the first characteristic of all men in any way heroic.

Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, Improved Order of Red Men, will celebrate its twenty-fourth anniversary on Wednesday night, October 8.

TO UNVEIL MONUMENT TO GOV. JOHN A. JOHNSON

St. Peter, Minn., Sept. 19.—Preparations are nearly complete for the unveiling next Sunday, of the monument of former Governor John A. Johnson, created by public subscriptions of the citizens of St. Peter to honor the memory of one of their most honored fellow citizens. The day selected for the unveiling of the handsome statue is particularly appropriate because it will be the fourth anniversary of the death of Gov. Johnson.

Immediately after the death of Governor Johnson his admirers in this city started a fund for the erection of a suitable memorial in his native town. The project was temporarily abandoned for a while, owing to the State-wide movement in favor of erecting a statue of the deceased on the grounds of the State capitol at St. Paul. After the memorial at St. Paul had been unveiled, however, the agitation here was resumed and it was not difficult to obtain the necessary funds. The statue, which will grace the grounds of the courthouse, is a replica of the St. Paul monument.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Members of the senior class held their annual class election this morning, the following officials being named to serve during the ensuing term: President, Elston Hoagland; vice president, Miss Ruth Maguire; secretary, a tie between Miss Ruth Meyers and Kenneth McKenzie; treasurer, Phillip Schuyler. The tie will be decided at a future election.

Physical Director Patch started the organization of a boys' gymnasium class this morning. All of the boys in the school are eligible to this class.

The opening meeting of the Plainfield High School orchestra was held this morning and plans discussed for the coming year. The first rehearsal will be held Thursday of next week and Mrs. J. C. Evans, who led the orchestra last year, will again have charge.

STYLISH—RELIABLE

Passed by the Board of Clothing Censorship

Rothberg's offers for your enjoyment a collection of "up-to-the-second" Suits and Overcoats for Fall—a collection that has had to pass our Board of Clothing Censorship before entering our store.

They have been rigorously scrutinized for style, for workmanship for material, for the little kinks in construction that distinguish the perfectly made garment from the perfectly faked garment.

And all have passed the test triumphantly, with colors flying. We invite you to come in and see if our judgment has not been correct.

They will make more of an impression upon your "Clothing Sense" than they will upon your pocketbook, as witness these prices:

$12-$15-$18-$20 TO $25

Which means that you cannot duplicate these garments for less than $3 to $5 at most stores.

A word to the wise is—Rothberg's.

BROTHERS TO HANG; MURDERED A HUSBAND

Gainesville, Ga., Sept. 19.—James Cantrell and his younger brother, Bartow Cantrell, are occupying the "death cell" in the Gainesville jail and, unless some unforeseen and unexpected contingencies should arise that would cause the governor of the State to interfere with the execution of the sentence, the two prisoners will be executed by hanging a week from today. The two Cantrells were tried several months ago and after having been found guilty of the murder of Arthur Hawkins, were sentenced to be hanged on September 26. Mrs. Sylvia Hawkins, the widow of the victim of the crime, who was tried for complicity in the crime, is now serving a life sentence for her share in the brutal murder.

The history of the crime which, at the time, created a great sensation and tremendous indignation throughout the State, clearly reflects the passionate and wanton nature of the woman in the case and the power which she exercised over James Cantrell, her lover, and Bartow, the younger brother of James, who seemed to be equally devoted to the woman.

Arthur Hawkins, his wife and their four children lived in Gainesville, but in March of this year removed to a farm near Belton. Their neighbors were James Cantrell, a widower with two children, his mother and sisters, and Bartow Cantrell, a young man of sixteen or seventeen years. Soon after the Hawkins family came into the neighborhood James Cantrell contracted the mumps and Mrs. Hawkins went to his house to see him.

Cantrell and Mrs. Hawkins became infatuated one with the other almost at the first meeting and, it appeared from the evidence at the trial, within two weeks after their first meeting they were seen to kiss each other. They saw each other nearly every day, and numerous letters passed between them, letters in which she called him her "sweet boy," told him she loved him and had no pleasure except in his company, that she thought more of him than of any other man in the world, and that she would rather give up her baby than him.

In her later letters she suggested to Cantrell that he kill "Arthur" and put his body on the railroad track. She said that in the event of his death they would get a lot of money and would be able to marry. In another letter Mrs. Hawkins said she would go with Cantrell and they would follow Arthur out to some secluded place where they could kill him and nobody would ever know of it. Then she would live with him and take care of his children.

Mrs. Hawkins, according to the testimony, purchased shells from a hardware store in Luna, and with Cantrell's aid unloaded the shot, melted them into a slug, and together loaded the gun with which Hawkins was killed. The murder itself was committed by young Bartow Cantrell, who seemed to be the willing slave of Mrs. Hawkins. Armed with a pistol and a shotgun, Bartow Cantrell stationed himself behind a barn and when Hawkins passed by, he fired the slug into him, causing his instant death.

The evidence further showed that James Cantrell, at the instance of Mrs. Hawkins, had tried to buy strychnine in a Gainesville drug store, with which to poison her husband, but the druggist refused to sell the poison.

While Mrs. Hawkins and the two Cantrells were prisoners in the Hall county jail a note was passed by Mrs. Hawkins to James in which she said she would "stick to them" and that they would never hang if they would "stick to her," that while they were in trouble and might be sentenced, they would never be hanged. This was before the cases came to trial.

At the trial both James and his brother turned State's evidence against Mrs. Hawkins, and their mother and their sister corroborated their testimony which showed that Mrs. Hawkins had been the real instigator of the crime. In her own defense Mrs. Hawkins declared that she had nothing to do with the murder and that the Cantrells killed her husband because he had threatened to report them for making moonshine whiskey. The jury recommended mercy in her case.

After her conviction Mrs. Hawkins wanted to take her youngest child, about three years of age, to prison with her, but the State Prison Commission would not permit this. Mrs. Hawkins is a handsome woman of about thirty years and had borne a good reputation up to the time of her infatuation for James Cantrell.

A WISE PURCHASE.

Probably no better purchase was ever made by a city department, when the viewpoint of economy is considered, than waas the case when the Board of Health purchased an automobile for the health officer to use. Charged with the very important task of seeing that the city milk supply be kept pure, the department is called upon to visit dairies near and far, and the time which has been wasted in the past waiting for trains and in driving about the remote parts of the State and in Pennsylvania behind slow going country livery stable nags, has reached astounding proportions, when the entire amount of time as inspector is supposed to give to his work is taken into consideration.

With over three hundred dairies of which ship at least part of their product to Plainfield, the problem of properly inspecting them was becoming a great one, and the Board decided that it was either a case of purchasing the automobile or employing another inspector. It has cost anywhere from $16 to $43 a month for carriage hire alone in the past, and to this must be added the railroad fares, and the much more important item of time lost. With the automobile the inspector can reach points in German Valley, for instance, in about one-third of the time that it takes when he goes on the train and by driving.

Certainly there is no cause for criticism of the action of the Board of Hecalth in expediting the work of that all important department by the purchase of an automobile for its inspector. By so doing they are only following the example set by other cities and by the big corporations which have men that are compelled to cover large areas in the least time. It is an economical move, no matter how it is viewed.

A NOTABLE EVENT.

The banquet marking the formal opening of the enlarged and improved club house of the Columbus Club last night was an auspicious event. Seldom if ever has there been such a distinguished number of speakers and such a representative body of citizens gathered at a function of this sort in Plainfield. The eloquent addresses produced spontaneous applause from the several hundred diners and particularly was this the case when former Governor Stokes paid a great and deserved tribute to the Catholic church for its work in ages past and at the present in the couse of education. That gifted talker never made a better speech in his whole public career and the reception accorded him for his utterances was something even unusual at gatherings of the kind. Professor Prince's remarks were very timely particularly his declaration that the schools today are sending young men to college without having first taught them to think. United States Senator Smith, too, made an especially able address and Governor Fielder's talk was quite effective.

But a word as to the clubhouse. It is a splendidly appointed and most commodious structure. As Mayor Stewart said at the banquet is is an addition that adds to the beauty of the city. It is a great credit to that worthy organization, Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus.

The contributing editor for tomorrow's issue of the Plainfield Daily Press will be Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of Plainfield's public schools. He will tell you something about the new High School building and you will enjoy reading what he will have to say.

With both Colby and Fielder here today, and Stokes and Fielder having been here last night, it does not seem that Plainfield is being slighted by the gubernatorial nomination candidates.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Horne, of the borough, will be among the passengers leaving on the steamship Berlin of the North German Lloyd line tomorrow from New York for Naples and Genoa, via Gibraltar and Algiers.

MIGRATING LEMMINGS.

Animals Lured to Death by the Mystic Call of the Sea.

A Scottish naturalist in Edinburgh has recently given to the world some interesting facts which go to show how animals as well as human beings respond to the lure of the sea and how they will travel sometimes for hundreds of miles to answer its call and then push on into its waters to their own destruction.

The most curious example of this tendency is found in the seaward migration of the small brown, molelike lemmings. These animals will at certain times leave the highlands of Scandinavia and march in vast hordes toward the lowlands, moving only by night and following the general trend of the valleys. They hold tenaciously to the general direction in which they set out and are diverted neither by streams nor by moderately sized lakes.

Eventually, after a march lasting from one to three years, the army, devastated, of course, by many foes, reaches the sea, but not for its own good, for, queerly enough, the end of the journey is not attained, and many of the little animals push on into the waters, fulfilling to their own destruction the unaccountable impulse to push forward.

Other creatures likewise are known to fall under the spell of the sea. It is rather commonly known how the European reindeer will spend the hard weather of winter on the highlands of Scandinavia and Russia and feed sparingly on snow covered moss and lichens and then in summer, in spite of the fact that food has become more plentiful inland, will forsake these haunts for the seacoast. — Chicago Tribune.

TURNED THE JOKE.

Romieu's Fun With the Watchmaker Was Spoiled in the Windup.

The French critic, musician and government official, Romieu, was fond of joking. One of his diversions—amusing, but not to be commended—was to go into some shop where he thought he was not known and perplex the shopmen by his questions and remarks.

One evening he had taken a good deal of wine when he went into a little watchmaker's shop and, assuming the accent and air of a countryman, said:

"Sir, what do you call those little machines hanging there?"

"Watches," replied the shopkeeper.

"What are they for?"

"To indicate the time."

"Really? I have heard of them. How much do they cost?"

"Here is one for 200 francs and one for 100 francs, and here are some for 50 and 25 francs."

"Are there printed directions about making them go?"

"No; they have to be wound up every day with a key."

"Will you show me how, sir?"

"This way. You see it is not difficult."

"And must one wind it in the evening or in the morning?"

"You must wind yours in the morning."

"Why in the morning?"

"Because in the evening you are usually drunk, M. Romieu, and might break it."

Pretty Busy.

"What do you think of this old world, anyway?"

"I haven't time to think. Six children, house rent and the grocery bill take up all my spare time."—Detroit Free Press.

FIGURES OF SPEECH.

Just Suppose For a Moment That They All Turned to Facts.

No situation is more difficult to deal with than that in which a figure of speech becomes a fact. I mean that when we have been using a phrase truly, but in its general and metaphorical sense, we are rather embarrassed than otherwise if we find that it is true, even in its strict and literal sense. There does not seem to be anything more to say. Suppose you heard a family remark casually, "It's madness in papa to go to Norway!" And suppose the next instant papa sprang into the room through a smashed window, with straws in his hair and a carving knife and howled aloud: "Ubbubboo! I'm going to Norway!" The incident would be disconcerting. It would not be easy to pursue the subject.

Or suppose we said to some stately, silver haired woman who was annoyed, "I think it childish of you to take offense so easily." And suppose she sat down suddenly on the floor and began to scream for her doll and her skipping rope. We would be at a loss. Words suited to the situation would not easily suggest themselves.

Of if a wife said to her husband, apropos of a luxurious friend to whom he gave expensive dinners, "He's simply robbing you," her remarks would be cut short rather than further encouraged by the sight of the friend climbing out of the window with the silver teapot under his arm. The wife would have the extremely unpleasant sensation of having said the worst thing she could and having nothing more to say.

Cases, of course, could be multiplied indefinitely, as the case of one who, entering a lodging house, should say "Rats!" in disparagement of its praises and find himself instantly surrounded by those animals, or one who should remark, "Uncle Joseph has lost his head over this," and should find him decapitated in the garden.—Illustrated London News.

LINED WITH GOLD.

Alaska's Enormous Deposits Will Last a Thousand Years.

Like a tale out of the "Arabian Nights" is the opinion given recently by an expert on the future of Alaskan gold mining, only this expert bases his opinion on facts, whereas the oriental story teller specialized in fancy.

But the testimony given by Falcom Joslin is doubly interesting because it exceeds the imagination of the wildest fancy while being based on the facts in the case.

"In my judgment," says Mr. Joslin, "the placer mining industry in Alaska will last a thousand years, the area suitable for placer mining is so enormous. What we are working there now is only the gravels that will carry from $3 to $10 a yard. You cannot work gravels that carry less than that, but once we have transportation there and can work gravels such as they do in California, which carry 7 cents a yard, we have got so nearly an unlimited area of it that no man can foresee the end of that industry in Alaska.

"One great thing is that nearly the whole area of Alaska is gold bearing. There are placers and quartz. It has been said, and I believe the statistics and explorations of the geological survey show it, that you could go from the extreme southeast of Alaska at Ketchikan, where there are important mines, along this route by way of Hains clear out to Nome, a distance of 2,000 miles in a straight line, and that in every twenty mile section along that route you could develop gold mines. It is infinitely greater than any other area of gold country that has ever been found in the world."—Engineering and Mining Journal.

Nice For the Lady.

Quite regularly a certain London school teacher invited two miserable little girls to spend Saturday afternoon at her house. Knowing how overburdened with work the mother was and how much the children's moral education was neglected at home, a settlement worker ventured to congratulate the parent.

"What a great advantage for them!" she said. "How exceedingly kind of her!"

"No doubt she's glad of comp'ny," complacently returned the mother.—London Telegraph.

The Use of English.

Of the 80,000 English words available for conversation purposes only 400 are said to be in common use. If these were carefully selected there would be little cause for complaint, since the combinations they make possible should provide innumerable shades of variation. Careful word selection is something that should be encouraged in and out of the schools.—Christian Science Monitor.

Strict Economy.

"Nothing is lost here but the squeal," declared the pork packer. "Are you as economical in conducting your business?"

"More so," answered the visitor. "I'm in the lumber business. We don't waste even the bark."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Not Like Real Life.

"I like novels."

"Why?"

"Although the plot may thicken, the heroine always remains beautifully thin."—Washington Herald.

Revolutionary.

"Miss De Bunk insists that she is a daughter of the revolution."

"Why so?"

selections throughout the serving of the cuisine. Secretary of State Bryan was there in spirit—the menu included grape juice cocktails.

President Doyle delivered the opening address of welcome and thanked the building committee for its untiring efforts in making possible such an event and he praised each member of the council for his sacrifice which had resulted in the erection of the new structure.

Thomas Carty,
Chairman House Committee.

Prof. Prince had assigned to him the toast, "The University of America." He deplored the fact, which he said college professors had found to be true, that the average boy receives loose training in the high schools and that the youths in modern families grow up haphazard and when entering college do not know how to use their brains intelligently.

Mr. Stokes arrived on the festive scene over an hour after the unveiling of the Columbus bust. He was greeted with a round of cheers as he was escorted to his place at the speakers' table. When he retraced his steps to catch a train to Trenton the applause was threefold greater than when he made his first appearance. It was really a remarkable demonstration. His oration won for him this added exhibition of appreciation of his presence.

Of Mr. Stokes' address, Prof Monaghan said, "The words spoken here tonight by Mr. Stokes should be printed and bound in book-form, and that book placed in the library of every American citizen." The former Governor throughout his discourse deplored religious bigotry, denounced socialism and reviewed the accomplishments of great men of the Catholic faith from the time of Ignatius Loyola, founder of the Jesuit Order, to the present day.

After a few introductory remarks Mr. Stokes said, "Although I am not a member of your order or a member of the faith of which you are affiliated, I am interested in any body that peforms good work and is a factor for the uplift in the community. This nation, State and city is better for the formation of your organization. The men of the Catholic church were the educational founders of this world, and that your church has performed vast wonders for civilization is a fact that is recognized by every man of education and learning who does not allow his views to become biased." The speaker drew prolonged applause from the diners when he said, "It is the Catholic church alone that is fighting the menace of socialism; this menace which seeks to destroy the might of ambition and ac cumulation." Continuing, Mr. Stokes gave a brief outline of the life of Ignatius Loyola, the great educator, who did not begin the journey of his life's mission until the age of thirty-three years, when his inspiration came to him on a battle field. Loyola, after studying for years and years, founded the Jesuit Order, which established universities all over the world.

Father Bogan said the Knights of Columbus was here on earth to uplift Christianity and citizenship and scored the articles written against the order by vile periodicals. "The things written against us," Father Bogan said, "are not the true expression of the American people."

Previous to Father Bogan's address, Acting Governor Fielder, accompanied by Congressman Kinkead took his place at the banquet board amid the wildest of cheers. When called upon for an address on "Our State," he made a typical political speech. He asserts that the Democratic Legislature and himself had been running the affair of the State to the satisfaction of the adherents of every party, and said, "We can do it for three more years, too." The Governor had come from Bound Brook, where he had appeared at a mass meeting in the interest of his candidacy. Kinkead also made a short address, praising Mr. Stokes for his notable oration and like the latter, condemned bigotry, which he said was fast vanishing.

John J. Kenney,
Member Building Committee.

Former Senator Smith received a worthy reception when he arose to speak on "Our National Characteristics." Referring to Prof. Prince's address he said that the university had made but little improvement on the boy of today. "We have entered a new era of ways," he continued, "and our characteristics of today are liberty, quality and opportunity. People from all parts of the globe are seeking our shores for liberty and we welcome immigrants from every land, who are today as well as in the past making this country still greater. But, while we welcome them to our shores, they should understand that liberty does not mean the breaking of our laws or that anarchism or socialism should be tolerated. The men of your association and of the Catholic faith are today taking a great part in the uplifting of this nation, and I think that the time will come when the church will be of greater importance to the peace and happiness of this country than the erection of a mighty navy or the mobilization of a powerful army. Let us all strive together for virtue, morality and honesty."

"Our City" was the topic assigned to Mayor Stewart who commented on the Columbus clubhouse as an addition to the city's beautiful buildings. State Deputy Sweeney, who is known as the "silver tongued orator," said his subject for the night was, "The Success of Our Country." He said, like Bryan, he found his salary as a teacher so small that he took to lecturing and had spoken on similar subjects many times during the summer months. He lauded Mr. Stokes for his remarks and asserted that education gives rise to the great undertakings of this country.

Corporation Counsel Reed spoke on "Public Improvements," and said the election of Mr. Stewart to the mayoralty chair was a "great public improvement." The former Senator said to make public improvements possible each citizen should take some small part in civic work.

M. D. O'Keeffe,
Member Building Committee.

After Supreme Knight Flaherty had made a few remarks in which he complimented the local Knights for their splendid clubhouse, Prof. J. C. Monaghan, of Bayonne, spoke breifly on "Education." He praised the Hebrews of this country and said that they led others in the professions practiced on the continent as well as in this country. Andrew E. Kenney told of the inauguration of the local order twelve years ago with an enrollment of fifty members, and had grown to its present strength of 275. The last speaker was William N. Runyon, whose address on "Fraternalism" made an appropriate finale to the series of praise-worthy orations that had been heard.

The building committee which supervised the appointment of the new structure was composed of the following: A. A. Cannon, chairman; P. B. Doyle, J. F. O'Keefe, H. P. Greenwood, J. C. Traynor, W. H. Forristel, M. D. O'Keeffe, G. J. Tobin, Andrew E. Kenney, John J. Kenney, John J. Carty and Councilman Francis J. Blatz. The house committee comprised T. F. Carty, chairman; J. F. Hillman, J. C. Hurley, W. H. Brown, C. A. Shannon, H. J. Pasch and John McCarty.

TESTED HIS LOVE.

Unfortunately, Though, the Test Did Not Work Out Right.

She had merely wished to put his love to the test. It had not occurred to her that he might impulsively say goodby and go out of her life forever, but apparently she had misjudged him, and now he was gone, gone, alas, and she was left alone to nurse a vain regret.

Half swooning, she sank into a chair and covered her face with her hands.

Tears trickled between her fingers, and bitterly she reproached herself.

"Why," she sobbed, "did I let him go? I have lost him! Oh, foolish girl that I was, not to have put my arms around his neck before it was too late and asked him to forgive me!"

But hist!

Suddenly she raised her head and listened.

Yes; there was some one at the door. It is he!

Hastily dashing the tears from her eyes, she assumed an uncompromising look. He had returned to sue for peace. She must compel him to humbly admit that he had been wrong. It was her duty to herself to insist that he must surrender unconditionally.

He rang the bell, but she did not rush to let him in. Not until he rang again did she go to the door.

For a moment they stood facing each other. Proudly she waited for him to begin his plea for mercy.

At last he spoke.

"I'm sorry to trouble you," he said, "but I forgot my rubbers."—Chicago Record-Herald.

CALLED HIM A MAJOR.

And a Major He Remained, For the Emperor's Word Had Passed.

Emperor William I. of Germany prided himself upon the fact that his subjects considered his word as binding as the "laws of the Medes and Persians." An amusing incident in Mrs. Hugh Fraser's "Reminiscences of a Diplomatist's Wife" shows that the people's confidence was not misplaced.

One day the emperor's adjutant, Count Seckendorff, presented an officer to him upon the latter's promotion to major.

"Congratulations, major," said the emperor. The officer glanced at him an instant with an expression of astonishment and delight, then bowed and withdrew.

Presently, to his dismay, Count Seckendorff discovered that the officer thus promoted was one of two brothers and that it was the other one, the elder, who had just reached his majority. The younger brother, who had just been presented to the emperor, was only a captain.

When he explained the mistake to the emperor William I. replied: "Well, there's nothing to be done. 'Major' I said, and major he must remain."

Seckendorff came to him a few days later with the request that he might be allowed to present the real major, but the emperor shook his head. "No, no, my dear fellow," he answered, with a smile; "you don't catch me making the same mistake twice." It took some persuasion to induce him to receive the newly promoted officer.

Lazy Fishermen.

Some of the fishermen of the Mexican gulf shores have a method of angling for tarpon that at first sight appears to be the height of laziness. A stoutish line with a wire trace at the end is baited and then swung round the head and thrown right out in the sea. The other end is made fast to a post driven in the sand, the slack being coiled up beside it.

Then, lying on their backs, the fishermen hitch the line over their toe, the leg resting on the other knee. Lying thus apparently asleep, with their hats tilted over their faces, they wait until a twitching of the line announces that a tarpon has taken their bait.

Glancing round to see that all is clear, the men then check the line until the fish, feeling the hook, makes off at lightning speed. The rest is easy.—Stray Stories.

Uses of Barytes.

The greater part of the barytes produced in the United States is used as a pigment in the manufacture of mixed paints. It is also used in the manufacture of lithopone, a white pigment. Other uses for the mineral are in the manufacture of rubber, wall paper, asbestos cement and poker chips and in tanning leather. A use of barytes reported from Italy is in the manufacture of gorgonzola cheese. The cheese receives a covering in the form of a thick, heavy crust of the finely ground material, which has the property of affording just sufficient protection from aeration.

A MIGHTY INFLUENCE ON THE DRAMA

When the final estimate is made of this season's drama it will be found that the American playwright has been chiefly inspired by New York police inspectors of questionable reputations. The above is a likeness of Captain Ryan, one of the characters in the police crime comedy, "The Conspiracy." Ryan in that play is the image of the lately Sing Singed ex-Lieutenant Becker, to whose deeds several American playwrights owe so much material that they ought to share royalties with him.

IN SULZER TRIAL.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

when D-Cady Herrick will renew his objection to the seating as judges of Senator James J. Frawley and the other senators who composed the legislative committee which investigated the governor and laid the groundwork for the formulation of the impeachment articles. Counsel for the assembly managers are confident that Frawley and his committee colleagues will not be excluded as judges.

Will Raise Fine Points.

The belief of the assembly managers' counsel that Frawley and his committee associates will be permitted to sit is strengthened by the fact that Chief Judge Cullen in combating an argument of D-Cady Herrick quoted a part of the Dorn impeachment record to sustain his contention.

Several other constitutional points are to be raised by counsel for Governor Sulzer, the most important to be that the assembly, while convened in extraordinary session, had no right to adopt a resolution of impeachment. Attorney General Carmody has already decided that the assembly in presenting the impeachment exercised its constitutional prerogative. But the Sulzer attorneys have piled up precedent after precedent to refute the determination of the attorney general.

The validity and regularity as well as the accuracy of the articles of impeachment, as based on the evidence accumulated by the Frawley committee against Governor Sulzer, are to be attacked by Mr. Sulzer's counsel in a further effort to have the trial of the impeachment stopped before the stage of taking testimony is reached. Upon exactly what grounds the attempt to have the articles thrown into the discard will be based is not known.

The prediction is made here that the Sulzer counsel, should all of the constitutional and legal objections it presents be swept aside, will attempt to have the examination of witnesses deferred until an inquiry can be made into the motives alleged to be responsible for Mr. Sulzer's impeachment.

An investigation of this nature would include a probing into the details of the conflict between Murphy and Sulzer so far as it had a bearing upon the frequently charged purpose of Murphy to cast Sulzer out of office because the governor refused to obey the commands of the Tammany boss.

It is the contention of Mr. Sulzer's counsel that it is not only the legitimate concern of the impeachment court, but should be its desire, to make the trial broad enough to include a thorough airing of alleged practical and unpatriotic motives which moved a Tammany legislature to attempt the official beheading of the state's chief executive.

From the time that Edgar M. Cullen, chief judge of the court of appeals, a majestic and benign figure in his somber black robes, rapped his gavel slowly and declared the court of impeachment convened there was no mistaking the decorum that was to surround the fight which would decide whether William Sulzer would remain as the state's chief executive or be driven from the "People's House" a discredited man.

Sulzer Didn't Appear.

Although the first session yesterday took less than an hour, it was replete with momentous events that seemed all the more striking because of the novelty of the proceedings. The session went through without the appearance of the man on whom all thoughts were focussed. William Sulzer appeared only by counsel, a formidable legal battery that spread itself around a long table to the left of the presiding judge's rostrum. When the time came at which his name was called a thrill swept the room. Instinctively the eye sought a door in the chamber through which a defendant might be brought.

But there was only silence when the grave judge said in his most solemn tone:

"Call William Sulzer, governor of the state."

It was only a few seconds, but it seemed a full minute, when the voice of D-Cady Herrick was heard to say that the governor for the present at least appeared by counsel. Then there was a general feeling of disappointment, although every one knew in advance that there was no chance of Governor Sulzer appearing at the time. But the scene needed his presence just then for the climax.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

Plans and specifications for the work are on file at the Board Office in the High School Building, West Ninth Street and Arlington Avenue, and may be seen each day from nine to five, and Saturdays from nine to twelve.

All proposals to be endorsed, "Proposals for repairs at Jefferson School" and addressed to the Secretary of the Board. STORIES AND THE DRAMA.

Harder Work to Write a Novel Than to Construct a Play.

One reason why a play is easier to write than a novel is that a play is shorter than a novel. On the average one may say that it takes six plays to make the matter of a novel. Other things being equal, a short work of art presents fewer difficulties than a longer one. The contrary is held true by the majority, but then the majority, having never attempted to produce a long work of art, are unqualified to offer an opinion.

It is said that the most difficult form of poetry is the sonnet. But the most difficult form of poetry is the epic. The proof that the sonnet is the most difficult form is alleged to be in the fewness of perfect sonnets. There are, however, few more perfect sonnets than perfect epics. A perfect sonnet may be a heavenly accident. But such accidents can never happen to writers of epics.

Some years ago we had an enormous palaver about the "art of the short story," which numerous persons who had omitted to write novels pronounced to be more difficult than the novel. But the fact remains that there are scores of perfect short stories, whereas it is doubtful whether anybody but Turgenev ever did write a perfect novel.

A short form is easier to manipulate than a long form because its construction is less complicated, because the balance of its proportions can be more easily corrected by means of a rapid survey, because it is lawful and even necessary in it to leave undone many things which are very hard to do and because the emotional strain is less prolonged. The most difficult thing in all art is to maintain the imaginative tension unslackened throughout a considerable period.—Metropolitan Magazine.

STRENUOUS LOVEMAKING.

Mme. Lablanc Fairly Flung Herself at Maurice Maeterlinck.

Of the wooing of Maurice Maeterlinck by Mme. Georgette Leblanc the Gil Blas tells the story as given by the lady herself. Mme. Leblanc, on reading one of the poet's volumes, said to herself, said she, "This man shall be my husband and no other." She communicated this resolution to her friends, who made her believe that Maeterlinck was an old man with one foot in the grave. What was her surprise, when the long hoped for meeting took place, to find that he was "young and strong and beautiful."

The lady ran toward the poet with a cry. But the poet bashfully recoiled, and little wonder, perhaps, for listen to Mme. Leblanc's own words: "I was like a little tigress. My heart was terribly excited, my cheeks burned, and my eyes were aflame." But there is no armor against fate, especially when fate takes the bizarre but alluring form of a "little tigress in a tight black dress with a long train and on the forehead, between the eyes, a simple blazing diamond."

So continues the story of the interview: "I took his hand"—thus Mme. Leblanc—"and said to him, 'You are mine; you are my husband.' He was disconcerted by my boldness, which had the force of a storm in a forest. He questioned me on myself and my life. Sensitive as I am, I realized that he doubted me. 'Give me the time,' I said, 'and I will gain your confidence.'" Was ever poet in this manner wooed and won?

Ouch!

One of those dear lady friends of ours who take a particular interest in other people's affairs got on a car and sat down beside a quiet looking man whose face was badly pitted.

"Why, you poor man!" she exclaimed. "How you must have suffered! How long ago did you have the smallpox?"

"Madam," was the seriously spoken reply, "what evidently drew your attention are not pits of smallpox. I had these put on by a beauty specialist to keep my face from skidding when I eat watermelon." — Chicago Tribune.

Figured In Cold Dollars.

"The value of human life isn't supposed to be figured in cold dollars," said a builder, "but people don't generally know that in every big building erected in New York the price of human life is a consideration figured in the estimate.

"In a building of so many stories and of a certain sort of construction the contractors figure that a few workmen will be killed and there will have to be settlement with the families. Maybe no architects or contractors would admit that this is true, but it's a fact nevertheless."—New York Sun.

Very Democratic.

"Is she the right sort to be a congressman's wife?"

"Is she? Why, she's even more democratic than he is. She even goes so far as to call socially on the wives of some of her husband's constituents."—St. Louis Republic.

A Hint to the Wise.

Madeline—Don't come up to the house tonight, Harold. Harold—Why not, dear? Madeline—Pa had a puncture, cracked cylinder and a bent steering wheel today, and I'm afraid he'll wreak his vengeance on you.—Kansas City Star.

Letting Him Out.

"Would you marry a man who has the reputation of being not more than half witted?"

"No, but I'll be a sister to you."—Houston Post.

Stuart and Blakslee Roberts, of Kensington avenue, have entered Columbia University, as freshmen.

TOMORROW, SATURDAY

BROADWAY, FOURTH AVENUE, EIGHTH TO TENTH STREETS

The John Wanamaker Store

THE PIANO SALONS WILL REMAIN OPEN UNTIL 9:30 P. M

Great Half-Yearly Sale of Pianos and Player-Pianos

A Day That Will Bring to Fathers and Mothers the Realization of Hopes, and Which, Later On, Many Children of To-day Will Have Reason to Remember with Gratitude

TWICE each year we clear the Wanamaker Piano Salons of the accumulation of months. It is a necessary incident of our large business, in the regular course of which we take many pianos in exchange from homes that have grown musically up to the standard of the five great pianos in the Wanamaker Roll of Honor.

The Instruments in This Sale

Used pianos and player-pianos—some of them having been used but very little—taken in exchange for one of our new pianos or Angelus player-pianos;
New pianos reduced because of changes in case design;
New pianos and player-pianos from the Salon floors reduced because they show signs of service;
New pianos and player-pianos reduced because the finish of the cases is too dark to harmonize with the flawless cases of our regular stock of instruments.

Every instrument in the sale has been put in order by us; hammers of used pianos have been refelted where necessary; cases polished; all made ready to go out into good homes with the capacity for years of good service.

THE PRICES—lower than have been quoted since our last half-yearly sale for instruments of equal goodness; lower than will be obtainable again until our next half-yearly sale, unless something unlooked for happens.

You Who Have Children--Who Once Were Children-- know how the magic of music moves the little ones; how their faces brighten and their feet hasten when they hear the band coming around the corner, or the strains of the hurdy-gurdy on the next block. Children turn to music as flowers turn to the sun.

Music is uplifting—childish quarrels cease when music is in the air.

Good music educates. The child who begins with "Where the River Shannon Flows" will grow from simple melodies to Lehar and Strauss and Verdi and Puccini and Liszt, with a corresponding appreciation of the finer things in life.

If you have no piano in your home, come to the sale on Saturday and get one.

If you have a piano which you cannot play, come and get a player-piano; we will take your silent piano in part exchange for it.

We Shall Open the Sale Saturday Because

on that day husbands can meet their wives and choose together the piano for their home; when mothers may bring the children. And, to round out the service of the day, we shall keep the Piano salons open until 9:30 in the evening.

THE TERMS

will be made to suit the personal convenience of each purchaser, as is our custom in these half-yearly sales.

WE GUARANTEE

the worthiness of every instrument in the entire collection in the sale, and that in any instrument you purchase you shall have full measure of value for your money.

The Girls' Athletic Association supports but one branch of athletics, that being basketball, and preparations is being made for a fast quintet this season.

NEW GIRLS' COACH.

Miss Boxald, an experienced basketball coach, will have charge of the North Plainfield High School feminine athletes on the basketball court during the coming season and will begin the work of shaping the team at once.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL A SPECIAL STUDY.

Middletown, Conn., Sept. 19.—Football has been advanced to the dignity of a "special study" at Wesleyan University, which opened for its eighty-third year this morning. Among Faculty announcements was one directly relating to the game. It stated that in addition to Daniel Hutchinson, of the University of Pennsylvania, as special football coach, Dr. Fauver, professor of physical education, would be assisted by William Hunter, "discoverer" of Captain James I. Wendell, the crack hurdler, who will coach the track team and train all the teams, and E. S. Hall, "skilled in both outdoor and indoor athletics," who will look after the freshman football team, the swimmers and gymnasts. Under this Faculty indorsement and aided by the Pennsylvania "system" a winning football team is expected to be put across the gridiron. Coach Hutchinson has begun driving the candidates hard in preparation for the game with Yale next Wednesday.

$10,000 FOR RITCHIE TO BOX.

As the result of a coaference with Billy Gibson, manager of the Garden A. C., Scotty Montieth, who locked out for the interests of Johnny Dundee, the New York lightweight, last night announced that Gibson had wired Willie Ritchie an offer of a$10,000 guarantee to box Dundee in Madison Square Garden during the last week in October.

REICH TO BOX MORRIS.

Al. Reich, the latest aspirant for heavy-weight championship honors, will be subjected to a severe test in Madison Square Garden tonight. The former amateur champion, who is a physical marvel and is confident of success, will hook up with Carl Morris, the Oklahoma locomotive engineer, in a ten-round glove contest.

UMPIRE PERRINE IN ASYLUM.

Oakland, Cal., Sept. 19.—Fred (Bull) Perrine, former Pacific Coast League and American League umpire, was committed to the Nappa Asylum for the Insane yesterday after a week at the Emergency Hospital under observation.

SULLIVAN'S HOME-COMING.

Arrangements were completed yesterday afternoon for the reception, which is to be tendered James E. Sullivan, Secretary Treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, this afternoon, upon his arrival on the S. S. Cedric from Europe. The steamer will arrive at quarantine at about 11.30 a.m. and she is expected to dock at the foot of Nineteenth street, North river, at about 12.30 p. m. It is anticipated that probably one thousand members of the various metropolitan clubs will be on hand to aid in the greeting to the athletic leader.

MISS CASSELL WINS.

Miss Clare Cassell, the clever New York tennis player and member of the West Side Club, won a notable victory yesterday in straight sets, 6—3, 6—2, over Mrs. Marshall McLean, the New Jersey State champion, in the semi-finals of the women's annual tennis tournament being held on the dirt courts of the Montclair Athletic Club. Mrs. McLean was inclined to be erratic and did not display anywhere near the form which won her the State championship at Morristown last week.

SPITTER ENDORSED.

George H. Hamer, of Chicago, yesterday, gave the "spitball" a clean bill of health in replying to a letter written him by John Stuart White, headmaster of a boys' school, requesting Hamer to co-operate in a campaign of prevention on the ground that moistering the ball is unsanitary. "I do not believe the spitting on the ball by the pitcher has any more effect on the health of the player than spitting on the bait for luck when fishing has to do with the size of the catch," wrote Dr. Hamer.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is meant by these terms in cycle racing: "Teaming," "switching," "rough riding," "repechage race," "open," "handicap," "heat?"—F. W. R.

Answer—"Teaming" means one rider pulling another in a race. "Switching" is interfering with a rival's chances of winning by repeatedly riding close or in front of him, "rough riding" is the same thing, "repechage race" is one in which the riders who have been shut out in the trial heats are allowed to qualify for the semi-final; an "open" race is one open to any professional or amateur rider, as the case may be. A "handicap" race is one in which the best men start from the scratch and the others are given a start of a varying degree of yards; a "heat" is the preliminary contest to decide which men will start in the finals. Now give these the "once over."

Constant Reader—Your request is indefinite and you will have to explain your query in detail.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Would you please advise me where I could go to be a actor?—U. O. J.

Answer—What d'ye mean, "a" actor? Consult the New York Clipper.

Answer—Jimmy Clinton, that's all.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Has Carlstrom ever before played with the Plainfield baseball team?—N. B.

Answer—Yes, he played shortstop two years ago.

Sporting Editor:

Please tell me how deep the driven wells used by the water company are, and what it costs to drive them.

F. R. L.

Answer—The wells are about 200 feet deep and the cost of driving them varies according to the conditions under which they are driven. If rock is struck it is more expensive than through sand or gravel.

JACK GARRETSON LEADS THE PETS TEAM BOTH IN FIELDING AND HITTING MARKS

Although Jack Garretson has been retired from baseball as the result of Dame Fortune's tactics for the remainder of the season, the Plainfield Central New Jersey League Club's big first baseman will have the satisfaction of knowing that he was the logical leader of a semi-professional ball club both in fielding and batting during his first year of professional baseball. He took part in six games, every contest played up to the time he retired to enter the hospital for an operation, and out of the sixty chances that came his way around the initial corner he made a fizzle out of but one, handling the other fifty-nine in great style. His fielding mark is therefore '984. To be sure there are players who have taken less chances and others who have played in less games who are above the first sacker in the averages but his all around work is the highest of any performer.

Not only in fielding did Garretson excel, but his sticking mark is far above that of many of the players who have taken an active part in all of the nine contests played. In six games he has approached the plate twenty-six times and has pounded out eleven hits for an average of .424.

Seven of the Pets are clouting the pill for a mark of .300 or better while nine are fielding better than .800. The averages given below do not include games played Sundays.

The records are:

"TED" COY WILL COACH RUTGERS FOOTBALL TEAM

New Brunswick, Sept. 19.—"Ted" Coy, the famous Yale fullback, will be here next week to coach the Rutgers back field. This information was given out Wednesday afternoon by Professor Sandford, who is assisting in the coaching of the scarlet football warriors.

"And he'll be here," said Sandford, with a smile, "for when Coy says he'll do a thing, he does it."

In preparation for the hard work of next week, the candidates for the Rutgers eleven were given their first practise on the hard gridiron of the Neilson Field yesterday afternoon. None of those who were out for practise was any the worse for the falls on the hard shale yesterday, so well seasoned had they become by starting in gradually on the college farm.

FALL GOLF OPENING AT SOMERVILLE CLUB

The construction and re-seeding work now nearing completion, a busy fall season is planned at the Somerville Country Club. Owing to this being practically the first season at the club, little has been done in the way of competitive golf and tennis, but many events, as well as social activities, will be held this fall.

Tomorrow afternoon, besides the handicap competition, with a golf bag first prize, and six balls second prize, there will also be a men's avoirdupois contest, divided into two classes—heavyweights, over 200 pounds, and lightweights, under 200 pounds. Entrance fee will be $1.50 for heavyweights and $1 for lightweights. The prize for the heavyweight returning the lowest net score will be a silver cup, and for the lightweight a copper cup.

LIDDY EXPECTED HOME.

Eugene Lidgate, the Fanwood athlete who has been playing baseball with the Raleigh club of the Carolina League during the past season, will return home Sunday. "Liddy" may perform behind the bat for Joe Alberts' nine during the rest of the baseball season and will be back in the basketball game during the winter once more.

DUNELLEN A. C. FOOTBALL TEAM HAS REORGANIZED

The crack Dunellen A. C. football team has been reorganized by L. E. Starker, who will be its manager. This is the eleven that cleaned up everything it bucked against three years back. Manager Starken plans to arrange mostly out of town games, playing at home only on holidays.

The following is the way that the crack old team will line up: Logan and Lake, ends; Dineen and Snyder, tackles; Hurtt and Bensen, guards; Fisher, center; Giddes, quarterback, and "Dr." Endicott, Manning and Smith, backs. The eleven will be going some that lowers the colors of this crack aggregation into the dust.

CHAMPIONS WILL MEET.

The First Baptist and Saurer baseball teams will meet on the West End avenue field tomorrow afternoon in an after-season diamond match.

TORPEY TRUSTS IN HIS FAITHFUL CREW TO BRING HOME THE CENTRAL PENNANT

CENTRAL NEW JERSEY LEAGUE.

Club Standing:

	W.	L.	P.C.
Plainfield	11	5	.688
Somerville	11	5	.688

Game Tomorrow:

Somerville at Plainfield.

Lineups:

Plainfield—Harter, cf.; W. Stallings, 2b.; Carlstrom, ss; Luyster, rf.; Bruggy, lf.; Roes, 1b.; Craig, 3b.; Nelson, c.; Mason or Jennings p.

Somerville—Grimes, lf.; Porter, rf.; Torpey, c; Clinton, p.; Mullin, 2b.; Dalton, ss.; Hickey, cf.; Wiltse, 1b.; Conti, 3b.

Umpire—Billy O'Rourke.

When Plainfield takes the field against the Somerville club tomorrow afternoon to fight it out for the Central New Jersey League pennant in the final game of the season, the Pets' lineup will be shattered almost beyond recognition in an effort to strengthen it to meet the pride of the Somerset county town. "Flick" Luyster, captain and right fielder on the Lawrence New England team during the season just closed will play a similar position for the Pets, taking Sam Dorman's place. Luyster is a good hitter and speedy fielder and was awarded a silver loving cup by the Lawrence Club last Saturday after being declared the most valuable man to the team during the championship race just closed. Albin Carlstrom and Frank Bruggy, teammates of Luyster, will perform at shortstop and left field respectively. Bruggy formerly caught for the Bound Brook baseball team but since becoming a leaguer has shifted to the outfield where he has been a consistent performer. Carlstrom played for Plainfield two seasons ago and the local fans well know the article of baseball he is capable of putting out.

Carlstrom will play shortstop, the one weak spot in the Pets' lineup all season, Joe Harter, who has been filling in at this berth going to his old place in center field, and Joe has assured the local manager that he will be right on deck when playing time arrives. Bruggy will take Moran's place in left field. Although the pitching choice has not been definitely decided upon, either Del. Mason, of big league fame, or Jennings, the former Rutgers College pitcher, will be on the mound. Roes, a first baseman on the Worcester New England League team, will fill in at first base, Jack Garretson still being under the weather as the result of an operation.

Somerville will have the same old stand-bys in the lineup against Plainfield tomorrow and considering the way Jimmy Clinton stood the Pets on their heads last week, this team ought to be enough to make the local aspirants hustle for honors. Jack Torpey is one of the few managers who places confidence in his players and believes in favoring a crew of performers who have stuck to him through thick and thin all summer rather than announcing an influx of new material for the sake of making a good showing in a championship game. Although the Somervillians are the same as have adorned the Somerset county team's lineup all season, it would not be a surprise to many to see them turn the tables on the Queen City nine and bring home with the flag. Plainfield has gathered a crew of stars from far and wide and as a result the team work, so necessary in any department of sports, may be sadly afflicted by the changes.

Special trolley cars will be run to Parker Field tomorrow and Manager Dorflinger is making preparations to accommodate an even larger crowd than the one that attended the Plainfield-Somerville playoff two years ago at Crescent Oval, when Plainfield won through the hurling ability of Slim McConnell.

EDWARD RAY RETURNED A TOTAL OF 225 FOR COURSE

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 19.—The first card returned in the second days' play of the U. S. open golf championship this morning was that of Edward Ray, the English professional, who made his third round of the course in 76, his total for three rounds being 225.

Other third circuit cards turned in up to noon are as follows: Harry Vardon 78, total 225; Brady Wollaston 78, total 235; A. Murray Kanawaki 81, total 235; Matt. Campbell, Country Club, 77, total 240; MacDonald, Cincinnati, 84, total 243; J. G. Anderson, Boston, 86, total 250.

HOLY CROSS DRILL.

A second practice and tryout of the Holy Cross football team will be held tonight on Hyde Oval, North Plainfield. P. V. Martin, the new coach, will be on hand to drill the candidates.

GAME IN WESTFIELD.

The North Plainfield Cubs, a baseball team composed of last year's N. P. H. S. players, will go to Westfield tomorrow afternoon to lineup against the Westfield Cubs of that place.

HOPE CHAPEL IN BOUND BROOK.

The Hope Chapel Sunday-school League team is scheduled to appear in Bound Brook tomorrow afternoon to lineup against the Y. M. A. aggregation of the latter place.

WILL ASSIST MANAGER.

Lester Chandler, '15, will act as assistant to Manager Van Mater, of the North Plainfield High School basketball team during the coming season. The appointment was made yesterday.

LOCAL SOCCER TEAM WILL OPEN SEASON

Plainfield Association Football Aggregation to Play Alley Boys Tomorrow.

Providing the weather permits, the Plainfield association football team will open the soccer season in this city tomorrow, when they play an exhibition game with the Alley Boys, of Newark, on the Clinton avenue grounds. The contest is scheduled to start at 3.30 o'clock.

The Alley Boys were last year's champions of the Inter City Amateur Soccer League, when by a strong finish they captured first place from the fast Eurekas. The league became badly disorganized at the close of the season and will not be continued this year. The local players, however, are making efforts to start another league and will perfect their plans at the next meeting of the club.

Several new players will receive try-outs with the Plainfielders and should strengthen the team considerably. Prominent among the recruits is Dibble, a centre, who is a "kicker" of wide experience.

The locals will probably line-up for tomorrow's struggle as follows: McNiece, goal; Craig and Johnson, backs; J. Gardner, Kenny and Crawford, half-backs; Corberry and Spaulding, right wings; Dibble, centre; T. Gardner and W. Braidwood, left wings, and Buckland, Henry and Robinson, substitutes. J. Henderson will referee.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

Laurette Taylor will begin the 41st consecutive week of her wonderfully successful engagement in Oliver Morosco's production of J. Hartley Manners' comedy of youth, "Peg O' My Heart," at the Cort theatre on Monday night. But two changes have been made in the cast. Christine Norman, the first to play the part of Ethel, was forced to take a sea voyage to recover her health, but will return to the cast soon. Ruth Gartland, who created the part of the maid, is now playing Ethel with one of the road companies. Miss Taylor's company includes H. Reeves-Smith, Hassard Short, Clarence Handyside, Reginald Mason, Peter Bassett, Emilie Melville, Violet Kemble Cooper and Vonne Jarrette.

McIntyre and Heath will begin the second and last week of their highly successful engagement in "The Ham Tree," at the Majestic theatre, Boston, on Monday night, under John Cort's management. The week of September 29th the celebrated blackface comedians will be the attraction at the DeKalb theatre, Brooklyn. Lew Bloom, Edward Wade and Mildred Beverely have been added to the company.

The Grand Opera House, New York city, will offer as its attraction for the week of September 22d, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday, that Fulton theatre success of last spring, "What Happened to Mary." Miss Olive Wyndham, who created the character of Mary, will again be seen in this role supported by the initial cast. In this part, Miss Wyndham has made the triumph of her unusually interesting career. Mary is a child of mystery, who, as a baby, was stolen from her wealthy parents by a designing uncle and given in charge of a rascally storekeeper. Until a grown girl, she supposed this hard-hearted storekeeper had legal control of her. Captain Jogifer, an old salt, finally tells her the truth as he knows it and Mary decides to run away. A wealthy young scamp, who seeks her ruin, adds his influence, and Captain Jogifer unwittingly plays into the scamp's hands. Mary arrives in New York, but fortunately senses something is wrong and so escapes from the trap set for her. She is without money and friends. Eventually she gets employment in a lawyer's office, incidentally wins the love of the junior member of the law firm, is unjustly accused of stealing money and discharged from her position. Again she is alone and friendless. But the ending is happy for Mary finally clears her name, discovers her mother and realizes the happiness of true love. The cast is as follows: Charles Miller, Ed. M. Kimball, Frank R. Montgomery, Morris Foster, Alma Kruger, Kate Jepson, Jay C. York, Edgar Nelson, Lottie Medley, Rosemary Carlton and Burr Caruth.

Unique Bracelet Watches

Just Over from Switzerland

This new collection is in direct response to the ever-growing demand for these convenient and charming timepieces.

Many of the designs, especially those of the dials, were worked out with the makers by our expert. There are watches of silver, of delicate enamels, gold filled, or of 14k. gold. The cases prove that a watch doesn't have to be round by any means. They are square, hexagonal, octagonal, in the new "tonneau" shape, and many other original conceits. Some have soft straps of moire or suede; others are mounted on extension bracelets.

As hardly two of them are alike, a view of the display will be much more satisfactory to you than an attempt on our part to describe them.

Prices range from a Silver Extension Bracelet Watch, with square or oval silver dial, in sun-ray effect, at $8.50, to 18k gold Watches, in many unusual designs, with 15-jewel French movements, at $65. Main Floor

$5 to $7.50 New Lingerie Blouses, $3.95

Granting a substantial concession was his courteous way of introducing these Blouses to us. Of course, we approved them or we would not have entertained his proposition.

We must admit that these Blouses are considerably different from the usual kind—they have a distinctiveness, which, if they were human, would be called a charming personality—as you will see in the illustration.

Although they are all of fine voile, their various trimmings make them unlike. Some are trimmed with motifs of embroidered filet net or mousseline de soie, others are hand-embroidered, some are adorned with an excellent imitation of Point Venise lace, and so on.

Crepe de Chine Blouses with the "1830" Shoulder, $5

Of course, they are of white crepe de chine, and their De Medici ruches are of Valenciennes lace.

The Clever Ideas of Georgette and Lewis Are Combined in

This New Bonnet with the Bridle Strap—at $12.75

Although this coquettish little Hat is an exclusive GIMBEL mode, we are perfectly willing to admit that it was inspired by the two famous Paris modistes—Georgette and Lewis.

In combining their ideas we think that we have designed the perfect model in this particular kind of Hat that is now so popular.

Just in purple or black velvet, because it is most effective in these tones. Of course, it is relieved with a crushed pink rose.

TRACE SCHMIDT IN FORGER'S ROLE

Had Copies Made of Death Certificates.

PLANNED TO KILL OTHERS

Police Say Apparently He Had Arranged With Doctor's Aid to Murder and Bury Victims—Found Guilty by Coroner's Jury.

New York, Sept. 19.—That Hans Schmidt, the priest who murdered and dismembered Anna Aumuller, had made prepartions for accounting for the death of his victim and perhaps for other deaths by means of forged death certificates, was discovered by Inspector Faurot and detectives at work on the case.

Photographs of death certificates and a number of the blank forms issued by the board of health were found in the priest's trunk. To dispose of the body of a dead person without arousing suspicion all that would be necessary would be the signature of a physician to a certificate stating a natural cause of death. This could be forged.

Detectives will question Ernest Arthur Muret, Schmidt's confederate, who prefixed "Dr." to his name, to see if Muret is willing to admit that he was familiar with any schemes of Schmidt to prepare fraudulent death certificates and trace out his record with minute exactness if they can.

Made Copies For Schmidt.

Leon Beach, a photographer at 49 Manhattan street, identified four photographic copies of a death certificate which he had made for Schmidt. The document certified the death of Robert Smith, a retired business man, whose age was stated to be sixty-nine years and whose address was recorded at 215 West One Hundred and Twenty-third street.

The priest hurried into the photographic studio one day last April and said that he must have without delay two copies of the front and two of the back of the death certificate. He was vexed when told that he could not get the photographs until the day following, but he left the order nevertheless.

Two copies of each side of the death certificate were found by Inspector Faurot's detectives in Father Schmidt's trunk. Schmidt wore his priest's garments on both trips to the photographic studio.

Inspector Faurot's men suspect that Schmidt had the death certificate photographed with the purpose of making several counterfeits in order to be able to make false death certificates. Schmidt's record reveals numerous instances where he has committed forgery in the preparation of spurious documents. He obtained his connections with churches in this country by forged papers, was prosecuted in Germany for forgery and was suspended from the priesthood by the bishop of Mainz because he had forged certificates purporting to show that he had completed several advanced courses of study.

Coroner's Jury's Verdict.

The coroner's jury in Jersey City, after an inquest over the remains of the parts of the body of Anna Aumuller which were recovered from the Hudson river, rendered a verdict last night that she had been murdered by Hans Schmidt, the priest, who until his arrest was a curate at St. Joseph's church in West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street. The verdict was:

"The jury finds that Anna Aumuller met her death on or about Sept. 2, 1913, at the premises at 68 Bradhurst avenue, in the city and county of New York, at the hands of Hans Schmidt. We recommend that action be taken by the New York authorities. We also recommend that the parts of the body in the possession of the Hudson county authorities, together with the paper, wire and other articles of evidence, be turned over to the New York authorities."

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

In "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" Isabelle Lowe, who plays the part of June, preaches that "love is the cornerstone of existence. We go on," she says, "in our wild chase after happiness. We grasp at every straw. We fly hither and yon, from one thing to another, until finally everything falls from us like a garment, and we find that happiness comes from within, and it is only another name for love. Love is such a poor abused word, isn't it? So many crimes are committed in the name of love. But the love I mean is a big, deep, spiritual love, which lifts one up and out of all the meanness of life, and lets one see the light and live on the mountain tops. If one can fill one's heart with such love, I believe one can endure anything. I would not play a part that didn't make for an uplift, for wholesome helpfulness." This play will appear at the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Grace George will make her first appearance in a Barrie play at the Plainfield Theatre, September 24, and in a Barrie play, too, never previously given on any stage. It is entitled "Half An Hour" and is said to be as thrilling as a drama by Sardou. Miss George's performance will be preceded by the newest play by the author of "Hindle Wakes," entitled "The Younger Generation."

FOR JERSEY NAVY YARD.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels inspected the proposed new site for an enormous and up to date navy yard to be situated on the Greenville (N. J.) shore of the New York bay, which would supersede the present Brooklyn navy yard at a cost of over $26,500,000. The secretary is shown with J. Spencer Smith, chairman of the New Jersey harbor commission.

MAYOR GAYNOR'S BODY IN HIS BROOKLYN HOME

Casket Transferred From Lusitania at Midnight.

New York, Sept. 19.—The body of William J. Gaynor, late mayor of New York city, is at rest in his home, 20 Eighth avenue, Brooklyn. A private funeral service will be held for the members of the family this afternoon, after which the body will be taken to the city hall to lie in state on Sunday and for the public funeral in Trinity church on Monday.

Mayor Gaynor's body arrived on the steamship Lusitania of the Cunard line after midnight last night. Mayor Kline, Robert Adamson, secretary to the mayor; Patrick Whitney, commissioner of corrections; R. A. C. Smith, commissioner of docks and ferries; Rhinelander Waldo, commissioner of police; Arthur O'Keefe, commissioner of bridges; Archibald Watson, corporation counsel, and Henry Thompson, commissioner of water supply, gas and electricity, with Norman Gaynor, son of the late mayor, and Harry Vingut and W. Seward Webb, his two sons-in-law, left the Waldorf-Astoria at midnight to board the Correction, the biggest boat the city owns, to go down the bay to meet the ship.

While the Lusitania arrived at quarantine before 10 o'clock, the transfer of the mayor's body was not made until early this morning. Meanwhile one of the big tugs of the Merritt-Chapman company stood by to render any assistance required in moving the heavy casket, weighing more than 1,100 pounds.

The body was then taken to the foot of Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, and thence to the Gaynor home, where it arrived before many citizens were astir. All of this was done in accordance with the personal wishes of Mr. Gaynor, unde the direction of Police Lieutenant William Kennel, who has been the mayor's personal attendant for four years.

The Housewife's Daily Economy Calendar

FRANCES MARSHALL

When You Open the House.

There is nothing much drearier than a house that has been closed for a few weeks or months or even days. People in the tropics say that the vegetation is oppressive, overwhelming; that a house or a garden plot neglected is soon swallowed up by natures growth and that so man is convinced of the fact that civilization must be a constant fight with elemental forces. The same feeling sometimes comes over the housewife as she pushes open the door of a long-closed house. Spiders and mice, dust and rust and moths—all these have taken possession and, according to their strength and the length of time the house has been closed, have played havoc with the order and cleanliness that civilized effort has produced.

Some Memedies.

Here are some remedies for some of the unpleasant conditions that will be sure to prevail in a house long closed. And they are remedies that may come in helpfully on many sweeping days.

First tackle rust. If there is rust on nickel, smear it with mutton tallow. After an hour or so rub the tallow off with a cloth dipped in a paste of rottenstone and ammonia. Then rinse it with clear, hot water. Clear, hot water takes off all superficial dirt from nickel. Water and whiting mixed to a paste futher clean nickel.

Wring a flannel cloth out of kerosene to remove the cloudy look from furniture and woodwork.

Clean picture frames of gilt and any other gilding with a cloth wrung out of gin. Then rub the gilding dry.

Clean tins that have stood unused for a long time wash with soap and whiting, applied with a flannel cloth.

Cut rust on tins, iron fenders or cooking utensils, or scissors with kerosene.

Oil rusty and therefore squeaky door hinges with a little kerosene.

Blow red pepper and unslaked lime into the mouse holes through which mice might enter your house.

Wash lacquered brass with soap and warm water, and dry it. Then polish it with chamois. If this does not clean it, use a paste of whiting and water.

Some Cookery Suggestions

GRAPE JELLY.

ONE of the most delicious of all jellies is made with grapes. Concords are the best for this purpose, although Catawba and Concord grapes combined make a good jelly. The grapes should be pulled for jelly before they are quite ripe.

The ordinary grape takes three-quarters of a pound of sugar to each pound of grapes.

Simple Jellies.

Green Grape Jelly.—Take grapes that are just beginning to turn. Pick them from the stems and wash in cold water. To each eight pounds of the fruit add one of water. Stew until soft and mash and strain through a cheesecloth bag. Put them back on the fire and let them come to a boil, then skim. To each cupful of juice add a cupful of heated sugar. Boil about twenty minutes, then put into glasses and seal.

Muscadine Jelly.—To make white jelly take only the pulp. Mash the pulp out of two-thirds of the muscadines, put the skins in another vessel, then take the rest of the grapes, mash them, put skins and all in with the two-thirds and cook and strain as other jelly. For this jelly put one and one-fourth cups of sugar to one of juice. Now take the skins, cook till tender and put one cup of sugar to two of fruit. Cook till done and you will have delicious preserves.

With Wild Grapes.

Green fox grapes make a delicious amber colored jelly. Use a cupful of sugar to a cupful of the juice.

Fox Grape Jelly.—Wash and pick over the grapes, put them, still wet, into a preserving kettle and simmer until soft. Strain and press out the juice and measure this. For each cupful of it allow a cupful of granulated sugar. Heat the sugar, but do not let it burn. Return the juice to the fire and boil hard for five minutes, then add the warm sugar gradually and cook for three minutes after the boil is reached. Pour into glasses and seal.

Highly Spiced..

Spiced Grape Jelly.—Pick, wash and drain one peck of wild grapes. To the grapes add one quart of vinegar and one-fourth cupful each of whole cloves and stick cinnamon. Heat to the boiling point and let simmer till the grapes are soft. Strain through cheesecloth or a jelly bag, return to the preserving kettle, again bring to the boiling point and let simmer twenty minutes. Add six pounds of granulated sugar which has been heated, let simmer five minutes and pour into glasses. Place in a sunny window and let stand twenty-four hours. Cover and keep in a cool, dry place.

The Goose Led Her to Church.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—Some Geese That Were Not Silly.

"NOW, then, silly goose!" Jack had cried as Evelyn jostled him in her eagerness to be first to reach daddy.

"How do you know geese are silly?" daddy asked.

"I read a story the other day about a poor blind woman who lived in a part of Germany where the people keep a great many geese.

"This old lady had a pet goose that followed her about everywhere. She had brought it up from the time it was a tiny gosling and was very fond of it.

"As she grew older the little old lady's eyes began to fail.

"Every Sunday the old lady went to church. When she could no longer see, the goose, which had been used to following her there and waiting outside until she was ready to go home, would come cackling up to her when the church bells began to ring, taking her dress in his bill and starting off with her to the church. When he reached the church door he would let go, and some of the people going inside would lead the old lady to her pew.

"After the services were over she would come out to find her goose waiting for her.

"As soon as it could reach her it would again take hold of the old lady's dress and lead her safely home again.

"I have heard another story of a king who one day took a book and went out in the royal park alone to read. As he walked home after a pleasant afternoon spent outdoors he suddenly remembered that he had left his book under the trees.

"A little boy was minding a flock of geese not far away, and he called him. 'My boy, I will give you this'—and the king held up a gold coin—'if you will run back and fetch my book. I will mind the geese while you are gone.'

"'You must be very careful,' the little boy warned him. 'You gray goose is the leader of the flock, and if you do not watch out he will lead all the geese away, and then I will get into trouble.'

"The king smiled. He thought if he was clever enough to take care of all the people in his kingdom he could surely manage an old gray goose.

"He found out his mistake. No sooner was the boy gone than the old gray goose began honking to his fellows and marching and countermarching, so that try as he would the king could not head them off.

"When the boy came back with the book the geese were gone, and the king, very red and much ashamed, had to help the boy hunt up his geese.

"And when people flattered him too much and told him what a fine, clever king he was, after that the king always told them of what a failure he had made of minding geese."

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

Although the Board of Education has made the appropriation for a basketball hall, it seems probable that the court cannot be secured before the middle of November because of a misunderstanding between the school committee and the Saengerbund management. As Manager Van Mater has already staged some home games for the first part of November, this may lead to confusion.

The work on the motors that are to run and regulate the electric clocks of the school is almost finished and the classroom clocks and period bells will soon be running.

Mr. Stillman, the new manual training teacher, has consented to make a trophy cabinet for the High School's athletic cups.

Miss Agnes Boxold, the librarian, is substituting for Miss Terry in the High School. Miss Terry was called home Monday because of the serious illness of her sister.

Miss Ruth Miller, '13, is acting as assistant to Miss Boxold in the library.

Edmund Kenney, who graduated in 1912, is now a member of the freshmen class at Penn. State College. He is taking an engineering course.

Commercial geography has been taken from the eighth grade and made a freshman subject. About twenty-seven first year, pupils are taking it under the direction of Miss Love.

Every Thursday morning the grades have the use of the High School for the first period. This time is taken for chorus singing under the direction of Miss Utter.

It has practically been decided to hold the Athletic Association play before Christmas this year instead of waiting until spring. Miss Ray will act as coach.

At a meeting of the Junior Class Boys' Athletic Association, yesterday, Hyman Abrams was elected president by one vote. Theodore Layton was elected treasurer. No other officers were chosen.

Charles Beckman has again become editor of the "Scout" and the paper has a large circulation in the High School.

About twenty-two pupils of the High School are transported in the school wagon from over the mountains. This is about twice as many as came last year and the wagon has been enlarged.

The present senior class is the largest in the history of the school. If all graduate there will be twenty-five diplomas presented.

Ladies' Home Journal Patterns

The finest pattern articles in the world printed exclusively in Plainfield in The Plainfield Daily Press. Ladies' Home Journal Patterns are on sale at A. E. Force & Co., "The White Store."

BROCADED VELVETS BOLD OF DESIGN TAKE THE LEAD FOR DRESSY WRAPS

Brilliant and glowing as were the summer fashions those of the coming winter promise to be just as wonderful. Can you imagine anything richer than a dull green brocaded velvet coat in Russian design, with collar and cuffs of a soft, dark fur? The coat 7970 in its broad straight lines with the wide satin girdle conforms in every detail to fashion's demands. Aside from the fur a jade buckle and frogs of braid across the front are the only trimmings. One of the new duvetyns, a figured matelasse, or a broadcloth could also be used with this design effectively, as well as any of the new novelty suitings that are being used so much. The pattern is cut in five sizes, 34 to 42. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 36 inch material. A three-piece tunic is shown on 7971. The waist-line is raised slightly, and its general lines make it an excellent model to wear with a separate blouse. Five pattern sizes may be had, 22 to 30. Size 24 requires 3 yards of 36 inch material.

Simplicity still marks the fashionable afternoon gown. Few trimmings are used, effects being obtained by graceful draping of soft rich materials and perhaps a quaint, narrow plaiting edging tunic and fichu.

Any of the new, supple crepes or silks could be used with 7916. One of the new yellows would be especially pretty. The tunic is draped slightly, and the peasant blouse closes surplice fashion on the left side.

Five pattern sizes may be obtained, 34 to 42. Size 36 requires 7½ yards of 36 inch material. Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

FIRST AID TO THE ART OF DANCING

Anybody who has ever seen the famous siren waltz, the dance caprice and the half dozen other proscenium arch climbing cavortings invented and executed numberless times by Donald Brian has wondered at the ease and certainty with which this young man directs his feet as most people would be satisfied to control their hands. "There is no secret behind it," says Mr. Brian, "nor any special talent. It is all a matter of training the eye, mind and limbs to work as one. For this end I find tennis—outdoor in summer, indoor in winter—the finest training for agile, buoyant and hence graceful dancing."

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 8.

I SAW a copy of the first edition of the Kansas City Evening Star the other day, dated September 18, 1880. It was a little four-page newspaper, with six columns to a page, and the page was only about two-thirds the size of the newspaper page you are holding.

The first thing I looked for was the CLASSIFIED or WANT ADS. The sum of total WANT ADS. carried in this first issue of The Star would make about three-quarters of a column in this newspaper. There were only half a dozen classifications—"Boarding," "Lost and Found," "For Sale," "Wanted," "To Rent" and "Miscellaneous."

Of course, CLASSIFIED advertising was something new in those days. But did you ever stop to think how tremendously the volume of such advertising carried by modern newspapers has increased? Today the Kansas City Star carries in its daily issue twenty or more columns of WANT ADS., under goodness knows how many classifications.

CLASSIFIED advertising has had tremendous growth because it is "the advertising of the people for the people." The CLASSIFIED pages are a daily market-place where human wants are advertised and exchanged.

No matter what you want, you can get it by becoming an advertiser in the CLASSIFIED columns. That is why WANT AD. advertising has grown and is still growing. IT IS A MEDIUM OF PUBLIC SERVICE THAT IS BECOMING MORE AND MORE APPRECIATED BY THE PUBLIC.

SAY GIRL FOUND IN RIVER WAS SUICIDE

No Mark of Violence on Alice Hopper's Body.

MURDER IDEA DISCARDED

Relatives Declare Victim Was Homesick and Had Threatened to Kill Herself—Coroner's Physician Makes a Careful Examination.

Kearny, N. J., Sept. 19.—Despite the first rumors that a murder had been done, Chief of Police Tolen and Mrs. Sarah Hopper of 183 Windsor street are agreed that Alice Hopper, the sixteen-year-old girl whose body was pulled out of the Passaic river with the skirt pinned up and weighted with stones, committed suicide. She had been suffering from an aggravated case of home sickness and had told all of her friends that if she could not go back to England, whence she came five years ago, she would die.

Deputy Coroner's Physician A. A. Mutter made a careful examination of the young girl's body and found no marks of violence which would indicate that she had been attacked and thrown into the river. The condition of the lungs showed that drowning and no other contributory cause had produced death.

Mrs. Hopper had adopted the girl, her niece, taking her out of an orphan asylum in England and bringing her to this country to live with her. A younger sister remained behind in England. Alice had never become reconciled to her life in this country, so it was said by Mrs. Hopper, and was constantly pining for her old home. Saturday night when a cousin of hers, John Leever, received a post card from the sister remaining in the old country and Alice got none she seemed to be plunged in deeper gloom.

TELLS OF HUSBAND'S MURDER

Mrs. Moser Takes Stand In Her Own Behalf, Pleading Self Defense.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 19.—Mrs. Mabel Moser took the stand in the court of oyer and terminer here to tell her story of the murder of her husband, Ferdinand C. Moser, in a furnished rooming house where he was living, at 47½ Stirling street, on the night of May 3 last.

Mrs. Moser testified that her husband treated her brutally ever since she lived with him. She related three occasions when he threatened her life. Three nights before the shooting occurred, Mrs. Moser said, she underwent an operation her husband forced upon her. She was in bed up to the night of the fatal shooting from the effects of the operation.

Moser visited her that day and promised to bring her son to her that night, but failed to do so. Mrs. Moser described how she went to the house where her husband was living and the incidents that occurred there leading to the fatal shooting, which she declares was done in self defense.

AFTER MARRYING SQUIRE.

Montclair Prosecutor to Act Against Justice For Unlawful Wedding.

Montclair, N. J., Sept. 19.—Health Officer Chester H. Wells was informed that the case of Justice of the Peace Arthur Darlington, who on Sept. 4 married a couple from out of town in violation of a state law, would be turned over to the county prosecutor.

The state board of health held that the case was out of Montclair's jurisdiction.

Justice Darlington testified that he was unaware that he was breaking the law in marrying the couple, who, he said, produced the proper license. The couple lived in Springfield, Mass.

LIVE WIRE KILLS BOY.

Child Grabs It and Receives 2,400 Volts Through Body.

Metuchen, N. J., Sept. 19.—Nine-year old Michael Varga picked up a live wire lying in the street and was instantly killed. With several other school children he was walking home from school and went through Menlo Park, a mile from here. Noticing the wire, young Varga grabbed it. Instantly there was a flash and the wire wrapped around the little body. The child fell to the road, and bystanders managed to get him away from the wire.

Dr. Clarence A. Hofer, passing in his automobile, after a hasty examination said the child had died instantly. The wire carried electric power and was charged with 2,400 volts.

MRS. PANKHURST TO BE MRS. BELMONT'S GUEST

Society Leader Praises Work of English Militant.

New York, Sept. 19.—Announcing that Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the leader of the English militant suffragettes, will be her guest while in this city and declaring that the United States will make itself ridiculous if it tries to bar the London campaigner, Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont has arrived aboard the steamship Imperator from four months' vacation at Leauville, France.

"We should be the laughing stock of the continent if we excluded Mrs. Pankhurst," said Mrs. Belmont. "Mrs. Pankhurst is not coming here to advocate militant methods. She knows perfectly well that they are not necessary in this country. I am thankful that she is coming to America once more, for she is the greatest woman in the world today. Her intelligence is wonderful.

"Any one who thinks that Mrs Pankhurst has put back the suffrage movement in England is mistaken. If the question were fairly put to the English people today they would answer 'Yes.'"

Mrs. Belmont entertained Christabel Pankhurst, the leader's daughter, in her villa outside of Paris, and she also saw Mrs. Pankhurst, not long before leaving for New York. The French chamber of deputies had voted to welcome Mrs. Pankhurst, she said, and the United States could not afford to fall behind in this regard.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

"Girls," by the late Clyde Fitch, is to have a production in London.

Henry Kolker made a big success in Los Angeles, Calif., in "Our Wives."

Thomas A. Wise has a humorous one-act play called "Like Father, Like Son."

Olive May has been engaged by James Forbes to play the leading part in "Shadowed."

Frances Starr is to be seen in "Le Secret" during the coming season. The play is by Henri Bernstein.

Melchior Langyel, the author of "The Typhoon," has written a play recently, entitled "The Black Butterflies."

Louis Mann has started his tour in "The Children of Today" by his wife, Clara Lipman and Louis Shipman.

Bessie Barriscale, who made a hit in "The Bird of Paradise" last season, is heading a stock company in San Francisco.

Irving Cobb's humorous story, "Back Home," is to be dramatized by Bayard Veiller for production the coming season.

The new opera by Justin Huntley McCarthy, David K. Stevens and Victor Herbert is to be called "The Madcap Duchess."

Alice Brady has just been engaged for the star feminine role in "The Bird Cage," a play by a new author, a young Californian.

Robert Hood Bowers, the composer of many musical comedy and comic opera successes, has furnished the score and lyrics for "The Red Heads."

Marguerite Clark will have the leading part in "Prunella," by Granville Barker, which will be produced by Winthrop Ames at the Little Theatre, New York.

"Joseph and His Brethren" scored a hit in London, with George Ralph as Joseph and Berrbohm Tree as Jacob. Maxine Elliott, as Poriphar's wife, received a warm welcome.

It is said that Julian Eltinge will begin his season in "The Fascinating Widow," and will not produce his new play, "Miss Swift of New York," of which he is co-author, until later.

Fiske O'Hara opened his season in "In Old Dublin" in a Wisconsin town the other day. The author of the play is Augustus Pitou and its story is written around an international yacht race.

Grace George is to star under the management of Charles Frohman in the Barrie playlet, "Half an Hour," given in conjunction with Stanley Houghton's drama, "The Younger Generation."

The London critics are divided over the merits of Bernard Shaw's new play, "Androcles and the Lion," a satire on the so-called religious play. Some of the audiences were displeased by the lines and hissed.

For the first time in ten years Sothern and Marlowe will this winter make a tour to California in Shakespearean plays. They will, as it happens, be in competition with Mr. Faversham's Shakespeare company, which will also go to the coast this fall.

TRADE PAPER MEN IN SESSION.

New York, Sept. 18.—Representatives of practically every important trade paper in the United States and Canada were gathered at the Hotel Astor in this city today when the eighth annual convention of the Federation of Trade Press Associations was called to order. H. M. Wilson, president of the New York Trade Press Association welcomed the delegates and H. M. Swetland, head of the Federation, responded in behalf of the visitors. R. R. Shuman, of Chicago, and L. J. Buckley, of Philadelphia, also delivered addresses. The sessions will extend over three days and there will be editorial, publishers, circulation and advertising symposiums which will be addressed by noted men connected with trade paper work. It is estimated that papers representing an investment in the aggregate of $35,000,000 are present at this convention.

LICENSES REVOKED.

Trenton, Sept. 19.—Upon receipt of a report from Inspector Pedigree, Commissioner Lippincott of the department of motor vehicles, yesterday summarily revoked both the driver's license and the right to use manufacturers' registration markers of William J. Aitkin, of Camden. Pedigree charged that Aitkin had sold an automobile to Coe & Tweedy, of Camden, and that some time afterwards he stole the machine and sold it to Thomas B. Warner. The complaint also alleged that the car sold by Aitkin was taken by him to Philadelphia to be repaired, and that while there Aitkin had the serial number changed and the car again registered at Mt. Holly. Since this incident, Aitkin has been missing, and it is the belief of the inspector that he has been implicated in other transactions of a similar character for some time.

NOTES FROM LABOR FIELD

In the State of Illinois there are 8,000 child laborers.

There are almost half a million women employed in various trades in this country.

The International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Helpers will meet in convention at Sedalia, Mo., Oct. 6.

The annual convention of the International Association of Heat and Frost Insulators and Asbestos Workers will meet on the first Monday in October.

One of the most interesting of trade unions is that of the underseamen of the Dutch Navy, which has sections on almost all warships.

The United Mine Workers of District No. 1, in annual convention at Wilkes-Barre, re-elected John P. Dempsey and the entire administration ticket.

John P. Archibald, widely known as a labor leader, died the other day at his home in New York City. He was sixty years old and was formerly president of the Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators of America.

The linemen on all the inter-urban lines in Indiana, except those in the Wabash Valley, went on a strike the other day. The men demanded recognition of the union, shorter hours and an increase in wages.

Locomotive engineers and firemen on the railroads west of Chicago will soon ask the railroad companies to revise their schedules of wages, according to an announcement made by representatives of railroad labor organizations.

Plans to organize the 20,000 sleeping car conductors and porters in the United States took form recently when the Federation of Pullman Conductors of America and the Federation of Pullman Porters of America were incorporated at Springfield, Ill.

It is believed that a strike of the organized knitters employed in the knitting mills of Philadelphia, Pa., will be avoided by a compromise between the union and the employers. Several of the largest mills have already accepted the terms of the men.

The strike of the electricians under the control of the office of public works in London, England, which followed a strike of house painters and decorators, has been settled. The electricians involved included those employed in Buckingham and St. James' palaces, the General Postoffice, the Tower of London and many other buildings.

The problem of employment being rather acute in Berlin, two suburban municipalities have suggested that all the communes of Berlin should cooperate in a system of unemployment insurance. The leaders of the trade unions say that there are at present 50,000 men in the city without work. The evil is worst in the building trade and is ascribed to the increased price of land and the strain upon the money market.

The danger of a universal strike in South Africa has passed for the moment on account of concessions made by the government, but no one imagines that the trouble has been settled for good. On the contrary, it is likely to recur at any time. Encouraged by the success of the recent miners' strike, the Federation of Trades Unions and the railwaymen working in conjunction have been making the most extravagant demands and the other thing that seems to hold them in check is the lack of funds available for the support of the strikers.

FINDS STOLEN POUCH.

Flemington, Sept. 19.—A mail pouch containing about $10 worth of stamped envelopes, stolen from the Stockton postoffice about three weeks ago, has been found behind a furnace in the Phillips Public School building, about a mile and a half from New Hope, Pa. The thieves, it is supposed, went to the school building to inspect their loot. It is thought they decided stamped envelopes would be difficult to dispose of and concealed the pouch and its contents. The discovery was made by Miss Annie McDonnell, the teacher, when she opened the school for the fall term. She notified the Stockton authorities.

BLAMES DAD FOR DOWNFALL.

New Brunswick, Sept. 19.—"My father taught me to drink," declared seventeen-years old Samuel Woodruff when arraigned before Judge Peter F. Daly in the Middlesex County Court here on a charge of robbing a house in Dunellen last July and stealing clothing of Christopher Carberry and Thomas Ward. Woodruff agreed to stop drinking and not to touch liquor until he is twenty-one and to give the first money he earns towards paying for the clothing taken. He was released on probation.

PRIEST TRANSFERRED.

Bound Brook, Sept. 19.—Rev. William F. Dittrich, rector of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, of this place, received word Wednesday of his transfer by Bishop McFaul to the pastorate of the Church of the Holy Spirit, Athlantic City. Father Dittrich came here from Vineland fourteen years ago.

If People Really Knew

The tailoring business as we do they would quickly understand that it's an utter impossibility for any reputable tailor to build good clothes for $16 to $18, whether the garments be tailor made or made to measure.

That sort of thing isn't in our line for we are practical tailors to our shoe strings, from the fabric to the finish our garments tell a story of honest workmanship and surpassing style.

You men who have a limited amount to spend, cut out the "guessing contest," and let us show you how safe and sure we can MAKE CLOTHES THAT SATISFY.

BEEKMAN IMPOSE SOME SENTENCES

Cases Against Prisoners Pleading Guilty Are Disposed of in Somerset Court.

TRIALS ON OCTOBER 20

Fierro Gets Months for Atrocious Assault on Wife—Thieves and a Few among Thise Who Are Punished.

Somerville, Sept. 20.—In the Somerset County Courts, yesterday, a number of persons indicted by the grand jury were arraigned for crimes and others who had previously pleaded guilty to charges were sent in for sentence. After a conference with Prosecutor Pope, Judge Beekman designated Monday, October 20, as the date for the trial of criminal cases, and those not otherwise disposed of yesterday were set down for that time.

Donato Fierro, who pleaded guilty of atrocious assault upon his wife, was sentenced to two months in the county jail. Frank Mulliner, of Bound Brook, charged with forging a check for $20, was fined $50 and placed under probation for three years and allowed that length of time to pay.

Abram Crosby, a middle aged colored man, of Somerville, who was arrested by the borough officers of that place with several auto tires and other articles belonging to C. A. Speer, and who had pleaded guilty the week previous, was sentenced to not less than one year and not more than seven years in State prison, besides being soundly lectured by Judge Beekman.

William Glynn and Jacob Salts, two youths from Bound Brook, accused of stealing a horse and wagon, pleaded guilty, and will be sentenced next Friday. They were captured in Somerville with the rig in their possession.

Fred. C. Kimball, who had forged the name of a bound Brook person to a check for $17.50, claimed that he was a salesman for an insect powder, and that he had been authorized by W. F. Walters, of Bound Brook, whose name he had used, to sign the latter's name to the check on a trust company, was held in $1,000 bail for sentence next Friday. Mr. Walters was not present in the court.

Frank Rump, of Bound Brook, who had stolen a bicycle and last week pleaded guilty to the charge, was sent to the Rahway Reformatory. He had been an inmate for some time of the Reform School.

Earl Todd, the Somerville youth who took the automobile of William D. Nolan for a joy ride without the owner's consent, and who is serving a 60-day sentence in the county jail for running an auto while intoxicated, was placed under probation for two years and fined $35, having pleaded guilty to the charge.

Maud Fields, the diminutive colored woman, who had pleaded guilty to attempted arson in setting fire to a house in the lottery field, was sentenced to three months in the county jail.

Andrew Nicholas, of Raritan, for assaulting his wife, was placed under probation for two years and fined $35.

Joseph Faro pleaded not guilty to atrocious assault and battery and was held under $1,500 bail for trial.

William Hall, colored, of Somerville, charged with stealing a quantity of building material, pleaded not guilty and was released under $500 bail.

Patsy Ianelli, Carmino Romano and George Patey, all of Bound Brook, pleaded not guilty to assault and were released under $500 bail Salvatore Finelli, also of Bound Brook, pleaded guilty to assault and will be sentenced October 3, and was released under $500 bail.

Patrick J. Whelan, William Whalen and Clarence Whalen, all of South Somerville, and charged with assault, pleaded not guilty, and were released under $500 bail each for trial.

Edward Dilts, of North Branch, charged with assault and battery, pleaded not guilty, was released under $500 bail for trial.

SENT TO JAIL.

Harvey Hanlon, a mason, of 20 Lincoln place, has been before Recorder Gano in the borough court so many times for being drunk and disorderly that he was sent to jail for two days when arraigned this morning before the magistrate on that charge. He was arrested last night by Chief Marshal Weiss.

FIELDER CHEERED BY PLAINFIELDERS

Tells 300 Voters How He Would Devote His Time if Elected Governor.

LOCAL MAYOR PRESIDES

Asks the People to Judge Him by His Record as Acting-Governor and While in the Senate—Entertained at Dinner by Stewart.

For the second time within twelve hours yesterday a candidate for the Gubernatorial nomination appeared in this city in search of votes, Governor James F. Fielder speaking to some 300 men and a number of women at Front street and Madison avenue last night. Fielder was cheered to the echo as he approached the place designated by his advance guard as a stopping point and after being introduced by Mayor Percy H. Stewart, chairman of the Union County Fielder League, some one in the crowd called for three hearty cheers for "New Jersey's next Governor."

Addressing the Democratic voters first because they were members of his party and the voters of other parties secondly because as a governor he was interested in them Governor Fielder said in part: "It would be my desire as governor to devote as much of my time as possible to existing industrial conditions in our State, with a view to ascertaining possibilities of enlarging their opportunities, and increasing their prosperity by legislative and executive action, and if honored by the voters with nomination and election, I shall regard it as a part of my duty to continue the study already begun until the end of my term. My experience as a member of both branches of the Legislature and as acting governor convinces me of the importance of an accurate first-hand knowledge of all the State's interests, as a guide to official action. My work in the Legislature is now a matter of public record and whether or not you cast your ballot for me depends on the opinion you have formed of my record."

Governor Fielder outlined his record as a legislator and explained to the voters the added responsibility placed on their shoulders this year by the law that gives the voter a chance to name the candidate to be voted for at the general election.

The Gubernatorial candidate arrived here in the afternoon and after meeting a number of prominent Democrats and those interested in his campaign in this city, went to Westfield accompanied by Mayor Percy H. Stewart where he addressed a crowd of 200 persons. Returning to Plainfield the governor was the guest of Mayor Stewart at the latter's house for dinner and he started his evening's tour here at 8 o'clock. Leaving Plainfield he went to Rahway and concluded his tour in Summit last night.

SOME CHANGES MADE IN MUNICIPAL RATES

Elizabeth, Sept. 20.—Several important changes have been made in the tax rates of several municipalities throughout the county, since the tentative rate was announced by the County Board for the Equalization of Taxes.

The rate in Plainfield, $1.87, remains the same, as does also the rate in Fanwood borough and township and Westfield. A fourteen point decrease has been made in Roselle's rate and in the cases of New Providence township and borough an arbitrary rate of $2.31 has been fixed in both instances. This is the maximum rate allowed by law. New Providence township had $2.60 as its original rate and New Providence borough $2.52.

REV. GOODRICH TO PREACH.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, will preach tomorrow morning for the first time since returning from his vacation. He will take as his subject, "A Chapel Window in a Swiss Valley or High Aspiration of Worship," in which he will share with his people some of the impressions received during his visit to Switzerland. The service will be held in the Hartridge Auditorium. The Sunday-school session will follow at 11.50 o'clock.

LEONARD T. TARTTER.

Leonard T. Tartter, aged eight years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan W. Tartter, of 205 Elizabeth street, died yesterday after a long illness with heart trouble. The funeral will be held at the home of the parents at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, will officiate. The burial will be in the M. E. cemetery on Plainfield avenue.

COLBY CONDEMNS OSBORNE'S IDEAS

Father of New Idea Contrasts His Platform With That His Opponent.

PROGRESSIVE MEETING

Moy, Fish and Herman Also Make Brief Addresses—S. E. Gunnison Presides—Two Bull Moose Meetings in One Day.

Everett Colby, a candidate for the Progressive nomination for Governor, paid a second visit to Plainfield within a few hours, when he addressed a meeting last night at Reform Hall. Although Governor Fielder was speaking on Front street at the same time, and the weather was bad, about 125 people turned out to hear the Progressive leader. Two of the Progressive candidates for Assembly, former Mayor George W. V. Moy and Mayor Harwood Fish, of Roselle, and one candidate for City Council, H. B. Herrmann, of the Second word, were also on hand. Stanley E. Gunnison presided at the meeting.

In the course of his remarks, Mr. Moy said that the chief reason he was seeking the Assembly nomination came from the fact that he wanted to try to help someone else get into office, who could make trouble or stop the making of other kinds of trouble. He said that he wanted to see Colby Governor because he believes in him after watching his career closely for many years. "He has genius, refinement and all of the qualities necessary for the Governorship." The former mayor closed his remarks by saying that he believed that a home rule bill for the use of the cities should be enacted, and that those who do not care enough for the privilege of voting should be deprived by legislation of that privilege.

Mayor Fish urged support for Colby at the primaries, declaring him to be the political Moses who was leading the people away from the bosses, and eulogizing him as the pioneer Progressive. He said that the former Senator's study of government all over the world made him a better trained candidate than anyone now running in any party. He criticised the Osborne faction in the party for not offering to get together with the Colbyites to present one united legislative ticket, and told of some of his experiences since being elected mayor of Roselle Park on the Progressive ticket.

Mr. Colby's remarks were in the same vein as those made in the morning, when he spoke in front of the Queen City Hotel, and which was fully reported in last night's Press. He declared his belief in the initiative and referendum, and the recall of judicial decisions, but opposed the recall of judges. He said that Osborne had been misrepresenting him and had forced him to take the stump, so that his true attitude on public questions would be known. He also opposes the recall of elective officers as reactionary and harmful to the public interests. He took up the Osborne platform, saying that he is opposed to the single tax theory as propounded by his opponent, saying that it should be brought about gradually, if at all, by reducing the building tax rate ten per cent. a year. He reiterated his belief that there was no crying need for government ownership of the railroads, quoting illustrations of the failuure of the system abroad, and said that if the people really want it they can secure it through the initiative and referendum, if that is enacted.

Mr. Herrmann admitted frankly that he did not want the councilmanic office, but thought the Progressive party should have a candidate for every position, claiming that the party had already had a wholesome effect on the nation, when it cast 4,500,000 votes for Roosevelt last year, and that the moral influence of that vote had helped President Wilson in the splendid work he is doing at Washington. In looking up local issues, he said that he found that the councilmanic job was a hard one to fill, and that he did not feel that anyone seeking the place should pledge himself to do anything until he had thoroughly investigated the various questions which would come up for consideration. He said that there seemed to be necessity for having better streets, taking occasion in the course of the remarks to pay a high tribute to Andrew J. Gavett, as "the man at the head of the street department who is the most honorable person that could possibly be put in that position." He also spoke about the crying need for improvement in the system of collection of garbage and ashes, and said that he believed that business men should be elected to the Council. "If I am elected, I must say that I pledge myself to nothing but that I will be an honest man and the people's representative."

Mr. Colby and the Assembly candidates left for Elizabeth after the meeting, where they also spoke.

"THE NEW HIGH SCHOOL."

READ THE EDITORIAL OF DR. H. M. MAXSON

First Clear and Official Discussion Regarding the New High School Building.

All sorts of erroneous impressions prevail regarding the purpose, needs and equipment of the Plainfield High School building as it will appear when the large addition, now in the course of erection, is completed. In order that the public generally may learn from an authoritative source just why the enlarged building is needed, what use will be made of the added space and what equipment will be placed in the structure, the Daily Press induced Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the Plainfield Public School system, to make an official statement in the form of a contributed editorial.

Every parent, every school pupil and in fact every taxpayer will be interested in what Dr. Maxson has to say for it is the first clean, concise and authoritative announcement. See the editorial page.

EXPECT THAT COLLINS WILL SPEAK RIGHT OUT

Reply to His Critics is Looked for in Speech Tonight.

Elizabeth, Sept. 20.—Major-General Dennis F. Collins is scheduled to address an open-air meeting in Cherry street tonight. This announcement has caused much interest in political circles in this city as the general has promised to state exactly where he stands on the Board of Works bill and other local issues. It is probable that he will reply to his critics and it is understood from friends of the general that some hot shot will be fired.

It is said that one reason why the Collins men favor the Board of Works bill is because the general may be a candidate for mayor next year, and if he is elected and the bill passes it may fall to his lot to name the three appointees to the board. This, however, could not be verified.

There is much speculation among Democrats as to how General Collins reconciles his fight for payment of the bill of Jacob Christianson at the last meeting of the Council when several months ago he ruled against payment of the bill, as it has become superannuated.

VALENTINE RADEL'S WATERMELON PARTY

Valentine Radel, of Bound Brook, entertained his class in the boys' department of Mount Saint Mary College at a watermelon party today. John Allyn Peterson, of Elizabeth, made a speech in which he welcomed the three members of the class, William Shipps Sutterley, Thomas Rattigan, Jr., both of Bordentown, and Edmund Noonan, of Bayonne. Speeches were also made by Elmo Rice, of Atlantic; Gervaise Morrison, of New York; Milton J. Gimber, of Fanwood; Lester Peterson, of Elizabeth, and Jack Gannon, of Perth Amboy. A musical program followed after which all adjourned to the gymnasium, where games and relay races ended an enjoyable affair.

RALLY AT BETHEL CHAPEL.

Rally exercises will be held by the Sunday-school of Bethel chapel, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, at which time there will be an attractive program with special speakers, which will be in charge of the superintendent, James E. Kimball. Rev. F. D. Tildon, pastor, will preach at 11 o'clock in the morning, and W. F. Richards will conduct the Young People's Society meeting at 6:45 o'clock, and Adjutant Mrs. Jackson, of the Salvation Army, will speak at 8 o'clock.

AUTO TURNS TURTLE; TWO NARROW ESCAPES

Miss Leila Hedges, daughter of Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, of Watchung avenue, and Anthony Baltus, a chauffeur, had a remarkable escape from serious injury yesterday afternoon, when the automobile in which they were riding turned turtle on Westfield road, near Westfield. The chauffeur was driving the car at a slow rate of speed but in making a turn the car skidded in such a manner that it turned suddenly over. Both occupants crawled from beneath the car and except suffering a few bruises were unhurt.

COLORED MEN'S CLUB ENDORSES W. G. DEMEZA

City Judge William G. DeMeza was endorsed last night for re-election to the office he now holds by the members of the Nonpareil Club, after the popular magistrate had addressed them at their headquarters in St. Mary's avenue. The meeting was an enthusiastic one and the Judge received a rousing reception.

In his address the candidate said he was seeking re-election on his record. "If you do not think that I have made good and have dealt out justice in accordance with the law," DeMeza said, "then I do not want you to vote for me, but, if on the other hand, you believe that I have shown mercy where mercy was deserved, and have meted out severe sentences when the offenses warrant, then I want you to cast your ballot at the primaries in my favor. If successful next Tuesday and I win at the November election, you can rest assured that I will perform my duties of office to the best interests of the people at large and show no discretion to class or color."

SCHOOLBOY WINS NATIONAL TITLE

Francis Ouimet, Uncle Sam's Lone Representative, Led the Field.

HAILED AS A PHENOM

Vardon and Ray, John Bull's Players, Completely Smothered by Youngster Who Heretofore Was Unknown in the Athletic World.

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 20.—Francis Quimet, a brassie wielder scarcely out of his 'teens, won the triple tie in the National Open Golf Championship here today, defeating Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, two of England's experienced and crack professional golfers, the final score being Quimet 72, Vardon 77, and Ray 78. The winner gave a wonderful exhibition of nerve and golfing skill and his work was little more than phenomenal during the entire eighteen holes of play. He was America's sole representative in the 18-hole three ball medal play-off of the tie in a tournament that has attracted international notice and the youthful player was entrusted with a responsibility that many a veteran would shirk under.

A golf gallery such as never before attended a competition over the greens of any club in the world rooted and cheered for America's home-bred amateur, and the scene of the contest resembled strongly a championship baseball or football contest. Pennants with the America's name floated in the air and as each hole was reached the representative of Uncle Sam heard his name ring forth from thousands of golf-mad spectators.

In the sixth, seventh and eighth holes the enthusiam ran the gamut from elation to dispair but the American gathered his wits together in the final team holes and launched a spurt that carried the supporters of John Bull completely off their feet. His return to form was welcomed with thunderous applause and when he completed the eighteenth hole of play he was in a state of nervous collapse. so strenuous had been the play. Forced all the way by his veteran rivals who were previously acknowledged to be the peer of international competitors he had to put forth his best work with the brassie and niblock and at times it looked as though either Vardon or Ray would stem the tide and drown out the sensationalism of their lone rival contesting under the red, white and blue. When the final score was announced thousands of spectators flocked out upon the greens and led a demonstration such as was never before seen following a contest of this kind. Quimet was, of course, the center of attraction and he was quickly hustled off the field and into the club's quarters.

The scores:

	O.	V.	R.
First hole	5	5	5
Second hole	4	4	4
Third hole	4	4	5
Fourth hole	4	4	4
Fifth hole	5	5	5

Eighth hole	4	4	4
Ninth hole	4	5	4
Tenth hole	2	3	4

Thirteenth hole	4	4	5
Fourteenth hole	5	4	6

R. B. DUYCKINCK DIES IN 99TH YEAR

Venerable Man, Well Known in This Vicinity, Passed Away Last Night.

FUNERAL ON MONDAY

Founder of Atlantic Steam Engine Works and Organizer of Brooklyn State Bank—Had Resided in Plainfield for Eight Years.

Richard Bancker Duyckinck, aged ninety-eight years, one of Plainfield's oldest residents, died last night at his home, 816 Madison avenue, from the infirmities of age. He was widely known here among the older residents being highly regarded and respected for his sterling qualities.

Mr. Duycyinck was born in New Brunswick, November 1, 1815, and spent the first eighteen years of his life there. He then went to New York, where he secured a position with Davidson, Van Pelt & Co., wholesale dry goods merchants in Exchange place. This was the time of the cholera scare. Later he went with Decker & Howell, of New York, in the same business.

He founded the Atlantic Steam Engine Works, of Brooklyn. The concern prospered in the manufacture of various kinds of machinery, having a large trade with the sugar refineries in Cuba. He was one of the organizers of the Brooklyn State Bank and for a time was president of the institution. Forty years ago he purchased 150 acres of land in Washington Valley, adjoining the Fullerton farm which was sold to the county and is now the location of the Bonnie Burn Sanitorium. Until eight years ago Mr. Duyckinck lived on his farm. He then came to Plainfield and made his home with his only son, Whitehead Duyckinck, on Madison avenue.

Up to about a year ago Mr. Duyckinck was quite active and able to take short walks. He always has evidenced a deep interest in the newspapers keeping in close touch with political and current events. He was fond of solitaire, whist and euchre.

Whitehead Duyckinck is the only surviving son of a family of three. He leaves also four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. His wife died about thirty years ago.

The funeral service will be held at the late home, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, of Grace church, will officiate. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery and will be private.

BIG BROADWAY SUCCESS LOCAL THEATRE OFFERING

It is admitted that the novelty of a play with a barefoot girl as the heroine appeals to the theatregoers, notably the years of success achieved by Maggie Mitchell in "Little Barefoot." The production of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" in Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Chicago, with its stirring scenes and powerful lines, thrilled immense audfences during long runs in those cities. Its great success is due to the gorgeous scenic production given the play, as well as the sympathetic portrayal of June, the mountain girl, by Isabelle Lowe. Eugene Walter spent several weeks in the region where the scenes of both play and the book are laid and he has just as deftly transplanted the fragrance of the pines, and the impression of the mountain folk to the stage as Mr. Fox did in the pages of his delightful narrative which has been read by millions of men, women and children. The strong New York cast with Miss Lowe in the role of June, appears at the Plainfield theatre, this afternoon and evening.

CHARGE ADMITTED BY WATER CONCERN

Somerville Company Intends to Use Main to Furnish Other Corporations.

Trenton, Sept. 20.—Testimony was concluded before Vice Chancellor Backes, Thursday, in the proceedings instituted by riparian owners along the Raritan River to enjoin the Somerville Water Company from diverting water in excess of the amount required to supply the municipalities of Somerville and Raritan. The court fixed October 3 as the time when arguments of counsel will be heard.

During the testimony Thursday it was brought out that the same interests control the Elizabethtown Water Company, the Piscataway Water Company and the Raritan Water Company, and that these interests have also a partial control, at least, in the Somerville Water Company. The complainants allege, and it was admitted by the defense yesterday, that in building a thirty-six-inch main from the source of supply in the Raritan River, the Somerville Water Company proposed to carry out its contract to furnish water to the Elizabethtown, Piscataway and Raritan companies.

Testifying for the defense, David H. Townley, engineer for the Elizabethtown Water Company, admitted that the ultimate purpose of the thirty-inch main was to carry out these contracts. Mr. Townley explained that it was the purpose of the Somerville Water Company to dam the Raritan River at a point between nine and fifteen miles above Somerville. By thus impounding the waters during times of freshets, Mr. Townley expressed the belief that the riparian owners along the Raritan would be benefited, instead of injured.

In explanation of the plans of the Somerville Company its official testified that while the company planned to take more water than was actually needed to supply Somerville and Raritan, it was also proposed to compensate the riparian owners for the water taken. On cross-examination it was admitted that no offer looking toward such compensation had been made.

STATE HAS NO CLAIM ON LAKEWOOD AUTO FINES

Trenton, Sept. 20.—The State motor vehicle department, according to an opinion given by Attorney-General Wilson, has no claim upon moneys collected by Justice of the Peace Searing for violations of the ordinance of Lakewood regulating motor vehicle traffic. Mr. Wilson holds that if the Lakewood ordinance is valid, the fines collected under it must be turned over to the municipality as directed in the ordinance; while if it is invalid the State can have no possible lien upon the money.

The contention made by the motor vehicle department was that the Lakewood ordinance was an attempt on the part of the local authorities to circumvent the motor vehicle laws by undertaking to regulate motor vehicle traffic and to divert moneys which would otherwise have been due to the State.

The attorney-general is inclined to the view that the ordinance is illegal and that its provisions are not enforceable. He suggested that if it could be shown that the fines imposed by Searing were for violations of the motor vehicle law, rather than the local ordinance, the State department might proceed against him for their recovery.

Mr. Lippincott has written to the Council of Lakewood that he would hold it responsible for the payment of the fines collected, which thus far aggregate more than $250, and that if necessary he would institute proceedings to collect such fines as may be impossed in the future.

"IN A BAD WAY"

Many a Plainfield Reader Will Feel Grateful For This Information.

If your back gives out;
Becomes lame, weak or aching;
If urinary troubles set in,
Perhaps your kidneys are "in a bad way."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.

Local evidence proves their merit.

A. K. Mattis, 127 West Fourth street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I gave Doan's Kidney Pills my endorsement five years ago, after receiving a cure through their use and today I confirm all I then said in their favor. The cure has been permanent. I was troubled for years by a dull backache and pains in my head. I believe that it was due to a great measure to a bad liver. I had Nothing seemed to help me and when I read of the good work Doan's Kidney Pills were doing in similar cases, I got a supply at Randolph's drug store. They drove away the aches and pains and my experience gave proof of their merit."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other kidney.

WHOLESALE FOR LATZKO; HOTEL LICENSE REFUSED

Somerville, Sept. 20.—In the license matters Judge Beekman granted the application of Michael Latzko, of North Plainfield, to keep a wholesale place, but refused his hotel license and granted the application of Stabile and Curcio, of Raritan, to keep a hotel and refused to grant them a saloon license.

STYLISH—RELIABLE

Passed by the Board of Clothing Censorship

Rothberg's offers for your enjoyment a collection of "up-to-the-second" Suits and Overcoats for Fall—a collection that has had to pass our Board of Clothing Censorship before entering our store.

They have been rigorously scrutinized for style, for workmanship for material, for the little kinks in construction that distinguish the perfectly made garment from the perfectly faked garment.

And all have passed the test triumphantly, with colors flying. We invite you to come in and see if our judgment has not been correct.

They will make more of an impression upon your "Clothing Sense" than they will upon your pocketbook, as witness these prices:

$12-$15-$18-$20 TO $25

Which means that you cannot duplicate these garments for less than $3 to $5 at most stores.

A word to the wise is—Rothberg's.

SCOLDS JURY; OUSTS TWO FOLLOWING AN ACQUITTAL

New Brunswick, Sept. 20.—The acquittal by a jury of Gilbert W. Reynolds, of Philadelphia, charged with shooting Arthur Dutko, a Monmouth Junction barber, led Judge Peter F. Daly to discharge the foreman, Arthur M. Liddle, of Woodbridge, and a jury man, Thomas Corrigan, of this city, for the term. The court severely scolded the jury.

Reynolds found his wife outside the hotel in company with the barber and opened fire on Dutko. Foreman Liddle when asked by the court why the man had not been convicted replied:

"Why, I think that man—the barber—had no business around there."

The court told them they had violated their oaths because they wanted to be censors of the county following a suggestion in the case of wrong doing between Dutko and Reynolds' wife.

A question asked by Corrigan during the trial considered as showing the intent of his mind, led the court to dismiss him.

STUDENTS OF RUTGERS JEER POLICE BECAUSE OF FINES

New Brunswick, Sept. 20.—More than 100 Rutgers College students, displeased with the fining of two members and the reprimand of a third, marched to the police station Thursday night and jeered the officers. The police paid no heed and the gathering finally broke up without violence.

Police Justice Houghton fined Clarence Morey and "Barney" Browning $10 each for violating the rule forbidding students to post proclamations about the town. Lloyd Summerrill, of Newark, was reprimanded for alleged interference with a policeman who was trying to break up a parade of freshmen Tuesday night. The other students, regarding this punishment as unduly severe, formed a parade to show their attitude.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1913.

On Saturdays the editorial columns of the Daily Press are conducted by citizens who are free to express their own views. The contributing editor for today is Dr. Henry M. Maxson, Superintendent of the Public Schools of Plainfield.

THE NEW HIGH SCHOOL.

The new addition to the High School has now reached the point where it raises many questions in the minds of those who go in that part of the city. For such, a general description of the new building will be of interest.

That the completed building will be a large one is at once apparent to the eye, but that is the only kind of building that can meet the needs of a school that is growing at the rate of about 100 pupils per year. The completed building will be in the form of a hollow square three stores high, with the interior court occupied largely by the auditorium, which runs up two stories. As far as possible, the finish and appearance of the addition, within and without, will correspond with the present building, except that the windows will be a little different, since the State School Department has increased its requirements for window surface and therefore the windows in the addition will be somewhat larger than in the present building.

The new part will be fireproof throughout, the floors and roof being made of re-inforced concrete, altho in the classrooms and auditorium the concrete will be covered with a maple floor.

The length of the addition on the Arlington Avenue side is 146 feet, which added to the 135 feet of the present building will make the new building 281 feet. The width in the rear is nearly the same as the present building, 135 feet.

The heating and ventilating plant will be entirely outside of the building, being located in a special one-story building built on the recently acquired Forristel property. The boilers in the present building have been removed, the space being occupied by the swimming pool and lockers. The steam pipes and ventilation flues of the present building remain in place, and simply need to be connected up with the new boilers when they have been located. This arrangement of the heating apparatus outside of the building removes entirely all danger from fire, as well as all noise and all dust from that source, and the new equipment will also greatly improve the present building.

The ventilating system is the most modern that can be found, consisting of two large turbine fans which draw the air in from the open area back of the building and force it through carefully planned ducts to the farthest recess of the building. There will also be at the top of this building two other fans to exhaust the breathed air from the various rooms and so make the ventilation positive. As the air leaves fans, it passes through a set of ingenious water screens which purify the air and add to it an amount of water vapor which will make it possible to keep the temperature of the rooms down much below that of the ordinary room.

This arrangement of the heating and ventilating apparatus, while expensive, like all things that are first class, will undoubtedly add materially to the health of the pupils and the efficiency of the school.

The new part adds to the building twenty class rooms, seating 800 pupils, so that with the present accommodations the completed building will seat 1125. The present auditorium will be extended about 40 feet, making the new auditorium 80x58, with the present gallery, seating about 1150 people. The new stage will be 30 feet deep, with a proscenium opening of 35 feet. This will not only make the auditorium large enough to accommodate the whole school, even when the building reaches its capacity, but also large enough for the high school graduations, grammar school graduation, and for all other school entertainments, so that there will be no occasion to use the theater or any other halls for any school purpose. Under the present policy of the Board, it will also undoubtedly be of great use as the civic center of the city.

The present gymnasium, which accommodates only about one-third of the present membership of the school, will be retained in almost its present shape, as supplementary to the new gymnasium, which will be 45x80, with a room at each end for the gymnasium instructors to measure the pupils and perform other work in body training. This equipment will make it possible to have every pupil in the school get that physical training which is now universally considered of the highest importance in education.

The Physical Training Department will be further improved by the installment of a swimming pool. By many people ,this is considered as a "frill," but that is a wrong conception. In my judgment, it is one of the most important parts of the building. There is no better all-round exercise than that of swimming. In these days, when all natural opportunities to swim have been closed, it is essential that every city should have a place where its boys and girls can learn this indispensable art. It will be one of the most constantly used features of the building, and will be in charge of trained instructors, who will insure the safety of the users and give instruction in swimming. Through its means, practically every boy and girl that enters the High School in the future will learn to swim, and so be fortified for saving his own life and the lives of others in the water. The pool will be equipped with filters through which the whole contents of the pool will be run every eight hours. By the use of the filters and by means of chemicals, all impurities are removed, so that chemical analysis shows that the water in the pool is even more pure than it was when it came from the water mains of the city.

The Industrial Department will receive added equipment in the form of a forge shop, a machine shop, a wood-turning shop, and a cabinet shop, with accessory store rooms and offices, which will make it possible to give a four years' technical training course in the High School for all boys who are mechanically inclined. On the third floor is a suite of four rooms which will be used by the girls for cooking, sewing, dressmakng, millinery, and other domestic arts, by means of which a four years' course in home making and home economy may be provided for the girls, to match the industrial course of the boys.

The rapidly growing Commercial Department will have a suite of four rooms, providing facilities for typewriting, bookkeeping, stenography, banking, and other commercial work.

On the second floor will be a hospital for the use of the Medical Inspector, and also for pupils that are indisposed or that need "First Aid."

The now overcrowded Science Department will receive further accommodations in the shape of a lecture room and a zoological laboratory.

The heating plant is expected to furnish steam to the present building the first week in October, while the addition itself will be ready in February.

The building looms so large to the eye that some have got the impression that it is unnecessarily large, but the school at present numbers 640, 300 more than the present seating capacity, and the annual increase for the last three years averages about 80. If the annual increase is no larger than this, it will be only about six years before the city will again face the question of High School accommodations.

The plan of the Board of Education is to remove to the High School, for the present, the grammar grades that are now in the Stillman Building, numbering about 400 and to use that building temporarily for the relief of the overcrowded Franklin School, so that it is probable that the completed building will be filled almost to the limit when it is opened in February.

THE FORUM.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

Kindly permit me to thank the writer of "Votes for Women," in your issue of the 17th, for pointing out to the public that of which many were doubtless ignorant, i. e. the fact that in this non-suffrage State, a woman, Mrs. Caroline Alexander, was instrumental in the establishment of a State Reformatory for Unfortunate Women.

It is most gratifying to receive such strong corroboration of our contention, that women can do all necesary for the betterment of their sex and of all children, without the possession of the ballot.

This, of course, provided they give to such work just half the energy they are giving to the fight for the ballot.

Is it possible that in the suffrage States larger appropriations are needed for woman's reformatories than in the non-suffrage States? This indeed is enlightenment.

Chief Kiely was quoted as giving the "consensus of opinion of 600 chiefs," not his own alone.

Yours very truly,

R. A. LAWRENCE.

CHICKEN THIEF IS KILLED BY YOUTH

Young Man of Passaic Gives Himself Up.

INTRUDER NOT IDENTIFIED

After Second Warning by Dog He Raised Shotgun and Fired, Killing Man—Joined by Brother, He Goes Out to Investigate and Finds Victim.

Passaic, N. J., Sept. 20.—John Campman, twenty years old, shot and instantly killed a man who had broken into the fancy chicken farm of his father, Joseph Campman, in Chestnut street, on the outskirts of this city. The body of the supposed chicken thief is at the Passaic morgue, and young Campman is in a cell at police headquarters until the authorities shall have determined what charge to make against him.

Campman, his brother William and his mother were alone in the house, the father being a night watchman at the Borden milk factory. They were awakened by the barking of their watch dog, and John went to the door. A year ago their hen roosts had been robbed, and they had erected a fence six feet high, guarded with barbed wire.

Young Campman could see nothing through the fog and after shouting a warning to any intruder to "get out" went back to bed. At half past 4 the dog barked another alarm, and again John went to the door. This time he was able to see dimly a man disappearing over the fence and another crouching among the brooding sheds in the back of the lot about fifty feet away. Campman raised a shotgun and fired.

Presently he was joined by his brother, and the two went into the lot to investigate. In an outhouse they found a man seated, his head fallen forward on his chest. There was blood on his shirt front, and he was dead.

Campman ran to Constable Geene's place, a quarter of a mile away, and Geene called the Passaic police. Captain Schmidt, and a couple of men responded. They were unable to identify the dead man. He was about thirty years old, fairly well dressed in a suit of blue, with low shoes and a soft hat. Campman gave himself up and was locked in a cell.

THIEVES OVERLOOK CASH.

Red Bank Burglars Miss Considerable Amount of Money.

Red Bank, N. J., Sept. 20. Robbers entered the home of William R. Stevens at Eatontown by an unlocked pantry window, went into a room where his daughter, Mrs. Harry Campbell, and her husband, who is cashier of the First National bank, Red Bank, were sleeping, removed a quantity of clothing from the room, took what cash there was in them and left them in a pile in the hall.

They went through the bureau drawers and desks, but missed considerable cash. They left a quantity of silverware. The robbers obtained only a few dollars in cash. Mrs. Campbell's raincoat and Mr. Stevens' overcoat. This is one of a series of similar robberies that have occurred in this section during the past few weeks.

CUPID BAGS FOUR WILDGOOSES

Brings Down Last of Family of Thirteen In One Shot.

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 20.—Mr and Mrs. Joseph Wildgoose of Livingston avenue have thirteen children, nine of whom are married. Announcement has just been made that the remaining four have become engaged.

Andrew is to marry Miss Grace Serviss. Robert will marry Miss Margaret De Hart of Franklin Park, and his sister Lillian will marry Herbert De Hart, who is a brother of Margaret. Herbert Wildgoose will marry Miss Barbara Bauer of Lindenau.

The engagement of Miss Anna Bauer, a twin sister of Barbara, to Wilber Lewis of Highland Park was announced at the same time.

The parents of the thirteen Wildgooses now have twenty-four grandchildren.

MRS. MOSER ACQUITTED.

Woman Was Accused of Having Murdered Her Husband.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 20.—Mrs. Mabel Moser, accused of having murdered her husband, Ferdinand C. Moser, who was shot and killed on the night of May 3 last, was acquitted by a jury in this city.

Former Judge Wilbur A. Heisley of counsel for the defendant in summing up attempted to discredit the testimony of Marie Ledos, who swore she heard Mrs. Moser call out, "I'll kill you." And also the testimony of Edward J. Delaney, who said he heard Mrs. Moser say after the shooting "Now you will never put your arms around any other woman."

Lehigh Lease Not Approved.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 20.—The board of public utility commissioners issued a memorandum refusing to approve the ninety-nine year lease of the Lehigh Valley Railroad company of New Jersey to the Lehigh Valley Railroad company of Pennsylvania.

HER MOTHER HEARS OF THE ELOPEMENT

Miss Marsh and Elliott S. Smith Married in New York on Friday, Sept. 12.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Leslie Marsh, of 131 Duer street, the borough, learned today that their daughter, Miss Elsie G. Marsh, and Elliott G. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Smith, of Craig place, also of the borough, were secretly married in New York on Friday, September 12.

Coincident with the announcement, Mrs. Smith showed her parents a wedding certificate showing that the marriage took place in the Eighteenth Street M. E. church, Rev. George E. Barber, the pastor, officiating. Questioned further by her parents, the bride informed them that the license had been secured several days prior to the marriage and that it was decided to keep the matter secret until today.

The couple had been engaged for some time, which fact was well known to their parents and it was expected that they would be married at some future time. They had no intimation that the young people were to wed at this time. When the bride and bridegroom informed their parents of the marriage parental forgiveness was promptly given. The couple will live for the present with the bridegroom's parents.

SUITS SHOW INCREASE.

Trenton, Sept. 20.—Since January 27 last 6,400 suits have been instituted in the Court of Chancery. This record-breaking number of litigations was disclosed yesterday morning, when docket No. 37 was opened in the clerk's office and docket No. 36 was officially closed. The rapid increase in the number of chancery litigations is indicated with each succeeding docket. Docket No. 35 contains about ten months' business, while docket No. 36 lasted less than eight months. The continuing growth of litigations is taken as indicative that the time is not far distant when a further increase will be required in the number of vice-chancellors.

ROMAN PATRIOTS CELEBRATE.

Rome, Sept. 20.—In honor of the forty-third anniversary of the entry of the Italian troops into Rome and of the fall of the temporal power of the papacy commemorative exercises were held by patriotic societies at the monuments of Victor Emmanuel, Garibaldi, Cavour and other distinguished men who took active part in the struggle for Italy's independence. The day was generally observed as a holiday.

CHICKAMAUGA SURVIVORS MEET

Chattanooga Tenn., Sept. 20.—The survivors of the battle of Chickamauga held a well attended reunion today at the monument of the Second Bridgade, Third division of the Fourteenth corps, on the Lafayette road. Adam Frost, president of the association of the survivors, welcomed the comrades and delivered his annual address.

MISS AYERS TO WED.

Miss Ethel Ayers, daughter of Mrs. Sadie Ayers, of East Second street, and Balentine Hamilton, of Fords Corner, will be married this evening at the home of the bride-elect. Miss Ayers until recently was in the employ of the Century Rubber Company. Mr. Hamilton is engaged in business in New York city.

FINE DOGS SHOWN.

Philadelphia, Sept. 20.—An unusually large number of fine dogs were shown today at the County Fair grounds, at Byberry, where the annual bench show under the auspices of the Kennel Club of Philadelphia was held today. Society turned out in full force to see the fine display.

TIMBO'S RESTAURANT.

The Timbo Company opened a quick lunch counter and restaurant on North avenue, today, in the building formerly occupied by the late J. H. McVey and now owned by McDonough Brothers. The place has been thoroughly renovated and remodeled and attractively furnished.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Edwin I. Weseman, of Pittsburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo W. Weseman, of East Sixth street, to Miss Hallie B. Hawthorne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Hawthorne, of Pittsburg. The wedding will take place in October.

AIREDALE TERRIERS DAY.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—The fourth annual show of the Western Airedale Terrier Club was held here today at the Bismarck Garden. The number is unusually large and the quality of the dogs exhibited shows a decided improvement over last year.

ENTERTAINED COLBY.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Tracy entertained former Senator Everett Colby at dinner last night, the other guests being Mr. and Mrs. Anthony, of Cranford; Henry W. Herrmann, Stanley E. Gunnison and Leslie R. Fort.

GAVE "500" PARTY.

Mrs. J. L. Bennett, of Watchung avenue, gave a "500" party last night, for Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cochran, who left today for a twenty-four days' ocean trip to Jamaica, Panama, Limon and Costa Rica.

First Annual Fashion Sale of SILKS

Excelling, in Many Ways, the Famous Offering of R & T Silks a Year Ago This Month Which Set a New World Mark for Silk Selling

$206,508 of Paris Model Silks for $100,000

$3.50 to $15 yard for $6.50 to $35 Grades

50 Kinds Double-width Imported Black Silks

Averaging a Third Less, Ranging from $1.05 to $6 yard

1595 Bolts of Domestic Silks---Nearly 100,000 yards at 90c for $1.85 Grades and Ranging up to $3.50 for $7 Silks

THESE special purchases are presented side by side with our regular stock of silks, aggregating $700,000, with which comparison may freely be made before purchasing.

This may be considered a daring thing to do, but we believe it is the best way of demonstrating the accuracy of the fashions and the high standards of both collections, and the extremely low prices in this sale.

Our activities in the silk market during the past year have seemed daring to some.

The truth is that conditions have played into our plans, and now when silks are scarce and growing costlier, we own these large stocks at prices which draw to us not only the retail buying public, but the leading wholesalers from America.

The Wanamaker Store is now recognized as the American centre of the Silk industry.

To Dare Wisely Is the Secret of Any Success

A year ago we took over the entire retail stock of Rogers Thompson Givernaud Company's store (which decided to close) and held the largest and most important sale in the history of the silk industry.

This year we have taken over the surplus stock of the most famous silk fabricant of the world—the marvelous silks he made for the great Paris dressmakers and which are today the inspiration of the new fashions.

These are the silks we shall offer at half and less than half the usual prices, and in

The purchase came about suddenly, in Paris, when our Silk Commissioner visited the house of Atuyer, Bianchini and Ferrier, the home of Bianchini, the magician of the silk world.

It was the day before stock taking in this wizard's shop.

Before midnight of the same day the Wanamaker Store had taken out of Bianchini's stock over $200,000 of the finest silks that had been made for the fashions of the world.

We took them over at such a sacrifice in price—because it was stock-taking—that we are now able to offer for $3.50 to $15 a yard silks that regularly cost $6.50 to $35, as you may see by the prices affixed to our regular stock.

It is impossible to describe these silks or to list here their individual prices.

We can merely assure you that the fabrics, however magnificent, are practical and wearable, and the values, to say the least, are extraordinary.

The Silks at 90c to 3.50 yd.

consisting of Plain and Brocaded Poplins, Crepes, Lumineux, Charmeuse, Crepe Brocades, Reversible Satins, Corded Crepes, Moires, Peau de Cygne, Crinkle Crepes, Crepe de Chine in black and colors—all at prices 1-3 to 1-2 less than the usual rates, and this in the face of an advance of 25 per cent on raw silks and a scarcity of the very silks here offered.

Additional Selling Space and Service

The entire main aisle, old building.

Many additional tables in the Silk Rotunda, taking the place of the centre fixtures, temporarily removed.

The long Dress Goods aisle facing the Rotunda on the first floor.

An enlarged Lower Silk Rotunda on the Subway floor.

The subway entrance, new building, reaching out with a "Silk Aisle," stretching across to Ninth street and into the old building, connecting with the Silk Rotunda there.

Many additional silk experts kindly loaned to us for the sale by American silk manufacturers.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 9.

A LITTLE WANT AD. in this newspaper will help you to buy, or it will help you to sell.

It will get board for you. Or it will get boarders for you.

It will find a room for you in the section of town that most appeals to you. Or it will rent that spare room to somebody who is looking for just that sort of accommodation.

It will find a position for you. Or it will find the kind of employe you need but don't know just where to put your finger on.

It will sell pretty nearly anything you want to sell. Or it will help you to buy to advantage and in the quickest time the thing you've been wanting to buy if you could only locate it.

It will help launch that business opportunity of yours. Or it will guide to a timely and profitable business opportunity that some other advertiser is holding out to you.

It will find the article you've lost. Or it will put you in touch with the loser of the article you've found.

It will—but what's the use? The scope of WANT AD. advertising can't be told in this little space. There is no proposition too small and no proposition too large for a WANT AD. to handle.

Don't work so hard—don't expend so much vital energy—don't worry—don't bustle around—LET A WANT AD. GET YOU WHAT YOU WANT.

FRANCES MARSHALL

Starvation Economy.

Behold the cow! The reason it does not accomplish more is because it is forced to work from early morn till late at night munching grass or hay enough to subsist on. If man ate only cabbage it woud take him all day long to eat enough to give him sufficient nourishment to live on. That he could not subsist in this way is lucky, for if he could, there would probably be some cabbage-eating enthusiasts.

Perhaps one reason that man has risen to his present high state of efficiency is because of his ability to eat concentrated food. A lump of sugar given occasionally as a treat to a petted horse contains as much nourishment as many times its bulk in oats—a hundred times, perhap. Man can eat and thrive on a diet in which sugar plays an important part. The poor horse must go on munching oats to the end of his days, with sugar as an occasional pleasant surprise.

No-Egg Theory.

Don't insult this ability of mankind to eat concentrated food by scimping on the essentials of his diet. If you do not eat food rich in proteids, you must eat more of food not rich in this element of nourishment. If you feed your family muffins made with one egg, they must eat enough other food to make up for the nourishment they do not get in the muffins. If they go without meat, they must have something to take its place.

So don't scimp. Remember that some of the more expensive foods are concentrated, so far as nutritive value is concerned, and in the long run are cheaper than food that cost less. Butter, eggs, pure sugar—all these are concentrated foods that are worth paying well for.

In a very interesting list of cheap menus a housewife once prepared, she mentioned a tapioca pudding which at most took three or four tablespoonfuls of tapioca. She pointed out that if the tapioca were soaked twelve hours in water, its bulk would increase, and a tablespoonful less would be needed. Of course, and doubtless without realizing it, she was cheating her family for the sake of a fraction of a cent. She was giving them the same amount of bulk with less good in it. And that is what you will be doing if you cut meat, eggs, butter and other expensive foods from your menu. If you use them judiciously, economically, to be sure, you will not need so much of other, less satisfying food.

Some Cookery Suggestions

A DAINTY LUNCHEON.

LUNCHEON MENU.
Cream Toast.
Cauliflower With Sauce.
Fresh Salmon Salad.
Nasturtium Sandwiches.
Apple Charlotte.
Tea.

A LUNCHEON menu is given here whose merit is that it can be quickly got up and is therefore suitable for the unexpected guest that is apt to drop in sometimes.

A plain, old fashioned dish was cream toast, which had a good deal of food value. Served with preserves, jellies and fruits of many sorts, it is excellent. Even raw fruits may be used with this without extra cream, which under these circumstances will hardly be missed.

The cauliflower demands white sauce, the cooked cabbage is daintiest with it, the turnip and carrot are good, and even vegetables which are best with butter—like string beans—are nice in a thin and thoroughly cooked white sauce.

A Novel Recipe.

Nasturtium Sandwiches. — Cream cheese and nasturtium sandwiches are economical and wholesome. Spread the bread thickly with fresh cream cheese, and between the two slices put a layer of small young nasturtium leaves. These leaves have a taste which is not unlike mustard, you know, and they go excellently with the slightly sour flavor of the cheese.

A Popular Dessert.

Apple Charlotte.—Take a quart of sliced sour apples, a cupful of sugar, a pint of fine breadcrumbs, a pint of sweet milk, a tablespoonful of butter, a teaspoonful of cinnamon, a pinch of salt and one or two eggs. Steam the apples until they are soft. Butter a pudding dish and arrange alternate layers of breadcrumbs and apples in the dish. Sprinkle the apples with the sugar and cinnamon and place a layer of breadcrumbs on top. Beat the yolks of the eggs, add the salt and milk and pour over the apples and breadcrumbs. Bits of butter should be dotted over the top. Place the dish in the oven and bake for half an hour or till the milk is absorbed. Serve with sweetened cream.

Pete Fought the Snake.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Pete, the Plucky Pet Rooster, And the Snake.

"NOW," said daddy, "I am going to tell you about a little boy whose pet rooster probably saved his life."

Jack and Evelyn opened wide their eyes and settled down comfortably to listen.

"The rooster was a pet that belonged to a little three-year-old boy named Frankie," explained daddy. "Frankie fed the rooster and played with him when he was allowed to go out into the yard. Pete showed that he was fond of the little chap by following him about wherever he went.

"One morning Frankie went out to the yard with his little spade and pail. He was allowed to have Pete out of the chicken yard to play with him. They trotted around until Frankie got tired. Then the little boy sat down in the sand in one of the paths and began to dig.

"Thinking he was no longer needed, Pete wandered off by himself to pick up bugs and caterpillars from the grass. He was crunching a delicious green worm when he heard a little cry from Frankie.

"Pete turned quickly round, and what he saw quite startled him. There a few feet from his little friend was a big brown and black snake.

"Pete gave a squawk of anger. He knew that the snake meant to harm Frankie, and he rushed forward to chase it away.

"This snake, however, was not the kind to be afraid of a chicken. It was a copperhead, a kind of snake whose sting will kill people.

"As Pete rushed at it the snake raised its head threateningly. The rooster seemed to know that he must be careful lest the snake sting him, for he dodged carefully and gave it a sharp peck with his bill. After that the snake was mad. It began to fight in earnest.

"Frankie sat and watched them with amusement. He thought it was some sort of a game. He did not understand that the snake could hurt him.

"Frankie's mother was upstairs, and when she heard the noise in the yard she put her head out of the window. Then she rushed downstairs, seizing the broom on her way out.

"When she reached the yard Pete had just put the finishing touches to the snake by digging his sharp spurs into its head. Frankie's mother picked up her little boy and hugged him with joy. He was perfectly safe. The snake had not had a chance to sting him.

"Then she picked up the rooster to see if he had been hurt. So cleverly had Pete dodged the snake that not once was he struck.

"Pete is now the pet of the whole family. There is no danger that he will ever go the way of all chickens into the pot or frying pan."

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

WOMEN AND ECONOMIC INDEPENDENCE.

"I think most informed and progressive people are agreed as to the necessity of economic independence for the married woman. If the mother is a wage-earner the father's task will be simplified," says Mrs. Mary Ware Dennett, secretary of the National Woman Suffrage Association.

"The hopelessness of woman's position until she becomes financially independent is the one lesson which all social settlement workers sooner or later learn," says the Rev. Anna Shaw, and in a later paragraph, in the same plea for woman suffrage, it is apparent that all women must become financially independent.

Young girl are everywhere urged to become "financially independent." There is scarcely a college girl in America who is not fitting herself for some profession. "Financial independence" is the ideal condition for women. All suffragists declare it There are 7,000,000 working women in America, and the suffragist teaching is that all other women should be added to their number. The suffragist who wrote lately to an anti-suffragist publication, demanding to know what State "has ever enacted the law of supply and demand you speak of" is no real representative of the woman suffrage party. Many suffragists are trained economists who understand that supply and demand naturally regulate wages. Because of this law, labor unions have sprung into being. Workmen are many. The employer will take the man who offer his work cheapest, and in order that the unmarried man, who needs less money, may not underbid the man who supports a family, intelligent labor organized. The vote cannot raise wages, and working men know it. They must stand together, abolish underbidding, and strike together when wages are lowered. Even some men in labor unions do not understand how necessary the union is. They object to limited hours, but the wish of the minority must rule the majority. Working men fare best in trades where unions are strongest. And the best paid workers belong to trades in which they are not obliged to compete with women.

Of the 7,000,000 working women it is impossible to say how many are entirely self-supporting. But the investigation of the condition of working girls in Baltimore showed that many of them had homes and only partially supported themselves, and this was pointed out as one of the chief factors in the causation of wages. Yet suffragists propose to raise the wages of working women, and at the same time to add to their number more girls who can afford to work for less than a living wage.

* * * * *

Every economist knows that votes cannot raise wages, but every economist and every working girl and every member of every labor union in the world knows what it means when women of means are urged to compete with men and women who must live on the wages they receive.

Why do the suffragists—who undoubtedly mean well, and are perfectly sincere in their belief that the vote will raise wages, fail to see what their plea for the vote, because there are 7,000,000 working women in America, really means?

It is because so very few of them know what earning a living means. How many of them have ever had to face the world, penniless, with neither father nor husband to fall back on? Not Mrs. Belmont, surely not Jane Addams, not Chrystal Eastman Benedict, not Inez Mulholland, not the Rev. Anna Shaw, not Fola La Follette. They know the working woman as they have studied her. They know her as the scientist knows the brain under his miscroscope. They have not thought with her brain, nor ached with her heart. They have never felt the sick terror the mother of a little child feels when she comes to spend her last dollar. They have never known the hideous fear of the world that makes a working girl tremble when she is discharged to give room to a girl who wants to be "financially independent."

The woman who, like the Rev. Anna Shaw, honestly believes that the State can assume the duties and responsibilities of the mother, cannot understand how the mother feels. The woman who, like Mrs. Belmont, has been able to hire the best of nurses and tutors for her children, cannot understand what giving up children, to even the best institution, means to the mother whose lack of money has kept her with her children every day and every night. And if mothers must be wage-earners there must be children cared for by the State, or no children at all.

Let the advocates of woman suffrage open their eyes wider and look deeper into the heart of the world. Surely, if they do that they will not strike such a blow at all working women and working men as they strike when they urge all women to compete with them. They will subject the nation to the rule of the minority, as they do now when they teach both men and women that the franchise is a mere privilege to be exercised at pleasure, and that the ballot is toy—not the peaceful equivalent of the bullet in defense of liberty.—"The Woman's Protest."

"I have been asked to say something regarding one matter. It is said women could do something about it, and that is that terrible thing called the 'White Slave Traffic.' That is something which, of course, excites our very deepest sympathy and indignation. I have just this to say about it. Is there any law upon the statute books of New York that is wrong? Is there any law anywhere (in the suffrage States, for instance), is there any law better than the law of the State of New York? If so, why not present it? It is unnecessary to wait for an amendment of our Constitution giving the right to vote to women, to attempt anything more, if any thing more be possible, to check that evil. It is cruel to wait. Is there any method of administration of law which can be bettered? It seems to me that all the law that can be devised has been put in the statutes. Then it comes to the pure question of protection from violation of that law. That is a question of evidence. The great difficulty is getting the evidence. Woman does not need the ballot to help get the evidence on that subject and present it. That is enough to say on that subject. Nothing more could be said, it seems to me.—From a speech by Clarence S. Fairchild at Cazenovia.

Taxation without representation may be tyrannical, but the taxation of the property of women in Massachusetts is not tyrannical. In our laws relating to taxation, the only distinctions based on sex are in favor of women. Widows and unmarried women above the age of twenty-one have the benefit of an exemption from taxation of property to the amount of $500 more than men, and women are not, like men, subject to a poll tax.

Taxation with representation may also be tyrannical. If a majority of the voters have but little taxable property, they may be tyrannical to those who have more. Woman suffrage would increase the percentage of those voters having little or no taxable property.

The socialist party advocates woman suffrage. Its chief aim is to force an equal division of property. The methods of taxation which would bring about such a result would be tyrannical in the extreme.—"The Woman's Protest."

HINTS ON FASHIONS IN THE METROPOLIS

Some Suggestions to the Woman Who Would Be Gowned Correctly.

New York, September 20.—As usual, at the beginning of the autumn season, the fashion authorities are kept busy making predictions for the important season to come. A great deal has been said and written upon the subject but, condensed in a nutshell there are only a few points upon which the fashion authorities seem to agree. They generally concede, however, that costume, suit and wrap fashions for the coming season will be characteried not so much by novelty and beauty of materials and colorings. The Oriental form is still maintained, but the astern influence is lessening considerably, and is already on the decline from a novelty standpoint. Women of good taste are demanding liberation from too much uniformity in dress, and there will be more individuality than heretofore from the Paris dressmakers. Each big maker will stand for what is his or her conception of the proper dress for the fashionable woman, but in spite of all variety there will be a certain accordance. Thus, while some makers show long coats and others short jackets, the two seemingly opposite forms are brought into harmony through the fact that in the long coats there is nearly always a break at the waist line, brought about by a girdle, the cut of the vest or some other reasons.

The kimono form of sleeves will be retained in dressy effects, but usually the forearm will be closely fitted, this, in combination with the kimono cut, necessitating the retention of a very large armhole. This cut will be much used in transparent bodices and in evening wraps. Generally speaking, day dresses and separate blouses will have long sleeves, with frills or lace falling over the hands.

The woman who has old clothes to make over can still rejoice in the fact that several contrasting materials are used in most of the fashionable frocks. Evening gowns, for instance, can combine velvet, satin and chiffon or lace; afternoon gowns can combine plaided and plain silk, silk and poplin, silk and charmeuse, and many other materials.

Buttons and bows are to share the work of trimming this autumn. Buttons are still much used for trimming tailored suits. And bows are used as they have not been for years. One French frock shows a long tunic of white chiffon, with bows of blue ribbon extending from neck to knees. The satin underskirt has a double row of small white satin buttons down the front from knees to hems, thus combining two smart methods of trimming in the same frock

Soft silks, of which charmeuse has been a prime favorite for several months, are most practical for many types of early autumn dresses and scarcely any warmer than cotton wash materials that muss so quickly. The dressiest gowns for formal wear are made of it, as may be the simplest afternoon frock, or two-piece suit. Now also crepe de chine has come into prominence with any number of good qualities to recommend it. It may be washed and ironed, and has enough body to hang effectively, if a good grade is chosen.

White crepe de chine one-piece dresses are considered very modish, and the simpler they are made the more beautiful. Hemstitching and net frills or a beautifully fancy embroidered collar or fichu is sufficient to dress up such a gown. Accessory belts, sashes, etc., vary the ensemble, as any clever woman knows how to change her gowns from time to time without extra expense.

The very general use of transparent gowns has given rise to a double panel-front petticoat to counteract the X-ray effect that modest dressers deplore. The new skirt is sold in muslin, crepe de chine, or other soft silk.

Now is the time to bring out any jet trimmings or garnitures one may have laid aside years ago. Jet is being lavishly used on gowns and hats, particularly with tulle and lace. An open-work effect in jet bugles has appeared as a hat crown and is meeting with favor.

Apropos of the widespread use of lace and tulle, very dainty dress frocks are made of it with straight or three-tier skirts, set off with embroidery bands or embroidered scallops.

Among the modish fabric hats, a hint from Paris tells of the success of pale pink crepe de chine hats, faced with navy blue taffeta. A rose monture, a tulle bow or a lace butterfly may be the trimming. Young girls are wearing picture hats with ribbon velvet streamers, having a nosegay of flowers tied in them.

The attractiveness of velvet contrasted with lace or tulle is excuse for fashion followers wearing velvet wraps in midsummer. They are scarcely heavier than any wrap needed for cool evenings.

The colors in the new gowns imported for the autumn and early winter season are quite attractive and only startling in spots. The general idea is sedate and artistic. Blue is revived for housewear; it is difficult to describe the shade used; it is as deep as sapphire, but has a gray tinge that reminds one of Nattier blue. There is nothing turquoise about it. It seems to be brushed over with a misty tone of gray and in velvet it is exceptionally lovely.

The fashion for summer velvet hats is one which appeals to the economical woman; for the velvet hat bought in August can now be made to do service until very cold weather.

As a between-season hat a velvet one is especially suitable. It is really light and cool to wear, made as it is today. Most of them are mounted on canvas frames, and often the crowns are soft and only lined with a single thickness of china silk or thin canton flannel. The flannel is used to give body and shape to the velvet crown.

These hats are made in small shapes, but they sit well up on the head and show a good deal of hair, over the ears and on the forehead. They are variously trimmed, but not elaborately. Usually wings or ribbon or both combined form their trimming.

The craze for novelty shades in furs bids fair to include colored fox, skunk in dyed stripes, and dyed mole and seal. Hunter's green, navy blue or dark purple mole and seal may be bought as easily as orange, yellow fox, rose-striped skunk or pale blue rabbit.

Pretty pompons for slippers are made in this way: Gather a doubled strip of chiffon, about three inches wide, or an inch and a half wide folded into a rosette. Make a little satin rose of the same color and fasten the two together. They will give the appearance of a flower. Use crystal beads for the flower center and dot beads around the edges of the petals of the satin rose. Pure, glass beads give the best effect, but gold or silver beads would also be pretty.

Lace is used to trim handbags, just as leather is now used to trim hats. A dainty hangbag of suede leather in tan shades is edged about the top with a narrow frilling of deep cream Valenciennes lace, fulled well around the corners.

BROAD SHOULDERS AND WAIST, NOTHING NARROW BUT THE FOOT LINE

How perfectly suited to the suppleness of youth are many of our new fashions. Loose, blousy effects and dropped shoulders give to waist and back the desired breadth which tapers to the narrow graceful foot line.

To meet the requirements of early autumn 7950 is excellent developed in a dull blue serge, daintily relieved and brightened by a narrow frill of lace. Such a frock is especially suited to out of door wear when silks are a bit too cool and summery looking. The plainness of the dropped shoulder is broken by a short stitched plait, and the arrangement of inverted plaits on the skirt gives the new peg-top effect that is so smart and is seen on so many of the new fall skirts. The pattern is cut in five sizes, fourteen to eighteen years. Size 16 requires 4⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

Printed silks in futurist designs of rather strong color combinations are very effective as trimming for afternoon dresses of dark toned silks, serges and crepes. 7929 is as simple a frock as can well be designed, yet developed in plain rose crepe de chine by the use of a printed silk yoke of unusually soft shade it becomes decidedly dressy in effect. The bottom of the three-piece tunic is also finished with a band of the printed silk. A broad sash of plain satin gracefully merges the waist with the hip line. The gown closes in the back. Five pattern sizes may be had, 34 to 42. Size 36 requires 4⅝ yards of 36 inch material. Each pattern 15 cents:

WOMEN ARRIVE FOR TENNIS.

Montreal, Sept. 20.—Miss Muriel Dodd, the British golf champion, and Miss Mabel Harrison, Irish champion in 1910, 1911, and 1912, arrived here yesterday to play in the women's championship tournaments in Canada and the United States. As members of a team representing Great Britain they have entered the Canadian tournament, which begins Sept. 29 at Dixie, and the American tournament at Wilmington, Del., beginning Oct. 13.

NEWARK FANS TO HONOR TEAM.

Newark, Sept. 20.—Newark fans yesterday at a Board of Trade conference discussed plans for fittingly honoring the members of the pennant-winning team in the International League. In view of the fact that Rochester dropped one of its games in the double-header with Toronto yesterday there is but a remote chance of Newark being passed by the Bronchos. The season closes today. The Board of Trade and the City Council will co-operate in the celebration fete, and Mayor Haussling, when he returns to the city on Monday, will be asked to name Saturday, Sept. 27, as a city holiday. Another meeting will be held at the Board of Trade on Monday, when the final plans for the celebration will be made. Mayor Haussling will appoint a committee of fifty citizens to take charge of the affair. Features of the celebration will be a parade and a game between Newark semi-professionals and the pennant winners, if the plans of the active celebrators go through on Monday. Field day events will also be on the program, including base running, tests for accurate throwing, and fungo batting.

GREET JIM SULLIVAN.

Many men prominently identified with athletics took part yesterday in the demonstration which was tendered James E. Sullivan, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, and the American Commissioner to the Olympic games, when he arrived home on the steamship Cedric, after several months absence to the Continent, where he took part in the athletic congress session.

COLOR LINE IN BOXING.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 20.—To avoid disturbances of the peace the State Athletic Commission may prohibit a sparring exhibition between white and colored persons, but the commission should not attempt to prohibit mixed matches if its action is based solely on the question of race discrimination. Attorney General Carmody has so advised the commission in response to an inquiry.

SADLER TROPHY MATCH.

Sea Girt, Sept. 20.—Holding the lead which they established when they won the first stage with a world's record score of 595, the Massachusetts team yesterday afternoon won the Sadler Trophy match with an aggregate score of 1,721. New Jersey finished second with 1,694.

MORRIS LANDS K. O.

Carl Morris, the Oklahoma Giant, whipped a short right blow to Al Reich's jaw in the second round at Madison Square Garden last night and the former amateur heavyweight champion went down in a heap and was counted out. Reich's inexperience and woefully weak defence made victory easy for Morris. He had the advantage in weight and reach and was all over Reich when the two clinched.

NO LEGAL COMPLICATIONS.

The decision of the Attorney General regarding boxing bouts between white and colored pugilists does not in any way affect the ruling of the State Athletic Commission relative to mixed boxing bouts. In refusing to permit these contests the commission was guided by a desire to protect the interests in the sport. The question of the legality of the decision was never brought into question, and the ban on mixed bouts can be removed at any time at the discretion of the members of the commission.

It has since been applied to one who operates or manages an automobile.

LOCAL TENNIS TEAM DEFEATS STAR DUO

Miss Fleming and Howard Craig Victors at Montclair Yesterday Afternoon.

A complete reversal of form was witnessed in the semi-final round of the Montclair Athletic Club invitation tennis tournament yesterday on the club courts at Montclair, when Mrs. William H. Pouch and Miss E. Handy defeated Miss Clare Cassell and Miss Alberta Webber in the semi-final round of the women's doubles in two deuce sets, 8—6, 7—5. Consistency of form has been one of the features of the Montclair tourney, but the downfall of Miss Cassell and Miss Webber was hardly looked for. Miss Cassell was far from being in form, and her court work was in striking contrast to that of Thursday.

Altogether it was a sad day for Miss Cassell, as with E. S. H. Prendergast as a partner she was defeated in the mixed doubles by Miss Barbara Fleming and Howard Craig, of this city, in easy fashion.

The tournament has now reached an interesting stage. Miss Marie Wagner and Mrs. C. N. Beard will play Mrs. R. A. Pope and Mrs. K. B. Neff in the lower half of the women's doubles championship, and the winners will oppose Mrs. William H. Pouch and Miss Handy for the title. In the singles Miss Marie Wagner and Mrs. Beard will play for the right to meet Miss Cassell for the championship. Mrs. Beard is the present title holder.

PLAINFIELD FAN ENDORSES ACTION

Local Supporter Says Baseball is Becoming a Business in Plainfield.

Sporting Editor:

Dear Sir:—I read your article in Friday's Press denouncing the so-called "padding" process, introduced to bring the Central New Jersey Leauge pennant to Plainfield, and I, as a fan and loyal follower of the Plainfield team, heartily endorse your action. Your unbiased stories dealing with different phases of the Central New Jersey League have been a source of much interest to me as well as to many other local fans with whom I come in daily contact.

Why should Manager Dorflinger depose certain players who have stuck to him faithfully all season and pad up with an aggregation of "unknowns" just to wrest the pennant from Somerville? Plainfield supporters, of course, want to see the pennant brought to this city, but I think that a majority of the broader minded fans would rather see it lost in a sportsmanlike spirit rather than to have it won by a big league outfit, especially imported for the occasion. These players have no interest in the outcome except for the money they receive and they are coming to Plainfield merely as business men. As you have suggested in your daily squibs, "baseball is becoming a business," and the Plainfield manager is going out of his way to prove this deplorable feature.

Jack Torpey, of the Somerville team, deserves great credit for the way he sticks to his old reliables and although I am a rabid Plainfield follower I would root my head off if Somerville trounced the Pets with their home talent lined up against Dorflinger's "stars for a day." Torpey is one of the baseball managers who are fast passing out of existence and if there were more of his calibre affiliated with the Central League's activities it would probably have been a success rather than such a conspicuous failure.

Hoping that you will continue to act unbiasedly in these matters and to give the visiting team the same treatment that you have done in the past, I am,

Yours in true sport,
WILLIAM C. BEEKMAN.

The above communication was received this morning by the sporting editor of this paper and the fan who endorses out action is one who weekly occupies a seat in the Plainfield half of the bleachers and does his share of the yelling for the Pets. Communications of this kind are welcomed and fans wishing to express their views on any sport topic can do so in this way. His letter is self-explanatory.—Sporting Ed.

"MAC" SAYS

BRUTALITY.

"It is a brutal game," he said,
And from the football field his motor sped,
His auto ran across a stranger's neck
And left him there, a shattered, hopeless wreck,
And, as he left the stranger there for dead,
"This football is a brutal game," he said.

There's a big difference between killing a man outright and pulling his limbs apart. To date none has been slaughtered on the gridiron. We are still awaiting the opening of the season.

It is said that football will be an improved game this season. It is also said that there is plenty of room for improvement.

One of the beauties of the closing of the baseball season is the rain that always accompanies it.

Wonder what those New England leaguers who were hired to do duty on Parker Field this afternoon will do to pass the time?

Not that it causes us any worry but it seems as though it was about time for some one to break in with the information that the weather man has been doped.

Ernest Dorflinger denies the report that he will enter politics. He refuses to see his reputation blighted after an honorable career of lo! these many years.

Joe Tinker is a sharper pugilist than he is a ball manager. He punched little fellows like Knabe and Maranville on the ball field, but avoided big men like Tesreau, Zimmerman and McLean. If Tinker used the same strategy in baseball the Reds would win the pennant.

Color line isn't drawn in chess. Read yesterday that Frank Marshall, black, defeated Oldrich Duras, white, in the final round of the Masters' Tournament, in New York.

Bob Harmon, the St. Louis twirler, who has lost twenty-two games this season, could convince any A. A. U. probe that he wasn't guilty of playing summer baseball.

GAME AT SCOTCH PLAINS.

Manager Joe Alberts, of the Scotch Plains baseball team, has signed the Bloomer Girls' nine, of New York, to appear on the Plains field in the Sunday attraction tomorrow afternoon. The feminine aggregation is one of the speediest outfits playing the national game in the country today and the Plains manager has promised a good attraction to the Sunday fans.

HARTER IN NEWARK.

When the Ironsides and Worthingtons, two of the fastest semi-professional nines in the Metropolitan district, meet on Park View Oval, Newark, tomorrow morning, Joe Harter, center fielder for the Plainfield Pets, will be the leader-off on the latter combination. He will play the outfield.

FOUR OF FAMILY ENGAGED, NINE OTHERS ALREADY WED

New Brunswick, Sept. 20.—Four engagements have been announced in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wildgoose, of Livingston Park. Already nine brothers and sisters in this family have married. With these four more marriages there will have been thirteen weddings in the Wildgoose family.

Two of the family, Robert and Miss Lillian Wildgoose, are to marry into the same family. Robert will wed Miss Margaret DeHart, of Franklin Park, and Miss Lillian is to become the bride of Herbert DeHart. Andrew Wildgoose will wed Miss Grace Serviss, of Livingston avenue, and Herbert Wildgoose will marry Miss Barbara Bauer, of Lindenau. No dates for any of the weddings have yet been set.

PATERSON PRESS HAS A GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

Paterson, Sept. 20.—The Paterson Daily Press celebrated its fiftieth anniversary yesterday by issuing a fifty-four-page boom issue for the city in which it is published, and by tendering a theatre party and banquet last night to the entire force of employes.

The paper was founded September 19, 1863, William Wright being the first editor and George S. Chiswell the business manager. On February 1 Mr. Wright was succeeded by George Wurts, who formerly served on the Newark Daily Advertiser, the Newark Mercury and the Brooklyn Daily Union. Mr. Wurts filled the editor's chair until May 15, 1911, since which time he has been the associate editor.

The banquet took the nature of a testimonial to Mr. Wurts, at which time he was presented with a token showing the esteem in which he is held by the employes of the paper.

On May 15, 1911, William B. Bryant, formerly of the New York Tribune, became the general manager of the Press and John L. Matthews, formerly of the Brooklyn Times, became editor. The paper has made rapid strides both in circulation and advertising in the past two years.

Monday the Greatest Silk Occasion will be Ready—at GIMBELS

Planned six months ago, our experts spent many weeks in Paris, Lyons, and other foreign sources of supply, securing the most exquisite, the most fashionable, and the most wanted Silks, under conditions that made possible prices that seem almost unbelievably low, now that the superb Silks are here, on our counters, and thousands of women are just ready to prepare for their Autumn gowns. Then, of course, we added to the foreign collection many splendid groups of stylish Silks that were best obtainable from our own great American Silk Mills. And so, Monday, in addition to the magnificent GIMBEL assemblage of New Silks, we present

$90,800 Worth of the Most Fashionable SILKS to Be Sold for $44,125

Never has there been such a broad demand for rich and sumptuous Silks, and never before have the wizard-artists of Europe achieved such marvels of magnificence as are shown in the Silks now here. And these most elegant brocades, enriched by gold and silver, are among the price-wonders of this Sale. Here is the story how we secured

5000 Yards of Richly Brocaded $10 to $30 Silks to Sell for $6 a Yard

The great wholesale buyers of America, Austria, Russia England, and the master dressmakers of Paris, have all finished buying their supplies of these rich silks, in August, and the wholesale distribution for the season is finished long before the silks have been worn at all. Just after the regular season for the selling agents was over, our representative called and found that five thousand yards remained as a surplus, and made the offer to take the entire collection.

All their regular clients had been supplied. All their foreign customers had gone home. The owners were quite glad to end their season with the clean-up of every yard of silks in stock.

And so these rich, sumptuous masterpieces of best French looms that went elsewhere to sell this season at $10 to $30 a yard are here Monday, and until eager dressmakers and other women claim them, at the unbelievably low price of

"It takes either time or else some great affliction to make a casual acquaintance ripen into friendly interest and then into sincere, earnest friendship," said Isabelle Lowe recently. "Some acquaintances will never do so, because the common bond of union, the thorough understanding and the complete sympathy are lacking. An acquaintance such as June in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" has for Dave and which was begun in childhood will ripen into friendship if the children develop mutual interest in a common cause or study or pleasure. If dissimilar tastes and unlike impulses develop the children will grow apart, since each of us tends toward certain centres of association." This play will be seen this afternoon and evening at the Plainfield theatre.

J. M. Barrie, author of "The Little Minister," "What Every Woman Knows," and similar plays, has given Charles Frohman a play called "Half An Hour," which is as stirring in its drama as almost anything by Sardou. Grace George will create the part in this country, acting it for the first time at the Plainfield theatre, Plainfield, next Wednesday night. Miss George's appearance will be preceded by the newest Stanley Houghton comedy, "The Younger Generation."

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

"A Distinguished Foreign Visitor,

who was being shown the principal sights of the city of Newark, N. J., not long ago, came to a full halt on reaching the group of massive buildings housing The Prudential Insurance Company of America, and on learning that all these great piles of masonry had been reared by the Company founded on the weekly premium plan by the late Mr. Dryden, he fittingly applied to them the term of 'monuments to the thrift of American toilers.' Surely no more apt or concise designation of the Industrial Life Insurance system of this country has yet been devised."

MAKE MONEY WITH POULTRY

AMERICAN POULTRY is a magazine devoted entirely to helping earnest men and women make a financial success of poultry raising. Its staff of writers is composed entirely of those who have made a practical, instead of theoretical, success of poultry farming, and who are glad to pass on the results of their hard earned experience to AMERICAN POULTRY readers.

There are many pit-falls in the path of the novice which may be entirely avoided by those who will follow the teachings set forth in this magazine. It fully explains how to make a start, how to construct houses, coops, and other devices, how to get a large egg yield, how to cure and prevent disease, how to exhibit, how to get the top price for eggs, how to use incubators and hundreds of other points which everyone wishes to know. It explains the famous secret system through which poultrymen have become rich and afterwards sold for hundreds of dollars.

AMERICAN POULTRY is a large, handsomely illustrated, monthly journal, well printed on fine paper, and should be found on file in the home of every poultry lover. No beginner in the poultry business should think of being without it. It will save him many times the small subscription price. The advanced poultryman will also find it of great value; the articles being varied in their scope.

SPECIAL OFFER. The regular price of AMERICAN POULTRY is 50c per year, but in order to introduce it to several thousand new readers, we will, for a short time, give a large 200 page poultry book, which is a complete guide in the poultry business, absolutely free to everyone sending 50c for a yearly subscription or $1.00 for a three year subscription to AMERICAN POULTRY. A trial six months' subscription (without book) will be sent for 25c. Never has so much been offered for so small a sum. Advantage of this offer should be taken at once.

BLATZ AND DEMEZA TO ABIDE BY RESULT

In Final Appeal to Republicans Rivals Say They Will Not Run Otherwise.

Judge W. G. DeMeza and Councilman Blatz, rival candidates for the Republican nomination for City Judge, stated today that they will accept the verdict of their party as final and will not run on any other ticket. Judge DeMeza said:

"I can only say that I feel very grateful for the many kind letters and personal assurances of support I have received and that I feel confident that the Republicans of this city will renominate me tomorrow for the office I have had the honor to hold for the last three years. I reiterate that I have tried in every way to perform my duties and that I have shown neither fear nor favor in the discharge of my duties. As the campaign comes to a close I want to ask all voters to go to the polls and vote as their conscience dictates and as their duties as upright citizens prompts them."
prompts them. I shall abide by the result of the Republican primaries."

When seen today, Mr. Blatz made this statement:

"As a candidate for the Republican nomination as City Judge, so many inquiries have been made of me regarding my past political affiliations and my attitude with respect to the result of the forthcoming primaries that I venture to ask of you the use of your columns for the following:

"I am and always have been a Republican. Last year I voted the ticket of that party born at the primary and election. My vote then represented, as it always has, my conscientious *convictions. And being a Taft Re*publican, and a thorough believer in the rule of the majority, I wish to state emphatically that I shall accept the verdict of the voters at next Tuesday's primary election, and if defeated by my opponent for the nominations, we both seek, shall accord him my loyal and warm support in every way possible. I hope and trust that I may receive a like support from him, provided the fortunes of the contest result in my favor.

"Concerning myself and my work I prefer that others should speak. Suffice it to say that I shall, if nominated and elected, give to the citizens of this city, the most devoted service of which I am capable, regarding the commission received at their hands as only fully worthy to command the best that is in me."

ITALIANS OBSERVED INDEPENDENCE DAY

I. W. Herman Makes Address on Italian History and Offers Prize for Essay.

Under the auspices of the Italian Mission, 109 East Third street, a service was held last night in commemo*ration of the 43rd independence an*niversary of Italy. Rev. Theodore Boretti, the pastor, was in charge of the program, which included attractive musical numbers, recitations and addresses. The rooms were elaborately decorated with American and Italian flags.

There were cornet and piano solos, features being the reciting of a poem by Miss Pauline Gates and a piano selection by Miss Helen Brancati, aged ten years. There were songs by the children's choir.

There was an interesting address by H. W. Herrman on "Italian History," and Mr. Boretti explained the meaning of the celebration. He announced that Mr. Herrman had offered a prize of $10 in gold for the best essay to be written by an Italian boy or girl on the subject of "American Citizenship," the award to be made at Christmas time. The program closed with the singing of "America."

HEARD SUNDAY SCHOOL SERVICE OVER A PHONE

Miss Carrie Dewey, of Watchung avenue, for a number of years the Sunday-school pianist at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, who is detained at present at home by illness, was privileged yesterday to enjoy the Sunday-school session over a telephone wire, which was especially arranged for the occasion. The use of a megaphone in Miss Dewey's bedroom permitted her to enjoy the musical numbers, including the singing of the school, as well as the remarks by the superintendent, all of which she appreciated greatly.

NEGRO PRISONER MURDERS KEEPER

Somerville Giant Serving Sentence for Highway Robbery Kills Prison Guard.

FINALLY OVERPOWERED

His Second Attempt to Escape—Was Kept in Shackles While in Somerset County Jail—Considered a Vicious Man to Handle.

While attempting to prevent the escape of William Austin, alias William Diamond, who was committed to the New Jersey State's Prison in Trenton to serve a term of fifteen years for holding up and shooting Charles Dumas, a prominent Somerville merchant, near the Duke estate, last December, Eli B. Stetser was shot and killed by the prisoner at an early hour this morning. Austin was shot twice in the right arm by the keeper in the struggle, and the negro is now in the prisoners' hospital. As soon as he is able to appear he will be arraigned on the charge of manslaughter in the first degree.

When the other convicts were being assembled to go to the prison chapel for the religious services this morning Austin feigned illness and was permitted to remain in his cell. Later he asked to be taken to Dr. J. Wellington Crane, the prison physician, and his cell door had just been opened when the giant negro leaped upon Keeper Pierson and pinioned his arms behind his back. Austin grabbed the keeper's revolver and started for the center, but when he reached his destination he encountered Stetser and Dr. Crane.

Diamond opened fire at once shooting Stetser twice in the breast and although fatally wounded the keeper drew his revolver and shot the negro as he fled. By this time other officials had been attracted and they pounced on the negro just as he fell with two bullets in his arm.

Austin attempted to escape from the prison some months ago by scaling the prison wall, and has been considered a particularly vicious prisoner. He is now in chains and will be charged with murder.

The negro shot the Somerville merchant in the wrist whil holding up the latter's rig in a lonely portion of Raritan and fled immediately to Philadelphia. He was located later in that city and brought to the Somerset county jail in Somerville where he feigned insanity and was kept in shackles during his detention in that jail. He would neither eat nor drink and was considered one of the most vicious prisoners ever confined in that jail.

ROCHESTER WILL NOT PLAY HERE AGAINST PLAINFIELD

According to a statement made this morning by a representative of the Rochester International League baseball cluub, the league runners-up will not appear at Parker Field to play against the Plainfield Pets as a club next Saturday afternoon. It is alleged that no agreement was ever reached between the Rochester and Plainfield managements to have the former aggregation appear here but a club sporting the name of Rochester and having several of its players will be on hand to give the Pets a race.

The so-called "Rochester" regiment will be a team of heavy hitters, however, and the local fans will be treated to some fine baseball. The visiting nine will take the field as follows: Eschen, of Jersey City, center field; Breen, Rochester, second base; Hanford, of Buffalo, left field; Simmons, leading hitter of International League, third base; Jordon, Buuffalo, first base, Martin, Rochester, shortstop; Reisigle, Providence, right field; Jacklitsch, Rochester, catcher; Hoff, Rochester, pitcher. It can be seen from the above batting order that Dorflinger has signed a good attraction and the local fans will be treated to a good program.

GAYNOR FUNERAL DREW BIG CROWD

Business Suspended in Downtown District During Impressive Obsequies.

THOUSANDS PRESENT

Services at Trinity and at St. Paul's—New York's Remarkable Tribute—Interment at Greenwood Cemetery.

New York, Sept. 22.—Mayor Gaynor's body was interred in Greenwood cemetery today following funeral services in Trinity church and St. John's chapel. Bishop Greer officiated at Trinity church, and the Rev. Montague Greer conducted the overflow service in St. Paul's chapel.

Shortly before 11 o'clock the funeral cortege moved from the city hall down Broadway to Trinity church. After the church services the cortege proceeded from Trinity over Brooklyn bridge to Greenwood cemetery. Men prominent in all walks of life were among the mourners, while thousands stood with bared heads as all that was mortal of the mayor of the great city was borne to its final resting place.

Unmindful of the downpour of rain in the early part of the day and the showers in the afternoon yesterday, 70,000 persons passed through the flower filled rotunda of the city hall past the body of Mayor William Jay Gaynor, lying in state.

Five Thousand Hourly.

It was a big city's final tribute to its dead mayor. The line seemed never to shorten, although it was said by Inspector Titus that the ribbon of mourners passed through the city hall at the rate of nearly 5,000 persons an hour. It was a double line that began at the Brooklyn bridge and stretched down around the federal building, up Broadway to Chambers street and then doubled back into the city hall.

It showed by its composition the late mayor's popularity with people in almost every walk of life. There were street cleaners in uniform, policemen, firemen and men high in official life. The silent reverence of the long line of waiting citizens was emphasized by the dull overcast sky.

Mayor Kline arrived at the city hall at 2 o'clock and at once went into conference with a number of city officials to discuss final details of arrangements for the funeral. A list of the public officials who formed in the big line to pay a last tribute to the mayor would include every member of the mayor's official family and nearly all of the judiciary.

Fine Floral Offerings.

All during the night and day floral pieces were sent to the city hall, among them being a huge "broken column" six feet high, sent by the late mayor's executive staff.

The department of bridges sent a floral chair that was carried into the rotunda by six men. The Bronx newsdealers sent huge wreaths, each one more massive than the last. Most of the work of caring for the flowers has fallen on John S. Ryan, the custodian of the city hall, who has not slept since the body was brought to New York.

Upon his arrival at the city hall with his wife and daughter Mayor Kline stepped into the line with them and passed around the coffin. He was greatly impressed by the crowd in line and declared that he could turn no one away.

FELL WHILE ASLEEP; DUFFY'S LEG BROKEN

John Duffy, an employe of George O. Stevens the coal merchant of West Front street, while sleeping in the hay loft of the barn, last night, rolled over and fell through the hatchway to the floor below and broke his leg near the hip. Finding himself in a helpless condition, Duffy began calling for help. His cries attracted the attention of Patrolmen Kelly and Sweeney. They hastened to the barn when they quickly learned the couse of the alarm. The ambulance was summoned and Duffy was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, where the broken bone was set.

WILL REHEARSE PROGRAM.

The weekly rehearsal of the Senior Municipal Orchestra will be held tonight and a full attendance of the musicians and committee is desired as the entire concert program will be rehearsed at that time. The public is cordially invited to attend this meeting as it will be the first one at which all of the number will be played.

ROBERT R. WOLFE.

Robert R. Wolfe, aged 24 years, a machinist, residing at 935 West Fourth street, died at Muhlenberg Hospital, last night, from complications. He was admitted to the hospital on September 12. He is survived by a wife. The funeral and burial will be at Oak, Pa., the former home of Mr. Wolfe.

MICHAEL F. HIGGINS HAS PASSED AWAY

Father of Maurice Higgins Dies Suddenly Aged Sixty-four Years.

Michael F. Higgins, aged 64 years, father of Roundsman Maurice Higgins, of the police department, died suddenly Saturday evening at his home, 469 West Front street. He was taken ill in the afternoon while at work at the residence of the late Dr. Boone on West Seventh street. Dr. C. B. Lufburrow was summoned, but his condition was critical and he died in a few hours.

Mr. Higgins had lived in South Plainfield and Plainfield since he was six months old. His father kept a hotel at the former place and for years Mr. Higgins was engaged in the livery business on West Sixth street, running stages about Plainfield before the advent of the trolley. In later years he was engaged in the contracting business. He was one of the founders of St. Mary's R. C. church and a member of the Holy Name Society.

Beside a wife, Mrs. Mary A. Higgins, there survives five daughters, the Misses Mary, Helen, Jennie, Margaret, of Plainfield, and Mrs. B. A. Cook, of Elizabeth; five sons, Maurice, Michael, Richard, of Plainfield; Joseph and Thomas, of Bloomfield; one brother, Maurice Higgins, of Plainfield, a sister, Mrs. Patrick Fitzgerald, of Perth Amboy.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's church with a high mass of requiem. The burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

DR. EATON EULOGIZES WILLIAM J. GAYNOR

Clergyman Preaches Special Sermon on Public Services of the Late Mayor.

New York, Sept. 22.—In sermons and prayers the ministers of New York referred in eulogistic terms yesterday to the career of the late Mayor Gaynor and the lessons of his life. Every creed and every denomination was represented in the memorials, and there was scarcely a religious service in the city in which some reference or other was not made to the death of Mayor Gaynor.

The Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, of Watchung, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, Madison avenue and Thirty-first street, had as the subject of his sermon, "Our Dead Mayor and the Live Issues That He Has Left Us."

"I believe that posterity will assign a great place to Mr. Gaynor among the eminent men who have filled the Mayor's chair in this city," he said. "He came to the hardest task in the gift of the American people equipped better than possibly any other man in the community. He needed no one to instruct him, for he was familiar with the vast and intricate machinery of our civil system. He knew the law and tried to abide by it. He freed the city government of partisan politics. He effected enormous economies; introduced many necessary reforms; brought the subway situation to a solution, and educated public opinion in the affairs of municipal government as no other man has ever done."

Dr. Eaton said that Mayor Gaynor's entire public career was marked by a ceaseless warfare on graft and graftors, and that in every way he was a genuine hater of dishonesty, whether public or private.

These are the issues that Dr. Eaton said had been left to the city by Mayor Gaynor:

Shall we have a government of laws and not of men?

Shall we have a government reflecting an enlightened public opinion and normal public conscience, or shall we have a government by clamor and hysteria

Shall we have a government expressing the orderly evolution of social thought and experiment, or shall we plunge into crude revolutionary undertakings in an attempt to ignore the time limit in life?

Shall we divorce partisan politics completely from civic affairs?

Can we pluck the city permanently out of the jaws of organized graft?"

RAIN PREVENTS GAME.

Is man superior to woman? Scotch Plains inhabitants were primed to see this question settled yesterday on the baseball diamond of Thorpe's Field, but Jupiter Pluvius was unrelentless and sent the rain pouring with such force from the lofty clouds that the baseball contest scheduled between the New York Bloomer Girls and Joe Alberts' semi-pro nine was put off until at later date. Mr. Alberts said that October 12 would undoubtedly be the date when the struggle for supremacy between the girls and his men will be settled.

EFFECTIVE ON DEC. 1

North Plainfield Church Has Prospered Under His Ministration—No Reason Assigned For Leaving—Has Been Ill.

Rev. William S. McCoy, who has been rector of Holy Cross Episcopal church, North Plainfield, for the past two years, succeeding Rev. George A.

W. S. McCoy.

Warner, read the announcement of his resignation at the morning service, yesterday. To many it came as a surprise. The resignation was presented to the vestry last week and accepted by that body. There were many expressions of regret over the action of Mr. McCoy for he has made many warm friends during his residence in the borough.

Mr. McCoy's announcement at the service, which he read, was as follows:

"The rector desires to make public to the congregation the fact of his resignation as rector which was contained in a communication to the vestry one day last week and accepted by them. His resignation is to take effect December 1, the beginning of the Advent season."

When questioned as to the reasons for his action, Mr. McCoy said that he had no comment to make except to say that his plans for the future are not settled.

Mr. McCoy came to Holy Cross church two years ago from St. Luke's church, Rochester, N. Y., where for the previous five years he had been an assistant rector. He had lived in Rochester for a number of years, where he had been very successful in his church work. It is possible that he may return to that city.

During his rectorship in the borough the parish has grown remarkably. It has a strong boys' club grown. It has a strong boys' club and chapter of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, while the other departments of work are in a flourishing condition. Four months ago Mr. McCoy was injured in an automobile accident and he received a severe blow to his nervous system. He recently returned to take up the work of the parish.

Elizabeth, N. J., Sept. 18, 1913.

To the voters of Union County:

Gentlemen:—

During the past three years the State of New Jersey has become the most progressive State in the Union, due to the policies of Governor Wilson and the men who sustained him in his work. Everyone will concede that, unaided, neither he nor his successor could have accomplished the great work which has placed the State in this position. Among the men who stood by and gave encouragement was General Dennis F. Collins. As a member of the State Committee, General Collins devoted his efforts and energies to uphold the Governor, when others vilified and traduced him. We now ask that General Collins be retained in the position which he has filled with such honor, fidelity and credit. He is a candidate to succeed himself as a member of the Democratic State Committee. He has served one term on the Committee at great personal sacrifice and expense, there being no salary attached to the position, and we feel that he is entitled to our endorsement by re-election.

We will appreciate any aid that you may be able to render in his behalf in the Primary Election which is to be held on Tuesday, the 23rd day of the present month.

The polls will be open from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Very respectfully,

ROGER MURRAY'S VIEWS
On the Judgeship Candidates

Having known Mr. Blatz all his life, I have always found him cool, reliable, faithful and sympathetic; qualifications necessary for a Judge.

I believe Judge DeMeza is not legally entitled to run in the Republican Primary, having last year supported the Progressive ticket. It would be more honorable for him to have been nominated by that party; why he preferred to be nominated on the Republican ticket strikes me to be more of a monetary consideration than one of high judicial integrity.

There can be no question of Francis J. Blatz's integrity. We all know that last year he supported the entire Republican ticket.

I have no objection to Judge DeMeza in the Republican Primaries. The more the merrier, but I think a man running for the office of City Judge should not have the slightest flavor of injustice connected with his acts.

I stand for the people's rights and clean government and if you believe in carrying on the work President Woodrow Wilson began, then vote tomorrow for

FOR ASSEMBLY.

If elected it will not become necessary for our President to come to Union County to remind me of my duty as he had to do with some of our Assemblymen last year who are running this year.

BIG LEAGUE SCOUT ATTENDED CONTEST

Brooklyn Scout Was After Harry Jennings, But Wants a Hitter.

Few of the thousand or more fans who witnessed the Plainfield-Somerville game at Parker Field last Saturday afternoon, knew that there was a big league scout on the players' bench watching the activities of Harry Jennings in the itcher's box. Such was the case, however, and the big game hunter was none other than Billy Sattles, of the Brooklyn National League club. He was sent here for the express purpose of getting a line on the article of ball the former collegian was capable of hurling over the pan and he was not altogether distressed over what he saw even if it was clouded in a curtain of mist.

Speaking of the game afterwards, he said that he thought that the Plainfield box artist was a comer but was not yet ripe for picking. He was much impressed with the way the pitcher handled himself in the box and liked the coolness he displayed at all times, but deplored the woeful weakness exhibited by Jennings at the bat. Had it not been for his batting the twirler would have been presented with a contract to tryout with the Brooklyn team during the remaining games of the season and this would probably mean a trip south next spring.

The league scout left Plainfield with the impression that Jennings was a good twirler but he was far from a star with the willow. Although the Pets' box artist was hard at times he was pitching with rain soaked ball and Catcher Nee said that he had not seen a dry ball thrown during the whole nine innings. Had Jennings been able to get his curves to break there is no telling what would have been the issue. As it was he was good enough on the defense, but when called upon to do his share of the offensive work, threw up the sponge.

THE CITY JUDGESHIP.

During the ante-primary campaign which comes to a close tonight, the attention of the local voters has been directed largely to the Republican contest for the city judgeship nomination. This is due in part to the fact that it is the only contest where there is a real semblance of a fight and in part we presume because voters as a rule take more interest in home politics. William G. DeMeza, who has filled the office with credit to himself and to the community since he was selected by the voters three years ago from among six Republican aspirants, is opposed by Francis J. Blatz, a member of the Common Council.

There is no gainsaying the fact that both DeMeza and Blatz are good men personally and each is a reputable lawyer. The difference between them as we view it is simply this—DeMeza's official career has been all that the public could demand or desire and there is no excuse, much less justification, for making a change in municipal office especially a judgeship when the incumbent is doing his full duty satisfactorily to the people. To our way of thinking, and we believe that we share the opinion of the mass of the people, the civil service idea is of vital concern, and holding to that idea we fail to see why DeMeza should be ousted to make place for another.

The Daily Press has received numerous letters and personal expressions favorable to Judge DeMeza's candidacy. They confirm our opinion regarding his candidacy and his chances for renomination and reelection. In another column will be found some of these endorsements. They are from representative men, all Republicans, in all parts of the city. The writers are known personally to the voters generally and we cheerfully publish the communications.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Plainfield Daily Press today introduces another innovation in Plainfield journalism to add to the many in which the paper has led the local field. A fall fashion section, consisting of thirteen pages, containing descriptions of the latest styles in women's and men's apparel, an article on "what's what" in furniture, and the fall announcements of leading Plainfield merchants, with descriptive articles prepared by experts and illustrated with the finest half tones.

The paper is published at much expense by the Daily Press in order to co-operate with the local merchants to make their fall business the greatest that they have ever experienced. Articles on the latest styles in evening gowns, methods of dressing the hair, afternoon gowns, fall millinery, gowns for street wear, blouses and furs will interest the women readers of the Press, while the men cannot fail to read the article regarding the fall styles for them. Another half page is given over to descriptions of some of the new house furnishings.

The progressive merchants who have united in this original edition of the Daily Press to make their announcements of fall goods are A. E. Force and Company, Woodhull and Martin Company, Tepper's, Samuel Rothberg, Shirley and Johnston, John J. Varley, Rosenbaum Brothers, Adelberg's Jacob A. Fass, Plainfield Credit Outfitting Company, Fiedler's Millinery Store, Charles Kurtzman, Dr. S. W. Reis, Carl Silbert, Keller's, The Outlet, M. C. Van Arsdale, Stanley, the florist, John J. Kenney and Paul R. Collier.

CITIZENSHIP PAPERS IN COURT THIS WEEK

Petitions of Applicants Will Be Heard Until Next Saturday.

Announcement is made by County Clerk Calvert that petitions of aliens desiring to become citizens will be heard every day this week, with the exception of Saturday, as a decision of the department of commerce and labor has held that all declarations of intention filed before September 27, 1906, will expire and become void after September 27. Applicants who hold first papers bearing date prior to September 27, 1906, must petition for final papers before next Saturday or they will be required to again qualify for first papers.

Naturalization laws, as established under an act of Congress of June 29, 1906, provide that applicants must qualify in seven years. The first seven-year period expires now. The courts as yet have not passed on the question, and to preclude the possibility of any applicants being debarred, the special period for filing petitions has been arranged.

The first provision of the law is that an alien shall declare on oath before a naturalization court his intention of becoming a citizen.

Not less than two years nor more than seven years after he has made such declaration of intention, he shall file a petition in writing announcing his intention of applying for naturalization, information in the petition being verified by two witnesses. He must have been a resident in the country for at least five years, and of the State at least one year.

This petition is posted ninety days after which the applicant is examined as to his fitness for citizenship.

AUTO CRASHES INTO TREE; TWO HURT, ONE SERIOUSLY

Somerville, Sept. 22.—William Waldron, while driving his auto through Dueks' Park, Saturday evening, in attempting to turn out for an approaching rig, crashed into a tree, the machine skidding. Waldron and William Orr, who accompanied him, were thrown out and both were injured. Waldron was taken to Riverview Hatel at Raritan, where his condition was reported today as being critical.

Weather conditions Saturday afternoon caused the postponement of the final matches for the First Baptist church girls' singles championship, which were scheduled to be contested on A. M. Harris courts on Central avenue and the last games will be run off next Saturday afternoon.

Miss Violet Crouce and Miss Minnie Endress will contest for the silver loving cup in the senior class while Miss Margaret Endress and Miss Travis Nash will play for a similar trophy in the junior division.

THIEVES IN SOMERVILLE.

Somerville, Sept. 22.—Thieves have been operating in the vicinity of East Somerville for the past few nights and considerable building material has been stolen from the new house being erected by William J. DeMond. Some of the plumbing has been ripped from the walls, several doors taken, as well as a number of carpenter tools. It is claimed that the guilty parties are known and that arrests are expected soon.

TWIRLERS DID NOT MEET.

The scheduled meeting of the Trenton and Suburban baseball clubs in Brooklyn yesterday was called off because of rain. Warry McLaughlin, in a Trenton uniform, was slated to oppose his fellow townsman, Cliff Randolph, who is occupying the mound for the Brooklyn team. Nibs Hand was on the card to receive Warry's slants.

I have been much impressed by his decisions and although I don't know the man so well I do know his public services. I hope he will be kept in office.

(Signed) HENRY L. HALL.

(From Isaac Schwed, prominent merchant).

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

As a merchant of long standing, having many diversified business interests in our city, I want to say that I hope Judge DeMeza will be reelected to the City Judgeship. He has made a fine record and I don't see how he could be improved upon. Certainly his defeat would mean a considerable loss to the people. I can't speak too highly of him and I think that I but echo the sentiment of the great majority of substantial business men when I say that DeMeza deserves re-nomination and re-election. You are at liberty to make any use of this letter you see fit.

(Signed) ISAAC SCHWED.

(From Charles H. Hand, real estate broker).

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

As I am the second largest taxpayer and have been for some years, I think I have a right to have some opinion about the running of things in this town. I have only got one vote but I can do a whole lot of thinking. Now, what I want to ask is just this, why is there opposition to Judge DeMeza; who are the people behind this opposition, and what does it all mean? If any of your readers want some information about this matter, let them call on me. I'll give them facts that stand ready to prove what I will have to say and will back up my responsibility for my utterances with the little money and property I may have. I know and I guess you know why there is a candidate against DeMeza. If you don't know, you should know, for you are running a newspaper. Why don't you come right out and tell the people about it?

I am as good a Republican as ever lived and as such I believe in good government. That's why I am for DeMeza. For other reasons, consult me at my office or home. I'll get out of bed at 3 o'clock in the morning if you are "from Missouri."

(Signed) CHARLES H. HAND.

Editors Plainfield Daily Press:

As a special officer of the S. P. C. A., I have had a chance to see the way in which justice has been administered from the bench in the city court by William G. DeMeza, and I am thoroughly convinced that he has made good in every way, and that he is entitled to the judgeship for another term.

He has, in my opinion, handled the reins of justice with a hand steadied by an honest, humane mind.

I say this not from hearing, but from actual knowledge. I also wish to say to the voters and taxpayers that in making your choice for city judge vote for William G. DeMeza, the man who has given you a chance to see what he can do, the man who has the best interests of the taxpayers at heart, and the man who has made good.

(Signed) EVA L. VAN HOESEN.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

During my vacation last August, I read in the local papers that Judge DeMeza would run for City Judge again if the people wanted him to and at the first opportunity, and without the slightest suggestion from anyone hunted up his petition and signed it.

I did this for several reasons and as a number of friends have asked me for them I should be glad to state them publicly, even though I have a warm personal regard for Mr. Blatz, who subsequently announced his candidacy.

In the first place I have been the complainant in many non-support cases brought before him and have been uniformly impressed with his fairness and ability in handling them.

In the second place, and more important, many family rows are brought to court for adjustment. An unsympathetic judge and one whose personality has no magnetism or who lacks capacity to make those before him believe he is sincerely trying to help them, can be ever so fair and ever so just, but he can never be a success as City Judge. I consider Judge DeMeza has these qualities to an unusual degree and they are factors from the standpoint of real helpfulness to those haled before this court, which I deem very important.

Few of the voters realize how much human misery is brought to that court. It can be handled in a routine way or it can, in my opinion be made the largest opportunity for social service that there is in the city. I believe Judge DeMeza has been an excellent judge and I hope the city may have the benefit of his services again.

(Signed) HENRY L DE FOREST.

(From F. A. Langworthy, manufacturer).

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

I am very glad of the opportunity to give Judge DeMeza my hearty support. I am quite familiar with his record as City Judge for the past three years and all the claims made in regard to the manner in which he has administered the duties of his office I believe to be correct.

I consider it a duty and pleasure to support Judge DeMeza at the primaries, and hope he will receive the nomination so that I can vote for him at the coming election.

(Signed)

FRANK A. LANGWORTHY.

Among others who have signed Judge DeMeza's petition are George S. Clay, president of the Common Council, and prominent corporation lawyer in New York; Leighton Calkins, chairman of the Common Council police committee, president of the Plainfield Country Club and a New York lawyer; Frederick E. Mygatt, chairman of the Common Council street committee and a New York lawyer; William F. Arnold, city treasurer of Plainfield and vice-president of the City National Bank; Leslie M. Daniel, former president of the Common Council and a New York lawyer; William M. Stillman, former corporation counsel of Plainfield.

CITIZENS' APPEAL IN BLATZ'S BEHALF

The following letter is self-explanatory:

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

We take great pleasure in recommending to the Republicans of this city, Francis J. Blatz, for City Judge.

Mr. Blatz's record as a lawyer and a member of the Common Council has been such as to make us believe that it would be for the city's interest to elect him to said office.

Respectfully yours,

POLITICAL

Confident that the voters will see in him a faithful agent of President Woodrow Wilson, and the policies and reforms the latter has endeavored to establish in this State, F. Otto Linke, of this city, said today that he feels sure of victory at the primaries tomorrow in his fight to become a candidate for the Assembly from Union county on the Democratic ticket. He is the only local Democratic candidate for a Union county nomination. Mr. Linke graduated from St. Lauwrence Preparatory School, Canada, and studied law at the Ottowa University, Canada. Later he was graduated from the Georgetown University Law School. He has lived in this city all his life and is prominent in local fraternal organizations.

Howard G. Lapsley, who is a candidate for the nomination of Councilman-at-large on the Democratic ticket, was born in Plainfield, December 16, 1886. He was educated in the Plainfield public schools and was graduated from the High School Class '05, after which he went to Germany for a course of study. For the past six years he has been engaged in business in New York city. Mr. Lapisey is of Irish descent. He is a member of the Sons of the Revolution, Grace Episcopal church and the Plainfield Country Club.

LeRoy J. Ellis and Mayor P. H. Stewart today issued statements in behalf of Gen. L. F. Collins' candidacy for the Democratic State Committee. Mr. Ellis called attention to the fact that Gen. Collins is a member of the Plainfield Democratic Club and is a good Democrat. Mayor Stewart says that his defeat would be a great loss to the party.

Freeholder J. Hervey Doane, who seeks a renomination on the Republican ticket, has been a member of the Board of Freeholders for seven years. He was instrumental in securing the appointment of a committee on soldier's graves to see that they are properly marked and kept in good condition. He has served as chairman of that committee from its inception, and the graves of all departed soldiers are now properly marked.

Mr. Doane has been a member of the jail committee for the past seven years, suggested many changes in the management of the place and in the care of prisoners. The prisoners now eat from a large table in the centre of the corridor instead of the shelf on the side of the room and everything is sanitary, while many of the supplies are purchased in this city. He is chairman of the Bonnie Burn Sanitorium committee and through his efforts the site of the institution was selected. He spent much time during the construction of the building. He represents the board on the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, and was appointed by Mayor Percy H. Stewart as a member of the Playground Commission in charge of Parker Field.

Frederick A. Martin, real estate broker and insurance agent, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for tax assessor in North Plainfield, has made a good campaign and his friends predict that he will be a winner at the party primaries. He has a splendid reputation and is familiar with property values in North Plainfield.

What Well Dressed Men Will Wear in the Coming Months

Smart Fashions for Men About Town, Including the Latest Suggestions for Shirts and Ties and Hats

Changes in men's fashions are usually fairly subtle ones, and it takes the masculine mind a long time to realize that trousers are now full, where yesteryear they clung about the manly calf, or that batswing ties and very high collars are alike taboo in the realm of Sir Style, who is Dame Fashion in another sex.

Fashions to women are an ever present topic of interest; to men they mean simply the necessity for another visit to tailor and haberdasher, and are in consequence a bore; but the well dressed man is just as delightful to the eye as the well dressed woman, and the wise youth or husband will remember that even though we sniff at the idea that clothes make the man, they can readily mar him in the eyes of his business associates and the great general public.

As far as fashions for the winter are concerned they are but little changed from the late summer. There is no padding in the modern coat, and it goes in perceptibly at the waist line. Trousers are fairly tight, and as one peevish youth declared, "it makes you look as if you were outgrowing your clothes," but for the well built man it is a vanity satisfying as the slender silhouette for the graceful and slim woman.

Frock coats have been relegated to the ranks of elderly men and undertakers and are seldom seen nowadays, well dressed men wearing cutaway coats and gray trousers on Sundays with their top hats.

The dinner coat is ubiquitous in these days, and while ethically it is correct only to wear it at stag affairs or at home, it makes its appearance very frequently at dinners in the hotels and at the theater, the average man preferring to wear it to full dress.

With the tuxedo this year are worn plain white shirts, turndown collars, black vests and bow ties and gray suede gloves.

The soft plaited silk shirts for evenings are much in vogue this winter, but are only to be worn with full dress for the opera or dances. Sometimes the white tie and white vest are worn, and by the ultra smart men these shirts are combined with the high black satin stock tie, which has recently come into fashion, a touch added to the general effect being the use of a narrow black ribbon, like a woman's sautoir chain, to which is attached the watch or the man's eye glasses.

These high stock ties and the silk shirts are quite suitable for the theater or the opera, but the plain stiff shirt is still in vogue for dinners.

Vests this year are single breasted and cut fairly high, while sack suits and norfolks are both much seen for business wear, quite severely cut, the only leaning towards elaborate cuffs and trimmings being seen on the imported dress suits, which boast braided seams on the trousers and in some instances velvet collars and cuffs on the coat, and jet buttons.

Overcoats of rough worsted with raglan shoulders, but cut in slightly to the figure are being shown for winter wear, while soft hats offer many varieties of shape and bow, some of the bows being at the side, some in the back and the newest in the front, which makes one wonder if next year won't find the bow under the man's chins instead of on the hat!

High tan boots for street wear are in fashion this year for men, with fairly rounded toes, and leather laces, while for evenings patent leather button boots will be worn for theater and opera, and the regular pumps for dancing.

A FEW LITTLE HINTS ABOUT SMART SHIRTS

Perhaps the most exclusive shirts are made of the striped cheviot, but these have the advantage of being close-woven and heavy for winter wear. Cubist monograms in futurist colorings stamp neglige shirt sleeves with masculine approval, and handkerchiefs monogramed to match are the last word for the nose that knows and is up to snuff. A novelty shirt whose surplus tail is thriftily converted into underdrawers is simply panting to attain popularity with the summer man, and comes in madras, linen and mixtures of silk and cotton.

Turnover collars with exaggerated long points have taken masculinity by the throat. It is merely a matter of taste, however, whether the corners be pointed or rounded, but all the fold collars are showing wider openings in preference to the closely meeting the silk shirt of the summer, and have splendid wearing qualities.

These shirts, which cost $6, come in striped materials, while also among the new and popular shirts are the madras ones with silk stripes. The stripes are more or less wide and vivid, and all have soft cuffs. The day of the stiff cuff, except on dress shirts, seemingly has passed.

There is a wide variety of collars to wear with these shirts, ranging from self-striped white collars with deep points to be worn either under or over the vest, to narrow turndown collars scarcely more than a line about the throat, and very high straight turndown ones fitting close and trim under the chin.

In the glove department of the men's shops may now be found heavy dogskin gloves lined with felt and soft gray fur lined gloves for winter, while white silk gloves, heavier than the women's gloves of silk but none the less feminine of appearance, are offered for the man who dances. It is not likely that they will be very popular, however, despite their economical and comfortable properties.

When You Select Your Shirts and Ties

Let us be individual, cry fashion experts anent men and women both, but it's a brave man who attempts it except in the matter of vest and shirts and ties. Ties come last, but are by no means least in that list, and the cubist and futurist craze seems to have tiedom this autumn.

If every color has in truth its twin note of music, most of the ties imported from abroad have tango and turkey trot music beaten a mile, and in fact are a regular medley of every known bit of ragtime.

It is probable, however, that these very loud ties will be affected more by the rah rah boys than by the average male, who prefers to be made conspicuous by his success rather than by his clothes.

The four-in-hands for the winter are narrow and soft, so that they tie in a very small knot that goes right in under the collar of the shirt. Knitted silk ties are less smart than the grosgrain silks in rich plain colors, while among the novelties of the year are the ribbed silk ties in two colors to match the new ribbed silk socks in the same shades.

When a maiden ties her bonnet
Underneath her chin,
They say she's apt to tangle
A young man's heart within;
But when a youth goes woolng
To catch a maiden's eye,
He must be very careful
To wear the latest tie.

the tie are no longer in vogue, plain white ones of silk and linen being carried by the better class of men, with the initial in the corner in colors.

And speaking of colors brings to mind the shirts of the winter. The newest of these are of heavy silk with a satin finish, far heavier than

NEWEST TIES

Bulgarian and futurist scarfs fought hard for first place upon manly bosoms this season, but met only with defeat. Beau Brummels of 1913 refused to tie up with them. Rather wide bow ties and narrow four-in-hands in single tones or stripes and small designs hold equal places in the cravat case. It is a tie which is the

LOUNGE SUITS FOR WELL DRESSED MEN

The lounge suit of the moment is of dark blue serge when the coat is double-breasted; of worsted or homespun for the single-breasted cut. These latter mixed effects are good in shades of gray or brown, and even a greenish mixture is verdant with hope of popularity. The ultra Norfolk jacket is a favorite in the black and white check of the perennial shepherd plaid, whose vogue seems never checked. With all the coats curved in as to waist, au naturel as to shoulders, with sleeves tight and trousers ditto, the truth of the saying that clothes make the man is all too plainly revealed.

For formal afternoon wear the evening coat is paradoxically correct. It takes precedence over the erstwhile frock coat and is worn with gray striped trousers, a fancy waistcoat and a white or pale-tinted shirt. Either a wing or fold collar is permissible, and you may take your choic of an Ascot, four-in-hand or bow tie to turn you into a fine figure of a fellow

HURLED INTO RIVER BY AUTO

Theresa Kennedy of New York Seriously Hurt Near Brewster.

Carmel, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Miss Theresa Kennedy was seriously injured when a touring car, owned by Mrs. John H. Burton of New York, skidded into the stone wall of a bridge over the Croton river, about a mile east of Brewster.

The occupants were driving from the Berkshires to New York city and had just descended a steep grade when the car plunged to the roadside.

Miss Kennedy was thrown from the car over the bridge wall and down a twenty foot embankment into the river. The quick assistance of the chauffeur saved her from drowning. Her condition is critical.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 9.

A LITTLE WANT AD. in this newspaper will help you to buy, or it will help you to sell.

It will get board for you. Or it will get boarders for you.

It will find a room for you in the section of town that most appeals to you. Or it will rent that spare room to somebody who is looking for just that sort of accommodation.

It will find a position for you. Or it will find the kind of employe you need but don't know just where to put your finger on.

It will sell pretty nearly anything you want to sell. Or it will help you to buy to advantage and in the quickest time the thing you've been wanting to buy if you could only locate it.

It will help launch that business opportunity of yours. Or it will guide to a timely and profitable business opportunity that some other advertiser is holding out to you.

It will find the article you've lost. Or it will put you in touch with the loser of the article you've found.

It will—but what's the use? The scope of WANT AD. advertising can't be told in this little space. There is no proposition too small and no proposition too large for a WANT AD. to handle.

Don't work so hard—don't expend so much vital energy—don't worry—don't bustle around—LET A WANT AD. GET YOU WHAT YOU WANT.

STAINED CLOTHES POINT TO MURDER

Believe Woman Was Slain With Knife Found.

SLAYER REMOVED BODY.

Grewsome Discovery In Deserted Farm Building at Port Monmouth Indicates Tragedy—Victim Cut After Being Poisoned, Body Stripped and Taken Away, Police Theory.

Port Monmouth, N. J., Sept. 22.—A long knife, the blade of which is stained, a bottle labeled "poison," half filled, a complete set of modish clothing of a woman, all found in a deserted asparagus house on a farm here, point to the murder of the woman who once wore the clothing.

The bundle of stained garments had been hidden behind a lot of barrels on the premises of Henry Coe, and half a mile from the house where he lives. Mr. Coe and an employee, Walter Cogginton, made the discovery. They at once notified the authorities, and J. F. Applegate, Jr., the county prosecutor at Red Bank, assigned detectives to the case.

It is their theory that the woman was slain with the knife, the body stripped and removed to prevent the victim being identified.

The asparagus house is used only in the spring for the storing, packing and shipping, and it had been deserted for several months. Mr. Coe, however, had ocasion to visit the place and saw at once that there had been intruders. On the second floor he and his companion came upon the bundle of clothing hidden behind the barrels, which had been piled up in one corner. Within the bundle was the poison bottle. The stained knife was concealed behind a rafter. On the floor was also a cane.

TWO SCALDED ENGINEERS DIE

Injured In Accident on Liner Berlin Off Sandy Hook.

Hoboken, N. J., Sept. 22.—Peter Wolff and John Kleinschmidt, the third and fourth engineers on board the North German Lloyd steamship Berlin, who were fatally scalded by the bursting of one of th feed pipes to the pump while the yessel was off Sandy Hook, outward bound on Saturday afternoon, died from their injuries at the S. K. Smith infirmary, New Brighton, Staten Island.

The bodies have been removed to the Volk undertaking establishment here by direction of the North German Lloyd Steamship company. Coroner William H. Jackson of Richmond county will hold an inquest.

HOLD UP CAR CONDUCTOR.

Robber Pulls Down Trolley Pole, Then Gets $25 and Escapes.

Phillipsburg, N. J., Sept. 22.—While a car on the North Main street division of the Easton Transit company was approaching Union square, in the heart of the town, a man pulled down the trolley pole. Arling Gest, the conductor, stepped from the car to adjust the wheel, and as he did so the man, who was masked, pointed a revolver in his face. "Don't make a noise; hand over your money," he ordered.

Gest gave him about $25 of the company's money. The man then disappeared. Gest shouted to the passengers, but their chase in the direction of the robber proved futile.

DEBTORS PAYING UP.

Roseville Company's Director Promises to Strengthen Security For Loan.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 22.—State Banking Commissioner George M. La Monte has received the promise from one of the directors of the Roseville Trust company who was a heavy borrower from the institution to turn over to the bank additional securities for the money the director obtained from the bank.

Negotiations with the same end in view are under way with other debtors of the bank. Since Mr. Vredenburg took charge of the wrecked bank debts amounting to $90,000 have been paid.

BOGUS DOCTOR GETS $21.

Woman's Charges Causes Arrest of Supposed Camden Man.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 22.—Charges of Mrs. Marie Hess of 1620 Atlantic avenue that Sheble B. Wilson, who gave his address as 12 North Thirty-fourth street, Camden, represented himself to be a physician caused Wilson to be held in $200 bail by Justice Sonthelmer.

Mrs. Hess testified she gave Wilson $21, all the money she possessed. Wilson explained that he was sadly in need of funds and used the money to buy a suit of clothes.

Accused of Shooting at His Brother.

Bordentown, N. J., Sept. 22.—Ellis Reed of Jacobstown was committed to jail accused of attempting to kill his brother John at Wallace's Mills, a few miles from here, by discharging two shots at him with a gun during a quarrel. John resided with his mother at Chesterfield. He was committed by Justice Braislin of Crosswicks.

To the DEMOCRATIC VOTERS OF UNION COUNTY

On PRIMARY DAY you will be called upon to decide a very important question.

Who is the man of Union County most worthy to be selected as a member of the Democratic State Committee?

You will have two candidates:

GEN. DENNIS F. COLLINS

AND

JAMES P. KELLY

BOTH OF ELIZABETH.

You are probably aware of the fact that this office carries with it the leadership of the party in Union County, therefore would it not be wise to give this matter your careful consideration?

Here are the records of the two candidates:

General Collins, the present State Committeeman, is the president of a BREWERY in the city of ELIZABETH.

For a long time he has been elected as a representatite of his party in the City Council in Elizabeth. He was publicly accused of DEFEATING John F. Kenah and James C. Connelly, who were the choice of their party for City Clerk and City Attorney, respectively, and in so doing he aligne dhimself with the REPUBLICANSi n the City Council.

He accomplished the defeat of Captain John J. O'Leary for Chief of Police, turned him down in favor of a Republican no better qualfied.

He was EXPELLED from the Union County Democratic Committee in 1902.

The following is a quotation from the editorial columns of the Newark News, an independent newspaper of untarnished reputation:

"Would the Democratic voters of the State, if they had the direct voice, put a brewer in a place of such great political power? Wouldn't they build splendidly to attract the lightning of criticism if they should? They would be supplying their opponents with the deadliest ammunition. Not much strategy about that."

Continuing, the Newark News says:

"By effacing himself as a candidate for the State chairmanship General Collins will greatly aid his party. If he is not capable of making the sacrifice voluntarily, it should be imposed upon him."

Now a word for JAMES P. KELLY.

Mr. Kelly is a practicing lawyer in the city of Elizabeth, a MASTER in ORGANIZATION, a LEADER OF MEN. Many Democrats knowing of his SUPERIOR QUALIFICATIONS, his loyalty to his party and UNBLEMISHED PERSONAL CHARACTER, induced him to enter this contest against his own wishes.

Mr. Kelly was a candidate for Surrogate last year and was defeated by less than sixty votes in Union County. His defeat is alleged to have been due to the TREACHERY of certain Democrats in Elizabeth, because he was the people's choice, having won out in the Primary, thereby defeating the CANDIDATE of the self-appointed LEADER.

Mr. Kelly is a WARM SUPPORTER of PRESIDENT WILSON and his POLICIES, which are the policies of our party. Prior to and during the campaign, which resulted in the election of Governor Wilson, he worked hard, and to him as much as to any one man in Elizabeth is due the CREDIT for the big vote polled in that city.

A vote for JAMES P. KELLY will PUT AN END TO BOSS RULE—the stigma of BREWERY DOMINATION, and will lift the Democracy of Union County to the Woodrow Wilson plane.

For member of Democratic State Committee for Union County vote for

James P. Kelly

Homekeeping Hearts are Happiest

THERE are some very radical changes in the new fall furniture that easily distinguishes it from that of past seasons.

In the first place, conspicuous by its absence is the ungainly, unlovely and unattractive "mission" furniture that always looked as though it had been cut out with a hatchet, and which was always too big and too uncomfortable.

A certain style of mission furniture is to be used, but it is so different from the other that it really deserves a new name. This new style is smaller in general build. The arms of the chairs are broad, but only moderately so. Most of the backs of the chairs are made slat fashion, which does away with the too solid look, and all the seats are fitted in leather.

Leather, by the way, is used extensively, so much so, that practically all library and living room furniture shows no wood frame at all. Real leather is used, too. It has come down in price considerably since the dealers here have taken to buying sheep and goat skins from Australia and having them tanned in this country. What is termed Spanish leather, and which is used extensivelly, is really the skin of wild goats found in various parts of South America. It is far superior in wearing qualities to that of the domestic goat and is used by preference on all the best furniture.

A great deal of real fumed leather will also be used this year, as the soft and rich browns tone in well with library and living room color schemes. This is the genuine ammonia fumed, which gives excellent service.

Practically no wood at all is used in drawing room sets unless such rooms are furnished in regular "period" styles. The furniture is all padded and covered with handsome damasks or other rich materials. They furnish better even than the handsomest wood sets, and are far more comfortable.

A curious, or rather practical note noticed in all this year's furniture is that all covering is put on without tufts. The dealers say this is because women have complained so of the way in which dust gets into and around the tufts. The innovation is a good one, for the materials wear better and are far more sanitary.

This is noticed even in the leather goods, for where the backs may show tufts the seats are always perfectly plain.

Of course "period" furniture is always in style. There seems to be a reversion to the rather heavy, but good looking, Jacobean style, especially for dining room wear. It makes a very handsome room although the carving is rather difficult to keep clean.

Brass bedsteads seem to have lost much of their popularity, although they will always have a certain large following of people who consult their own wishes rather than those of the dealers. Four posters are taking their places, and there is no avoiding the fact that they are usually much more attractive from an artistic point of view.

One dealer ascribed the change to the growing fashion of living in the suburbs. He said that suburban houses are usually larger than the average city houses, and that, therefore, people did not have to consider the size of the furniture they use. Many of the suburban houses, too, are furnished in colonial style, and this, of course, calls for a four-poster bed.

Mahogany continues in favor, although a great many people prefer bird's eye maple, and many handsome bedroom sets are made of this.

Many beautiful sets, too, are made of the expensive circassian walnut, but the prices for these are almost prohibitive.

While much of the French period furniture of the times of the three Louis will be used for state rooms, there seems to be a tendency to use darker woods and darker coverings, soft velours instead of light damasks and rather heavier frames. One dealer said that there was more gold furniture to be found in the playhouses of Philadelphia than there was in all, the handsomest homes of the city. That is a cheerful thing to know, for the so-called gold furniture was always suggestive of the stage anyhow, and it never did seem strong enough for everyday use.

New Wall Papers Seen This Autumn

Colors, except in dark rooms, are to be subdued.

Oatmeal papers are to be used extensively in halls and morning rooms.

There are beautiful new burlaps for library use which imitate old leather, in mellow shades of tan and brown.

One magnificent dining room paper shows clusters of wisteria on a light ground shot with gold.

All dining room papers, by the way, still continue to show patterns only as far as the plate rail. The space above is usually ivory or white or a very pale tint, to match the paper below.

For the drawing room which boasts Louis quinze furniture there are lovely old damask papers with Watteau figures done in panels.

Hints of the Latest Furniture Coverings

This is the year for upholstered furniture.

The newest thing is to have the covers "fit" without tufts.

Handsome old brocades are used. The important point is to have the colors subdued so that no one shade is suggested.

Unless the wood is extremely handsome no woodwork is allowed to show.

Velour in plain patterns only is in high favor. Certain shades of dark green are most popular for they blend well with general decoration schemes.

It is a hard and fast rule that the same material and the same colors shall be used on all the furniture in one room. The old style of having contrasting colors is completely "out."

Save the Ashes.

To be sure, we no longer save the ashes from our fires for the purpose of strewing our heads with them when we are penitent. Sackcloth and ashes have gone out of style, except in a figurative sense. But there are still many uses to which ashes can be put, and now that the day of relit fires is at hand, it behooves the economical housewife to learn of these uses.

Save ashes carefully, both from coal and wood fires, as you would save any other useful by-product of your housekeeping. When they are cool, sift them and then put them in dust-proof receptacles—wooden boxes covered with newspaper, burlap or wooden covers. Keep coal and wood ashes separate and labeled, where they will be always at your service.

Wood Ashes.

Wood ashes are chiefly useful as a fertilizer of the ground. They contain a big percentage of potash in the especially desirable form of potassium carbonate.

The autumn is the best time for applying wood ashes to the grass—the late autumn, after the grass has stopped growing for the season. So cherish the ashes from your early-autumn evening fires for this purpose.

Sprinkle the ashes as thickly as your supply will let you. Do it, if possible, just before a rain, or else water the ashes down gently so that they will not blow away.

Next spring when you make your garden mix in a generous proportion of wood ashes with the soil and watch your flowers bloom and your vegetables ripen to pay you for saving the ashes throughout the winter. Asters are especially benefitted by wood ash.

Wood ash has other uses. For one thing, it can be used as a scouring agent. Applied to spotted steel knives by means of a wet cork, it cleans and brightens them. Mixed with kerosene it removes rust stains from marble.

Coal Ashes.

Coal ashes are useful. The coarser ashes make good walks—in reality the cinders, from which the fine ashes and the big clinkers are removed. The cinders should be wet when they are put into place, so that they will pack down evenly and substantially.

If you would regulate the heat of your oven so that no more food "burned on the bottom" will cry out mutely that you are a careless cook, strew some coal ashes on a metal sheet and put it in the bottom of your oven.

Coal ashes have a use in the garden, too. They lighten the soil admirably. And every spring and every fall sift them gently over your delphiniums or larkspurs to kill the white grub that sometimes so disastrously attacks this lovely old-fashioned flower.

Some Cookery Suggestions

DELICIOUS RHUBARB DISHES.

MANY persons who do not care for rhubarb alone find it palatable when served with some other fruit. The flavor of one fruit seems to neutralize the other, and the result of combining is one that differs entirely from either.

Novel Pies.

Rhubarb and Apple Pie.—Cover a pie plate with puff paste and fill with equal parts of chopped rhubarb and apple, add plenty of sugar, some bits of butter, sprinkle with a little flour, cover with a top crust and bake.

Rhubarb and Raisin Pie.—Take one pound of diced rhubarb, one third cupful of raisins, one cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one tablespoonful of butter, one-fourth teaspoonful each of nutmeg and salt. Line a pie dish with pastry. Cover the bottom with a mixture of two tablespoonfuls of sugar to one of flour. Add the cupful of sugar to the rhubarb and stir until each piece is well sugared. Next place a layer of rhubarb in the pan, sprinkle over it the raisins and cover with the rhubarb that is left. Dust the top with the remaining flour, the nutmeg and salt and dot with the butter. Add the upper crust, well gashed to allow the escape of steam, and bake in a moderately hot oven.

Tempting Combinations.

Rhubarb Ginger.—Take equal parts of rhubarb and sugar and to each pound of rhubarb add one ounce of whole ginger. Cut the rhubarb into small pieces, put into an earthen dish and cover with sugar. Allow it to stand two days, stir it round and pour the sirup into a saucepan and boil half an hour. Then add the rhubarb and ginger and boil an hour. Stir it as little as possible.

Rhubarb and Lemon Marmalade.—Cut four pounds of rhubarb into small pieces, leaving skin on. Slice five lemons thin, removing all seeds. Put the sliced lemon and rhubarb in a jar. Add one pint of water and let stand overnight. Then boil for one hour. Take off, put in six pounds of sugar, let stand a few hours off the stove to blend and then boil until it will jell.

Stewed Rhubarb and Figs.—Take figs and rhubarb, a third of the former to two-thirds of the latter. Soak the figs in hot water long enough to plump them. Put into a double boiler, with the rhubarb washed and cut into inch pieces, without peeling; add sugar to make as sweet as liked and steam until tender without adding any water.

Two Simple and Effective Towels.

In this age of rush, people are always trying to find the easiest and quickest means to accomplish an end. This is especially true with the busy housewife and business girl, in regard to embroidery. The cry is, "Give us something which will work up quickly and yet be effective." Both qualities are found in these two designs, for what is easier than cross-stitch and thousand-flower stitch?

The cross-stitch design is suitable for use on towels, bags and bureau scarfs and a three-inch initial or two-inch monogram may be placed in the wreath which is 6½ by 7½ inches. Transfers for stamping two wreaths and scallops for both ends of two 22-inch towels are included in the pattern.

The thousand-flower design is appropriate for use on towels, bureau scarfs and table runners as well as waists, dresses and fancy articles. This border is 2⅜ inches wide and three yards are contained in the pattern.

These designs may be embroidered in one or more colors in heavy rope silk or mercerized cotton.

Patterns numbers 14393 and 14446 will be supplied to readers for ten cents each.

PROPER LIGHTING INCREASES OUTPUT

As the days grow shorter more use must be made of artificial light in the workshops and factories.

And light is an essential in the process of turning raw materials into manufactured products.

Practical tests have demonstrated that poor or inadequate lighting facilities have a tendency to "slow up" a working force and "slowing up" means a decrease in efficiency.

It has also been demonstrated that poor lighting has a tendency to increase the percentage of flaws and defects in manufactured goods so that the quality of the goods suffers and loss of quality means loss of revenue.

To get proper lighting in a factory does not necessarily mean the flooding of the building with light, and a consequent increase in costs. It means light where light is needed. It means illumination properly directed.

The way to light a workshop is to have the light rays fall upon the machine tools and the work benches so that they will illumine the work in hand and not be lost against the walls or ceilings or shine too brightly in the worker's eyes. These results can often be accomplished concurrently with a decrease in cost.

There were exciting scenes when young Francis Ouimet laid his ball on the home green at the Country club of Brookline and beat two of the greatest professional exponents of golf the world has ever known. It was not necessary to wait until he had putted even once, for nothing he could do short of falling with a stroke of apoplexy could alter the aspect of that match at that particular period.

An equinoctial gale swept Parker Field Saturday afternoon and the minions of Jack Torpey and the baseball club representing the Somerset County seat in the Central New Jersey League swayed and dipped their colors before the steely arm of Harry Jennings, a Rutgers College product, and were struck to earth by a display of thunder and lightning in which a quartet of New England Leaguers were the main factors. These leaguers were sporting Plainfield livery for the express purpose of trimming the Somerville nine in the deciding game for the Central League title and were imported as a means of wresting the second Central flag from Torpey's loyal supporters.

The trick was turned to the satisfaction and jubilation of a gallery of 1,400 rain drenched fans who gamely stuck to the open field and bleachers through nine long and at times, dismal frames of the National Pastime. Many times it looked as though Umpire Billy O'Rourke would have to exercise his judiciary powers and terminate the battle, but in each instance the burly decision slinger appeared to quake under such a responsibility and refused to hand out anything that would give a thousand or more rabid fans an opportunity to get a riot out of their systems.

Plainfield beat Somerville and annexed the pennant by engaging in a large and luscious business of hits and runs, but never was the issue decided until the final out was registered in the damp and gloomy ninth session. Confining their attention exclusively to testing the mettle of a big certified accountant, sporting the renowned handle of one Jimmy Clinton who held the real Pets to two scratchy hits a week previous to the big show, the Plainfielders filed spasmodic attachments of run that were as disastrous to the opposition as they were sudden to the players and spectators.

Both teams swung their cudgels with telling and air-ripping effect and seven times was the pellet propelled on a dribble to the outfield for an extra base or two. Runs leaked over the pan in ones and twos almost in alternating regularity, but the visitors weakened perceptibily after taking a long breath in the stretch stanza and the dampness lurking in the atmosphere seemed to take all the stiffness out of the Pets' opposing forces. There was one individual garbed in Somerset County regalia who fought a fight to the finish and led his foes to the last breath and that was none other than the veteran Jack Torpey. Bearing the brunt of the attack and spurring on the offense with his sturdy cross pieces he continued to handle a yawning mitt for all of Clinton's speedy slants until the curtain went down on another era of semi-professional pastiming. Torpey relinquished the decision firmly convinced that his teammates had gone to the bottom fighting and exerting almost superhuman powers in an attempt to pummell a bunch of Class B. leaguers, while the Central organization would consider itself lucky if recognized by baseball authorities as a Class D company.

Clinton met disaster in undersigning passes to Albin Carlstrom and allowing "Flick" Luyster to tear the cover off the spheriod on three different occasions, each time sending a runner or two across the gutta percha ahead of him. Jenning's vigilance earned him a victory and although at many times in danger and twice buried in seemingly insurmountable trenches, he came through with colors flying, exhibiting a degree of coolness and self-possession that is seldom seen on semi-pro diamonds.

Exceptionally conspicuous in wielding the willow were Conti and Luyster and these two players formed the bulwark of their respective teams' attack. The game hung in the balance every time one of these wagon tongue splitters strode to the rubber and the ultimate issue early resolved itself into a question of which one of these wallopers would get the last lick out of the horsehide. "Flick" Luyster got the final opportunity but the best he could do was to swing madly three times and retire, thus putting a rather distressing climax on his wonderfully spectacular afternoon's playing.

Sportsmen who witnessed Somerville's fight for life feels constrained to take cognizance of the fact that the visitors were battling against the cream of the New England League talent, five of the players having appeared here in no other game this season.

Query—My father died fifty-two years ago leaving no heirs but me. He left a tract of land which has remained recorded in his name ever since (it has not been sold for taxes). How could I have this tract recorded in my name? T. N. B.

Answer—No deed could be given that would make your title any better than it is. The law gives the property to you. Should you have occasion to sell it, the fact that you are the sole heir of your father can be made to appear by affidavit of yourself and others having that information.

Query—Here is a symbol in chemistry: K 2 0. I should like to know the meaning of 0; also the meaning of the small 2. H. S.

Answer—O stands for Oxygen in chemistry and K for Potassium. The small 2 refers to the formula of the compound, showing that there are 2 of K combined with 1 of O to form a new compound.

Query—Kindly tell me whether the candidate for a city office, to be nominated at the primary election next Tuesday and voted for at the general election November 4, has to file the amount he spends for his election with any city official and the county clerk? My understanding is that the local officers in cities have to file one account with the city clerk where the petition is filed both for the primary and general election. Is this correct? T. P. L.

Answer—He must file an account of his expenses with the city clerk after each election, primary and general, not with the county clerk.

The saddest words of tongue or pen
Are these: "Those Pets have won again."

Albin Carlstrom's bobble in the first inning was the cause for the initial burst of enthusiasm. So high have his powers been heralded locally that Plainfielders didn't think he was capable of making an error. He's a ball player and we have yet to find one who is not human. To ere is human.

If it took the New England League to defeat Somerville, what will it take to break even with Rochester? Answers now in order.

One rabid fan came to the office shortly before the game time and wanted to wager his worldly belongings that Jack Torpey would have a whole new lineup. He's still got his chattels, nobody had the heart to take him up.

It was a good afternoon for a spitball artist but there was none using the saliva pill except the ump.

FORMER OFFICIAL EXPRESSES VIEWS

Ex-vice President of the Plainfield Club Endorses Our Stand.

Sporting Editor:

Dear Sir:—Reading Mr. Beekman's article in Saturday's issue of your paper which endorses the action you take in "knocking" the padding system, I wish to co-operate with the writer of this article in discouraging this deplorable condition which certainly exist here and I am glad to find that at least one sport writer has the courage to express the true sentiments of a true sportsman and not be swayed by what a manager or director of the home club has to say. Plainfield was not represented in the playoff Saturday by a legitimate team but had players from the New England League who have no interest in "boosting Plainfield" or its baseball interests other than the money they get out of it for the one game.

Regular members of the team, who have played and stuck to the club all season, warmed the bench Saturday so that these strangers could wrest the pennant from the Somerville team.

Another retrograding condition exists in local baseball and that is the signing of opposing clubs to play Plainfield under a name that has been made popular by the article of baseball it represents, while the players who come to Plainfield are little more than novices having no affiliation with the original team. The name and not the players are presented to the fans and when they go to the game they find an aggregation of bush-wackers lined up to play the locals. This is what has dwindled the attendance figures during the past three years and unless present conditions are remedied in time the Plainfield club will be utterly unsupported.

JAMES B. MARTIN,
Ex-vice-president of Plainfield Baseball Club.

BAPTISTS DEFEAT RIVAL LEAGUERS

Johnny Dixon Blows up in the First Iinning of Inter League Game.

EARLY LEAD WINS GAME

Star of the City Organization Later Returns to Box and Baffles Those Who Maltreated His Offerings—3 Hits for Stine and Barnes.

Seldom is a city treated to a double dose of championship baseball in one afternoon, but such was the case here Saturday afternoon, when the Somerville and Plainfield and First Baptist and Sauter teams played for two distinctive titles. The church boys and manufacturers, representing the Sunday-school and City Leagues, respectively, got together on the West End avenue field to decide the city minor title and it fell to the lot of the Sunday-school-goers to carry off the title by a count of 8 to 4. Seven runs in the first inning, gained at the expense of Johnny Dixon, the star of the league, while they were knocking him out of the box, sewed up the contest for the Baptists and although they got but one counter across the gutta percha after that thrilling first stanza, the early lead was enough to pull them through on top.

Dixon returned to the hillock later in the contest and showed his mettle by standing the batters, who had previously treated him to a bombardment, on their heads. Carlton Smith twirled an excellent game for the winners, and although his delivery was dented to the extent of nine bingles, the safeties were all well scattered and at no time was he in grave danger.

FIRST GAME OF SEASON 2-2 TIE

Plainfield Association Football Team Play Initial Contest With Alley Boys.

LOCALS ARE SPEEDY

Play Newarkers to a Standstill By Rally In Last Half After Being Outplayed at the Outset.

Rallying in the face of defeat in the final half of a soccer game Saturday afternoon on the Clinton avenue grounds, the Plainfield association football team played the Alley Boys, of Newark, to a tie, the contest ending in a 2-2 score. Through a drizzling rain the "kickers" booted the sphere before a crowd of several hundred spectators. It was the local's first game of the season and the result was far from disappointing. In fact, it showed that Plainfield will be represented this season by a soccer eleven stronger than in the past. The visitors had practically the same players who brought them the championship last year of the Intercity Amateur Soccer League.

The Alley Boys started with a rush when Referee James Henderson, of this city, started the hostilities with the blow of the whistle. An exchange of long kicks and the Newarkers advance guard slowly but surely worked the ball toward the home team's goal. As the uprights were neared Costella coming from behind with a speedy run sent the ball past McNiece with a well directed poke of his toe. The Alley Boys had made the first score in less than three minutes of play. When the ball was put in play again, the locals were again forced to take to the defensive. Showing a sterling brand of team work the Newarkers dribbled the sphere toward the Plainfield uprights and Andrews sent the ball soaring between the posts for the second tally. The champions were playing great ball and looked like sure winners when the half ended with the score 2 to 0 in their favor.

With a determination exhibited by each player, the Plainfielders opened the second half with a snappy style of play that seemed to carry the Alley Boys off their feet. Both elevens fought desperately and several misses by each team made the play spectacular. McNiece stopped a kick that was labeled direct for a goal and with a quick kick sent the ball aeroplaning toward the centre of the field. Spalding received the sphere and dribbling it in the direction of the Newarkers' territory sent the sphere between the posts for Plainfield's initial tally. This seemed to spur the locals on to greater effort as the game progressed and repeatedly they sent the sphere toward their opponents goal only to have the ball strike an upright or having it stopped by Tinkle. Johnston, however, finally succeeded in scoring with a well directed kick. The score remained a tie until the ending of the final session.

The lineup:

Plainfield—McNiece, goal; Craig and Johnston, backs; J. Gardner, Kenny, Crawford, half-backs; Spaulding and Carberry, right wings; Dibble, centre; T. Gardner and Braidwood, left wings.

Alley Boys—Tinkle, goal; Flynn and Conger, backs; Short, Costella, O'Rourke, half backs; Costella and Boyle, right wings; Andrews, centre; Rush and Walsh, left wings.

DR. H. K. CARROLL WINS FALL CHAMPIONSHIP

Dr. H. K. Carroll by defeating H. H. Woodland 2 and 1 in the finals for the fall championship at the Park Golf Club, Saturday, will now have to play Peter C. Sweeney, winner of the Spring championship, for the championship of the club. This match will be played on Saturday, September 27, and should be closely contested, as both players are in fine form. Dr. Carroll and Mr. Woodland were evenly matched on Saturday, the former having a slight advantage.

These scores were returned for the President's cup:

Fred Hillman 199, 37—82; Dr. H. K. Carroll 92, 5—87; H. H. Woodland 103, 13—90; J. L. Watson 116, 20—96.

The tennis matches screduled for Saturday were postponed for one week on account of the weather.

LOCAL ATHLETE WINS NEWARK WATER TITLE

Schooley's Swimming and Clever Canoe Manipulation Bring Victory.

Scoring the only first place for his club in the canoe regatta held Saturday at Branch Brook Park, Newark, for the championship of that city, William H. Schooley, of this city, representing the Tuscarora Canoe Club, was returned a winner in the hurry-scurry race, the last event on the program. The hurry-scurry consists of a one hundred yard swim and a paddle of the same distance. The local entrant was opposed by Herbert Rahliffs, a Newark Y. M. C. A. swimmer, who competed for the Wyona Club, and Farnhem Letsen, a U. S. Volunteer Life Saver, representing the Seneca Canoe Club.

At the crack of the gun, the three swimmers left the dock of the Tuscarora clubhouse, swimming toward their respective canoes anchored 100 yards away. Schooley, inch by inch, drew away from his competitors and reached his frail craft about two yards in advance of the other swimmers. After climbing into his canoe, which had been blown completely around by the wind, Schooley had to turn his boat before starting for the finishing line. By this time both Hohliffs and Letsen has clambered in their canoes, hoisted up their anchors and were a half-boat length ahead of the local lad. They were exhausted by the swim, however, and Schooley, paddling strong, passed them in the first fifty yards and won the race by two boat lengths. Rohliffs, who finished second, was carried from his craft in an exhausted condition. The time of the swim was 1:02.

The canoeing championship in the other events was won by the Wyona Club, with the Tuscaroras second and Seneca third.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

The management of the Plainfield theatre announce three special photo-plays to be presented here this week and next. "At the Risk of Her Life," on Wednesday, September 25; "The Specter of the Sea," with Henry Porten in the principal part, on Thursday, September 26, and Barney Gilmore in "Kelly From the Emerald Isle," on Wednesday, October 1. These photo-plays are all new ones. "At the Risk of Her Life" tells the story of a struggling young engineer in the employ of a ship-building corporation, who invents a divice that means the saving of millions of dollars. While demonstrating his device, he is severely injured by the bursting of a steam pipe. A rival concern tries to get the device through an unscrupulous individual, but is detected by the engineer's sweatheart. He is cornered, escapes and is caught in a daring manner by the young woman, who employs a horse and automobile in her efforts. "The Specter of the Sea" is a drama in two acts, adapted from an ancient East Frisian legend, "The Gonger," which tells in a thrilling way of the rescue of an artist on the barren coast of Sweden by a young fisherman, who dives into the sea. Then follows a story of love and adventure which touches the strings of the human heart. Barney Gilmore, who recently left the legitimate, is doing wonderful work in photo-plays and in "Kelly from the Emerald Isle," three reels, he gives as pretty a bit of acting as one would care to see. There are many quaint characters and scenes, all of which combine to make a fine picture.

Grace George, who comes to the Plainfield Theatre, Wednesday night, in J. M. Barrie's newest playlet, "Half An Hour," will shortly afterwards appear at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, in the same bill, which here as well as in New York, will be preceded by Stanley Houghton's three act comedy, "The Younger Generation."

LIFE PRISONER PARDON.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 22.—One of the most important and interesting cases which is to come up for consideration at the quarterly meeting of the State Board of Pardons opened here today, is the petition for pardon of Fred Wilson, Jr., now serving a life sentence for the murder of William E. Bower at Bethlehem, Ind., several years ago. Bower was stabbed and Fred Wilson, Jr., and his father, Fred Wilson, Sr., were charged with having committed the murder. They were brought to Jeffersonville, Ind., where they were kept in jail for a long time. The case was transferred to Madison and father and son were sentenced to life imprisonment. So save his son, the older Wilson made an affidavit that he alone was guilty of the crime, but his statement met with no credence. It is understood that the petition of young Wilson will be fought by a number of Clark county relatives and friends of Bower and the success of the petition is considered extremely doubtful.

COVETOUSNESS PASTOR'S THEME

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire Condemns Immodest Dress, and Other Things.

HITS MODERN SOCIETY

Daily Press Editorial Commended by Preacher—"Love Only Thing in the World Not Controlled by a Trust"—Idolatry of the Day.

"The Great Sin of the Present Age," which he declared to be covetousness was the subject of a soul-stirring sermon by Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire at the Park Avenue Baptist church, las night. The edifice was thronged to the doors.

"By this sin Angels fell, and our parents brought sin into the world," said Mr. Maguire. "Thousands have gone down because of it, and it is ruining millions of lives today. It is blighting the lives of our young men and women, leading to forgetfulness of God, our fellowman, sin and eternity, laxiness and usefulness and disappointment. The love of gold will keep many of us out of Heaven.

"Covetousness has made two laws, one for the rich, another for the poor. A poor man steals a loaf of bread and is put behind the bars for six months at hard labor. A rich man steals $100,000 and he is sent to the United States Senate. In the United States there are 3,000,000 men out of employment. God holds you responsible for every dollar you have to make the most of it for him; you are merely stewards.

"There are 164 different Protestant sects in this country, beating the famous '57 varieties.' Covetousness makes us liberal with the devil and stingy with God. It is keeping the poor out of the churches. It was the sin in Eden, sin of Canaan and the sin of the church. It is avarice, greed, rapacity. It is the sin of the age. Modern society is being destroyed by it. It is blasting and blighting manhood and womanhood. The primary cause of covetousness is discontent. Women are not satisfied to dress as modest women should. They ape man. Women want the latest Paris models which are immodest. Men's clothes are now made to match their hair, black hair wear black clothes, brown hair wear brown clothes, gray hair wear gray clothes, red hair wear red clothes and God pity the bald-headed man.

"I want to commend the recent editorial in The Daily Press commenting on the strong discourse of Rev. W. B. Jennings, regarding the present day immodest dress of women.

"People are tired of listening about the glories of heaven and people singing 'I want to be an angel.' There is not an old man or woman here who wants to be an angel. They want to be strong Christian men, manly men and they want to do all they can against the injustice to labor, childhood, motherhood and the abolition of the drink traffic, the White Slave traffic. I want a crown, but I am going to earn it and I want to love and help my fellow-man. A hobo steals a ride and he is called a tramp and sent to jail, a banker steals a million and people call him a master of finance and they send him to the State Senate. Love is the only good thing in this country not controlled by a trust. Covenousness which is idolatry will keep man from an inheritance in the Kingdom of Christ and God."

GOV. SULZER DECIDES TO BE WITNESS

To Force Murphy on Stand.

HEARING IS ON TODAY

Accused Official Reiterates He'll Not Resign.

LAWYERS LINED UP FOR FRAY

Louis Marshall to Review Argument, John B. Stanchfield May Reply For Prosecution.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Governor Sulzer will be a witness in his own behalf before the high court of impeachment, which is to resume its sessions this afternoon. This information came from Governor Sulzer's chief counsel, D-Cady Herrick, just before the latter and his associates went into conference with the governor at the executive mansion. Replying to a question relating to the probability of Governor Sulzer appearing in court after the preliminary objections are disposed of, Mr. Herrick said:

"If Governor Sulzer appears in court it will only be as a witness for the defense."

Further than this Herrick would make no comment. The question of Mrs. Sulzer's appearance as a witness, it was learned, has not been decided as yet by the counsel.

Mr. Sulzer reiterated his declaration that he has no intention of resigning the office of governor. Through his lawyers he sent to his followers a plea for them to retain their faith in him, giving assurance that he would decisively rout the enemy at the proper time.

The governor continues to deny himself to interviewers and none but his lawyers were permitted to pass the portals of the "people's house."

May Call Murphy as Witness.

Close friends of Mr. Sulzer declared that the story the impeached governor would tell on the stand would necessitate the appearance of Charles F. Murphy before the court as a witness—this, of course, provided the court should rule that the impeachment was constitutional and the court properly assembled.

Nobody was prepared to say what new and startling revelations the impeached governor might make. All attempts to interview him on his expected testimony have been futile. Despite his tactiturnity, however, his friends profess to know that no influence can be strong enough to prevent him from testifying, should the constitutional objections raised by his attorneys to prevent the case from coming to trial be overruled.

The Sulzer forces have issued a challenge to the prosecution to file supplementary charges against the governor when the legislature convenes next Thursday night. Any such action by the board of managers, the lawyers for the governor say, would be a confession that the present case is a weak one and that the attempt to bolster it up is an indication that they fear the outcome. Increasing hope in the hearts of the Sulzer lawyers that the arguments to be completed at today's session of the court of impeachment against the validity of the action of the assembly would prevail was plainly evident. The completion of the governor's case has been postponed, so that the lawyers might lend all their energies to the attack on the indictment.

John B. Stanchfield, in all probability, will make the answering argument on behalf of the board of managers to the attack made on the impeachment. The defense's lawyers are busily engaged drawing up briefs and dissecting the constitution so as to be prepared to combat any onslaught that Mr. Stanchfield might make.

Louis Marshall of the defense's legal staff will continue reading his argument immediately upon the reconvening of the court of impeachment. When he has completed Mr. Stanchfield will take up the case of the prosecution. It is expected that the arguments of both sides will take up the entire session, and a decision of the validity of the impeachment is not looked for until tomorrow.

To Follow Judge Cullen's Lead.

As in the case of the fight made against the seating of Senators Wagner, Frawley, Sanner and Rampsberger, the first objection made in Governor Sulzer's behalf, and which was unanimously, it is believed that the judges will follow the direction pointed out to them by Presiding Judge Cullen.

All the judges of the court of impeachment apparently are of the opinion that the presiding judge is best acquainted with the constitutional law and is the most competent to interpret it. It is for this reason that the general opinion exists that Governor Sulzer's fate hangs on the decision of Presiding Judge Cullen as to guilt or innocence.

In the event of their failing to have the impeachment declared invalid, the lawyers for the defense are pinning their hopes to the belief that they will be able to convince the judges that Governor Sulzer cannot be guilty of the high crimes and misdemeanor charged because of the fact that all the acts alleged, if they were committed, occurred before he took charge of the affairs of state.

Austen G. Fox of counsel for the defense admitted that this point was to be one of the strongest advanced in the governor's behalf.

"We are all confident that the court of impeachment will agree with us in our contention that the articles relating to acts alleged to have been committed before the first of the year do not form proper grounds for charges."

Want Additional Charges Made.

That the prosecution's lawyers are of the opinion that the contention of the defense may have some weight is indicated by the fact that they have urged the board of managers to make every effort to incorporate in the articles of impeachment acts alleged to have been committed by Governor Sulzer after he took office.

Efforts on the part of the board of managers to have the assembly take action on this newly discovered evidence failed last week because of inability to induce enough members of the assembly opposed to Governor Sulzer to come to Albany to attend the session. It was learned, however, that orders have been issued by the various Tammany leaders to all the assemblymen connected with that organization to be on hand when the legislature again convenes on Thursday next, and it is believed that the orders will be obeyed.

One feature of the trial that has not as yet been decided by the court is the pay that the senators who are acting as judges are to receive. By some it is contended that the senators will receive the same amount as the judges of the court of appeals, which will amount to about $37 a day. Attorney General Carmody was asked to decide the question, but he declined to render an opinion, saying that it was a matter for the court itself to dispose of.

Try to Free Garrison.

An attempt to liberate James C. Garrison from the Albany county penitentiary, where he was sentenced by the assembly for contempt, will be made today, when his lawyers, John T. McDonough of Albany and Gilbert E. Roe of New York, appear before Justice Cochrane in the supreme court at Kingston to argue a writ of habeas corpus issued out in their client's behalf. The writ has been obtained on the allegation that Garrison, who is one of the Sulzer lieutenants, was not guilty of contempt of the assembly. His lawyers insist that he did not refuse to answer the questions put to him by the judiciary committee of the assembly. They argue that he offered to answer any and all questions on condition that he be permitted the right of counsel.

EXPECT TARIFF TO BE LAW NEXT SATURDAY

Conferees Plan to Rush Measure to President.

Washington, Sept. 22.—Unless present plans fail the tariff bill will be laid before President Wilson for his signature not later than Saturday night.

Should the president sign the measure as soon as it reaches him that night the new law would be effective next Sunday, Sept. 28, and applicable to imports entered the next day, because the measure provides that its provisions shall take effect the day following its passage except where otherwise specially provided in the bill.

The program of the Democrats on the conference committee is as follows:

Monday—Agreement on the income tax section.

Tuesday—Adoption of a compromise on the cotton futures tax section.

Wednesday—The administrative sections will be passed on and remaining disputed provisions of the bill adjusted.

Thursday—The Republican and Progressive party members of the conference committee will be called in and the vote taken on the conference report which will be sent that afternoon to the house.

Friday—The house of representatives will receive the conference report and send it to the senate.

Saturday—The senate will consider and adopt the conference report, and the tariff bill, after being formally engrossed, will be sent to President Wilson for his signature.

THE slimness of the silhouette was never more in evidence than in the lovely evening gowns that Paris is displaying for the winter season.

At the opera, the more exclusive dinners and the little dances after the autumn events, the new modes have been much to the fore, and since Paris in the autumn is the mecca of the smart women of the world in search of le dernier cri in frocks, what one sees in the French city one will see in London, New York and all the cities of the world during the coming months.

Pale tints prevail, the vivid shades of last winter making their appearance only in splotches of vivid color upon the black frocks, which are so popular.

Skirts are extremely narrow and draped, though but few are split, and the plaited skirts are shown for dancing frocks, especially for the younger girls.

Plaited frocks of black tulle, with touches of silver lace and corsage bouquets of vivid shades are being shown by one of the most exclusive of the costumiers, while one lovely frock recently noted was of white charmeuse and plaited tulle with trimming of jet.

The effect of the brilliant black against the white was striking and beautiful, and will probably be much seen this winter, since jet seems to be the trimming of the moment in Paris.

Jet earrings and jet buckles, jet bracelets and corsage ornaments are being shown in all the exclusive jewelry shops, and in truth it is most effective, since broad puritanlike bands of soft white tulle finish the decolletage and the shoulders of many of the new gowns.

Tulle is, of course, the fabric most in vogue for gowns as well as hats, and its airy softness makes it especially delightful for evening gowns. Some of the newest tulle is embroidered in flowers, and this over a foundation of pale tinted charmeuse, draped up at the side over an under dress of lace, is as lovely as the heart of woman could wish.

The slit skirt was so strongly opposed by women, that while draping continues in favor, the slit itself is hidden with folds of chiffon or a panel of embroidery in gold and silver.

One is inclined to think that the great success of the skirt draped up in front may be ascribed in part to its concealing the necessary bend of the knees. Be this as it may, certainly a large proportion of the most attractive of the new dresses are made with skirts draped more or less in this way.

So far this season widths have tended to retrograde at the foot at least, save in the case of these particular forms of skirts, draped slightly to one side, the tendency as regards the back having been to render it plainer than ever. The exception to this rule is where the frontal draperies are not provided by the skirt itself, but are made in what might almost be described as a tunic.

The sleeves for the evening gowns are best described as—not being.

They are very short this year and rather close fitting, delicate lines over flesh pink chiffon or tulle being a favorite sleeve that is not distinguished from a distance, but answers all purposes.

Over these tiny sleeves are draped the lines of the silvery embroideries of the corsage, and in some instances long angel sleeves of chiffon the color of the frock hang from the shoulders [illegible] almost at the knee.

[illegible] by the [illegible] trim most [illegible]

[illegible] there are not many new features in the evening gowns, but are many new colors to choose from.

There are [illegible] of sapphire tints that [illegible] as dire looks at them; deep orange and golden rod yellow, while all shades of cerise and wondrous new shades of lavender are seen, golden brown being another evening shade that is far richer than it sounds.

Sea green is a popular color this year, but black and white predominate on every side.

DAME FASHION is less strict about the arrangement of the hair than she is in the planning of costumes and individuality should be shown in the coiffure, since the shape of the face, the length and thickness of the tresses and the size of the head must all be taken into consideration.

The more simple the arrangement as a general thing the more becoming, but the girl whose head is thick through should wear her hair very high or very low to avoid accentuating the largeness of her head, while the girl with a long, narrow face should, by all means, fluff her hair out at the sides and have it flat on top, while the round-faced girl usually looks best with a fluffy pompadour.

Learned Lesson

Hundreds of women all over the country have learned their lesson about false hair, and after the perfect orgy of puffs and braids in which they indulged a season or so ago, are now spending much time and money having their scalps treated in order to coax their own thin and sickly locks to grow luxuriant again.

Of course, styles in hairdressing change and to some extent must be followed, and the surest place to see the different and most fashionable coiffures is across the footlights.

Studies Effects

An actress has to study effects always, and she must select the best of fashion's foibles.

Therefore, the simplicity of hairdressing seen on the stage this year means that simplicity in coiffures will be a feature this winter.

For the girl with plenty of hair the side or front part, with the hair softly rolled back to a big knot at the nape of the neck, is very pretty, but many variations are seen, the only definite command of Dame Fashion being—hide the ears.

Diaphanous costumes and chiffon petticoats may reveal much, low cut blouses and low sleeves may reveal more, but one portion of milady's charms will be hidden all winter and that will be—her ears.

To train the hair to grow out onto the cheeks in the way young girls affect just now is very simple. It may be slightly dampened at night, drawn forward in the way desired and then a wide satin ribbon tied tightly over it and under milady's chin.

After a few nights the hair will stay in place, and tiny invisible hairpins run through it will keep it firm.

The very young girl now wears her hair in two or three curls down her back, held together with a barette, while her slightly older sister still wears hers in two cart wheels at each side of the head, though this fashion has gone out among the more exclusive circles, a soft Psyche knot being preferred, and far prettier.

If a girl has a very prettily shaped head and wants to accentuate it—like Alma Gluck — the hair braided and wound around is the prettiest of styles, while for the older woman more elaborate coiffures, like that of Mrs. Teresa Maxwell-Conover, are more softening to the face.

In fact today's illustrations offer suggestions for girls with every shaped face and every colored hair.

And the point that these pictures bring out more strongly than anything else is the absence of artificial waving and artificial hair.

Are Now Taboo

Rats and puffs are alike taboo this season, and in the daytime hair ornaments will be worn but little, but the coiffures for the evening will be more elaborate and milady's hair will be more or less bedecked with dainty combs and pins.

It might be said, by the way, that for the blond haired girl whose eyes are gray, hair ornaments of gray, such as are usually selected for older women, will be found most becoming and bring out the clear beauty of the eyes.

A narrow and short piece of velvet ribbon, the color of the eyes, fastened with invisible hairpins just across the front of the hair and losing itself under the waves at each side, is another way to bring out the color of the eyes, but ribbons and bands will not be worn around the head this winter.

A few theater caps of black tulle with Gaby Deslys bows at the back are being shown for evening wear, but the majority of hair dressing experts say it will be a season of simplicity and girlish coiffures.

At Her Dressing Table

Gaby Deslys, at her dressing table

THERE should be no dearth of beauty these days, when the shops are full of beauty helps of every kind.

One does not have to go to "beauty doctors" any more and pay their fabulous prices, for every woman who uses her eyes may make her bedroom into a very efficent "beauty parlor" at very little cost.

For the women whose hair gets hopelessly dull and sticky at the first sign of dampness, for instance, there are "fluff" powders, which only need to be brushed through the hair to make it light and fluffy. To make it shining there are little valvet pads, costing only a few cents, that are used like an ordinary brush.

Dust Receiver

Time was when the woman who motored either acquired a skin of leather or spent as much time removing the effects of the ride as she did on the ride itself.

Nowadays there are no more "machine complexions" as they used to be called, for the wise woman now invests in a bottle of "dust remover," or cleansing creams scientifically made, that remove every particle of dust and grease.

After the dust has been removed, there are healing and soothing lotions, that make the skin feel like velvet and prepare it for close proximity to the daintiest of evening colors.

For the woman who freckles, there are freckle removers that are really efficient, and that keep all their promises to remove these "sun kisses."

There are excellent bleaches for the woman whose skin is inclined to be yellow, or who has acquired too deep a shade of tan. The basis of most of these is peroxide, and not any of them really hurt the skin, although many women have to experiment until they find the one best fitted to their own type of cuticle.

Manicure Aids

Speaking of cuticle, there is no excuse for the woman whose nails are unsightly, for there are all kinds of nail bleachers nail polishes and little inexpensive cuticle removers that entirely do away with any necessity for a trip to the manicurist's shop.

While the skin bleachers are doing their work there are different kinds of powders warranteed "not to rub off." Some of them come in the form of liquids that dry on the skin, leaving a light deposit of powder, which clings closely. This is not an enamel, although there are enamels scientifically made that many women use.

Afternoon Gowns Distinctive Features In Modes for the Coming Season

Sashes Are Important Feature

One of the most famous of the Parisian costumers declared recently that to English women he gave the palm for wearing smart tailored clothes well; to the Russians the secret of getting the most from the alluring qualities of an evening gown, but there were no women so lovely in afternoon frocks and hats as the Americans.

To them he declares belong the laurels for chicness and charm, and since he speaks with the authority of one who knows, the subject of afternoon gowns for the coming season cannot but be an interesting one to these same American women.

Afternoon gowns as shown in Paris this autumn are all of long clinging lines and elaborately trimmed, yet so cleverly is this embroidery and lace and chiffon introduced that it gives no effect of fussiness, as today's illustration clearly shows.

Dark blue, plum color, smoke gray and many shades of rose are the favorite colors of the moment, with golden brown and orange a close second. If the frock is of a dark color, a touch of plaid is invariably to be noted, while draped skirts, especially those draped up at the side of the front are much in evidence.

These draped skirts give more freedom to one's feet and ankles, while they preserve the narrowness so much in vogue.

The wired umbrella-like tunics seen on some of the early autumn frocks bid fair to be only a foible of the moment, although wire plays an important role in milady's gowns nowadays, since effective draping and folds are wired into place and the quaint Medici collars are usually wired at the back to make them set just right about the throat, while gowns of very soft material are wired instead of boned, so that they may set well without having a stiff appearance.

Nearly all of the afternoon gowns this year have sashes, some in silk, some in satin and many in chiffon or tulle.

Mme. Dreesell in a gown of figured silk and lace. The photo is by Talbot, of Paris.

New Fabrics Are Very Lovely

Another feature of the autumn afternoon gowns besides the sashes are the loose coats of chiffon cloth frequently worn over them. These coats hang quite loosely, and have wide angel sleeves and, combined with the floating sash ends lend an airiness to milady's appearance that will be very attractive.

Most of the afternoon gowns for the winter are fur-trimmed, since fur and marabou are both too popular to be eliminated.

Bands of fur about the hem and sleeves and huge buckles of fur holding draperies in place are notable features of many of the frocks seen in exclusive shops, and if you have a set of furs part of which is good any shop will make it into bands for you, and against pale tinted cashmere, broadcloth or satin you will find the effect far richer than any sort of passementerie.

As for materials, they are many and rarely beautiful this year. Newness is shown, in fact, not so much in forms as in fabrics. Gorgeous brocades in oriental and modern art effects have replaced the plain colored meteors and charmeuse of a season ago, and there is a striking effect of contrast between skirt and bodice—that is to say, upper bodices, for usually the silken skirt material rises to the bust line, folds of tulle or lace being drawn over the shoulders and arms.

One or two dressmakers are going in for little mantles of black lace, which give an odd, matronly effect to otherwise coquettish afternoon gowns. Such a model by one of the great couturiers is of blue and green brocade with an upper bodice of black tulle over white tulle in soft, cloudy effect.

In Her Jewel Box

Hattie Williams hiding behind one of the newest fans.

WHEN making a gift of jewelry it is nicest, if possible, to present the recipient with his or her birthday stone. Most persons know the proper stone, but few know the following legends as to what the stones bring you:

For January the proper gem is garnet. One of its attributes is that it brings sleep to those subject to insomnia, riches, honor, great wisdom, constancy and fidelity in every engagement.

For February is the amethyst. Some of the light, pale varieties come from Brazil, while others that are livid with red and purple fire come from North Carolina and Siberia. The ancient Romans believed that he or she who drinks wine from a cup made from this gem could not become intoxicated.

Bloodstone for March

For March the bloodstone is the symbol of wisdom and courage, and produces firmness in affection. It is a dark green quartz, with small red spots of jasper diffused through it, is opaque, and usually cut with a rounded top and with a flat back. It is large, and mined in India.

For May, the accepted gem is the emerald, of the same general composition as the aquamarine. The best specimens are mined at Muso, Colombia, South America. It is believed to be a strengthener of the eye.

For June is the pearl, the queen of all gems. The olden Chinese used them as medicine for diseases of the blood. Cleopatra, in order to show her contempt for money, and to outshine others in her lavish wastefulness in those days of oriental splendor tore off one of her magnificent large pearl earrings, dissolved and swallowed it. The Romans wore pearls even on their shoes.

For July is the glowing ruby or red sapphire. It denotes love, or a loving disposition. An old belief was that this gem caused one to discover the presence of poisons, warned the wearer of impending danger by darkening in color, and when the evil presence had passed resumed its bright red color.

For August is the sardonyx. The man wearing this gem will, it is said, overcome all contentions. It insures long life, health and prosperity, conjugal felicity, is a cure for epilepsy and causes strife and melancholy to depart.

Many Virtues

For September is the ever-popular sapphire. It has many virtues. It extinguishes fires, corrects bad manners of the wearers, insures freedom from evil passions and sadness of the mind.

For October is the wondrous opal. This beautiful gem, when extracted from the damp earth, is quite soft and destitute of life, but the air and sun give it various degrees of color and beauty.

For November the single standard is topaz. These stones are often colored artificially by covering with a bark of a certain tree, igniting the bark and allowing it to smolder in a warm oven.

For December is the heavenly blue turquoise. It is a cheerer of a depressed soul, and insures prosperity in love affairs.

Smart Footwear

Good looking footwear should be the foundation of every woman's wardrobe for if the boots are not what they should be, then no matter how much is spent on the rest of the costume there will be a jarring note and the entire effect will be lost.

With the coming of cool and stormy days nothing is of more importance than a good pair of storm shoes, for women seem to have definitely made up their minds that they will not wear the disfiguring rubber overshoes.

It is not necessary to wear shoes that are overpoweringly heavy. In fact the dealers seem to have made successful efforts this year to produce boots that are waterproof and yet at the same time as light as possible.

Tan will be the most popular color for walking boots this year. In fact there are very few black boots shown as the tan leather is softer and easier on the foot and besides makes a welcome change from the everlasting black.

For afternoon wear the shoes will be black, either of suede or kid, preferably the latter, when the weather grows uncertain for rain, water and snow ruins suede.

The dress shoes show a return to the pointed toe and rather fancy caps are used.

Evening Slippers

The new fashions in dancing have strongly influenced footwear. This influence is shown for the shoes for the street as well as the evening, possibly because no hour of the day has been free from informal dancing.

Women who care a great deal for dancing have adopted the heelless slipper with a slightly rounded toe. In this the ribbon is run through eyelets that are placed along the edges. The appearance is not unlike the French beach sandal, which our women have taken up in the last two years for public dancing.

The women who cannot dance in sandals have the laced slippers with somewhat flat heels or high Spanish ones, but not the incurved French heel, which is not as popular as it once was.

This is the form of footwear that has usurped all others in the fashionable sets for dancing, and the Roman boot, or modified form of cothurne is rapidly gaining a high place for afternoon wear.

The New Hats for Autumn

THE pendulum of fashion swinging back from the wide brimmed hats of midsummer, has brought into vogue once more the small close fitting hat, of felt or plush.

Nearly all of the early autumn models to wear with the tailored suits are close fitting and smart in shape,but they no longer extinguish milady's eyes or nose. In fact, the fashionable woman may retain all her features this year with the exception of her ears.

The small tailored hats have very little trimming, a pair of wings or an aigrette being considered sufficient, one trim model of Alice blue plush faced up with black having a small pair of iridescent wings set mercury wise at the back of the crown, while another model of golden brown had two shaded wings set stiffly across the back, and some of the more youthful models simply had quills thrust through the side of the hat itself.

Small brims rolled back are shown on many of the models, while modified sailors and long narrow hats will probably continue in favor, with more or less low crowns and high trimmings.

Many little fads and fancies are to be noted in the millinery shop, and one quaint idea of Parisian women has been brought to this country, and taken up by exclusive women, and this is the wearing of a tiny jeweled arrow through the edge of the hat brim in front.

These quaint little shimmering pins unscrew in the middle, and so give the effect of having actually been shot right through the brim, as if Cupid, aiming at one's heart, had hit one's bonnet—where often, by the way, a woman's heart is!

There are a number of cloth hats seen this autumn edged with bands of velvet and trimmed with feathers, while one smart model shown in an exclusive shop was of short napped plush in a trim shape, with a twisted rope of dull gold about the crown, and a gold winglike ornament holding the brim up at the left side.

This vogue for tulle has brought out lovely butterflies for the backs of the evening hats, their lacy wings of delicately wired tulle being attached to a long narrow body of chenille, from which long feathery antennae extend.

Evening Wraps

Solomon in all his glory never equaled the gorgeous array of colors presented by this season's evening wraps.

They are wraps in the truest sense of the word, for very few, except those obviously designed for older persons, are of the coat persuasion. The new models are long, soft and clinging, and most are either of one solid rich color or give the iridescent effect produced by numbers of beads.

One of the new features is the way in which most of the cloaks fit the shoulder. They have an almost old fashioned look that is very charming and quaint.

Almost every kind of material is to be used. Cloth, of course, for those who seek warmth first. Many of these are lined with fur that would keep out the coldest air, but since the introduction of neat limousines much lighter cloaks are being used.

Various shades of old rose, blue and scarlet are always good, and light up effectively.

Dainty Negligee

The old idea that a garment for the rest hour should be a kimono or a wrapper, plain straight affairs with neither grace nor beauty, has now been thrust aside, and even the ubiquitous kimono blossoms forth with deep hanging sleeves and the real Japanese obi, and chiffon underskirts to make it attractive, while negligees in general are things of beauty.

Many of those shown are modeled on the lines of the evening cloaks of the season. They are made of satin charmeuse or rich silk in shades of deep purple, petunia, cyclamen, hard blue, leaf green, boise de rose and elephant gray with perhaps a border of the new Bulgarian or Persian embroidery round the V-shaped neck.

For the rest they are simply swathed in folds which are gathered at one side into a knot or held together with a jewelled clasp.

Crepe de chine, china silk and cotton crepe are much in favor for negligees because they wash, and almost any negligee gets soiled quickly because of the delicate colors.

Most of the imported negligees are trimmed with fur, by the way, edgings and buckles and little heads of fur being combined with lovely draped negligees of golden brown, with creamy laces, or chiffon and brocade negligees lovely enough for an evening gown or coat.

The most popular shades for negligees this year are delicate green, golden brown, all shades of blue, coral pink and delicate rose.

What Exclusive Women Will Wear on the Street

Forecast of Fashion For the Coming Winter Season as Heard in Paris

PARIS—There is already a tang of autumn in the air, the famous chestnut trees are losing their summer verdure, and Paris is no longer the mecca of the ubiquitous tourist, but is given over to the French and the fashions.

In truth, fashions seem more in evidence than the French, for autumn has already laid its hand upon feminine frocks and frills, and nothing is heard but snatches of what we shall wear when winter is here in earnest.

There are many royalties here just now buying frocks, for queens and princesses as well as Americans delight in purchasing their frocks in France, even though diplomacy necessitates their having a certain number of costumes made by home tailors and dressmakers.

The queen of England, the queen of Spain, the ex-queen of Portugal, the lesser English royalties, the Russians and the Germans alike buy their frocks from those establishments that look so sober and sedate from without, yet are in truth palaces themselves for Queen Fashion.

Go to America

The cream of the new costumes go, however, to America, so every one says, and scores of model suits and gowns have been shipped to the big shops as well, to be copied by the clever American needlewomen and worn by the American girl, who ranks foremost among the well dressed women of the world.

The salient features of the fashions seem to be the narrow skirts—if possible even more narrow than those we have been wearing; long tailored coats, small trim hats, and many soft frills to lend a picturesque finish about the throat and the sleeves.

The new suit coats are slenderly cut, and there is a strong tendency towards the cutaway effect, some of the coats being bolero length in front and running to long tails at the back, while some are cut much on the lines of a man's dinner jacket, fastening with one button to give the vest a chance.

For it is the season of the vest. The new blouses have bits of vests tucked under their laces, and nearly all of the smart suits being shown here are of dark, severely plain materials, with vest and collars and cuffs of vivid colors, more cubist than Bulgarian, however.

These vests are much bebuttoned, and since many are double breasted, they offer an extra warmth for wintry days.

With the exception of the vivid colors in these vests, it might almost be termed a black and white year, every form of magpie combination being shown.

Blouses of Net

It is a fad of the moment to wear blouses of black net over white chiffon, with three-quarter length sleeves, ending in soft ruffles of black tulle, so deep that they fall half way over the hand. White gloves are then donned under these, running up to meet the sleeve proper, and giving a very smart appearance. Black and white hats are seen, and some ultra smart women have taken up the stage fad of black shoes with white tops, although low shoes and gaiters are preferred to the high button boots as yet.

This vogue of black and white has brought real and imitation gardenias, much into favor as a hat trimming or for milady's buttonhole, and half of the coat lapels one sees nowadays are decorated with the fragrant little white flower.

Woman is Judged By Many Little Accessories and By Her Gloves

GLOVES are acknowledged to be one of the most important items in the proper costuming of a woman.

They are a very noticeable article of dress and are, therefore, worthy of a great deal of consideration in the choosing.

Just now, of course, the lighter weight kid gloves are in order, and these are not hard to choose, for the ever popular tans are always in good taste.

The newer models show stitching in contrasting shades of brown or in black. This stitching is always effective, as it tends to make the back of the hand look narrower. The single clasp model is also the most popular. They are most comfortable just now, although, of course, when wintry winds blow the longer the glove the warmer the wrists.

It goes without saying that black gloves will be worn a great deal. Whether these are kept entirely black or relieved with white stitching is purely a matter of taste. For ordinary wear the all-black are very satisfactory, while for dress wear the ones stitched in white are undoubtedly more smart looking.

Gloves for Winter

For winter wear the ever popular castors will be in great favor, for they are far more comfortable than kid ones, as the hands do not become stiff in them. Also if a muff is carried they seem to absorb the perspiration better than the kid.

Those who prefer the leather ones, however will find many models to their liking. Most of the gloves have rough seams, which are attractive, but which undoubtedly make the hand look larger.

Now that it seems probable that the three-quarter sleeve has come to stay, the long kid glove will, of course, be in order. Those in the shops now are very long, but they are only meant to reach to the elbow.

Gloves for Evening

For evening wear naturally the long white gloves take first place. Nothing ever seems to replace them. The shops show very pretty creations of white kid with hand-painted sprays of flowers and fancy little buttons, some of them hand-painted, but after all nothing is ever in better taste than the plain white kid, well fitting and soft. All lengths will be worn, depending, of course, upon the frock worn with them. Colored kid gloves are never very successful unless they are of cream color or ivory, which tones in better with some people's skins.

Corsage Bouquets Universal

The corsage bouquet is an almost universal adjunct to the smart afternoon toilette, the finishing touch, often the sole color note as well. A deep pink rose is most frequently chosen, and it is worn at a high waistline directly in front.

The latest touch in flower decoration is the big purple pansy, which Callot Soeurs use to catch in the knot of a sash tied well below the waistline on one of their most successful models. This costume was noted at the Course des Haies in pale gray satin crepe, the large purple velvet pansy forming a striking color note, indeed.

Materials and Trimmings in Vogue

Rough worsteds will be much used for tailored suits.

Corduroy and rough serge are most in vogue for the growing girl.

Moires must also be included among fashionable goods for early fall. Several of the leading firms in Paris give their preference to moire taffeta over the moires fluides—which are frequently mixed fabrics and do not maintain their freshness so long.

Persian, cashmire and Japanese designs and combinations of colors are fast taking the place of the mixtures and rough-and-ready patterns known as Bulgarian.

Brocaded charmeuse is being shown for the new evening gown.

Idle Gossip About The Fall Fashions

Military trimmings of braid and buttons, by the way, are to be all the rage as a lingering influence of the Balkan war. Martial effects seem as lasting on the clothes-line as on the firing-line.

♣ ♣ ♣

You can go as far as you like with your fur trimmings this fall, and buckles, tassels and fringe will festoon the fashionably elect like the trappings of the circus horse.

Sashes of silk and velvet will also stick around and almost all the suits will require it in two-toned boucle, heavy cheviots, wool sponges, mixtures and brocaded wools.

Jet Is Extensively Used

Jet is being skillfully put forward in many clever and charming ways. A beautiful woman of marked Spanish cast, recently seen in Paris, was dressed in black with a touch of vivid green and wore a waist-long chain of large cut jet beads and long pendant jet earrings.

One of the most effective of the transparent hats of the season is of fine jet beads on tulle, both the skull-fitting crown and the upstanding wired brim being of this gauzy yet substantial fabric. Still another novel hat has the crown in an openwork effect of jet bugles.

Newest Blouses in Vogue for Autumn

All predictions to the contrary, the separate waist has come back to stay for this season at least.

It is one of the most convenient articles of dress that women have, and although they compromised last year by wearing waists that exactly matched their suits it was only a question of time when the dainty white waist would come into its own again.

The models this year are truly beautiful in every way. All the materials are soft and graceful. Voile has first place, chiffon second, net third, and all-over lace fourth. Probably later in the season silk and satin waists will make their appearance, but just now the wash-waists hold first place.

A glance at the accompanying illustrations will show that low necks and short sleeves are seen on all the newest waists, also that they all boast ruffles and frills.

Sheer Materials

They are made of the sheerest materials, so fine that they may be crushed into the compass of one hand

There still seems to be some indecision as to where the sleeve line will ultimately be placed. In these French advance models some of the sleeves give the kimono effect, set in three inches below the shoulder, while others show the line just where nature evidently intended that it should be.

Almost every waist boasts a broad low collar made of sheerest batiste or messaline or even net. On the white waist these collars are usually of some very pale tint of pink or blue, so pale that the color is more suggested than seen.

One of the prettiest collars, especially for the rather thin girl, is shown on the all-over lace waist. It is very quaint and old-fashioned looking, being just a gathered ruffle of the lace finished with the silk tie, which in this case is of the palest shell pink.

The finishing of the sleeve is a very important item in the making of the new waists. The cuffs are very deep, and in most instances go up into a point or are even slit and the slit filled in with a ruffle of narrow val lace.

Of course there are many new waists showing the long sleeves which some people prefer and always wear no matter what the style may happen to be. Many of the waists show the long sleeve, and they are very long, so long that the ruffle at the end covers at least half of the hand, an effect that makes even an ugly hand appear to be pretty.

Most of the low necks are made in V shape. The plainer waists that button down the front have the collar ends turned back with buttons on one side and buttonholes on the other in such a way to suggest that the waist has been merely unfastened and turned back.

The buttons, by the way, are among the important items of this year's waists. Most of the waists fasten down the front, and, in consequence, very pretty buttons are used. Many of them are hand-painted. They are usually of white pearl with a little cluster of brilliant flowers painted on them.

Furs to Enhance Milady's Beauty

FASHIONS IN FURS For Maid and Matrons to Don FOR WINTRY MONTHS

Long before the snow begins to fly and the north wind makes furs necessary, maids and matrons are looking longingly at their muffs and collars, for there is nothing so becoming as furs, and, despite the fact that they are expensive, they are so beautiful that few women can resist them.

Fashions in furs change, of course, but the beauty of the quality of the skins is what really counts, and if they are becoming you need not really fret if your coat or muff isn't exactly what dame fashion decrees for the coming winter.

According to the forecasts from Paris, red fox furs will be most popular this year, the first cool days bringing out long stoles and huge muffs of the furs, worn with light frocks in the afternoons.

Moleskin is another fashionable fur of the year, while moleskin combined with black fox or white fox makes up some of the most beautiful of the coats of the winter.

There is a lovely imitation sable on the market this year, too, which is nothing more or less than squirrel dyed, but so cleverly is it done that only an expert could guess that the long coats or sets of muff and collar are not real sable, and the Russian sable at that.

Blended furs and dyed furs will be much worn this year, sealskin being combined with black fox and bear, while silver fox and white fox are a combination much seen.

Raccoon is the most serviceable and the most youthful of furs for the young girl, while ermine this year is mostly combined with dark brocaded velvet or sealskin, in long stoles and muffs.

In Draped Effect

The draped effects of the year are shown in the new fur coats, and nothing could be more beautiful than the softly draped coats of white fur, so soft and pliant and so cosily warm, while the new draped cloaks of moleskin lined with silvery brocades or vivid orange are like a garment straight out of fairyland.

Fur coats will be much worn for evenings this coming winter, but in the daytime the fur-lined or fur-trimmed coats will be most in evidence, the long cloaks being really too heavy to wear on the streets or for shopping.

Bands of fur will trim the skirts of the smart tailored suits and also form the collars and cuffs, while smart little fur toques will be very popular.

The fur hats of the winter will be small and rather high, this height being accentuated by tall feathers or bows of tulle, which, despite its airiness, will trim many of the winter hats.

Muffs Are Bigger

Muffs for the year will be bigger than ever, but will be fairly plain, while for the neck the choice lies between the long stole worn as a scarf and the small, trim, closely fitting collar that lends such a smart finish to milady's costume, but is the despair of physicians.

These small, closely fitting collars of leopard skin, and the leopard skin muffs will, by the way, be one of the fads of the year, are most becoming to the brunette or the girl whose hair has a reddish tint to it.

Marten is another fur which is generally becoming, and it is both practical and becoming, its soft, dull black being suitable for wear with every kind of a suit on the street.

New Blouses Seen In Paris Shops

A blouse of dark blue crepe de chine embroidered in buttercups with a rolling collar of yellow satin.

Blouse of black tulle over white chiffon, with collar and cuffs of old rose chiffon and old rose buttons as trimming.

The Latest Dainty Lingerie

Once upon a time maid and matrons alike, when they dressed, donned not merely undershirts and corsets and combinations, but flannel petticoats, short white petticoats and long silk ones, with full double ruffles around the hem, and did not consider that they had too much on, but this winter, despite the fact that it will probably be just as cold as in those days, their undergarments will be of such diaphanous thinness that outdoor coats will have to be very heavy to keep pneumonia away.

Lingerie that is being shown for this coming season is if possible thin and more closely fitted than in the summer.

Clinging but boneless corsets and brassieres are to be worn by those slender enough to escape the heavily ribbed corset, while the new silk shirts and crepe de chine combinations may be crumpled up in one hand.

Much in Favor

Crepe de chine is in fact much in favor for lingerie this year and bids fair to rival the batiste which we have worn for so long.

The new petticoats are cut on perfectly straight lines with no dust ruffle, and some shops are showing a combination garment that is corset cover, drawers and petticoat all in one with no line at the waist.

Crepe de chine petticoats for evening have slips of delicate chiffon or lace to wear over them, and some women, indeed, under their opera gowns will wear these chiffon cloth skirts alone.

Satin bloomers are much in favor abroad for under the tailored skirt, while the large garters, with their deep flounces or ruffles of lace that hang to the ankle, do away with the necessity of petticoats under skirts that are thick enough to prevent one's seeing through.

The narrow lines of the late summer and early autumn gowns are noticeable also in the petticoats, some of the prettiest ones being cut like the slit skirt of the summer.

THE NEWEST OF TOGS And Many Conveniences FOR THE MOTORISTS

Automobiles, like telephones, have graduated from the class of luxuries into necessities nowadays, and motor togs are an important part of the wardrobe of the average woman.

These automobile clothes must be three things—warm, dust proof and becoming, for women no longer like to make guys of themselves when they spin across country. And, as always, demand has made the supply and the shops are showing most attractive coats and hats and veils for this autumn.

The fur lined coats are, of course, the nicest for wintry days, but the new rough tweed coats, cut with raglan shoulders and storm collars that fasten close about the throat, may be donned over the tailored suit and keep the motorist both warm and trim.

Small, close-fitting hats of felt or plush are also seen among the motorists' supplies, and can be fastened down close to the head with a couple of strong wire hairpins, defying the wind to remove them, while over all, if the rider wishes to protect her skin, may be donned one of the new rainproof and dust proof auto veils, that have a wired crown to fit over the hat, and covers face and eyes and ears thoroughly.

Gauntlets are the best gloves to wear, since they do away with the danger of chapped wrists, while felt lined boots that lace to the knee promise warm feet, no matter how long the run.

A touch of feminine charm is lent to the new motor coats by the vivid shades of the linings, while the motor veils are things of beauty. Some are shaded from pearl to old rose; others are shimmering waves of blue, while the new white ones have colored borders that are most effective.

Little chest pads are shown in some of the shops to wear under one's motor coat if one has susceptible lungs, while many dainty accessories for comfort in the machine are shown.

New luncheon baskets, containing everything in the way of conveyance for eating and four thermos bottles, are shown in one shop, while another shows folding tables and chairs to slip into the machine, and small folding cases contain all kinds of emergency remedies.

BOY SCOUTS WILL FLY AEROPLANE

Local Troops Will Try to Master the Air as Part of Big Demonstration Here.

SCOUTCRAFT EXHIBIT

Numerous Events Planned to Be Held on Parker Field October 4—Many Competitive Features—All Local Divisions Are Invited.

Aeroplaning will be one of the attractions offered by the Boy Scouts of Troop 5, when they hold their annual scout exhibition on Parker Field on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 4, under the supervision of Fourth Assistant Scout Master William A. V. Tompsen. A number of the members of Eagle and Wolf patrols of Wetumpka Sentinel Tribe have built some model airships and a glider to be used to convey a passenger over a part of the field. In addition to the aeroplane feature there will be a contest between the Eagle and Wolf Patrols for the championship of the city in all the work that goes to make up scoutcraft, and any patrol leader in the city may enter a team in this competition. The two entrants who have signified their intention of competing to date are leaders Charles E. Rice, of the Eagles, and John Causbrook, of the Wolf patrol, both of these scouts coming from Troop 5. The championship honors will be accorded to the patrol making the best time and showing the best general scout form as determined by the members of the Plainfield Scout Council, of which former City Judge William N. Runyon is president, and C. William Bingeman and Herbert E. Parker are members.

The competition comes at the termination of one year of concentrated effort among the members of Troop 5 and ever since the 1912 scout exhibition which was held in the rear of the First Presbyterian church the rivalry between the Eagle and Wolf Patrols has been of the keenest nature. The Eagle patrol took the highest honors at last year's exhibition and the members of the Wolf division is out to win the title this year.

The entire program of events for the coming demonstration has not as yet been made public but each patrol is striving hard to work up a winning set of drills and exhibits that will outdo the rival patrol. The greater the novelty introduced the greater the credit that will go to the team introducing it and there will be exhibitions of building fires without matches, a water boiling contest, wireless telegraph in which all the equipment including towers, aerials, receivers and senders will have been assembled by the boys themselves, and points will count upon the speed with which the respective patrols rush in with their equipment, erect it and send and receive from one of the amateur stations in the city, a ten word message.

Under the leadership of Third Assistant Scoutmaster E. W. Poineer, there will be an example of gymnastic work, flag signalling, stalking and barrier climbing, showing the crack barrier squad which won signal honors in Madison Square Garden last year. First Assistant Scoutmaster Wendell C. Glover will have charge of the athletic features of the day which will be run off under the captaincy of Jack Fritts. It is planned to extend an invitation to every Boy Scout troop in the city to take part in the day's events and among the conspicuous features will be a drill by Troop 7, the colored division, of which Joseph M. Garner is scoutmaster. Troop 8, 9 and 10 will also compete. Entries may be made by applying to Commissioner Allen E. Beals or to Deputy Commissioner A. V. Searing, Jr.

The Camp Fire Girls of the city will be the invited guests of the Boy Scouts at this exhibition, the Camp Fire troops corresponding to the Boy Scouts patrols in the work of the feminine sex.

WIFE, CHILD, MONEY HAVE LEFT GARWOOD

Garwood Man Thinks Affinity Responsible and Asks Prosecutor's Aid.

Elizabeth, Sept. 23.—"Will you please see if you can find my wife and child. I think that she has disappeared with an affinity. I know she has been intimate with him. They are both missing, so is several hundred dollars and my child."

This was the pathetic appeal made to Prosecutor Stein by John G. Crist of Garwood, yesterday. According to Crist his wife has been on too friendly terms with Anthony Farrell, who, as his story goes, has made his once happy home otherwise. Farrell and Mrs. Crist, it is said, disappeared the same day. This leads Crist to believe that the double disappearance was more than a coincidence. A girl, five years old, daughter of the Crists, also is missing.

Continuing his story to Prosecutor Stein, Crist said that he has known for some time that his wife has been too friendly with Farrell, and to break this friendship he planned to send his wife to Europe. He drew several hundred dollars from a bank with which to purchase the tickets. The money was hidden in a closet in his home. He went out and when he returned Mrs. Crist, the child and money were gone, he says, as was Farrell.

Prosecutor Stein's detectives are working on the case. They are making every effort to find Farrell, believing that he can account for the disappearance of Mrs. Crist.

COOK'S CLAIM FOR WAGES THROWN OUT OF COURT

Recorder H. O. Hance, of North Plainfield Township, has given a decision in favor of the defendant in the case of Henry Johnson against Dr. Maxmillian P. E. Groszmann, the head of Hebart Hall, Watchung Crest. The plaintiff was employed as a cook at the institution, and after leaving the position brought suit against Dr. Groszman for $41 which he claimed as wages.

Dr. Groszmann produced witnesses to show that he is only an agent for the school, a corporation, and hired the plaintiff in that capacity. He testified that he personally had made no contract with the plaintiff and that Johnson's services were rendered to the corporation. On the strength of this testimony, Swackhamer & Bird, of counsel for the defendant, moved for a non-suit. Recorder Hance decided that there was no cause of action. Attorney Norr, of New York, who resides at Watchung, represented Johnson.

SCHOOLS SUPERINTENDENT PRAISES JUDGE DEMEZA

In a letter addressed to Judge William G. DeMeza relative to his candidacy for the City Judgeship nomination on the Republican ticket, Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of Plainfield's public school, says:

"It will be a great pleasure to me to give you my support at the primaries. I have been pleased with your administration and your cooperation with the school department has been very satisfactory, enabling us to accomplish a good deal of satisfactory work with the children. I hope you will secure nomination and election."

CAN'T IDENTIFY THEM.

The Trenton police have notified the local authorities that they have in their charge three colored children who had alighted from a train in that city and said they were bound for this city. They said their names are Mary, Louise and "Doc" Brown and asserted they were going to Plainfield to visit a John Brown, whom they said lives in West Third or Fourth street. Investigation by the local police among the many Browns failed to reveal their identity. The children range in age from 12 to 15 years.

ALL MUST REGISTER BEFORE THEY VOTE

Every voter, before undertaking to cast a ballot in today's primary, must register for the election in November. In the law it is provided that "any voter not registered, or not wishing to vote at the primary, may register for the ensuing general election, but every voter voting at the primary shall register for the ensuing general election in the manner provided by this act."

Through the ignorance or carelessness of members of election boards, voters have been permitted to vote at the primary and leave without having registered for the election; thereby being disqualified. Today is a registry day, as well as primary day. For the first time the people are to nominate the candidates without the intervention of conventions or bosses. Let every voter attend, make known his preference—whether Democrat, Republican or Progressive—and see that his name is placed on the register for the election in November.

Today the polls are open until 9 o'clock tonight.

Newark, Sept. 23.—Announcement was made yesterday that the County Board of Elections will order all district boards of registry and election to permit nobody to vote in the Progressive primary who voted in the primary of any other party last year.

The problem would have been referred to Judges Harry V. Osborne and William P. Martin of the Court of Common Pleas were it not for the announcement these two judges had concurred in the ruling of the Election Board.

Pay no attention to a misleading statement made in another paper to the effect that it was necessary to have registered on Sept. 9 to be able to vote today. The fact is that if you voted at the last general election or if you did not vote then but registered since you can vote at the primary today.

Newark, Sept. 23.—As to the right of a voter, who voted at the Republican primary last fall, to vote at the Progressive primary today was made a test case here today. Joseph Baumbann made the attempt and when the election officers declined to allow him, the matter was taken before Judges Osborne and Martin sitting jointly. They held a voter who had participated in the last Republican primaries cannot participate in the Progressive primaries today.

PAID LAST TRIBUTE TO R. B. DUYCKINCK'S MEMORY

The funeral service of Richard Bancker Duyckinck, aged 98 years, was held at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of his son, Whitehead Duyckinck, on Madison avenue. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, including a number of former business associates of Mr. Duyckinck, who had known him for many years. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, officiated at the service.

There were many floral tributes coming from relatives and friends, bearing silent testimony to the esteem in which the departed was held. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

WM. F. ARNOLD HOME AFTER A LONG TOUR

City Treasurer William F. Arnold and family returned home last night from an extended trip to the Pacific Coast. They went right to Ocean Grove, where they will remain for a few weeks, before returning to their home here. Mr. Arnold was at the City National Bank, today, where many of his friends dropped in to extend greetings. Mr. Arnold says that he had a delightful trip, that the country looked prosperous and he saw much to interest him on his journey, which included a visit to Yellowstone Park.

AN AWFUL THIRST.

A man who refused to reveal his name to the police, who could not do without a "bracer" until 9 o'clock tonight when the polls close and cafes open, purchased some alcohol in a drug store, and proceeded to drink it. He was found utterly helpless from intoxication under the Park arenue bridge by Patrolman MacIntyre. He will be arraigned before City Judge DeMeza.

IN CITY AND BORO THE VOTE IS LIGHT

Chief Interest in Plainfield is Taken in G. O. P. Judgeship Nomination Contest.

Surprisingly light is the vote being cast at the Republican, Democratic and Progressive primaries in this city today and a report comes from Elizabeth that the same condition prevails there and throughout the county. In Plainfield the Democrats are taking very little interest and the Progressives even less. The Republican vote is largest but is extremely light. Chief interest is centered in the City Judgeship contest at the Republican primaries. It is expected that there will be a large vote cast in the city between 6 and 9 o'clock tonight.

The vote in the borough, as in the city, is light. In every one of the five districts, with the exception of the fifth, more Republicans have cast ballots than Democrats, which shows that as in past years, the borough is a strong G. O. P. centre.

The ballots cast for the respective party candidates follows: First district—Rep. 32; Dem. 17; Pro. 1. Second district—Rep. 14; Dem. 8; Pro. 1. Third district—Rep. 14; Dem. 9; Pro. 0. Fourth district—Rep. 28; Dem. 24; Pro. 0. Fifth district—Dem. 13; Rep. 11; Pro. 0.

COURT GIVES AID TO AN UNFORTUNATE MAN

"Here, my man," take this money and buy a ticket to Glen Gardner, but do not steal rides on passenger trains again, because you are liable to lose your life, and besides it's wrong," said City Judge DeMeza, when Henry Muldoon was arraigned before him charged with trespassing on railroad property.

When arrested Muldoon was riding between the mail train and a passenger coach on a Baltimore and Ohio train passing here yesterday. He said he was penniless and wanted to get to Glen Gardner, where he had secured a position. The Judge handed him his carfare in suspending sentence and warned him not to repeat the offense.

CANDIDATES ADDRESSED THE JEFFERSON CLUB

Three local candidates at today's primaries addressed members of the recently organized Jefferson Democratic Club last night, at its headquarters, 934 West Third street. The membership was swelled by the addition of twenty citizens who placed their names on the roster.

F. Otto Linke, candidate for Assembly nomination; Daniel Coleman, who is seeking the nomination of councilman-at-large, and Stephen Haff, councilmanic candidate for the nomination from the Third ward, all made brief addresses. James E. Kelly, of Elizabeth, who is opposing General Dennis Collins, for the nomination of State Committeeman, sent a letter of regret that previous appointments forced his absence.

The Jefferson Club now boasts of a membership of over seventy-five and propose to hold meetings every Monday night, until the November election.

AGED PLAINFIELD WOMAN FOUND STRANDED BY POLICE

Mrs. Elizabeth Geakyne, aged 73 years, mother of Mrs. Martha Harvey, of 1101 South avenue, was found stranded by the police of Philadelphia yesterday afternoon. She had been living with her daughter in this city, but according to the local police, several weeks ago, going to West Philadelphia to live with her son.

Evidently becoming tired of her residence in that city, she had started out for Plainfield. The authorities of the latter city have been informed of the circumstances and will return her to her son's home.

FINEST OF APPLES.

Neuman Brothers have on exhibition at their store at the corner of Watchung avenue and Fifth street what is probably the finest lot of apples of various varieties that have ever been seen in Plainfield. In the lot are ten prize ribbon winners at the Somerset Hills fair, which was held at Far Hills last week, and including nearly every variety that is grown in this part of the country. There are also several dishes of handsome specimens which were not prize winners, although exhibited at the fair. They were brought to the Neuman store to be exhibited by one of the apple growers who supply that firm with fruit for their trade.

—There is no place in town where that next lot of envelopes can be so neatly printed as at the Daily Press office.

STRUCK BY AUTO, SMALL BOY DYING

Theodore Davis, Jr., Aged 4 Years, Receives Fatal Injuries When Hit by Car.

CHAUFFEUR ARRESTED

William Davis, Driver of Machine, Not Blamed for Accident—Doctors Say Victim Can't Live Day Out.

Hovering between life and death in a cot in Muhlenberg Hospital, Theodore Davis, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Davis, of 512 New street, lies unconscious as the result of being struck last night shortly after 5 o'clock by an automobile owned by Jacob Fass and driven by William Davis, colored, a chauffeur, living at 750 Webster place. According to eye witnesses, the child, contrary to the instructions of his mother and nurse, was playing in the street in front of his home, and as the machine passed at slow speed, ran directly in its path. Quickly stopping the auto, Davis, the chauffeur, placed his victim in the car and drove at high speed to the hospital. Then he surrendered himself to the police and gave an account of the accident.

When arraigned this morning before City Judge DeMeza on a charge of reckless driving, Davis was remanded to await the result of the boy's injuries. Should the victim die, and the doctors say he can not live until sundown, Davis will be held to await the action of the Grand Jury on a charge of manslaughter. Mr. Fass said he will make efforts to have his employe released on bail, which he wants to furnish.

Mrs. Davis, the little victim's mother, was attending afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. Guy Hillman, 606 Madison avenue, and had left her child in the charge of a maid. Ten minutes previous to the accident, Theodore, who is four years old, was brought into the house, but while the maid's back was turned, he slipped out of his play-room and joined a crowd of small boys who were playing marbles near his home. As the Fass car approached the children were playing on the sidewalk near the gutter and witnesses declare the chauffeur blew his horn and slowed up. As he was about to pass the group he increased the speed of the car when without any warning the Davis boy ran in front of the car and was knocked to the ground. The wheels did not pass over the boy's body, but the radiator struck him with much force.

The little victim was carried to the stoop of his home and Dr. Norman W. Currie and Dr. Alfred F. Van Horn, were summoned, but before they arrived, the driver of the car had pushed his way through the little crowd of playmates and taking the little fellow in his arms rushed it with all speed to the hospital.

As the tot was being carried from the stoop, Mrs. Davis, the mother, who had been informed of the accident while on her way home, came running to the scene of the accident. Crying aloud, she begged to see her child. The blanket was gently lifted and at the sight of her child the mother reeled and fell in a faint. She was attended by physicians.

Little Emily Davis, who saw her brother struck, ran frightened from the vicinity. She was found an hour later wandering the streets apparently dazed.

Davis said to the reporters that he was driving south on New street, on the right hand side of the thoroughfare, and traveling at about 7 miles an hour, when the machine struck the boy.

At noon, today, young Davis, although still alive, was still unconscious and the authorities at the institution say there is not the slightest chances for his recovery. He is suffering with a crushed skull and internal injuries.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Easily the most important dramatic attraction planned for the Plainfield Theatre thus far this season is the double bill of Grace George in J. M. Barrie's playlet, "Half An Hour," along with Stanley Houghton's three act comedy, "The Younger Generation"—both produced under the personal direction of Charles Frohman tomorrow night. This will be Miss George's first appearance in a play by the author of "The Little Minister." "Half An Hour" will call upon Miss George for the same range and brilliancy of acting that she so plentifully supplied in her highly successful revival of Sardou's "Divorcons." It was seeing Miss George's acting in "Divorcons" at the Comedy Theatre, London, that made Charles Frohman wishful to have her under his management through some special arrangement with William A. Brady. When the author of "What Every Woman Knows" and of "Peter Pan" completed and delivered his powerful playlet, "Half An Hour," and Mr. Frohman read the manuscript for the first time, Miss George seemed to him the one American actress best fitted to play the part. W. A. Brady obligingly postponed all his plans for Miss George to make possible her appearance in "Half An Hour."

One of the most interesting programs ever laid out for John Drew will be performed by that actor at the Plainfield theatre next Friday night when he appears for the first time in the Barrie play, "The Will," which is really a satire in three scenes and travels over as many generations of people. Mr. Drew will be seen in the three scenes of "The Will," first as a man of twenty-five, then as a more prosperous business man of forty-five and finally as a multi-millionaire of sixty-five. But preceding the performance of "The Will," Mr. Drew will act again in his celebrated high comedy success, "The Tyranny of Tears."

Charles Frohman's name on a production is the same guarantee that you get when you buy silver with the mark "sterling" on, and the announcement that he is going to produce here his famous detective-police melodrama, "The Conspiracy," that ran to capacity houses all last season at his Garrick theatre, New York, should send the theatregoers of Plainfield to the box office of the Plainfield theatre, to make reservations at once, as it is expected that all records will be broken the day of this big play's coming. Mr. Frohman has carefully selected the cast, and the scenery is the same as used during the New York run. The play will be seen here Monday night, September 29.

CHURCHMEN TO MEET IN NAT. CONVENTION

Brotherhood of St. Andrew to Hold Sessions in New York Beginning Oct. 1.

The local chapters will be largely represented at the twenty-eighth National Convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew which will convene in New York city on Wednesday, October 1 and remain in session until the following Sunday. Coming as it does the week before the convocation of the General Convention of the Episcopal church, this gathering of laymen from all parts of the United States is awakening more interest than usual. The General Convention itself will in no wal compare with the Brotherhood Convention in numbers, for while the former will have but about 612 delegates, the latter will in all probability exceed the 5,000 mark.

The Brotherhood leaders have taken full advantage of the fact that the Triennial Convention is so near and many who will take a leading part in the church's general council will also be heard at the great public mass meetings in Carnegie Hall. There are a number of speakers who are known for their work in the nation as well as in the church—such men, for example, as Bishop Brent, of the Philippines, chairman of the International Opium Conference; Dean Sumner, of Chicago, whose work on the Chicago Vice Commission has attained a national prominence, and George Wharton Pepper, of Philadelphia, the distinguished lawyer and a leading figure in the House of Deputies. Bishops Greer, Burch, Burgess, Gailor, Lloyd, Lines, Moreland, Rhinelander and Woodcock all have places on the programme.

The religious services will be held in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, the Church of Zion and St. Timothy and the magnificent new St. Thomas' church on Fifth avenue, while the great public mass meetings—always a leading feature of Brotherhood conventions—as before mentioned, will go to Carnegie Hall.

The long varied program cannot be printed here, but it is of such interest as to appeal to all Christian workers. It is an inspiration in itself to see this great body of laymen in session, met for the furtherance of "Christ's Kingdom among men." The services and meetings are open to the public generally.

FEATURE PHOTO-PLAY.

"Captain Scott's South Pole Expedition" will be presented at the Plainfield theatre, this afternoon and evening, in four reels of photo-plays. This is considered one of the most remarkable pictures yet produced, and gives one a graphic idea of the hardships encountered by Captain Scott on his trip.

FRANK COMMUNE.

Frank Commune, 49 years old, of 826 St. Mary's avenue, died in Muhlenberg Hospital shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon. He was admitted to the institution last Friday suffering with a complication of diseases. He is survived by his widow and three children.

PROCTOR'S JUBILEE BILL.

The jubilee week vaudeville program at Proctor's theatre comprises many novelties and altogether it is one of the most popular offered in some time. Mabel Burnell, the "Queen of Electricity," presents a scientific and entertaining act. Muriel and Art Valli offer a burlesque mind-reading, cartoon and sleight-of-hand act that is clever. Morris and Harris, in their dainty musical skit, "On a Country Lane," made a hit, while Fox and Fox are exceptionally funny comedians. Edward Crapo & Co., in the "Gladiator and the Nymph," give a pantomime classical dance of unusual merit. The whole bill is a fine one.

MASSACHUETTS HAS ITS PRIMARY TODAY

Two Candidates for G. O. P. Gubernatorial Nomination Excites Some Interest.

Boston, Sept. 23.—State primaries are held today throughout the State of Massachusetts to select the candidates for the various places upon the State ticket to be voted on at the coming State election in November. The absence of national features at the November election this year naturally has a tendency to diminish the general interest of the voters in the election and in a greater measure even in the primary election preliminary to the general election. Yet it would be wrong to assume that there is no interest manifested in the outcome of the primaries. The political situation is sufficiently interesting to bring out partisan feeling and it is believed that a large vote will be polled today.

As today's election is merely held for the purpose of selecting candidates for the candidates on the various party tickets at the coming election the outcome of today's primaries will not necessarily foreshadow what the result will be when it comes to the actual test of strength between the different parties at the November election. Yet politicians are looking forward with considerable interest to the announcement of the figures showing the result of today's vote. It will be possible to draw many conclusions from the vote pulled by the various candidates, as it will indicate, to some extent, their potential strength with the voters of their respective parties.

The Democratic party has only one candidate for governor in the field Lieut. Gov. David I. Walsh, the slate candidate of the Democratic State Committee. It may be taken for granted that he will receive the full Democratic vote. His running mate on the slate ticket, Richard H. Long, who is candidate for the nomination for Lieutenant Governor, will probably meet with considerable opposition, as there is an independent candidate in the field for the lieutenant governorship nomination on the Democratic ticket, Edward P. Barry, who has conducted a vigorous campaign during the last few weeks.

For the gubernatorial nomination on the Republican ticket two candidates are competing, Col. Everett C. Benton, the head of a big insurance concern, and Hon. A. P. Gardner, who at present represents the Sixth Congressional District of Massachusetts in the National House of Representatives. Both candidates have been extremely active during the weeks preceding the primary election and each of them has a strong following. Opinions differ widely as to the probable outcome of the contest between them.

For the second time in the history of the State the Progressive party has a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination in the field. Charles Sumner Bird, who was nominated for governor at the primaries last year, but defeated at the election in November, is again candidate for the nomination and there is not the slightest doubt that he will receive the full Progressive vote. Many are inclined to believe that Mr. Bird will draw a large vote owing to the split in the Republican party, but there is probably no one sanguinical enough to believe that his candidacy would have any material influence upon the result of the coming November election.

In addition to candidates for governor and lieutenant governor the voters of Massachusetts will select candidates for Secretary of State State treasurer, attorney general and auditor, eight members of the Governor's council and members of both branches of the State Legislature. The selection of the minor State candidates is attracting but little general interest and the selection of legislative candidates is, as a matter of course, only of local interest in each respective district.

CARLOAD OF RIFLES FOR MEXICANS HELD

Meridan, Miss., Sept. 23.—In the shifting fortunes of war in Mexico, it seems that a carload of rifles has been abandoned by the owners and despite the fact that the consignment is worth many thousands of dollars there is a probability that it will be sold in order to satisfy some small claims against it. The matter will be discussed before the court here tomorrow. The car of rifles was discovered several months ago by agents of the Department of Justice. Their vigilance evidently unsettled the plans of the owners as the car was ordered from place to place on the Mobile and Ohio Railway in this State. Finally the rifles were unloaded into a warehouse here. With the passing of time the owners apparently have lost their desire to obtain the shipment and in the tangle of many changes, in billing there is considerable doubt as to who has any right to give orders in regard to the handling of the consignment. There is an excellent chance, local lawyers say, of the rifles remaining out of action for many months to come.

PUBLIC SCHOOL DEFECTS.

Quite recently, Edward Bok took the American colleges to task in The Outlook claiming that they were not "making good." He based his case on the fact that young men and young women are turned out in the world by these institutions deficient in the rudiments. An investigation he conducted in a somewhat novel way convinced him that his accusation was well founded. He had written to some hundreds of members of graduating classes in colleges for men asking them to answer several questions. These same questions he propounded to some hundreds of senior class girls in other institutions. A trifle less than a third of the letters he received from the young men failed to reach a passing mark of seventy per cent. in composition, grammar, spelling and the quality of English. As to the young women, more than a third fell below the fixed mark.

But just why the American colleges are to be blamed for this lamentable condition, Mr. Bok did not explain, Possibly they are at fault in allowing the young people to matriculate who are not proficient in what it is the function of the grammar and high school to teach.

The public school, and for that matter the private school too, are to be held responsible for the fault Mr. Bok charges up to the college and seminary. Only the other night, in an address delivered here, Dr. Prince, of Columbia University, censured the public schools for sending their pupils to the higher institutions of learning without having drilled into them a correct knowledge and use of the English language and fundamental branches including arithmetic and geography. He may have had Mr. Bok's criticism in mind at the time for his answer was both direct and complete.

The trouble with our public schools today is that too much attention is paid to the higher branches and not enough to the rudiments. They seem to try to force in the curriculum of the high school Latin, French and other studies, of little practical use to the average youth who must go out in the world on the completion of his course to the sacrifice of the essentials. The only purpose that these studies serve is to make the top of the school system as high as possible in order to allow the graduates to enter college. In fact this is the indictment made against our public high school, that it is being used as a preparatory school for college. Only a very small proportion can afford to go to college and the public must pay for their preparation at the expense of the big majority who must start at once to earn a livlihood.

The purpose of the American system of free education was to teach the girls and boys the rudiments, but it seems it has been swung away from that idea. "The Three R's" once was the popular slogan, but it is no longer. The boy and girl coming out of the high school today has a smattering of Latin, Greek, trigonometery and basketball, but they are woefully lacking in the application of the English language and in the rudiments generally. Every parent is or should be cognizant of this condition. It is a very serious matter.

A GRADUATE SCHOOL.

The new Princeton Graduate College, the first of its kind in this country, will be opened tomorrow. It is believed by the founders of this college that its opening will mark an important development in college education in the United States. The only institutions of a similar kind are to be found at the Fellows' College at Oxford, at Cambridge, England and in connection with several continental universities.

The need of a graduate college has been felt for a long time at Princeton. It was first mentioned during the regime of President Wilson, and plans for carrying the work were started shortly afterward. Graduate work has been included in the courses of the university since 1877, during the administration of President James McCosh, when Princeton was still the "College of New Jersey." No attempt was made to give graduate students a separate home until "Merwick," an estate of eleven acres in Bayard lane, was purchased a few years ago as a temporary residence hall.

The number of students was limited to fourteen, with allowance for twelve more at the table. An additional house was secured recently, affording lodging for eight students, while all others who take courses in the graduate school entirely depend upon the rooms in the university and upon town rooms.

Under the rule of the university allowing a certa'n number of graduate fellowships, some of the scholars are employed as substitutes and assistants in the various courses which they are pursuing, and accommodations are given to them in the dormitories.

The present equipment of the graduate college consists of five large and handsome buildings, entirely fireproof, heated with steam and lighted with electricity. All students' rooms are completely furnished, including even window curtains, bedding and bed linen. A single suite includes usually a bedroom and a well-lighted study. The present capacity of the graduate college is 102 students and it is expected that in a year or two it will be possible to accommodate considerable more students.

Regret over the resignation of Rev. William S. McCoy is not confined to Holy Cross, the parish he has well served for the last two years, for the townspeople generally who have the pleasure of knowing him will be sorry to see his departure. Mr. McCoy is a broad, liberal minded and genial man who is quick to make friends and who keeps them.

FRIENDS SERVICE FOR MISS LIDIA TOWNSEND

The funeral service of Miss Lidia A. Townsend was held at 3:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of her brother-in-law, T. J. Nicholl, at Fanwood. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. W. D. Williams, of the Religious Society of Friends, of which Miss Townsend was a life-long member, made the address at the service referring to the exemplary Christian life of the departed.

The burial was in the Scotch Plains cemetery and the pall-bearers were Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur, J. M. Bettman, of this city; Dr. F. W. Westcott, of Fanwood; Gage Walker, of Scotch Plains; Robert L. VanDyke, of Westfield, and John A. Rawson, of East Halstead, New Hampshire.

Miss Townsend was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Tappen Townsend and was born in Albany, N. Y., where she resided for a number of years. She removed from Brooklyn to Scotch Plains in 1870, and later came to this city. She was a member of the Religious Society of Friends, Plainfield meeting, and was always interested in the work of the society.

There survives a brother, Stephen Townsend, of this city, and the following nieces: The Misses M. Florence Nicholl and Louise Townsend Nicholl, of Scotch Plains; Mrs. R. L. VanDyke, of Westfield, and Mrs. J. A. Rawson, of East Halstead, N. H. Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur is a cousin of the departed.

SULZER MUST GO TO TRIAL, RULING

Albany High Court, 51 to 1, So Decides.

WENDE ALONE IN NEGATIVE

Final Objections to Be Made Today by Lawyers For Defense That Some of Accusations Against Governor Are Unimpeachable Offenses.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Following an overwhelming vote of 51 to 1 by the impeachment court that the assembly had the right to impeach William Sulzer, his trial was resumed here today.

Senator Gottfried H. Wende of Buffalo, a Democrat, an ardent supporter of the governor, cast the solitary nay. Senators Brown, Bussey, Fitzgerald, Thomas, Walters and Wheeler and Judge Gray were absent.

This was the second setback for Mr. Sulzer. The first was the decision last Friday overruling the challenges against four senators as members of the court.

Lawyers Make Last Stand.

Today found the lawyers for the respondent making their stand in the last line of the preliminary defense. D-Cady Herrick of counsel for Mr. Sulzer and Edgar Truman Brackett for the board of impeachment will present argument for and against the proposition that some of the offenses charged against Mr. Sulzer—his alleged juggling of the campaign fund and the use of some of the funds contributed to his campaign in Wall street speculation—are unimpeachable offenses. Three of the eight articles of impeachment are based on the disclosures made in this connection before the Frawley committee first and subsequently before the board of impeachment managers.

Should today's battle end with a decision adverse to Mr. Sulzer, an attack on the form of the impeachment will be the only thing to intervene before the charges contained in the articles of impeachment will be squarely before the high court on an issue of facts.

The Sulzer attorneys returned to the fray before the high court of impeachment yesterday afternoon. The validity of the impeachment of the governor was still the object of their attack. Louis Marshall of New York continued with the reading of his brief which was in progress when the court adjourned on Friday afternoon.

The galleries were again well filled when the court opened. More than 200 women sat in the steeply sloped seats at the west end of the chamber. There were seventeen absentees among the judges and senators.

Cites Many Authorities.

Mr. Marshall devoted much time to the citation of authorities. He amplified his contention that the act of the assembly in bringing in the articles against the governor was legislative instead of judicial, as is the contention of the assembly managers who are Sulzer's accusers. He reviewed special legislation since 1875 to show that there was no subject matter brought before any legislature that was not taken up on the governor's initiative.

The assertion of the Sulzer accusers that the impeached governor should not try to hide behind technicalities but should appear in the open and face the charges made, Mr. Marshall dismissed with a spurt of cyclonic oratory in which he declared that it would be 'a sad day in our judicial history when reliance upon the constitution and the law were to be regarded as technical."

Judge Alton B. Parker answered Mr. Marshall's argument. Judge Parker took exception to the contentions of the defense and declared emphatically that the suggestion that the governor could have any part in impeachment proceeding w s absurd. "Any one who knows or is capable of knowing the difference between judicial and legislative bodies would realize that the assembly always has the power to impeach," he declared.

Impeachment Judicial.

"The objections raised here," he continued, "arise from a misapprehension of the nature of the proceeding itself, or confusion of the nature and purpose of an extraordinary session of the legislature with that of an impeachment by the assembly. Such impeachment is not in any sense a legislative, but a judicial subject and proceeding. It is in no sense a rule or guide after the manner of legislative acts or the control of future conduct, but a complaint and accusation and calling to an account, by a quasi judicial tribunal, of a person for past misconduct. It is of the precise nature of a proceeding by a grand jury in the finding of an indictment. Nor is there any more connection or relation between an impeachment by the assembly and a session of the legislature than there is between such a session and the ordinary proceedings of a grand jury in the finding of an indictment."

Judge Parker then discussed the question of the makeup of the legislature and defined just what a session consists of. While both branches are a single indivisible body, he said, neither can at any time be divested of its separate functions

"The governor has nothing whatever to do with an impeachment." Judge Parker continued. "The power of impeachment is vested solely in the assembly. In short, the objection to the validity of this impeachment, stripped of its verbiage, is that the assembly is not an assembly when the legislature is in session. But as a matter of law the general power of impeachment by the assembly, by a vote of the majority of its members, carries with it the necessity as well as the power and the duty to obtain that vote at any proper time by any proper means. There is no limitation in the constitution and can be none elsewhere as to the manner, the time, place or circumstances at, by or under which this may be done."

HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS STRIKE

Demand Shorter Hours and Freedom of Fraternities In Syracuse.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 23.—More than 1,500 students in two high schools struck for shorter hours, better food in school lunchrooms and to have a resolution for abolition of fraternities abolished.

Students paraded the streets and made demonstrations in front of the office of the superintendent of education and other high schools, where the teachers locked the doors. The police were called, but were not needed.

The students hired a band and bought up all the horns in the city to let people know of their troubles.

C. church, where a high mass was conducted by Father Daniel Hogan, the assistant pastor. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and many beautiful floral tributes.

CONSIDERABLE MALARIA IN THE WEST END OF CITY

Malarial fever has appeared in the west end of the city and a dozen or more families have become afflicted with the ailment during the past week. It has become so prevalent in one section that physicians in charge of the cases instituted an investigation and found that the place was over run with malarial mosquitoes that have evidently had their breeding place in two stagnant ponds at Rock and Rushmore avenues.

The small pools of water are in a filthy state at the present time and forms an ideal place for mosquito breeding. Old cans and refuse of every sort have caused a thick, slimy, green scum to form on the surface of the water and in this the insects breed rapidly. A resident of the west end reported the existing conditions to the Board of Health this morning and Health Officer Randolph Chandler took immediate measures to abate the nuisances and it is probable that the spread will be checkked at once.

BOB VEAL IS FOUND BY HEALTH BOARD

Meat Prohibited by Law to Be Sold Confiscated in Two Shops.

As the result of the inspection of butcher shops in the city of Plainfield made by the local Board of Health, ninety-six pounds of Bob veal were confiscated last Thursday from two butcher shops doing business in the west end of town and put in cold storage.

Dr. Shaw, of the State Board of Health, came to Plainfield Saturday at the request of the local board and he inspected the meat and found the calves had been killed under the legal age and the carcasses were then condemned and destroyed.

This matter comes under the direction of the Department of Pure Foods of the State Board of Health and drastic action may be expected in the matter. The Board of Health has for a long time past suspected the sale of bob veal and these butcher shops have been under close surveilance.

In order to give all who wish to see these remarkable pictures an opportunity to witness them they will also be shown on Friday evening. It is one of the conspicuous contributions of the motion picture industry to the cause of religious education. It is to be shown at this time for the purpose of supplementing the Sunday-school lessons now being studied which have to do with the life of Moses.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 10.

LET'S suppose you have a room for rent.

There are several ways in which you can let people know about it.

First, you can tell all of your friends. And you can ask them to tell all of their friends. Maybe, if the telling keeps up long enough and reaches far enough, somebody will eventually be found who will come and take a look at that room.

Or you can put little cardboard signs in your downstairs windows, reading: "ROOM FOR RENT." Hundreds of people pass your house every day. Possibly one out of every hundred will see the signs, and one out of every thousand will be looking for a room.

Both of these ways are inexpensive. They're all right, too—that is, if you don't care whether you rent that room next week, or Christmas after next Christmas.

But most people who have rooms for rent want to rent them as quickly as possible. How can you reach the people who are looking for rooms? Listen, and I'll tell you: Through the Classified columns of a good newspaper—a little Want Ad. will hunt out and reach the very people you want to reach. And that method is inexpensive, also.

Just try it. Next time you want to rent a room, write a little WANT AD. and put in this newspaper. People who want a room will see that ad. because they'll be looking for it, and—well, then it's up to you to take care of them when they write or call.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

The Housewife's Daily Economy Calendar

FRANCES MARSHALL

Quickly Made Invalid Dishes.

Sudden illness sometimes demands invalid food that can be quickly made. And when a housewife must play the part of nurse, quickly and easily made invalid dishes are again in demand.

An Easy Broth.

This is the easiest sort of beef or mutton broth: Order a pound of lean meat and put it through a chopper. Cover it with a pint of cold water and let it stand fifteen minutes. Then boil it slowly for thirty minutes and strain it. Season it and serve it very hot.

With Eggs.

Eggs always form a staple of invalid diet. A nicely poached egg is appetizing and nourishing and can be eaten by anyone who is not on a strictly liquid diet. If you have only one egg to poach you can do it in a big iron or granite spoon or ladle. Put a little butter in the spoon, melt it, and hold the spoon in a saucepan of boiling water. Hold a cover over the saucepan, so that the top of the egg will cook. Serve it on a little round of crustless toast, softened for a moment in the steam. Coddled eggs, too, are easily digested. To make them have the water boiling hot, put in the eggs, cover them tightly, take from the fire, and let them stand six or seven minutes.

Custard, of course, is a good invalid dish. For soft custard heat a pint of milk, sweeten it to taste, beat two eggs up thoroughly, gradually add the hot milk to them, and stir in a double boiler until moderately thick. Flavor with a drop or two of vanilla.

Orange whip is appreciated by invalids. Whip the white of an egg stiff and add a little sugar, a little orange pulp and a little orange juice—not enough to thin the egg perceptibly. Serve in a long-stemmed glass with orange juice around it.

Beverages.

Grape juice, orange juice and lemonade can usually be given as beverages to any one ill. But the doctor's permission should of course be obtained.

Toast tea is thirst quenching to anyone who has a fever, and it is harmless. To make it soak well made—brown but not charred—toast in water for thirty minutes, and then drain off the liquid. Serve it slightly chilled.

This barley water may not seem to be a quickly-made dish but it is easily made, and is ready in the morning if started at night. Wash a tablespoonful of pearl barley, add two or three lumps of sugar, the rind of a lemon and the juice of half of one. Pour a quart of boiling water over it, let it stand eight hours—or over night—and strain it.

Scalloped Borders for Embroidering Household Linens and Underwear.

A scalloped edge is such a satisfactory finish for an article for, if it is well padded, it is very strong and stands the laundering much better than hemstitching. Consequently it is being used on all kinds of household linens, dresses and underwear. A spray of flowers or conventional design, just above a scallop, makes it decorative without being elaborate.

These five scalloped borders are all very simple and the designs may be embroidered in heavily padded solid work and eyelets. The larger flowers may be developed in outline and seed-stitch. Mercerized cotton should be used for this work, for silks should never be used on articles which are to be laundered. These designs may be embroidered entirely in white or a color may be used.

Patterns numbers 12271 and 14492 are appropriate for trimming waists, dresses, neckwear, underwear and children's clothes of handkerchief linen, lawn, fine batiste, marquisette or voile. Patterns numbers 12243, 12266 and 14404 are suitable for use on negligees, chemise, drawers and petticoats as well as towels, pillow cases and bedroom furnishings.

Pattern number 12271 is one and one-half inches wide and three years long; number 12243 is two and one-half inches wide, three yards long; number 12266 is two and one-fourth inches wide, three yards long; number 14404 is two and one-half inches wide, three yards and four corners in the pattern and number 13392 is one-inch wide with six yards and four corners in the pattern. These designs will be supplied to readers for ten cents each.

Some Cookery Suggestions

PICKLED VEGETABLES.

NEARLY all vegetables may be pickled and in this style make nice relishes for the winter.

Green Corn Pickle.—Take twelve ears of corn, one head of cabbage, two tablespoonfuls of salt, one cupful of sugar, one-quarter pound of mustard and one-half gallon of vinegar. Chop the cabbage, sprinkle with salt and let stand overnight. In the morning add corn cut from cob, with two chopped red peppers and one tablespoonful of celery seed. Mix all together with the mustard moistened with vinegar. Add more vinegar and cook fifteen minutes.

The Homely Onion.

Pickled Onions.—Take half a peck of small white onions, leave in water overnight, peel and put in water again overnight, adding a handful of salt. Next morning lay the onions on a cloth to dry. Boil three quarts of vinegar, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, one-third handful of ground allspice, four or five bay leaves and one-half handful of whole black pepper. Put the onions in a jar and cover with the vinegar and add a half teaspoonful of ground red pepper. Seal.

Spiced Tomatoes.—Take a peck of green tomatoes, six large onions and one cupful of salt. Let them stand overnight. Drain and cook fifteen minutes in two quarts of water and one of vinegar. Drain again and cook fifteen minutes in the following: Two quarts of vinegar, two pounds of brown sugar, two tablespoonfuls each of cloves, allspice, ginger, mustard, cinnamon and one teaspoonful of cayenne pepper. Use ground spices and boil in a bag. Put in jars when hot and seal.

Nice With Cold Meat.

Pickled Red Cabbage.—Chop one gallon of red cabbage fine and add one-half cupful of salt. Put in stone jar. Over this pour boiling water. Cover and let stand until cold and then drain through a cloth. Pour on more boiling water, drain as before and add one cupful of grated horseradish. Over this pour two quarts of boiling vinegar to which two cupfuls of sugar have been added. Cover and let stand until cold.

Pickled Cucumber.—Pare cucumbers that are mature, but not dead ripe. Cut lengthwise and scrape out the seeds with the soft pulp. Cut into pieces of convenient size and fill a stone jar with alternate layers of cucumbers and salt. Leave covered until next day; then wash and drain. Put into the pickling kettle and cover with vinegar and water in equal parts. Boil for ten minutes and drain. Make a pickle of one quart of vinegar, one and one-half pounds of sugar, whole cloves and cinnamon to taste. Boil for one minute and skim; add the cucumbers and simmer until they are soft. Take out the small bags in which are the spices; lift the cucumbers and pack into jars. Let the sirup boil five minutes longer and pour over the cucumbers and seal.

They Started to Mix the Cake.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — How Florrie's Daddy Helped With the Cake.

EVELYN had learned to bake a cake. Dinah taught her how. The cake was only a small one, and Evelyn and Jack had eaten it when baked. Daddy got none. He had to take their word for its being a good one.

"Some day I'll bake one for you all by yourself," Evelyn promised.

"All right," daddy answered. "But I won't promise to help you bake it. I don't want to get into trouble as Florrie's daddy did.

"You see, it was this way: Florrie's mamma had taught her how to make a nice cake.

"After awhile Florrie's mother showed her how to make icing, and, you know, iced cake is fine. Florrie and her little sisters loved it, and so did Florrie's daddy.

"One day Florrie's mamma went to the city to do some shopping. Florrie's daddy was at home on his vacation.

"When her mother was gone Florrie turned to her daddy and said, 'Let's s'prise her with a cake.'

"'Oh, yes, let's!' chorused Florrie's two little sisters, who liked cake.

"'Why, sure,' agreed their daddy, 'if you think we can make one!'

"'Oh, yes, indeed,' Florrie replied: 'I can make a cake all by myself!'

"'Oh, of course, I'll help you!' he agreed.

"And then they started to make the cake. Florrie told daddy what she wanted, and he handed it down from the pantry shelf to the little sisters. They carried it to the table where Florrie was mixing the cake.

"Everything went beautifully. The cake took on just the right tint of gold. It rose splendidly in the oven.

"'We'll make an icing cake,' Florrie told her helpers, and daddy brought the powdered sugar, or, at least, what he thought was powdered sugar, and they mixed the icing.

"They spread it on the cake and then set it away until tea time.

"When her mother came home Florrie told her about the cake that they had made. They had the table set, the tea was standing on the stove, and everybody sat down to eat. There were peaches and cream with the cake.

"Florrie took the first bite. 'Why, there's something wrong with the icing!' she cried.

"And so there was. The icing was nothing but a paste. It never would be anything but paste because her daddy, who was so sure he could help make a cake, had handed her the cornstarch jar instead of the confectioner's sugar. And if I were Florrie I would be careful how I let him help me make another cake, wouldn't you?"

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

At a meeting of the junior class last Friday it was decided to get rings instead of class pins.

Miss Agnes Boxold, librarian and substitute history teacher, spent the week-end at her home in New York.

Following the rule established by Paul A. Mertz, Miss Ray, the English instructor, has decided that book tests and outside reading will again be compulsory to every English student.

The Misses Amelia and Margaret Brizzy, formerly of Washington, D. C., but now of the borough, have entered the High School sophomore and freshman classes, respectively.

The Sigma Gamma Kappa are planning to give the members of the freshman class a reception at the Y. W. C. A. next Friday evening. Miss Lucy Douglas, president of the club, is chairman of the entertainment committee.

About fifteen members of the High School enjoyed a pleasant evening as the guests of the Misses Elizabeth and Ethel Hillpot at their home on East Fifth street last Saturday. Cards and games were played and a little before midnight light refreshments were served. Those who were present are Ethel Hillpot, Elizabeth Hillpot, Jubilee Rowley, Mabel Douglas, Dorothy Martin, Lillian Spencer, Madeline Blair, Marion Blair, Marielle Dunham, Ralph Smalley, Duclos Van Mater, Ashley Burner, Franklin Lowe, Charles Beckman, Hoyt Tomkinson, Roy Love and Frank Dunning.

The new singing books have at last arrived. They are the same style as have been in use for many years in the High School.

—Every day is "Election Day" with the shoppers of this city. Every day some store receives a vote of confidence, presaging continued support, from the housewives. The store whose ads present the widest variety of opportunity news is "elected," always. For such a store brings ACTUAL RELIEF to the people from the oppression of high prices—not, as is often true in politics, mere promises of relief!

SLIP-ON FROCKS PRACTICAL FOR SCHOOL

Although lines are simple, with a little thought it is easy enough to get away from the commonplace in children's fashions. The quaint patterns in materials which grown-ups are so partial to at the moment are, many of them, quite as suitable and becoming to small folks. Brightly hued plaids relieve effectively dull school dresses and dark coats. Figured silks and challies are especially pretty in the small wardrobe.

For general wear the Balkan dress, slipping on over the head, middy blouse fashion, is one of the most novel and most practical fashions for little girls. The underwaist, to which the skirt is usually attached, allows the weight to depend from the shoulders, an excellent thing for a growing girl. No. 7962 illustrates nicely one of these models with a full length undersleeve of figured net. This dress may be copied for size 8 with 2½ yards of 36 inch material and 1¼ of contrasting material for underwaist and sleeves.

Drop-shoulders are as much a feature of small dresses as of large and lend the same style. The sleeves fit in smoothly or are slightly gathered. 7949 may be made dressy by the addition of a folded girdle. With the broad stitched belt it is an excellent school frock. Insets of plaid trim and brighten it. For size 10, 2⅝ yards of 36 inch material will be needed with ⅞ yard of plaid for trimming. Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

DO IT FOR PLAINFIELD

Flocking to the Standard of Plainfield and Prosperity

Gratifying Results—Merchants, Bankers, Manufacturers and Professional Men Vie With Each Other In Support of the Press' Gigantic Undertaking to Issue a Magnificent Trade at Home and "Made in Plainfield" Edition—Their Commendation of the Enterprise Gives Assurance of Unparalleled and Unbounded Success—Cyclone of Praise, the Cry Is "Onward! Put Plainfield on the Map!"

As the work of The Plainfield Press' Big Historial and Industrial Edition progresses, a quickening of interest is manifested by city officials, business and professional men, and grand endorsements of the undertaking continue to come in from all quarters, showing the hearty approval with which the work is being received and approved by the wide-awake and loyal sons who are striving to bring Plainfield more to the front.

Plainfield is just the place that strangers looking for new homes or factory sites should fully investigate before determining upon any other. All that is necessary is that they come and see the Fine, Prosperous City, and a single visit will convince them that it is the proper and best place in the world to locate, and it is to this end that The Press is hard at work on the greatest journalistic effort of its kind ever attempted in New Jersey, and the wide-awake and progressive merchants, manufacturers and others are pulling together and helping advertise and exploit Plainfield in a way that will do her a heap of good, and in a manner that she so justly deserves.

The Daily Press is one of your newspapers, your representative to the outside world, and Plainfield is largely judged according to its appearance. One of the greatest captains of industry has aptly said that a newspaper is the greatest and most just representative of the community in which it has its being. By it shall we be judged.

We have a representative in our territory now, who will doubtlessly call upon you and explain just what is to be accomplished, and just how it should be done. Give him a fair hearing. It will be worth your while, we hope. Let us build: It means work, but are we not a community of workers? We have much to offer, but few beneath the Heavens will know it unless we tell it. It will mean a bigger, better, more prosperous Plainfield, and we believe that all of our citizens are striving toward just that end. Let's get together and do the work in proper shape, and regard whatever you do towards making this Boom Edition a big success as your Thanksgiving contribution to the Progress and Prosperity of Plainfield.

Jumps Two Stories When He Realized He Had Been Discovered, but Captured by Police—Woman Says She Missed $24—Find That Sum on Him.

East Orange, N. J., Sept. 23.—By her presence of mind Mrs. Peter S. Richardson of 303 Grove street north caused the arrest of an alleged burglar, after she says she had discovered him in her home. The man leaped out of a second story window of the house when he realized he had been discovered, but was caught within a block by two policemen summoned over the telephone by Mrs. Richardson.

The man under arrest gave the name of Joseph C. Coles, eighteen years old, of 36 North Eighteenth street, East Orange. He had $24 when arrested, and Mrs. Richardson told the police she had missed that amount from a bureau drawer in her home.

When she started to enter the house she heard a noise in the second story that startled her. Then she heard a man's footsteps overhead. Leaving the front door ajar, so as not to make any noise, Mrs. Richardson ran across to the next house, where she telephoned for the police. Two policemen were started immediately for the Richardson home in an automobile.

They were within a block of the house when they met Coles running away. He was stopped and placed under arrest.

The policemen then learned from Mrs. Richardson of the robbery and took their prisoner to the police station. Entrance to the Richarson home was obtained by breaking the cellar door.

OIL EXPLOSION KILLS THREE

Mother and Two Children Set on Fire. Another Woman Dying.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 23.—A woman and her two children were burned to death, while another woman was so severely burned that she is not expected to recover, as a result of two explosions in this city, caused by pouring kerosene on smoldering fires in stoves. The dead are Mrs. Antonia Klaput of 149 Jackson street and her two children, Joseph, three years old, and Andrew, fifteen months old. Mrs. Yadwiga Philipoff of 50 Hermon street is in the St. James hospital as a result of the second explosion.

Mrs. Klaput's clothing caught fire and she was burned from head to foot and the night gowns of her children who stood nearby, were also ignited.

Mrs. Philipoff, too, was set on fire when she poured oil on a fire. Neighbors came quickly to her assistance and extinguished the flames, but she was badly burned.

ROB JERSEY CITY HOTEL.

Two Men Open Safe While Clerk Is Showing Guest to His Room.

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 23.—Charles Cook, night clerk of the Grand hotel at Washington and Montgomery streets, this city, was alone in the office when a stranger entered, registered and asked for a room.

Not having a boy available Cook took the man upstairs and showed him the room. When he returned to the office two men were going out the front door. Cook saw that the inner door of the safe, which he had left closed, was open, and he gave chase.

The men fled along Montgomery street to Green and then to York, where Cook lost track of them. He returned to the hotel and found that $400 had been taken from the safe. Two checks which were with the money had been dropped by the men as they went out the door.

LOCKJAW KILLS TWO.

School Children Die at Trenton After Being Vaccinated.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 23.—Lockjaw, following vaccination, caused the death here of Raymond F. Clee, five years old, and Catherine Flynn, seven, both pupils of the public schools of Morrisville, Pa., across the Delaware river. The children were obliged to be vaccinated at the opening of the school term, under a Pennsylvania law.

The vaccination work was done properly, but a few days ago at play the boy and the girl began to irritate the wounds on their arms. It is believed that the wounds were infected.

GIRL IN AUTO KILLS MAN.

Runs Down an Unidentified Foreigner at Phillipsburg—Friend Hurt.

Phillipsburg, N. J., Sept. 23.—An automobile driven by Miss Emma Scalla, daughter of Frank Scalla, proprietor of Scalla park, Washington, N. J., ran down and killed an unidentified foreigner. The accident occurred at New Village.

With the foreigner was another man, Stephen Slake, who was struck. Slake was taken to the Easton (Pa.) hospital in a critical condition.

PERCY CALLED ON THE BOSS AND LEFT HIS CARD

IN THE SPORTING SPOTLIGHT

AMERICA LEADS WORLD IN SPORTING EVENTS.

America's victory yesterday over Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, British golf professionals, when Francis Ouimet, a 20-year-old amateur, won the National Open Golf Championship at Brookline, gave the United States another pennant in world sports. In the principal sports America and England stand as follows:

Golf—Francis Ouimet, American, won National Open Golf championship and trophy.

Polo—The United States team defeated the British players in sensational matches at Meadowbrook.

Tennis—Maurice McLoughlin, of California, and his teammates won the Davis cup at Wimbleton against the tennis stars of the world.

Motor Boating—The Maple Leaf IV., the English craft, defeated the American entries at the Isle of Wight, the only British victory.

In Olympic athletic contests and yachting the preponderance of victories is strongly American although no contests of note have taken place this year.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor.

Query—A man goes to market to buy live stock, he has $100 to buy 100 head. He pays 50 cents each for hogs, $3 each for sheep and $10 each for cows. How many of each did he purchase?—P. K.

Answer—This is a problem in medial proportion. As often as the man buys four hogs, one sheep should be bought, so as to maintain the proportion, and eighteen pigs to one cow. Then it is a matter of combination. One combination is 94 pigs, 1 sheep and 5 cows.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Please translate the words beauty or pet into French. A French toy poodle has been biven to me and I wish to call him by a French name.—K. G.

Answer—Call the poodle Belle.

Sporting Editor:

Query—If two sisters married, one married Smith and the other married Knowles, would Smith and Knowles be brothers-in-law?—N. Y. Z.

Answer—No.

Sporting Editor.

Query—Please publish the scale of weights under which wrestling matches for the lightweight, middleweight and heavyweight championships are contested.—N. M. J.

Answers—Bantamweight, 105 pounds; featherweight, 115 pounds; lightweight, 135 pounds; welterweight, 145 pounds, middleweight, 158 pounds. Those over 158 pounds are heavyweights. The foregoing are the amateur classifications.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is is necessary for me to get a license for a motorcycle if I do not own the machine? C. M.

Answer—You will need a license.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Kindly let me know how many miles the fastest trains can cover in an hour? G. G.

Answer—The fastest speed recorded for a short distance was made by a Philadelphia and Reading train, in July, 1904. The distance of 4.8 miles was covered in 2 m., 30 sec., at the rate of 115.20 miles an hour.

Sporting Editor:

Query—When a vehicle is turning the corner, which wheels leave the ground first, the inside or outside? C. S.

Answer—The inside, always.

Sporting Editor.

Query—I got a postcard with the following numbers on it: "4-11-44," what do they signify? F. J.

Answer—The numbers represent a policy combination, probably some friend is kidding you.

In The Sporting Spotlight

You Can't Tell These Days.

It was a long and dreary day;
The players loafed and stalled
As if they all were stale and lame
And wished the game were called.
"Oh let us leave this place," said I,
"This game is on the blink."

"Oh, let us stick around some more,"
A friend replied to me,
"For they may start a fight before
The game is done," said he.

How many fans waited for a fight Saturday afternoon? Despite the raindrops that fell we were treated to some good spasmodic doses of the National Pastime at that.

Even our amateur baseball players have lately assumed a habit of starting riots. If they aren't careful they will be mistaken for National Leaguers.

Jack Martin, one of Plainfield's contributions to organized baseball dropped in yesterday afternoon. Jack made an excellent showing in the International League during the past season and although he sustained an injury to his knee in the final game of the season last Saturday, he will perform on Parker Field next Saturday afternoon when a bunch of International leaguers lineup against the Plainfield Pets.

Plainfield High School football candidates are putting in daily sessions of pigskin chasing and under the guidance of Coach Patch the eleven is gradually rounding into shape. The team this year will be light but the coaches hope to make up for weight by injecting an unusual amount of speed into the warriors. Bill Peacock is captain of this year's crew and is working hard to get his raw material into condition before the opening contest.

The announcement of Billy Coyle's probable withdrawal from football comes as a sad blow to local enthusiasts who have watched the sturdy little quarter-back perform for the church boys in many a gruelling gridiron battle. Coyle will have to attend business on Saturday afternoons this fall and winter and the sacrifice is as much of a blow to him as it is to the chances of the Holy Cross team winning another championship.

Somebody kicks in with the information that Official Scorekeeper William Conger, of the Pets, is about one thousand miles out of the way on his recently compiled averages. Conger has not been the official tally-keeper all the season, you know. Hence his failure to figure in the hits and runs of the games which are missing from his ledger.

In William H. Schooley, the Y. M. C. A. has a water competitor of championship qualities, and if the proposed aquatic team is formed he will probably be a consistent point winner for the local association. Efforts are now being made to form a Y. M. C. A. team and he is one of the many candidates who have signified their intention of trying out.

"When its all going out and none coming in," is being sung with much feeling by many baseball managers. But not so with the Plainfield leader, however, this is the time of the year when his turnstiles are unusually popular.

Declaim as he will that baseball is the national game, the fan who can go to the polls and vote his conviction in a regular, official municipal election is a mighty rare person. Sportsmen have hampered about baseball for decades but never before did they make it a political issue until Rock Island, Ill., in its election, came forward and dignified the game with a place on a political ticket. In Rock Island the voters were requested to ballot on the acquisition of a municipal ball park and the return of the city to the baseball map. The proposition was put squarely up to the citizens and so well did they respect the national game that the issue went through with a comfortable majority.

Something along the baseball line on the local ticket would be quite appropriate just at the present time when the fans are stirred up to the boiling point. Why not vote on whether or not to accept that Central New Jersey League pennant?

Soccerites in this city will be treated to another season of their favorite recreation once more if the present plans of the Plainfield Association Football Club's plans go through. A sport that was thought to have succumbed to the rugby game has come to life again. The re-organization of the old soccer league is the next move.

Not satisfied with heralding their rights on soap boxes in public squares and in the streets, the suffragettes have taken a hand in our great game of baseball. By pastiming they evidently expect to bat in some votes. The fans are the enemy who will have to be overcome.

GIANTS NOW HOLD A TEN-GAME LEAD

Only Six More Victories Needed to Clinch the National League Pennant.

With the American League race settled, and the Athletics in line for a conditioning period of two weeks before the series begins, the attention of the fans now turns to the Giants and the amount of time they will have to prime themselves for the baseball classic. The backsliding of the Phillies during the last two days at Chicago, where they dropped three out of four games, has simplified matters to such an extent that the Giants are now in a position to clinch the National League pennant about ten days before the big series begins.

At the close of yesterday's games—the Giants resting while the Phillies were getting an even break—there remained a margin of ten full games separating the Giants from the Phillies. McGraw's men have thirteen more games to play, four with Brooklyn this week, three with Boston, and six with Philadelphia next week. The Phillies have seventeen games to crowd into ten playing days—seven with Boston this week, four with Brooklyn, and six with the Giants next week.

Only three full games separate the Giants from the ownership of the National League pennant. Three victories by McGraw's men, coupled with the same number of defeats by the Phillies, will put the latter team beyond all chance of winning the pennant. Regardless of what the Phillies may do, the Giants will put themselves beyond danger by winning six of their remaining thirteen games. The Phillies could then win all their seventeen games and finish one game behind. With five victories in thirteen games for the Giants, the Phillies could only tie them by winning seventeen successive games.

N. P. H. S. STARS ENTER.

About twelve representatives of the North Plainfield High School's tennis interests have entered the interscholastic tournament to be held on the courts of the Plainfield Country Club next Saturday. N. P. H. S. recquet wielders entered this event last season but the school was not represented after the third round, the elimination process having proven fatal to all entrants.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL MANAGER.

Miss Lillian Spencer '17, has been elected manager of the North Plainfield High School girls' basketball team and is now arranging a schedule. The borough feminine quintet expects to play a number of games out of doors this season and are having baskets made to put up on the court in the rear of the Somerset School building.

LOCAL SCHOOL TEACHER SIGNS A CONTRACT TO PLAY LEAGUE BALL

As a rule, school teachers are not considered stars in the athletic world and seldom does one do anything in the sport world to attract any great amount of notice, but Plainfield has an exception to this rule in Carl Johnson, assistant manual training instructor in the local public schools. As told exclusively in these columns a few days ago Mr. Johnson attracted the attention of Jersey City International League club's management and was ordered to report to that team for a tryout. He was given his trial last Thursday when the Skeeters lined up against the Baltimore Orioles and it has since become known that the modest young ball player, who refuses to advance any information about himself, signed a contract with the Jersey City team. Johnson was used behind the bat for the Jersey City team and his work was so satisfactory that the Baltimore baseball writers touted him as the find of the season and predicted a brilliant future for him.

Johnson was formerly the star third baseman on the Hopewell Athletic Association baseball nine and has been sought by Jack Dunn, manager of the Baltimore Orioles, and Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Athletics, but Frank Chance beat these other pilots to it and put his Jersey City scouts on the teacher's trail. The peerless leader saw to it that Johnson was placed with the Skeeters, that club being a farm for the Highlanders and P. L. plans to have him join the New York American League outfit the latter part of the 1914 season.

Johnson resides on a farm near Hopewell and is at present teaching in the Plainfield public schools where he has been employed for the past two years. He is a graduate of Drexel Institute in Philadelphia and captained the college team in the year of 1911. During the season just closed with Hopewell he batted for a mark of .330 in twenty-two games and fielded .980. He stands up to the plate like Joe Jackson, the Cleveland swatsmith, and according to advices from big league scouts who have seen him play, he is a comer behind the bat and will soon break into fast company. In the game with Baltimore last Thursday, Johnson threw out four Orioles who tried to pilfer the keystone sack.

Salaries of Baseball Managers Have Taken a Big Jump

Baseball managers and players of a quarter of a century ago received salaries that appear ridiculous as compared with the fabulous sums which those of today are said to receive, according to information brought to light by a Chicago sporting writer:

"Cap" Adrian C. Anson is said to have received the princely sum of $2,700 for managing the Chicago White Stockings in 1888, the year after he had finished the season with a batting average of .421. And of this amount $700 represented his services as acting captain and manager of the team, the major portion being his salary as a player. R. E. Smith, of Chicago, claims to possess the contract.

Smith also has the contracts signed by N. Fred Pfeiffer and Edward N. Williamson when they consented to play in the Brotherhood league in 1889. These two players were talked of at that time as the greatest in the game. The Chicago club paid Williamson $3,000, while Pfeiffer, one of the greatest of all second basemen, received only $2,000 and the score card privilege.

A larger salary than any of those old time stars was paid to Charles Comiskey, present owner of the Chicago White Sox, when he jumped to the Brotherhood league. His contract, also held by Smith, called for $7,000 in 1890. Comiskey was then regarded as the dean of fielding first basemen, although he was not regarded as good at bat as Anson.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

REDEEMING THEMSELVES.

Hamilton, Mass., Sept. 23.—Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, the British professional golfers, played an exhibition match at the Myopia Hunt Club yesterday in a drizzle. Ray went over the 18-hole course in 76 strokes, par figures. Vardon picked up his ball after holing out at the seventeenth hole with a record of 72 up to that point.

DINNER FOR BOY WONDER.

Boston, Sept. 23.—Arrangements are being made by a number of Boston's most prominent golf leaders for a big golfing dinner at the Exchange Club in honor of Francis Ouimet, the 20-year-old Brookline lad, who on Saturday won the United States open golf championship title, defeating Harry Vardon and Ned Ray in the play-off, thereby keeping in this country this highest of all American golf honors.

FOOTBALL SEASON OPENS.

Swarthmore, Sept. 23.—The first accident of the season occurred yesterday afternoon when Jim Melick sustained a painful injury to his right shoulder. Trainer Roth fears the collarbone is broken. Melick was injured while taking his turn at falling on the ball. This is the first Garnet setback, as Melick was sure 'varsity material.

COBB SIGNS NOTES.

Washington, Sept. 23.—Collectors doubtless will be on the lookout soon for some national bank notes which were signed a few days ago by "Ty" Cobb, centrefielder of the Detroit Baseball Club. When the star player was here the other day he visited the treasury department. While being shown through he asked to see some of the bank notes of the "First National Bank of Lavonia, Georgia."

THREE JOBS FOR CY.

The veteran Cy Seymour has organized a strong semi-pro team to play in and around Greater New York, which has has named "Cy Seymour's Stars." He will be the captain, manager and center fielder of the team.

QUINN DROPS SPITBALL.

Big Jack Quinn, former pitcher of the New York Americans, who was bought by the Boston Braves from Rochester, is said to have given up the use of a spitter and has developed a puzzling curve ball.

TRAP SHOOTING TOURNAMENT.

The first annual trap shooting tournament of the Long Beach Gun Cluub will be held at Long Beach, L. I., Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. The tournament gives every indication of being one of the best contested events ever held in the vicinty, as it is under the personal supervision of the well-known professional trap shooter, Jack Fanning. The traps will be laid out on the beach in front of the Hotel Nassau with the blue rocks flying over the water. Trophies and money prizes to the amount of $50 will be distributed among the lucky shots for the three days' competition.

HOLY CROSS MAY PLAY THIS WEEK

Coach Martin Put the Candidates Through a Stiff Drill Last Night.

Coach P. V. Martin, of the Holy Cross football club, had eighteen candidates out for last night's practice, held on the field at East Seventh and Central streets and the boys were put through a hard three hours' workout, being drilled in line plunging, trick plays, kick formations and forward passing. The boys displayed lots of snap and enthusiasm in their workouts and Coach Martin said last night that he is certain that they will enjoy a most successful season.

Although Manager Doyle and his assistant, "Hap" Moran, are scouting everywhere for a game for next Saturday, it is doubtful that they will get one, as very few club teams have as yet organized and it is very likely that the local season will not open until Saturday, October 4. The schedule is practically completed and Doyle says that the very best elevens around these parts will be brought here this season and beaten to a frazzle by the local gridiron warriors.

"Wild Bill" Ruttledge, who holds out every season, has at last signed his contract and was in the game all the time last night. Coyle, Glover, Ruttledge, Bremble, Webster, Caulfield, Wilson, Hamilton, Carty and the Ricketts' brothers, of last year's squad, are with the locals again this year, and the new recruits are Frank Lee, Otto Moore, Walter Cumming, Richard Harrigan, Jack Mulford and L. Manning.

SECOND ANNUAL SCHOOLBOY COMPETITION ON COURTS

The second annual tennis tournament in boy's singles, for the interscholastic championship of Plainfield and North Plainfield, will be held on the courts of the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, September 27, commencing at 9 o'clock. The tournament will be continued on the following Saturday morning.

The event is open to all schoolboys residing in Plainfield and North Plainfield, who attend school in one of these two places. Boys residing outside of Plainfield and North Plainfield are not eligible. The tournament is given under the direction of the Princeton Club, of Plainfield. Entries close Friday, September 26, at 8 o'clock, with Albert D. Beers, 734 Watchung avenue, 'phone 975-J.

LEAGUE WINNERS RECEIVE TROPHY

First Baptist Champions Guests at a Banquet Given in Their Honor.

DONOR PRESENTS CUP

Speakers Urge Clean Living and Clean Sport—Twenty-five Attended Affair—Won Title During Their Initial Season.

Heralded as champions of a local league during its first season of baseball, the First Baptist nine, which recently won out in the Sunday-school race for diamond honors, proving its superiority over every other Bible school team in the city, was banqueted in the Probasco Bible Class rooms last night and the trophy significant of the flag winning was formally presented to the new champions. Dr. Norman H. Probasco, teacher of the Bible Class, named in his honor, of which all of the players are members, was master of ceremonies at last night's celebration and the athletes were dined by a committee of women who served a sumptuous repast.

Enthusiasm reigned supreme throughout the evening and the reminiscent stories of how the championship was won furnished plenty of entertainment both before and after the banquet. Dr. Probasco, the champion of the class, spoke to the diamond champions, congratulating them on their splendid work of the baseball season and making a plea for clean sports and clean living, a combination that would win any kind of a title in life.

Other speakers of the evening were Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church; Arthur M. Harris, donor of the two loving cups presented to the champion fielder and batter on the team; F. O. Dunning, president of the Sunday-school baseball league, and C. William Bingeman, boys' secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., who is one of the teachers in the Probasco class. Each of the speakers reviewed the qualities necessary to win a title on the athletic field and congratulated the players on their achievement. Following each speech the twenty-five athletes responded with a rousing cheer.

Leo Slonim, donor of the cup offered for the Sunday-school League championship was present at the banquet and presented the trophy to the 1913 flag winners. In awarding the handsome silver cup he intimated that clean baseball was an incentive to clean and straightforward dealings with fellow men and following the presentation he was cheered to the echo by the winners and their friends.

Those in charge of the dinner were the Misses Charlotte Tennyson, Alida White, Mrs. G. H. Robins, Mrs. Harold Serrell, Miss Marjorie Cubberly, Miss Marie Fountain and Miss Lillian Fountain.

ITALIAN STARS DEFEATED BY SOUTH PLAINFIELD

The South Plainfield A. A. defeated The Italian Stars from New Market yesterday by a score of 19 to 8. The battery was J. Dolan and Colfax while the battery for the Stars was A. Barone, a former Plainfield High School star, and Nola. Dolan twirled fine ball allowing six hits and securing sixteen strike outs.

FRENCH DEFEATED CHANDLER IN N. P. H. S. TOURNAMENT

One match in the North Plainfield High School tennis tournament was decided yesterday afternoon on the Park Club courts, when Elmer French, '15, defeated Lester Chandler, a fellow classmate, in two out of three sets. The scores were 6-2, 4-6, 6-0.

This afternoon Vincent LaPorte will play Frank Dunning in the semi-finals and Elmer French will be matched against Duclos VanMater in the second round. The winner of the latter match will play Hoyt Tomkinson in the second match of the semi-finals. The final match for the school championship will be played tomorrow afternoon.

LEAVES FOR COLLEGE.

Herbert Stine, winner of the cup offered for the best individual batting average to be competed for by members of the First Baptist baseball team, champions of the Sunday-school League, left today for Springfield, Mass., where he will enter the International Y. M. C. A. course to pursue a secretarial course. He was accompanied by C. William Bingeman, a graduate of the college in the year 1909, who will introduce Stine to his new surroundings and return to Plainfield tomorrow. George Townley, who was originally scheduled to accompany Stine, decided not to go at the last moment.

Beginning next Sunday the Sunday-school of Hope chapel will meet at 3 o'clock in the afternoon instead of 9:30 o'clock in the morning as before.

GERMAN'S OLYMPIC COMMITTEE RETURNS

A. C. Kraenzlein to Be Paid $10,000 to Train German Athletes for Event.

New York, Sept. 23.—The German Olympic Games committee, consisting of Lieutenant Richard von Reichenau, Dr. Martin Berner, Joseph Waltzer and Karl Diem, which arrived in this country a few weeks ago to make a tour of the large cities of this country with a view of studying conditions in the field of American athletics, sailed today from this port to return to Germany.

One of the most important results of the visit of the committee is the signing of a contract with Dr. Alvin C. Kraenzlein, holder of two world's hurdle records and one of the best all-round athletes during the latter part of the nineties, to prepare and train the German athletes for the Olympic games to be held at Berlin in 1916. The contract is for five years and is said to guarantee to Mr. Kraenzlein a salary of $10,000 a year. The appointment of Mr. Kraenzlein as coach and trainer of the German athletes is considered in athletic circles as a tribute by Germany to America and a recognition of the superiority of American training methods over those in vogue in Germany and other European countries.

It is rather interesting in this connection to recall that a few years ago another American athlete, Ernie Hjertberg, was chosen by the Swedish Olympic commission to coach and prepare the Swedish athletes for the Olympic games which were held in Sweden last year. Hjertberg, like his colleague Kraenzlein, is a great all-round athlete and noted as an efficient coach and trainer, is still under contract with the Swedish commission.

Mr. Kraenzlein came to New York to confer with the members of the German commission before their departure, but he did not accompany them. It will occupy several weeks of his time to arrange his affairs in this country and it is not likely that he will sail for Germany before the beginning of next month.

FOOTBALL RULES.

New York, Sept. 23.—The annual conference between the intercollegiate football rules committee, the central board of officials and the coaches and managers of college football teams, for the purpose of deciding various points in the interpretation of football rules will be held at the Hotel Manhattan this evening and a large attendance is expected. Several important questions which have arisen since last year's conference will be discussed and definitely settled.

MARTIN WITH BRAVES.

Jack Martin, having been drafted by the Boston National League baseball team recently, will report to that club at the beginning of next season. There was some doubt expressed regarding as to Martin's probable destination but he stated yesterday that he would go with the Braves at the opening of the 1914 season.

STOKES, FIELDER COLBY NOMINEES

Ex-Governor Easy Victor for G. O. P. Nomination Overwhelming Opponents.

ACTING-GOV. WINNER

Katzenbach Carries Essex and Mercer—Colby Buries Osborne—Some Returns From Various Parts of the State.

Trenton, Sept. 24.—Careful estimates of the voting in the primary election yesterday show that former Governor Stokes has swept the State in a splendid run, polling upwards of 75,000 votes, overwhelming his three opponents for the Republican nomination for Governor.

Governor Fielder has won the Democratic nomination for Governor over Katzenbach by about 30,000 plurality. Former Senator Everett Colby has been nominated by the Progressives easily over Osborne. As far as can be learned, with returns coming in very slowly, the State Committee contest resulted as follows:

Chairman Edward E. Grosscup has been re-elected to the Democratic State Committee in Gloucester by a plurality of 800; James R. Nugent, lieutenant of James Smith, Jr., and anti-Wilson candidate for the State Committee in Essex, is elected by a safe majority; French, an anti-Wilson man, is elected to the committee in Atlantic; General Collins, a strong adherent of Wilson, wins the committee post in Union. Without a doubt the Wilson forces will control the State Committee.

The only counties carried by Katzenbach were Mercer, which gave him a plurality of 2,163, and Essex, which gave him about 2,500.

Governor Fielder has carried the other counties by pluralities ranging from 200 in Hunterdon up to 10,000 in Hudson. Returns are meagre on the sensational voting. Assemblyman Charles M. Egan seems to have defeated Assemblyman Thomas F. Martin for the Democratic nomination for senator in Hudson count. As Martin was considered a winner, Egans' nomination is a victory for former Mayor Wittpenn, of Jersey City, who was bowled out of the gubernatorial race by President Wilson. Wittpenn has also nominated his assembly slate.

Former Senator Hutchinson has won the Republican nomination for Senator in Mercer over formerly Assemblyman Thompson.

The Democratic nomination for the Senate in Mercer has been won by J. A. Montgomery. In Morris county the Democratic nomination for the Senate has gone to Assemblyman James G. Lyons. In Ocean county, Thompson, Rep., again seems to have defeated Joseph Thompson for the Senate, and Frank R. Austin has won the Democratic nomination over William Blodge.

The meagre Progressive vote and the fine run made by Stokes has elated the Republican State leaders. They had figured that if the Progressives held upwards of 25,000 votes for their ticket in November, this would just about be sufficient to defeat the Republic candidates.

RESULTS OF PRIMARIES IN SOUTH PLAINFIELD

These are the results of the votes in South Plainfield:

Republican—For Governor, Carey 5, Fowler 6, Pierce 4, Stokes 9; State Committee, Marsh 24; Assembly, Sedam 25, Somogyi 18; Freeholders, Dayton 25, Demarest 21, Haven 20, Koch 21, Mason 20; Township Committee, Fitz Randolph 22; Constable, Egk 18, Fazerd 7.

Democratic—For Governor, Fielder 20, Katzenbach 3; State Committee, Scully 24; Assembly, Burton 23, Kirkpatrick 23, Quinn 23; Freeholders, Casey 22, Cohn 22, Dayton 20, Fallon 5, Gebhardt 21, Kerr 22, Miller 8, Stanley 4, Warnsdorfer 1; Township Committee, L. D. Randolph 2; Constable, Kerwin 8, Giden 9, Dufty 7, Kane 1.

SWEDISH LUTHERANS TO BUILD A CHURCH

The congregation of the Swedish Lutheran church has decided to erect a modern house of worship at 522 West Seventh street. The contract calls for a structure to cost $4,500 and workmen are about ready to start work.

Rev. Augustus G. Olsson, the pastor, states that the new edifice will seat 250 people and will be completed by November 15, when the dedication will take place. It wil be two stories and have a floor space of 30x50. The foundation will be of cement blocks. The congregation has been meeting on Grove street.

BORO ON COUNTY POLITICAL MAP

Linbarger and Sebring in Two Parties, Defeat Somerville Rivals.

FIELDER IS WINNER

Arnold Loses to Anderson—Returns Are Only Approximate, District Boards as Usual, Slow in Making Returns.

Somerville, Sept. 24.—The latest returns on the primary vote indicates that Walter C. Linbarger, of North Plainfield, has beaten L. A. Bellis, of this place, for the Democratic nomination for county clerk by between 50 and 100. In the latter's home town his majority over Linbarger was only about 15, while Linbarger swept his own home town.

For sheriff, Hamilton appears to have defeated Buck for the Democratic nomination by 150, and Charles P. Sebring, of North Plainfield, has defeated Joseph Fitza, for the Republican nomination for Sheriff. The result for State Committeeman between O'Donnell and Shurtz is still in doubt.

A. G. Anderson, the present county clerk, won a renomination over J. K. Arnold, of North Plainfield.

Fielder, Colby and Stokes were the winners for Governor in the three respective parties. As usual very few district boards have filed their returns up to noon today.

The total vote for the four districts in Bridgewater is as follows:

CARKHUFF-CLARKSON WEDDING SOLEMNIZED

Miss Ethel Clarkson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Clarkson, of Clinton avenue, and Joseph Carkhuff, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carkhuff, of West Third street, were married at noon today at the home of the bride, Rev. F. J. Hubach, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, officiating. Two matrons-of-honor attended Miss Clarkson, her cousin, Mrs. Charles Smith, of Westfield, and Mrs. George Keen, a sister of the groom. The bride wore a travelling suit of mahogany colored metlass and a velvet hat to match.

Following the ceremony at the house a wedding breakfast was served and the couple left immediately afterward for a honeymoon trip to Washington, D. C., Baltimore and parts of interest in Virginia. Upon their return they will reside at the home of the bride on Clinton avenue.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Carkhuff are well known in this city and borough, both having lived in Plainfield all their lives. Until last year the bride attended the Plainfield High School where she was a sophomore and took a prominent part in all of the school activities. Previous to entering the high school she attended the Franklin, Stillman and Whittier Schools and was a leader in every branch of the school work. Mr. Carkhuff is employed by the Central Railroad at its offices in Jersey City.

Expressman Alarms Police, and Auto of Mystery Is Sought.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—The police sent out a general alarm to all nearby cities for an automobile truck, heavily hooded with storm cloths and bearing two different Illinois license numbers.

Louis Bren, an express driver, who carried a huge trunk to a waiting auto, ran into police headquarters frightened out of his wits and reported that he had heard muffled groans issuing from the trunk. He furnished the police with a good description of the two men who speeded away in the truck.

SEBRING'S GREAT VOTE IN BOROUGH

Landslides for Him and Linbarger Mark North Plainfield Primaries.

COOLEY RENOMINATED

In North Plainfield, there were some contests in each primary, but the results were all decisive. For the nomination for Governor, in the Republican primary Stokes polled more votes than all his rivals combined. He received 157 and Fowler, second, 67. Fielder got more than double the total vote of Katzenbach in the Democratic primary, while in the Progressive, Colby received 13 and Osborne 1. The small vote of the Progressives was due to the disfranchisement by a court ruling as stated in yesterday's issue.

Majority Greater Than Blatz's Total Vote—Latter Sends Congratulations.

William G. DeMeza, the incumbent of the office, swept the city yesterday as he did at the Republican primaries three years ago for the city judgeship. His majority was greater than the total vote polled by his opponent, Councilman Francis J. Blatz. DeMeza carried all but two of the eighteen districts receiving a total of 957 votes, while Blatz obtained 408.

On the face of the return sheets filed with the City Clerk, errors in the count are apparent and this appears to be confirmed when a comparison is made with the tally sheets also on file. Votes cast for Republican candidates at the Progressive and Democratic primaries were wrongly Ex-Congressman Comes Back Defeating Stokes and Pierce for Nomination.

BABCOCK'S GREAT RUN

That Charles N. Fowler has not lost his hold on the Republican voters of Union county was conclusively proven in yesterday's contest for the gubernatorial nomination of that party. After having been retired from political life through the machinations of the Kean faction, the former Congressman proved that he could "come back," for he was yesterday given the high vote within the county, although the regular Republican organization was generally supposed to be supporting Senator Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford. Fowler not only defeated Pierce, but carried the coun-

INJURIES FATAL TO AUTO VICTIM

Little Theodore Davis, Jr., Dies as Result of Being Hit by Passing Machine.

SKULL WAS FRACTURED

Chauffeur Held to Await the Action of Grand Jury—Boy Rallied Last Night But Relapse Came at Early Hour This Morning.

Unconscious since he was struck by an automobile owned by Jacob Fass and driven by William Davis, a colored chauffeur, Theodore Davis, the six years old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Davis, of New street, died in Muhlenberg Hospital at 2 o'clock this morning. While the little fellow was known to be fatally injured, Dr. Brown, of New York, a brain specialist, examined the victim shortly before he passed away. He suffered from a fractured skull and numerous contusions about the body caused by the blow he received from the radiator of the machine.

As told in yesterday's issue of this paper, the boy was playing in the street with other companions of his own age, Monday night, when Davis drove his automobile through New street, and although the latter did everything in his power to avert the fatality, the youth became excited and dashed directly into the car as it passed at slow speed. The accident occurred directly in front of the Davis home and the victim was carried to the house by the chauffeur and later rushed to the hospital where he lingered between life and death until this morning. Dr. Norman W. Currie attended him at the institution and was constantly at his bedside yesterday.

The chauffeur of the machine gave himself up to the police immediately after taking the victim to the hospital and was held a prisoner at the local police headquarters to await the result of the child's injuries. Upon the death of the boy the driver of the machine was rearraigned and held without bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

The funeral will be held from the home of his parents in New street, tomorrow afternoon, at 3 o'clock, Rev. Edwin Shaw officiating. Interment will be made in Hillside cemetery.

LOUIS ROCTON DIES, AGED SEVENTY-TWO

Succumbs Following Operation for Cancer—Funeral on Friday.

Louis Rocton, aged 72 years, died in Muhlenberg Hospital, last night, following an operation for cancer. He was admitted to the institution on September 19. Mr. Rocton was born in France and had been a resident of this country for forty-three years, a great part of the time in this vicinity. He was a gardener and during his life he had earned a considerable fortune. There survive a wife and two daughters, Mrs. Henry Ryno, with whom he lived, and Mrs. Fergusson, of New York city.

The funeral service will be held at the late home, 145 Manning avenue, Friday morning at 10 o'clock. Rev. J. Y. Brock, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, will officiate.

AN ENTERTAINMENT.

The Dutch Arms Band of the Trinity Reformed church will render a concert program in Debele's Hall, on Chatham street, on Saturday night, under the auspices of the Swedish Lutheran church, and an excellent program of vocal and instrumental music is being planned for the affair. In addition to the rendition of selections by the forty piece brass band, Miss Florence Hendrickson, a noted violinist of Bayonne, will appear, and Miss Daisy Sambo, of this city, will also play the violin.

GRACE GEORGE TONIGHT.

One of the most important dramatic attractions of the local season will be the double bill of J. M. Barrie's playlet, "Half An Hour," and Stanley Houghton's three act comedy, "The Younger Generation," to be given at the Plainfield theatre, tonight, with Grace George in the leading roles.

STOKES FAVORITE OF LOCAL G. O. P.

Fowler Second and Pierce Third as Choice for Gubernatorial Nomination.

COLBY EASY WINNER

Osborne Badly Beaten in Progressive Primaries — Fielder Annihilates Katzenbach for Democratic—Other Results in Plainfield.

Some surprises were sprung at the primaries in this city yesterday and probably the chief one was the victory of Stokes for the Republican gubernatorial nomination and only second to this was that Pierce took third rank being led by Fowler. The vote: Stokes, 485; Fowler, 385; Pierce, 308; Carey, 75.

Fielder had things all his own way in the Democratic primary for the gubernatorial nomination as did Colby in the Progressive primary—Fielder, 413; Katzenbach, 85; Colby, 118; Osborne, 14. The Progressives apparently took little interest in the contest but this is explained since the court's ruling disfranchised a great many Bull Moose voters. It was held that those Progressives who had voted at the Republican primaries a year ago could not vote in the Progressive box this year.

There were two contests for State Committeemen, one in the Democratic and the other in the Progressive. Despite the boasts of Kelly's friends he went down in defeat, Gen. Collins' vote being 293 to Kelly's 154. Knapp, Colbyite, won in the Progressive primary, his vote being 73 to 35 cast for English, Osbornite. And so, Moy, Morrell and Fish, the Colby wing's Assembly choices, won out over the Osborne preferences in the same fashion.

As was the case in many places throughout the county, the Anti-"Elizabeth Hogging It" forces in the Democratic party won a victory for their Assembly selections, Linke, of this city, making a fine run and being high man, with Dobbins, of Rahway, second. McLaughlin, of Elizabeth, was third high man.

Babcock, Evans and Martin were nominated for the Assembly by the Republicans. Babcock got a flattery vote in his home city, being the highest man on the whole Republican primary ticket and leading his nearest opponent for the Assembly nomination by over 300 votes.

There were no contests here in the Republican and Democratic primaries for Freeholder, Doane and Wilbur being named by the former and Endress and Callahan by the Democrats. The Progressives made no nominations. Neither were there any contests in the respective parties for Common Council and Councilmen-at-large, their tickets as presented being nominated.

An account of the City Judgeship contest in the Republican party will be found in another column. The complete city returns tabulated, from which comparisons and detailed results may be obtained, will be found in this issue.

MIDDLESEX TAX RATES FIXED.

New Brunswick, Sept. 24.—The County Board of Equalization of Taxes has fixed the tax rates for the several districts in Middlesex county, with the exception of Piscataway Township and Middlesex Borough. Woodbridge has the highest rate, $2.29 on $100. This city comes next, with a rate of $2.21. This is nine points lower than it was last year, owing to the valuations throughout the county being raised and equalized. The rates for the other districts are as follows:

Cranbury, $1.38; Dunellen, $2.10; East Brunswick, $1.68; Helmetta, $1.35; Highland Park, $1.70; Jamesburg, $2.14; Madison, $1.38; Metuchen, $2.03; Milltown, $1.76; Monroe, $1.70; North Brunswick, $1.17; Perth Amboy, $1.98; Raritan, $1.90; Roosevelt, $1.82; Sayreville, $1.42; South Amboy, $2.08; South Brunswick, $1.51; South River, $2.10; Spotswood, $1.53.

P. B. A. CONVENTION.

The members of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, of this city, will attend the thirteenth annual convention of the State Patrolmen's Benevolent Association to be held in Bayonne, Thursday, October 2. The train will leave Plainfield at 11.20 o'clock in the morning.

TO CALL SCHIFF IN SULZER TRIAL

Counsel Continues Fight to Quash Charges.

RESULT STILL UNCERTAIN

Fox Resumes Argument to Throw Out Most Important Accusations—If Court Rules Against This Prosecution Will Present Evidence.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Jacob H. Schiff of New York will take the stand this afternoon as the first witness for the prosecution unless the impeachment court sustains the contention of William Sulzer's defenders that he cannot be tried for offenses that took place before he was governor. Mr. Schiff will testify that he gave Mr. Sulzer on Oct. 14, 1912, a campaign check for $2,500, which the candidate did not mention in his sworn statement.

As to whether or not the court will vote to quash the most important accusations of the impeachment managers by striking out the three articles relating to campaign money and falsifying a campaign statement as demanded by Governor Sulzer's lawyer no one can predict. But it may be said that the result is more uncertain than was that of the constitutional conflict as to the validity of the impeachment which the court decided against Mr. Sulzer.

Fox Resumes Argument.

When the court reconvened at 10 o'clock this morning Austen G. Fox of New York resumed his argument begun late yesterday afternoon for the elimination of impeachment articles Nos. 1, 2 and 6. He talked about an hour. That ended the ardent and exhaustive debate which was waged by D-Cady Herrick, Irving G. Vann and Mr. Fox for Governor Sulzer, and by Edgar T. Brackett, Alton B. Parker and Isidor Kresel for the impeachment managers. Then the court plans to take a vote, preceded by what promises to be at least an hour of discussion.

Bitter arguments, in which Governor Sulzer was referred to as "a thief and a perjurer" by the prosecution and in which the defense contended that the law absolves him from impeachment for offenses committed before taking office, marked the progress of the impeachment trial.

Before the adjournment yesterday three attorneys for the defense had elaborated various points of law which, they maintained, made it illegal and a menace to national liberty for the assembly to bring charges such as contained in articles 1, 2 and 6 of the impeachment. This contention they backed with the argument from D-Cady Herrick that, even if committed, the acts referred to do not constitute perjury, but merely error, subject to correction on demand. This argument followed announcement that Governor Sulzer had relinquished his executive duties pending the outcome of the trial.

Opposing the arguments for dismissal of the three articles, Edgar T. Brackett denounced the governor in scathing language and Alton B. Parker insisted that amendments to the constitution in 1848 had swept aside all restrictions as to the articles of impeachment.

The arguments in support of the motion were presented by D-Cady Herrick, Austen G. Fox and Harvey D. Hinman, the latter reading a brief by his colleague, Irving G. Vann., who was unable to be present because of illness.

Mr. Herrick's Points.

Holding that the failure of the governor to file a complete and accurate statement of campaign contributions did not constitute "any offense recognizable by our laws," Mr. Herrick summed up his points on articles 1 and 2 as follows:

"The election law does not require a statement of contributions made to a candidate.

"The failure of a candidate to file the statement required by this act is not an offense, but subjects him to a peremptory demand by a court to perform this duty.

"William Sulzer never received such a demand.

"The statute recognizes a candidate's right to be given notice of errors in this statement and his right to an opportunity to correct them. The state cannot call him to account until it first has accorded him these rights.

"The penal code does not require a candidate to file a statement of contributions made to him, and there are no other statutes on this subject.

"Incorrect statements of facts, inserted in an affidavit but not material thereto, do not constitute perjury.

"Perjury cannot be based on an oath which was neither required or authorized by law.

No Ground For Perjury.

"As the election law does not require the statement to be verified and as neither the election law nor the penal code require the candidate to insert contributions made to him there is no ground for the charge of perjury, nor for the charge of neglect of duty."

These points were advanced in a supplemental brief which came as a surprise to members of the high court, to whom copies of Mr. Herrick's original brief had been distributed. Messengers were sent scurrying to obtain law books and the members seemed to take a greater interest in the new contentions than they had evinced during any of the other legal preliminaries. Informal whispered consultations were held.

Mr. Herrick's announcement that Governor Sulzer had finally recognized the validity of the impeachment was as follows:

"Bowing to the ruling of the court, we now appear generally for the respondent, as before this we appeared specially. I wish to say also that when the articles were first presented the governor was advised that inasmuch as there was doubt as to the validity of the impeachment it was his duty not to surrender any of the functions of his office until that was determined. After the ruling of Justice Hasbrouck and the decision here the governor will not perform any of the functions of his office until the final determination of this case."

"I AM READY," SAYS MURPHY

This to Suggestion He Might Be Called In Impeachment Trial.

New York, Sept. 24.—"I am always ready," said Charles F. Murphy, when questioned about the statement of Governor Sulzer that the Tammany leader would be forced to take the stand in the impeachment proceedings in Albany. Murphy added, however, that he had not received word that he would be called.

Asked what he thought of Norman Hapgood declaring that Tammany methods had hastened Gaynor's death, Murphy said:

"Oh, they might blame me because it has been raining the last few days."

MARTINE TELLS WHY BRYAN IS LECTURER

Says His "Fixed Charges" Include Expenses for Young Men's Education.

Washington, Sept. 24.—During a brief defense on Secretary Bryan's lecture tours, Senator Martine told the Senate that some of Mr. Bryan's "fixed charges" were the education of several young men.

"A few years ago Mr. Bryan was maintaining and educating two boys from Japan," declared Mr. Martine, "and today I believe he is educating three or four young men."

No other Senator continued the subject and Mr. Martine's speech did not reveal who were Mr. Bryan's proteges.

"I have not talked with Mr. Bryan," said Senator Martine after his statement on the floor, "but I believe he is now educating and supporting at least four young students. I believe further that out of his own pocket he is supporting a missionary in every independent foreign missionary field."

Considerable comment was aroused here by Senator Martine's statement. Friends of the Secretary said that they knew Mr. Bryan had been devoting part of his earnings to educating young men in whom he was interested, but they did not know who these youths were.

A close associate to the Secretary said that Mr. Bryan had educated and cared for a young Japanese named Yamashita who had taken the name of his benefactor and put it in front of his Japanese cognomen. This man stated that several other boys had been educated by Mr. Bryan.

In a statement printed in The Commoner concerning his Chautauqua lectures, Mr. Bryan spoke of certain fixed charges to which he had been put, and it was understood among his friends that those referred to money expended in educating young men in whom he was interested.

Millinery Opening

A Formal Presentation of the New Hats at Tepper's

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Sept. 24, 25 and 26.

You are invited to call and learn what the new fashions in Trimmed Hats for Fall are going to be. A review of this brilliant assemblage of the new millinery will intimately acquaint you with the exact trend of Fashion.

It has neved before been within our power to present so magnificent a gathering of Fall Hats, because styles have never within our experience been quite so lovely, so charming and so artistic.

The distinctive becomingness of these lovely hats is a signal victory for their creators. The solitary exclusiveness of each style here represented, is characteristic of the extreme care with which these hats were selected.

We again ask you to be present ON the days of this Formal Opening—

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Sept. 24, 25 and 26.

added to the votes cast in the Relican primaries for the candidates in question, whereas the law provides that they shall be counted separately. This error adds somewhat to the vote of DeMeza as announced and in a less degree to that of Blatz. An examination of the tally sheets shows that such an error was evidently made in these districts: First ward—2 and 3 dists.; Second ward—2, 3 and 4 dists.; Third ward—1, 2, 4 dsts.; Fourth ward—2, 3, 4, 5, 6 dists. This situation apparently also concerns the results announced as to runs made by other candidates of other parties who had the endorsement of the Progressives and who were favored by individual Democratic voters. Accepting that such errors were made DeMeza's majority would probably be reduced by fifty votes. It is well to bear this in mind when examining the whole city table.

Councilman Blatz, on learning of the count, immediately issued this statement: "I want to extend my congratulations to Judge DeMeza. I shall give him my loyal support. I want also to thank my friends who voted for me at the primaries."

Judge DeMeza: "I deeply appreciate the fine spirit shown by my opponent and want to say that he put up a clean fight. We have always been and always will be personal friends. Let me say too that I can't find words to express my gratefulness to the Republican voters for their verdict which I take as an approval of my work as city judge. If elected I will try as in the past to faithfully and conscientiously perform my duties."

C. B. PIERCE WINNER IN FANWOOD BORO

A light vote was seen yesterday at the primaries in the Borough of Fanwood, the Republicans casting their ballots in favor of Pierce for the Gubernatorial nomination and the Democrats for Fielder. William H. Hoar in all probability will be the next Mayor. A Republican, he was the only man of any party that sought the nomination.

The detailed results follow:

Republican—For Governor, Pierce 23, Stokes 9, Carey 5, Fowler 5; Assembly, Babcock 39, Evans 37, Martin 31, Beutell 13; State Committee, Kean 33; Coroner, Jacobson 39; Freeholder (2 years), Hall 43; Mayor, Hoar 38; for two members of Town Council (3 years), Creesy 36, Brown 35, Britten 15; Town Council (1 year unexpired term), Frank G. Urner 42; County Committee, Dr. F. W. Westcott 44.

Democrat—For Governor, Fielder 24, Katzenbach 3; Assembly, Linke 24, Dooley 17, Dobbins 9, Leonard 13, McLoughlin 5, Lowden 4, Griffin 2; Council (3 years), McNamee 14; County Committee, Beardsley 5.

Progressive—For Governor, Colby 5, Osborne 1; Assembly, Fish 5, Morrell 4, Moy 4, Taggart 2, Bender 0, Cain 0; Coroner, Wagner 5.

Socialist—Assembly, Brelsford 1, Sabine 1, Zeitelhack 1; Coroner, Nietzel 1.

The appropriations as follows, were passed unanimously by all who voted: Streets, $1,500; lights, $1,300; police, $950; general expense, $750.

SCOTCH PLAINS FOR PIERCE AS G. O. P.

The voters of Fanwood Town[illegible] (Scotch Plains) turned out in fair large numbers yesterday to cast their ballots at the nominating electio[illegible] As in past years, a strong Republica[illegible] vote was polled and the results sho[illegible]ed that Carlton B. Pierce, of Cra[illegible]ford, was the G. O. P. choice for the Gubernatorial nomination. Pierce registered 92 votes and Fowler 20 votes. Stokes and Carey got 10 and 2 votes respectively. George L. Babcock, of this city, and Henry W. Evans ran a neck-and-neck race, the former securing 109 votes for the Assembly nomination and the latter 107.

Fielder was the choice of the few Democratic voters, polling 19, while Katzenbach received but2.

The detailed results:

Republican—For Governor, Pierce 92, Fowler 20, Stokes 10, and Carey 2; Assembly, Babcock 109, Evans 107, Martin 83 and Beutell 36; coroner, Jacobson 111; State Committee, Kean 105; Freeholder (2 years), Hall 112; for one Township Committeeman (3 years), Ward 86 and Hughes 38; Constable, Charles Meyer 46; County Committee, Johnston 115.

Socialist—No ballot cast.

The appropriations, as follows, were passed unanimously by all who voted—Roads, $2,000; sidewalks, $300; poor, $500; fire, $200; police, $100; public library, $300.

primaries in the borough, Sebring, for the Republican shrievalty nomination, burying Fitzga and DeHart in a landslide. Likewise, in the Democratic county clerk contest, Linbar[illegible] [illegible]kable showing re[illegible] 177 votes to Bellis' 64.

Art[illegible]ld won over Anderson for [illegible] clerk on the G. O. P. ticket. [illegible]ocratic primary Buck won [illegible] Another Democratic con[illegible] between Shurts and [illegible] for State Committee, the former getting 133 and the latter 85.

The only local rivalry for nomination was that for Assessor on the Republican ticket, Cooley, the present incumbent, defeating Martin. Cooley polled 195 and Martin 116.

The detailed results will be found in tabulated form elsewhere in this issue.

PROGRESSIVE NOMINEES.

In the Progressive primaries in this city yesterday for local offices William G. DeMeza was named for the City Judgeship; J. Hervey Doane for Freeholder, and Howard Lapsley for Council. S. P. T. Wilbur, it is said, was also named in some districts on the Progressive ticket, for Freeholder.

SEX HYGIENE IN SCHOOLS.

Impressed with the efforts that are being made to introduce the subject of sex hygiene in the public schools of several large American cities, the Bureau of Education at Washington has undertaken to ascertain to what extent sex instruction can be given. The Bureau finds that there is "wide-spread recognition of what President Foster, of Reed College, calls 'the social emergency' and general agreement as to the need of action, but when it comes to the question of what part the public school shall play, the ideas range from a detailed plan of sex instruction, beginning in the elementary schools, to a determined opposition to any form of sex education whatsoever."

Professor Balliet, of New York University, considers the instruction to college students particularly valuable; because it will enable them to impart the knowledge in turn to pupils in elementary and secondary schools, as soon as the public is prepared for this step.

Dr. Hugh Cabot, a physician of Boston, is one of the leaders in the demand for the instruction in the schools. He declares that the policy of silence and punishment as practiced in the past has failed. He suggests education, rather than punishment, as a remedy for social evils. He says: "Sooner or later we shall come to realize that teaching the comprehension of the sex instinct is the function of the public schools though we are far from such a realization today." Other members of the American Federation of Sex Hygiene, including Former President Eliot, of Harvard, hold equally positive views of the need for sex instruction.

On the other hand, there are many educators and physicians who see danger in the innovation. Dr. Tierney, president of Woodstock College, Maryland, expresses the fear that is in the minds of many thinkers when he says: "Sex instruction is apt to put forward by some years the time of suggestion and temptation. Safety lies in diverting the attention from sex details."

Officials of the Bureau of Education are convinced that the question is about to assume great importance in many schools systems. Chicago is now struggling with the problem; the Board of Education has appropriated money to provide lectures to parents and to groups of high school pupils, with the ultimate idea of extending sex instruction to the elementary schools if the experiment with older pupils proves satisfactory.

Teachers in New York and other cities report considerable success in incorporating sex instruction into elementary work in biology.

State Superintendent Hyatt, of California, has issued a leaflet on sex instruction that has been considered worthy of distribution by the United States Government, while the American Federation of Sex Hygiene, carrying out its plan of constructive work against the social evil, has drawn up what is probably the most careful outline yet devised for sex education at every stage of life, both in school and at home.

SUES TO REMOVE TILDON TRUSTEE

Smith Wouldn't Aid Randolph in Carrying Out Will and Former May Be Ousted.

ANNA GOULD ACTS

Dispute Since Bigelow Third Executor Died Two Years Ago—Randolph Nominated Two Local Men.

Miss Anna Gould, who was a protege of the late Samuel J. Tilden, and three other beneficiaries under the will of the latter, have started proceedings in the Supreme Court of New York to have George W. Smith removed as a trustee and to have Cornelius B. Tyler, of this city, appointed in his place.

The petition, field yesterday, together with testimony, brings to light the controversy that has divided Smith and the other surviving trustee, Lewis V. F. Randolph. The latter was a witness before trial for the beneficiaries who are trying to have Trustee Smith removed. Besides Miss Gould they are George H. Tilden, a nephew; Caroline E. Whittlesey and Susan T. Sabin.

The principal allegation against Smith is that he refuses to come to an agreement with Randolph as to the selection of a trustee to take the place of John Bigelow, who died in December, 1911, and was the most active of the trustees. The Tilden will directed the surviving executors to elect a third trustee immediately upon the death of one of them, but none has been chosen in Mr. Bigelow's place.

The two trustees are also divided as to the erection of a monument to the memory of Mr. Tilden, for which he provided $25,000. Mr. Smith wished to have the statue set up on the east side of Madison Square Park, but the Municipal Art Commission refused consent. The commission would approve a site on the north side of Madison Square, but Smith won't agree to this, although Mr. Randolph is willing.

In his testimony Mr. Randolph said that he suggested Cornelius B. Tyler or Stephen H. Voorhees, both of this city, to succeed Mr. Bigelow, but Mr. Smith objected to both.

Trustee Smith in an affidavit said that he suggested Francis Lynde Stetson, Smith M. Weed, ex-Corporation Counsel George L. Rives or Valentine P. Snyder, ex-president of the National Bank of Commerce. Mr. Smith said he objected to Mr. Tyler, who is a lawyer, because he is the special representative of the heirs at law who broke Mr. Tilden's will and that he doesn't want Mr. Voorhees, who is the agent of the Royal Bank of Canada, because he is "not interested in Mr. Tilden's affairs."

FOWLER CARRIES OWN COUNTY

ty over former Governor Edward C. Stokes, who received the nomination in the State. Stokes also beat out Pierce in the latter's county. Robert Carey, the other Republican candidate, received a comparatively small vote in the county. Fowler received 1705 votes.

In the Democratic ranks, Governor James F. Fielder had an easy time of it defeating Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of Trenton, by nearly 3,000 votes.

Everett Colby, the Progressive candidate for Governor, won over his rival, Edmund B. Osborne, with ease, as he did in all parts of the State.

The Republican organization slate for Assemblymen was successful, the only opposing candidate being Ernest James Beutell. George L. Babcock, of Plainfield; Harry W. Evans, of Westfield, and William B. Martin, of Elizabeth, are the winners. Babcock polled the highest vote of any of the candidates, having over 500 more ballots cast in his favor than did either of the other successful candidates.

Francis V. Dobbins, John J. Griffen and William A. Leonard were chosen as the three Democratic candidates for Assemblymen from a field of seven candidates. F. Otto Linke, of Plainfield, was last on the list, securing a total of 1609.

The Colby Assembly ticket, consisting of former Mayor Moy, of Plainfield; Harwood Fish, mayor of Roselle Park, and Clarence P. Morrell, of Elizabeth, were successful in the contest in that party. They defeated Welcome W. Bender, of Elizabeth; Albert P. Cain, of Springfield, and Frederick S. Taggart, of Westfield, who represented the Osborne faction.

The only figures which are incomplete at the time of going to press this afternoon were those for the various candidates for State Committeemen in the various parties. In the Republican ranks Hamilton F. Kean was unopposed, receiving practically the full party vote. The contest in the Democratic party between General Dennis F. Collins and James P. Kelley resulted in an easy victory for the former, his majority being estimated from the figures available, all of which are unofficial, at about 1,000.

John K. English and Edward A. Knapp both claim election to the Progressive State Committee. The English supporters say he had a majority of 30 over Knapp, while Knapp figures that he carried the county by 14. It will probably take the official returns to settle the dispute.

The county table will be found in another table.

LATHAM TRI-PARTY NOMINEE

Somerville

The result of the primary election in the Borough of Somerville was most surprising. Stokes was easily high man on the Republican vote and Fielder beat Katzenbach by 25 votes in the five districts. For sheriff, Fitzga, Republican, ran exceptionally well, getting 192 against Sebring, the high man, of 60 votes. On the Democratic ticket, Hamilton received 249 against 94 for Joseph E. Buck.

The surprising vote was that on county clerk. Lewis A. Bellis, Democrat, received only 186 votes against 161 for Linbarger, only 15 behind Bellis in Bellis' own town.

The contest for the nomination on the Democratic ticket was only decided when the last polling place made its returns, Layton winning out by a margin of only four votes. On the Republican ticket Brown was an easy winner.

For member of the State Committee, O'Donnell defeated Shurts in the borough by 25 votes, but loses the county.

For member of the Borough Council, Barras and Cline won out on all three tickets.

The voting was very light, but still it was nearly 2 o'clock before the final returns were filed.

ECONOMIC SIDE OF AGRICULTURE

CULTIVATION METHODS

Many Innovations Have Been Introduced During the Past Few Years —Means of Protecting Crops Against Insects.

Before an interested audience of people in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last night Professor Lipman, of Rutgers College, delivered his lecture on economic agriculture and his talk was received with enthusiasm by his listeners some of whom were women. Coming here under the auspices of the local Board of Trade and being entertained by the officers of that body prior to his appearance at the Y. M. C. A., Professor Lipman was afforded an opportunity to acquaint himself with the opportunities offered here and in this vicinity for agriculture and his talk last night was applicable to the advantages which his listeners enjoyed as residents of this section.

Professor Lipman said in part: "In early times grazing was the principal industry of the country because land was a great deal cheaper then than it is at the present time. Where land was cheap primitive methods of agriculture are always found and grazing was carried on in a limited way. As land values increased the need for larger returns per acre made itself apparent to the farmer and waste tracts of prairie land was turned into ariable ground by new methods of cultivation. Farmers found that the growing of one particular product took certain ingredients from the soil and when the store of this particular kind of ingredient was used up the crop in question no longer flourished. The farmer then resorted to rotation of crops, planting a product one year that would return to the soil the ingredient that the crop planted there the previous year had taken out and used for food.

"New Jersey, in its early history, was given up to a five year rotation of crops and later dairy farming was substituted for the grazing industry. The dairies brought creameries into existance and the manufacture of cheese and butter immediately followed, necessitating the building of factories and increased commercial facilities. The making of cheese became one of the most important industries but later it was found more profitable to sell the milk direct to the distributors and the cheese industry became a minor issue. The dairy industry then became unprofitable and the farmer sought to specialize in his crops so as to derive as much profit as possible per acre from his farm land. In doing this he has to conserve labor and this alone makes possible profitable farming. Statistics of grain production show that the United States produces less than half the amount of grain turned out by Germany and is behind all of the leading European countries. The consumption is now outstriping the production and intensive agriculture has to be resorted to. Agriculture is the greatest industry in the United States and other industries rely on it, and the man in the city as well as the man in the country is affected by its progress. In dry land farming, the farmer has to catch the rain and store it up where it falls, and after two season's of rainfall is sealed up he is able to raise a crop which could be raised in one season in a State with a rainfall mark equal to that of New Jersey.

"Fertilizer has been introduced to furnish plant food and as a result the manufacture of fertilizer has become a flourishing business. Novel methods have been introduced by farmers to protect themselves against the ravages of insects and frost, and in some cases kerosene heaters have been employed to raise the temperature of an orchard one or two degrees. Ancient seats of civilization had efficient rainfall and gradually weakened and went to ruin. Thus, countries having light rainfall flourish, because the soil is not carried off in the form of sediment and deposited in the ocean by the rain. Migration in ancient times was due to religious differences and was done by tribes, while tonight it is inspired by economic conditions and is done individually."

The lecture last night was one of a series planned by the local Board of Trade to be given during the winter and men prominent in business world will be the speakers on various occasions.

THE TEMPERATURE.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 10.

LET'S suppose you have a room for rent.

There are several ways in which you can let people know about it.

First, you can tell all of your friends. And you can ask them to tell all of their friends. Maybe, if the telling keeps up long enough and reaches far enough, somebody will eventually be found who will come and take a look at that room.

Or you can put little cardboard signs in your downstairs windows, reading: "ROOM FOR RENT." Hundreds of people pass your house every day. Possibly one out of every hundred will see the signs, and one out of every thousand will be looking for a room.

Both of these ways are inexpensive. They're all right, too—that is, if you don't care whether you rent that room next week, or Christmas after next Christmas.

But most people who have rooms for rent want to rent them as quickly as possible. How can you reach the people who are looking for rooms? Listen, and I'll tell you: Through the Classified columns of a good newspaper—a little Want Ad. will hunt out and reach the very people you want to reach. And that method is inexpensive, also.

Just try it. Next time you want to rent a room, write a little WANT AD. and put in this newspaper. People who want a room will see that ad. because they'll be looking for it, and—well, then it's up to you to take care of them when they write or call.
